"Wings," Boston's only road show, continues to draw crowds which pack the Tremont Theatre daily. "Wings" is now in its sixth week in Boston but it is going as strong as the very first week. Practically all paper has been withdrawn because of the crowds which nightly seek admission. It would not be surprising if "Wings" establishes a new road show record for Boston before its run ends.

Metropolitan's feature this week is "Old Ironsides," a film of particular interest to Boston because Old Ironsides is primarily Boston's own property. Unfortunately the change in policy cut short "Old Ironsides" by one day so that it will fall a little short of some of the other big films. It has been one of the best films, from the box office standpoint, given at the Metropolitan.

"Loves of Carmen" at Loew's State has had a big run during the week, which means heavy receipts after the two preceding pictures showed such remarkable grosses. As this film will not be shown Sunday, however, receipts will be minus one of the theatres heaviest days.

Speaking of "Loves of Carmen" brings to mind the fact that "What Price Glory" is having an unusually large number of repeat bookings in Greater Boston and with "Seventh Heaven" is also being repeated at a number of first-run houses throughout New England.

"London After Midnight" has moved from its successful showing at the State to Loew's Orpheum, where it has enjoyed the second best run of the season's pictures at that theatre, being surpassed only by "Love."

"The Love Mart" and "Sailor Izzy Murphy" provided a good week's double bill business at the Fenway. The first showing of the Sharkey-Heeney fight pictures in Boston at the Howard pulled good houses for this long-time theatre.

The Washington Street Olympia was "sweet sixteen" this week and in observance of its birthday anniversary presented "The Love Mart" for its feature. The theatre inaugurated a new scale of prices for morning shows, reducing the price to 25 cents until noontime, and the results has been highly satisfactory.

There are visions of a price war, although such tactics are denied on all sides, with the simultaneous announcement of Waldron's Casino of a reduction of 40 cents for afternoons and a 40 to 60 cent top for evenings. "Gentlemen of Paris" and "The Poor Nut" was the double feature playing to the largest audiences of the season under the new rate.

Last week the Granada started as the first Sunday theatre in Malden with "Girl in the Pullman" as its feature. Its first Sunday business was the best single night for the house in months.

"Wild Geese" and "Woman Wise" provided the best week's business of the season for the twin houses, the Modern and Beacon. The publicity incident with the announced expansion program of these theatres may have helped swell the receipts.

Open Range" played to good houses at the Scollay Square Olympia while "Love" at the Bowdoin Square filled that theatre at every performance during the week. "Come to My House" at the Keith-Albee Boston grossed as well as any picture there this season and results were eminently satisfactory.

Des Moines

"SADIE THOMPSON," which played at the Des Moines theatre last week, did a very good business, in line with the general trend of theatre attendance in Des Moines last week. "The Divine Woman" at the Capitol was not credited with being the big drawing card there where the stage show made the big hit. "Moonlit Waters" was the name of this Publix show. No special act was the big hit in this number, which received energetic popular approval. At the Strand an amazing business was done by "Legionaires in Paris," which certainly hit here at just the right time. It got a good half week. Reports have been coming in over the state to show that "Beau Sabreur" is doing a big flop. Ames was one of the points reporting poor business for this picture, which had been so highly exploited in connection with its predecessor, "Beau Geste."

Tampa

ANOTHER good week for all Tampa houses. The Sunday opening was big all around and the business held up nicely all through the week. "The Last Command" went over big for the Tampa the first half. General manager Carroll knew he had a winner in this picture and he certainly did exploit it. If anyone in Tampa didn't know the picture was here, they couldn't read, that's all. "The Divine Woman," used the last half, did very good.

"Silk Legs" was featured the first two days at the Victory and it drew excellent business. A road show held the boards the next two days, and the last half, with "The Girl from Gay Paree" on the screen and the regular five acts of vaudeville, drew the usual good business.

"Sailors' Wives" opened big on Sunday at the Strand, and Monday was good. "Fashion Madness" used three days, and "The Main Event,' the last two, both did nicely.

All three changes went over nicely for the Franklin. There was plenty of "action" in all of them, and that's what Mac's customers demand. "The Pioneer Scout," "Aflame in the Sky," and "Blood Will Tell" were the pictures featured.

The Rivoli in Ybor City broke into the first-run ranks again this week with the first run in Tampa of "The Naked Truth." The first three days were given over to women only, then two days for the men, and a final day for everybody. Business was excellent at 50c admission.

Ottawa

THE EXHIBITORS of Ottawa, Ontario, had plenty of film pleasure during the week of January 23 and business was snappy throughout with the exception of the mid-week day on which a good old-fashioned blizzard prevailed.

"Ben Hur" continued to be the big thing, this enormous production having been carried over for a second week at the Regent theatre by Manager Ray Tubman. There was a tremendous jam right up to the last night and announcement was made that the picture would be brought back at an early date for a third local run.

B. F. Keith's had great crowds and the drawing card here was "Two Flaming Youths," starring W. C. Fields and Chester Conklin. This one made an excellent hit and, judging by comments, it was the type of picture that the people have been wanting.

The Centre Theatre also had big business with "The Loves of Carmen." Dolores Del Rio and Victor McLaglen were well liked in this story.

The Imperial theatre offered an action picture by way of a change, this being a Tom Mix feature, and the result was very satisfactory in spite of the fact that the title had been changed from "$5,000 Reward" to "The Daredevil's Reward" because of some production difficulty. Typical crowds attended.

Two of the neighborhood houses were packed for the opening chapters of new serials. The Fern theatre had the first chapter of "Whispering Smith Rides," along with "The Magician," while the Rex theatre opened with the first of "Melting Millions," the feature being "The Country Beyond." The Columbia also bulged with patrons for "Whispering Wires."

For three days the Laurier theatre, Hull. had a big time with "Rose of the Golden West," which was followed by the re-issue of "Quincy Adams Sawyer"; not so good.

San Francisco

GENERALLY speaking, the theatres in San Francisco have been disappointed with business of the past week. No special reason was given except that some believe the ten days' long cold spell, for this section, kept so many home by their fires in the evenings, although the days were pleasant and sunny, so that thousands each day took advantage and went automobile riding in the afternoons.

The most popular picture of the week, and the one that drew the greatest crowds by all means, was "The Shepherd of the Hills," which was shown at the Granada theatre. All liked the presentation act. "Sadie Thompson" drew a good crowd to the St. Francis Theatre and "Baby Mine," together with the Rube Wolf attraction, helped crowd Loew's Warfield theatre, especially on Saturday and Sunday nights.

"My Friend from India" filled the seats at the Golden Gate theatre, together with Francis X. Bushman, who appeared in person with his company. The Union Square theatre reported good business with the showing of "The Man of Quality," "Jungle Land" and the vaudeville acts. "My Best Girl" was shown at the California theatre, but not as good business as anticipated was done with this picture, although it is a good one and all who saw it liked it.

In the residential section, the Coliseum, now owned by Ackerman, Harris & Oppen, did better business than has been done in this theatre for some time. The picture shown was "Broadway Madness," considered fair, the presentation acts being what attracted the people in this case. The Alexandria theatre, another Ackerman, Harris & Oppen theatre, did exceptionally well with "A Gentleman of Paris."

Harrisburg, Pa.

THE first big snow storm of the winter struck Harrisburg on Saturday, the last and most important business day of the week, but, according to theatre managers, failed to curb the enthusiasm of the movie patrons who have been turning out in record numbers ever since the first of the year.

"The stores may suffer from Saturday snowstorms," said one astute manager, "but so far as picture shows are concerned the snow seems merely to drive the people into the theatres."

Unquestionably the best business of the week was done by Loew's Regent, where the attraction was "The Student Prince." The stage version of the play was twice presented in Harrisburg in advance of the movie, and this fact increased the interest and served to boost the attendance at the picture show. Practically every night patrons had to stand and wait for seats. The popularity of the leads, Ramon Navaro and Miss Shearer, also was a contributing factor.

More than normally good business was done also at the Colonial, where the feature offering was Milton Sills in "The Valley of the Giants." This play pleased patrons from the first and the crowds showed a steady increase throughout the week.

At the Victoria, Fred Thompson, in "The Pioneer Scout," a play containing many thrills of the Western plains, won a fair degree of patronage, but not above the average as Thompson, it appears, is not so widely known in Harrisburg. Those who saw the play, however, liked it.

The State's film offering the last half of the week was "The Wizard," starring Edmund Lowe, and it proved a good attraction. Dolores Costello, in "Old San Francisco," which previously had shown in a downtown theatre, did well financially at the Russell, a neighborhood house.

New Orleans

DOWNTOWN theatre business experienced a fall-off in patronage during the past week due to cold and inclement weather which prevailed. The neighborhood houses fared better than in previous weeks, the theatregoers seeming to prefer to stay as close to home as possible instead of venturing downtown.

The new Saenger theatre fared best among the first-run houses during the week, playing "The Dove," with Norma Talmadge. Coupled with the film was Ben Black and his stage band and six New York Publix stage units. However, the film was strong enough to draw them.

Loew's State theatre was next in order from the point of patronage featuring Tom Mix in "The Broncho Twister" on the screen and five well-balanced stage acts. Mix has always been a money-maker for Loew's State, but he did not come up to expectations this week for some reason or other. This is probably due to the fact that so many of his pictures have been shown in New Orleans lately. "The Broncho Twister," however,, proved to be better than the usual Mix picture.

Business at the Palace was good. "Monte Cristo" was the screen feature. It was the film that drew the showgoers as the musical tab show was not so good. "The Crystal Cup" was the Liberty attraction. Business was good during shopping hours but not so after dark.

The Strand played "The Divine Woman," with Greta Garbo, and its business was slightly above that of the past few weeks. This house had been featuring some excellent films.

Colleen Moore in "Her Wild Oat" has its local premiere at the new Saenger and the Globe's business was only fair. The Trianon showed "My Best Girl," with Mary Pickford, and, although this picture had its first run elsewhere, business was good. "Slightly Used" did well at the Tudor.

Business soared at the Orpheum but it was the personal appearance of a crack New Orleans musical organization that drew patrons there. The feature film was "Publicity Madness," with Lois Wilson and Edmund Lowe, and was an entertaining photoplay. The Crescent business was far below average. This house showed Rin-Tin-Tin in "Dog of the Regiment" in conjunction with a musical comedy play.

"What Price Glory" has been on a tour of the local neighborhood houses during the past few weeks and the managers report excellent business, although it has played almost all of the big houses in the city.

Portland, Ore.

BUSINESS was of an improved nature last week at the local downtown theatres. The town's best and most consistent money-getter is John Hamrick's Blue Mouse, where Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" has been holding forth for four weeks, and which will be kept for an additional two weeks. This picture has shattered all records at the house. Tebbett's new Oriental is going along to great business, since its opening. Last week Pathe's "The Fighting Eagle" with Rod La Rocque, and an excellent stage presentation, gave the house a profitable week's business.

The West Coast Broadway did one of the biggest weeks in the past few months with "Sorrell and Son." This production was given some of the finest reviews and was justly entitled to them. Fanchon and Marco's "Lace Idea" was above average, while Ollie Wallace, master of ceremonies, did his share in rounding out an enjoyable program.

The Rivoli did not fare so well with "The Shepherd of the Hills" in its recond week, while Universal's Columbia exhibited Paramount's "We're All Gamblers" to fair business. Critics did not think much of this Tommy Meighan vehicle, and did not hesitate to say so in print.

The Orpheum, under the expert management of Hal Murphy, clicked to a fine three days business with Eddie Leonard, minstrel star, on the stage as headliner. The cinema part of the show, "Dead Man's Curve," with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., did not mean much.

Dallas

ALTHOUGH it has been cold and windy with some rain throughout the week, the Dallas theatres have, as a whole, had a very nice business, and box office complaints were scarce. Maintaining the weekly average under these conditions is to be appreciated.

At the Majestic, Madge Bellamy in "Very Confidenial" showed a good drawing power, although it did not compare with the week before when "Seventh Heaven" had standing room at a premium. Wm. Fox's "Honor First," with John Gilbert and Renee Adoree, comes next.

The Melba opened under the Publix banner January 21, offering "The Divine Woman" with Greta Garbo, which proved a drawing card.

Another good box office week was chalked up by the Palace, showing "Sadie Thompson" with Gloria Swanson. Art Landry is always to be considered also. Emil Jannings in "The Last Command" opened the new week, and from present indications will top "Sadie Thompson."

The Old Mill theatre did a good business throughout the week with Colleen Moore in "Her Wild Oat." "The Woman on Trial" with Pola Negri started off good.

A fair business was done by the Capitol last week with "The Chinese Parrot," which brought favorable comment. The return engagement of "What Price Glory," now showing, opened good.

The new Dent suburban de-luxe theatre, the Arcadia, did a good business with "Ben Hur" and a Vitaphone specialty.

Cincinnati

ALL Cincinnati houses have been getting unusually good breaks during the week, and the box office coffers have been jingling accordingly.

The E. F. Albee theatre continues to attract the crowds, who seemed to evidence more than ordinary interest in "The Last Command," especially since this feature followed rather closely the showing of Jannings in "The Way of All Flesh" at another house in the same chain. The stage presentations also did their share in attracting the customers.

"Seventh Heaven" at the Capitol, with supplementary Vitaphone numbers, did an excellent business, and the picture is remaining for another week. This is unusual for this house, where holdovers are the exception and not the rule.

The Lyric rounded out the second week of "Beau Sabreur" to good returns, business for the extended engagement being eminently satisfactory.

"The Missing Link" pleased the customers at the Family, and all the Syd Chaplin fans seemed to turn out en masse for this one.

The Walnut, featuring "The Gay Retreat," piled up a comfortable gross for the seven-day run.

The Strand did a big business with "Daredevil's Reward," first half, and "Stage Kisses," second half.

Baltimore

TWO storms hit business of the first-run moving picture theaters in Baltimore, during the week beginning Monday, January 23, very badly. The first was a rain storm on Tuesday night and the second was a blizzard with snow, wind and low temperature which began early Saturday morning and continued until almost Sunday morning, bringing over 15 inches of snow.

But despite the inclement weather business was excellent at Keith's Hippodrome with "Paid To Love," featuring George O'Brien and Virginia Valli together with five acts of Keith family time; excellent at Warners' Metropolitan where "The Jazz Singer," featuring Al Jolson, presented with the Vitaphone accompaniment and songs was being shown for its third week; excellent at the Palace burlesque house for its first week with "Wheels of Destiny," featuring Forrest Stanley and Georgia Hale with a burlesque show in a continuous performance and excellent at Loew's Valencia where "The Student Prince," co-starring Ramon Novarro and Norma Shearer was the big feature.

The reissue diversion of Oscar Wilde's "Salome," starring Alla Nazimova, proved a good drawing card at the Little Theater, but it did not measure up to what was expected. "Wings," the spectacular air picture, featuring Clara Bow and other players, went over only fairly well during its second week at Ford's Theater, a legitimate house where the top price of admission was $1.50.

Very good business was done at the Keith Albee New Garden where "Coney Island," featuring Lois Wilson and Lucille Mendez was the film feature with eight acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville.

The Stanley had "The Love Mart," starring Billie Dove and Gilbert Roland and a stage presentation entitled Jazz a la Carte, with Leon Navarra and other vaudeville favorites. That bill went over very good.

"The Gay Defender" with Richard Dix went over poorly at Loew's Century with Sammy Kahn and other vaudevillians on the same bill.

"Two Girls Wanted," co-starring Janet Gaynor and Glenn Tryon proved a poor attraction at the Rivoli with Carline Nichols' clarion trumpeters also on the bill. But the poor business was not the fault of the acting of the principals but of the story.

"Silk Legs" with Madge Bellamy and James Hall was another poor attraction at the New Theater.

Opinions on Pictures

13 Washington Square

Mildly Interesting

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

IN a mildly interesting way this picture has a certain appeal. It tries to establish a mystery element—and as long as it sticks to melodramatic incident it makes out pretty well. It is when it attempts to prove some sort of moral that it lapses into orthodox film material.

The picture is adapted from the play of the same name and revolves around class distinction. The son of the aristocratic woman who dwells at 13 Washington Square approves of a grocer's daughter as his sweetheart. This stirs up enmity between mother and son. Which, as you can plainly see, provides the "kettle of fish" for the plot. The counter-plotting, the incident, the introduction of characters who serve to establish contrast and conflict—and some humor—make up the rest of the story. It all ends happily enough for the romancers.

A good cast has been collected to interpret the film, but most of their efforts are wasted. Such talented troupers as Alice Joyce, Jean Hersholt, ZaSu Pitts, George Lewis and Helen Foster haven't much to do except register their required expressions. Their emotional talents aren't taken advantage of here.

Drawing Power: Title has a lure about it. Suitable for average houses and even first runs if surrounded by well-balanced programs. Exploitation Angles: Play up title and feature as adaptation of play. Play up cast, most of players being well known. Feature plot with teaser questions.

THEME: Romantic drama of efforts of rich society youth determined to marry beneath his station.

Produced and distributed by Universal. Length, six reels. Released, January, 1928. The Cast: Alice Joyce, Jean Hersholt, George Lewis, Helen Foster, Julia Swayne Gordon, Helen Jerome Eddy, ZaSu Pitts, Jack McDonald. Director, Melville Brown.

The Heart of Maryland

Throbs But Faintly

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

MOVING at a snail's pace and presenting weak and aenemic portrayals by practically every member of the cast, "The Heart of Maryland," never seems to get going. The old story of the Civil War, of a Southern lassie who loved a blue-coat, is tediously told in this screen version of the old play. Sloppy direction is responsible for the picture's boring qualities. Even the Catherine Calvert film vehicle of several years ago, was, if we remember properly, a better bit of screen fare than this newer piece.

Dolores Costello is a talented girl. Anyone who doubts that can just hearken back to "The Sea Beast" to get overwhelming proof. If you saw her for the first time in "The Heart of Maryland," however, you would never even dream that she possessed ability. She sheds tears throughout the picture and that is about all.

The other members of the cast make no better progress. Perhaps the director imagined he was screening a performance of a stage play and forgot about the camera's advantages over the stage. He erred, for one thing, in being satisfied with the acting he took from the cast. "The Heart of Maryland" has many flaws.

The play was a success years ago and there are many old timers today who remember it with pleasure. Perhaps they will prevail upon the younger generation or others who are unfamiliar with it to take it in.

Drawing Power: The picture is poor, but Dolores Costello's name may draw them; also the fact that the play played the boards for a long time. Exploitation Angles: The play's fame and Dolores Costello. The song.

Theme: Heart drama laid during the times of the Civil strife in America.

Distributed by Warner Bros. Released, July, 1927. Footage, 5868 feet. The Cast: Dolores Costello, Helene Costello, Jason Robards, Warner Richmond, Carroll Nye, Charles Edward Bull, Erville Alderson, Paul Kruger, Walter Rodgers, James Welch, Orpha Alber, Myrna Loy, Harry Northrup, Nick Cogley, Lou Short, Leonard Mellon, Madge Hunt, Charles Force, Francis Ford, Ruth Cherrington. Director, Lloyd Bacon.

Buck Privates

Post-War Comedy Amusing

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

THE war had its humorous moments. The producers have taken cognizance of the fact that humor with a martial flavor clicks at the box office. What with "Tin Hats," "The Better 'Ole" and "What Price Glory" having proved extremely amusing to the vast majority of fans it is only natural that the late fuss over in Europe should be a popular subject out Hollywood way.

"Buck Privates," like "Tin Hats," deals with the Army of Occupation in Germany and the humorous circumstances arising when the Army is billeted in a pretty Rhine town. A lot of fun is to be had in some of the situations, those in which Zasu Pitts and Eddie Gribbon figure proving most laughable. When it comes to individual performances it can be said that these two have taken the picture and run away with it, especially Zasu. The soldier boys and well filled steins, a wedding in which the groom marries the wrong bride, a wild motorcycle ride and such type of action and incidents keep the laughs popping up.

Lya de Putti and Malcolm McGregor are the romantic leads, the former the German fraulein and the latter the persistent doughboy who finally weds her. Miss de Putti's role is a long cry from the superb piece of work she flashed in "Variety." She and McGregor play their romance with sufficient skill to make it a humorous keystone upon which the complications rest for their fulfilment. James Marcus, as her father, a strong pacifist, gives an excellent characterization.

Melville Brown did a fairly good job with the direction.

Drawing Power: Good. These war comedies are popular. Exploitation Angles: Tell 'em it's a comedy built around the war. Mention Miss de Putti and her role in "Variety." Deck out your ushers in khaki.

THEME: Comedy of the army of occupation in Germany and of how a doughboy wed a pretty German lass, the daughter of an anti-militarist and of how a hard boiled sergeant married a German maid whom he had been dodging.

Produced and distributed by Universal. March, 1927 release. Length, 6 reels. The Cast: Lya de Putti, Malcolm McGregor, Zasu Pitts, James Marcus, Eddie Gribbon, Ted Duncan, Bud Jamison and Les Bates. Director, Melville Brown.

Simba

The African Jungle Revealed

(Reviewed by E. G. Johnston)

AFTER four years of hardships in African jungles Martin and Osa Johnson have again handsomely contributed to the files of natural history pictures with their current offering, "Simba," without doubt one of the finest collection of authentic close-ups of wild life in existence. The Johnson film is rich in educational value, highly interesting throughout and will transport its spectators to another and unfamiliar land where animals and natives fight it out for the right to live.

The Johnsons' efforts on this expedition were mainly concerned with securing authentic wild life photography, hence practically all hunting was done by camera instead of the gun. There was no shooting except where their existence was threatened and this writer unhesitatingly states that these two explorers have gloriously achieved their objective; moreover, the photography itself is excellently done.

Many of the river, lake and jungle scenes are very beautiful and the wild life close-ups amazing in their authenticity. One of the highlights of the film is the gathering of a native tribe in the Lumbwa region. A lion has killed a prize bull and the chief proceeds to work his followers to a frenzy in order to get their courage to a point for the impending drive on the killers. This sequence is by far the most thrilling, although the forepart of the picture, which shows the stalking of the vicious African elephant, is a close second.

We venture the opinion that if "Simba" is sold by certain methods it will produce the desired results at the box office.

Drawing Power: Title and amount of publicity given the Johnson expedition will attract.

Exploitation Angles: The one sure way to sell this picture is to tie up with every organization possible; universities, schools, clubs, boy and girl scouts, etc. The picture's educational value is its strongest point.

Produced and distributed by the Martin Johnson African Expedition Corp; editing by Terry Ramsaye. Length, 8,000 feet.

Chicago

Well-Turned Melodrama, Entertaining

THAT much talked-about play of the jazz age, "Chicago," just naturally gravitated toward the movies. It had a melodramatic wallop to start with, and a characterization of a tiger woman that needed nothing much more than vitality and color to be quite perfect. So it shapes up as very good entertainment, having been treated intelligently. Some doubt was created in our mind whether the "fireworks" touched off in the original could be reproduced in the film. But the director skirts the danger line very well. The heroine is not dressed down to the movies. She is still the bad baby without a single redeeming quality, but her language isn't quite so bold.

The picture follows the play very closely —especially so in its motivation and the details. It is effective melodrama because it represents the melodramatic flavor of this jazz age. And the jazz mad woman reverts to type by bumping off her playboy when he refuses to cater further to her whims. She isn't a bit sorry. In fact she revels in the accompanying publicity of the crime.

And though the outraged husband comes to her defense and you want to feel sorry for him, it is the girl herself who extracts sympathy. This gives an indication of the grip Phyllis Haver has upon the characterization. It is her biggest opportunity and she does wonders with it. Victor Varconi and others of a well-selected cast act convincingly.

Drawing Power: Publicity of play and fact film is good will draw them. Exploitation Angles: Tease it in tabloid style. Feature cast and bill as typical of jazz age, etc.

THEME: Melodrama of wife who kills lover and frowns upon husband when he attempts to save her.

Produced by Pathe-DeMille. Distributed by Pathe-De Mille. Length, ten reels. Released, January, 1928. The Cast: Phyllis Haver, Victor Varconi, Robert Edeson, Warner Richmond, T. Roy Barnes, Eugene Pallette, May Robson, Virginia Bradford, Josephine Norman. Director, Frank Urson.

The Haunted Ship

Not So Hot But Good Enough

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

GRADUALLY Jack London's stories of virile men are coming into the movies. The latest to assume screen form is "White and Yellow," rechristened "The Haunted Ship" and a better box office title by far than the original. Montagu Love, Tom Santschi, Dorothy Sebastian and Ray Hallor are the featured players in this story of vengeance on the South Seas. The players give a good account of themselves in their respective parts.

Aside from a shortcoming on the part of the director which lessens the tempo of the piece, but not to the extent that it becomes boring or stretched out, the production has many good angles that deserve commendation. It is well photographed, has some pleasing backgrounds, and a fairly convincing mutiny. It is surprising how much footage has been centered on the villainy of Love, how the producers have defied movie convention and given the heavy the starring part. The general status of the heavy in films is that he menaces for a time, is ultimately defeated by the hero and then given the air. In "The Haunted Ship," even though he dies at the finis, the heavy stalks through the picture as the center of all eyes.

The story is told of a sea captain, who shut up his first mate in a prison on board the ship and kept him there because of his belief that his wife had had an affair with the man, and that his wife's son is really the son of his captive. Nursing this thought in his mind he becomes crazed, and sends his wife and boy adrift in the open sea. The lad upon reaching manhood is shanghaied by the sea captain in company with a chorus girl stranded on one of the islands.

The captain eventually learns of the boy's identity and punishes him as he has punished his captive, the "ghost" of the sailing vessel. A mutiny breaks out among the crew against the murderous captain and he blows up the ship to save his skin. The crew flee to the boats, the boy and girl also leaping overboard, and the captain, knocked senseless by his captive, is drowned with him when the ship goes down.

Drawing Power: About good. It is a picturization of a story by a famous author, and it has several prominent names in the cast. Appropriate for all theatres. Exploitation Angles: Tell them it's a sea story by a man who knew how to write them. Exploit the personalities in the cast.

THEME: Sea drama of boy and girl who fall into clutches of brutal sea captain, who believes the boy to be the son of the man he hates. They escape his clutches and he is drowned with the knowledge that he had maligned the memory of his dead wife and that the boy is really his son.

Distributed by Tiffany-Stahl Released, December, 1927. Length, 6 reels. The Cast: Dorothy Sebastian, Tom Santschi, Montagu Love, Ray Hallor, Sojin, Alice White. Director, Forrest Sheldon.

Thanks for the Buggy Ride

Highly Entertaining

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

TWO of Universal's brightest stars have a fine vehicle for their concerted efforts in this extremely entertaining picture, a type that critics affectionately dub a "family picture." Bearing good title the film has wonderful tie-up possibilities with record dealers, radio stations and the like. It has a new comedy star, a young chap who leapt tumultuously into fame with his ingratiating characterizations in "A Hero for a Night" and "Painting the Town." Furthermore, it has the presence of one of the best good looking blondes in pictures nowadays, a lady who outdoes herself here, and reveals plenty of talent as a comedienne.

What else has "Thanks for the Buggy Ride" got? Well, it has a good story, lots of gags and some rapid action. It is film entertainment of which an exhibitor can wax enthusiastic when it comes to inserting snappy catch lines in his trailers of coming attractions. Good, clean fun, than which the fans can demand no more.

It's all about a song plugger and a dancing instructress of whom it is a case of love at first sight. Her remark of "thanks for the buggy ride" when he brought her home in his truck (ballyhooing a new song) gives him an idea for a title for a song and so he sets to work writing one.

The girl is at odds with Tryon because he believes she had thrown him over in favor of a publisher's son. Through her own ingenuity she disguises herself as a negress and by dint of personality and peppy singing puts the song over at a party given by the publisher. The girl and the boy realize a fine sum with their song and they put aside their misunderstandings and become once again the ardent lovers.

Drawing Power: A suitable attraction for any house. It should fare with good results at the box office. Exploitation Angles: Arrange tie-ups with music stores for records or sheet music of song hit which gives the picture its title. Have one of the records played continuously in the lobby. Get hold of a buggy vehicle and use it as an attractor.

THEME: Comedy drama of young couple's efforts to market a song. The girl hoodwinks the music publisher, who dislikes her because of a previous encounter during which she slapped him, and, by dressing as a negress, puts the song over with a bang at a house party. She and her boy friend get a fat check for the ditty.

Distributed by Universal. Released, April, 1928. Length, 6 reels. The Cast: Laura La Plante, Glenn Tryon, Richard Tucker, Lee Moran, Jack Raymond, David Rollens, Kate Price, Trixie Friganza. Director, William A. Seiter.

"The Newlyweds' Servant"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

SNOOKUMS, the Stern Brothers baby actor, again proves himself a real humdinger in this comedy of the Newlywed series. Rarely has there been seen on the screen such an attractive youngster, nor one who seems so thoroughly to enter into the spirit of the thing. It is quite evident that even at his early age Snookums has a real sense of humor, and he is showing improvement with each succeeding picture.

In this one the kid has a rattling good time leading the new servant to a merry chase in the various fun-making devices of a pleasure park at the beach. He first strolls into the ocean as the newlyweds are erecting their beach tent for the day. Nurse plunges in after him and then decides to take the youngster for a ride in his baby carriage. Snookums makes his getaway into the amusement park when nurse stops to talk to a friend. He surveys all the sights and finally hides in a roller coaster, where nurse discovers him just as the coaster starts with the pair aboard. The wild ride completely wrecks the nurse, and Snookums triumphantly wheels her away in the baby cariage. Any picture in which this youngster appears is bound to have its appeal.

"Recollections of a Rover"

(Educational—One Reel)

A SHORT trip from country to country, showing some scenes from each, is the topic of this Hodge Podge release. The first scene—the Lyman H. Howe day at the Santiago Exposition in California—was taken in 1915 when Howe was a moving picture exhibitor. In the same year Howe was again honored by having a special day set aside for him at the Panama-California Exposition, and this is duly shown. Other scenes are of Mexico, Sweden, the Beartooth Mountains in Wyoming, the desert tribes of Northern Africa, a waterfall in Switzerland, the Iguaqa waterfall in South America and sheep herding in Montana.

They are a nice collection of interesting stories that have an entertaining aspect as well as an educational one.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"The Looters"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

THESE two-reel westerns are none too convincing when they are enacted most skillfully. The stories, of course, are far fetched and illogical, but for all that they hold the interest, and make for popular entertainment when they are well done. When the hero is revealed on the screen facing the greatest danger at the hands of desperate horse thieves it would seem no time for him to display a brand of smile that is familiar to dental cream advertisements.

Bob Curwood has such a smile, which is altogether too reassuring to an audience. It is as though he was saying: "Don't take this thing too seriously, it is only being done before the camera. A smile of derision is one thing and a smile of exceptional joy is another. It is hard to conceive of the latter being on the level in some of the situations Curwood finds himself in this featurette.

He smiles just as readily when he is engaged in deadly combat with the leader of the band in a runaway automobile dashing down a mountain side with the girl he loves at the wheel as he does in the final fadeout when he is assured of her undying love.

The story is a fairly interesting one, with Curwood coming to the rescue of the girl ranch owner, whose horses are being stolen from her. He routs the band, but the leader forces the girl to drive off with him. Bob, on horseback, dashes after them, and overtaking them engages the villain in a desperate back-seat encounter, while the girl endeavors to keep the car in control. At the conclusion of the encounter Curwood comes up entirely unruffled, and with his most engaging smile. Proper direction would have made the story much more convincing.

"Running Ragged"

(Educational—One Reel)

THIS Cameo, starring Lewis Sargent and directed by Jules White, has some fast and peppy action which propels this one reel along at a rapid gait. It utilizes the old idea of a lover whose sweetie is mad at him because he has displayed evidence of a want of courage. To prove to his and her own satisfaction that he is not a coward she procures the assistance of a theatrical troupe whom she pits against the unsuspecting hero when he enters unknowingly upon a test.

He goes into a house inhabited by turbaned and menacing rogues. It is when he is led to believe that they have stolen his sweetie and are holding him captive that he destroys any notion they may have had that he is susceptible to fear. He starts on a wild rampage, knocks his opponents cold and wins his way to a room on the top floor of the house. There he finds that the girl had been cozily installed all the time while she awaited the outcome of the test.

"Daze of '49"

(Bray—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

A PRETTY good comedy of the slapstick type is this Skylark release from the studios of Bray Productions. In it Jack Cooper, in a 100 per cent "goofy" characterization, stars with Louise Carver, Georgia Pembe and Tiny Ward in supporting roles. The cast does good work.

The tale relates to a temporary daze of Cooper's, who has been thrown out, bag and baggage, by his landlady. He had thrown a horseshoe over his shoulder for good luck, but the shoe came bounding back and hit him sharply on the head, temporarily putting out of commission his thinking apparatus. That undoubtedly was the reason for the boner he pulls in going out to modern California to look for gold, although there has not been a gold rush in that state since the days of '49. He saw the news of the strike in a paper, but he did not notice the date something like 80 years or so ago.

He arrives at one of these old towns that were alive and booming at the time of the rush. After an adventurous tussle with a bully who is trying to grab the money bags of an old man and his pretty daughter, he is shot by the villain. In his dying condition he feels the girl's lips on his, but then suddenly awakens from his daze to discover that it is his landlady who is kissing him and that ever since the horse shoe hit him he had been seeing things.

Glen Lambert directed.

"Smith's Army Life"

(Sennett-Pathe—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

LITTLE Mary Ann Jackson is just about the whole show in this newest Mack Sennett comedy, Raymond McKee and Ruth Hiatt are featured with this child player but neither of them does any particularly effective work. Little Mary Ann is an exceptionally clever child and one who is improving with each succeeding picture. She has a most expressive face and a rare talent for pantomime. It is also quite evident that she is the possessor of a sense of humor well beyond her years.

But for the work of this youngster the picture would have little to recommend it. Mc Kee, despite his strenuous efforts, is not convincing as a comedian, perhaps because of the poor material at hand, and Miss Hiatt has comparatively little to do.

Smith's wife decides it would be a good thing for him to go to the citizens' training camp and that the entire family might take a vacation there. He enrolls at the camp and is subjected not only to the orders of the officers, but to those of Mrs. Smith and the baby, whose identities are not revealed at the camp. Mrs. Smith makes a decided impression upon the officers and is bidden to a number of affairs, to which she also brings the child, while papa is assigned to wait on the table. Complications follow and arouse Smith's ire and jealousy. It is then revealed to the officers that Mrs. Smith is his wife. Profound apologies follow and Smith is accepted as one of the officers. The incidental humor is contributed almost entirely by little Mary Ann.

"Head Hunters of Ecuador"

(Fox—1,050 Feet)

THIS Fox Variety shows some exceptionally interesting scenes and some splendid scenic shots taken by an expedition to the headwaters of the Amazon River. It is country that is little known and seldom traversed by white men. The group of travelers are shown in their struggle over the mountains and down into the jungle country inhabited by the Jivero Indians, who are continuously at war with rival tribes.

The expedition quite apparently was a most hazardous one and the resultant photography well worth while. The group of invaders were supposedly visiting a most hostile country, but fortunately were well received and gained a splendid insight into the mode of battle between the tribes, which offers good screen material. Their method of living and trophies of war also reveal some interesting shots. This should prove an added attraction to any program.—CHESTER J. SMITH.

"Star Shots"

(Educational—One Reel)

ANOTHER of Educational's series of Lyman H. Howe's Hodge Podge of sense and nonsense. This time Robert E. Gillaum has chosen a nice assortment of shots offering plenty of contrast and always interesting. They deal with figures before a curved mirror, a rhinoceros getting its teeth cleaned with a common house broom, views of the steel industry and its hot furnaces and the Culver Military Academy on Lake Maxinkuckee, Indiana. Some of these shots are educating.

The reel is balanced with plenty of animated work by Archie N. Griffith.

Altogether a pleasing subject.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"All Balled Up"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

WITH Octavus Roy Cohen providing the story and Charles Puffy as the star, it would seem as though a better picture than this one should be the result. As a matter of fact there is nothing wrong with the story, nor is there anything wrong with Puffy. The mistake is probably in the treatment of the story, which is funny enough in itself without being overstocked with ridiculous gag stuff and knockabout comedy.

Puffy, inclined to be a pessimist, is reassured when a fortune card from a weight machine tells him to be an optimist, that everything is coming his way. Within a few minutes he finds a half dozen theatre tickets and invites a party to accompany him to the show. They are just comfortably seated when the rightful seat holders come along and it is revealed that the Puffy tickets were for the week previous.

To square himself with his party Puffy invites them to a swell cafe. He is ridiculously garbed in a tight-fitting dress suit which is ripped asunder when a playful diner slips a pat of butter beneath the Puffy feet as the comedian is dancing. Needless to say, before the action is completed, the cafe is a complete wreck, and the Puffy raiment is torn to tatters. As the fortune predicted, everything has come his way. But for the overemphasis of the knockabout comedy the picture would be a fairly passable one.

"All Set"

(Educational—One Reel)

WALLACE LUPINO, Lupino Lane's brother, is the star of this Cameo in which he receives support from Lucille Hutton and Lewis Sargent. Harry Sweet directed them. He has turned out a fast and snappy comedy that is good for a lot of laughs.

The one reel is taken up with an evening in the home of Lupino. He and his wife both feel restless and the quiet of the home irks them. Sargent, Lupino's brother-in-law, arrives and tells them to snap into it as he has tickets for the opera. They begin to hasten with the job of dressing—for they have but a few minutes. In the flurry of excitement everything goes wrong with Lupino. He is driven frantic by the imbecile carelessness of his brother-in-law, who soils his best shirt by using it for his shoes and constantly interrupts him while shaving. Then there is his wife to occupy his attention with the request to hook her gown. In all Lupino spends a terrible evening and his agony is capped when he finds that the doltish brother-in-law had mistaken the date of the tickets, which were for another night.

Wallace Lupino is good as the husband driven almost to desperation by the antics of his wife and brother-in-law. That latter worthy is played with good effect by Lewis Sargent.

A good little comedy.—RAYMOND GANLY

"High Strung

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

JERRY DREW, Educational's new star comedian, who is a smaller edition of Ray Griffith, carries on in this farce, a fair comedy in the number of the laughs and the means employed to get them. For a comedian of Drew's talents, it is not exactly an excellent choice. To what can you attribute the fact that he doesn't click in this new two-reeler as well as he did in some of his other releases? The direction is okay, but the gags and the story, it appears, could have been improved upon.

In addition to Drew the cast also has Estelle Bradley, Robert Graves, Glen Cavender and Theodore Lorch. All of the action takes place in a hotel where thieving activities are current. The best of the comedy occurs when Drew and Cavender are hypnotized. They get on the edge of the roof where they are in constant peril of falling off. The rest of the fun is not so good.

"George's False Alarm"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

GEORGE finds himself in the usual difficulties that dominate this Let George Do It series, which, by the way, seems to be improving with each succeeding picture. There is some very fair comedy in this one, with some humorous shots of the principals jumping into the fire net.

George is completely discouraged when Mary's father, the first chief, refuses tohave him for a son-in-law. He decides upon suicide, and finding the gas shut off because of his delinquency, jumps from the roof only to land in the net of the fire department, which happens to be drilling on the spot. The firemen are so impressed with George's feat that he is given a job in the department.

One of George's first moves is to take Mary for a ride on the hook and ladder, and in their absence fire breaks out in Mary's apartment. They meet the rest of the department on the way to the fire and, arriving there, Mary dashes up stairs. George scales the ladder in an effort to rescue her, grabs a dummy, thinking it the girl and returns to the street to discover his mistake. Again he heroically dashes through the smoke and this time returns to the net with Mary and her badly burnt biscuits. The comedy element is increased with numerous falls by Mary's father and others into the net.

"What a Party!"

(Universal—Two Reels)

MIKE and Ike, portrayed by Charles King and Charles Dorety, change a stupid party into a hilarious one when the cause of the bulge on Mike's hip is revealed. After an attempt at a number of humorous gags at the party the pair depart in a taxi, from which they alight at a fruit stand to purchase a watermelon. A crook arrives at the same time and the stand is demolished while Mike and Ike make their getaway.

A newspaper-wrapped bundle is delivered by the washerwoman next morning and Mike and Ike are horrified to read of the death of an Italian fruit vender at the hands of attacking thugs. From there on the picture warms up and there are some real funny situations with the comedians continuously encountering all sorts of police squads. They consider their escape hopeless and finally decide to give themselves up.

Wandering into a police station, the nature of their business is asked and Mike turns over the tell-tale paper revealing his and Ike's crime. The police captain points out to them that the paper is six years old and that the murderers of the Italian the night before have been apprehended.

"A Mysterious Night"

(Educational—One Reel)

EDUCATIONAL'S new comedian, Monte Collins, stars in this Cameo. He is the unsuspecting husband who returns home and is mistaken by his wife and mother-in-law for a burglar. The complications that result with this unintentional deception are almost disastrous for Monte. His mother-in-law calls in a policeman with the result that you have one of those typical comedy chases from room to room, hiding in closets, hiding under beds, hitting the wrong party and so forth. This is not wonderful material to work with, but Monte keeps a-stepping and will get some laughs.

It's fairly funny. The idea, though not original, can still hand the folks a few laughs.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"Rubbernecking"

(Educational—One Reel)

THIS is another release of the Walter Futter Curiosities series, edited and titled by Beth Brown. The idea presented is that of a movie tour of places and subjects ranging from New York's high buildings to aesthetic dancing on the open field. Accompanying the several views are titles fashioned like the running conversation of a loquacious guide. It is an interesting reel. Quite a variety of shots are bunched together—such things as sheep, toy railroads, sunflowers, an old horse, a fox farm, a turtle race track, a child prodigy, a floating hotel and some other scenes. A pleasant novelty to balance a depressing moment on any exhibitor's program.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"Wildcat Valley"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

A FEUD between mountineers supplies the comedy situation for this Tuxedo comedy featuring Johnny Arthur. Directed by Charles Lamont the players also include Estelle Bradley, Robert Graves, Jack Miller, Eva Thatcher, Stanley Blystone and Monte Collins.

Arthur, as a member of the clan bitterly engaged in the feud, has no taste for fighting. He uses brains against the brawn of his husky enemies to vanquish them. The odds of the battle shift to and fro with Arthur either doling out punishment or taking some. He is spurred on in his endeavors to be a hero because of the presence of the pretty Estelle, a mountain girl.

The type of comedy that evolves out of this feud situation and Arthur's efforts to be a hero is of the broad, rough and ready type. You have such stuff as the hero falling down a well, the hero having to resort to feminine apparel, fistic brawls and flights and pursuits all over the place. Funny at times is the comedy, but for the most part it is strung with only the usual assortment of gags.

Arthur succeeds in portraying faithfully a dull and helpless chap. But that he can do better is, to our mind, undeniable. Give him material to work with and he will click along in great style. He needs stuff of the sort he had in "The Monster." At the present time he seems to have lost a bit of his stride because of the vehicles handed him.

Collins gives a pretty good account of himself as Arthur's tough enemy.

News Reel Resume

A staunch collection of varied topics confronted the news cameramen this week, and were duly incorporated into the various reels. The subjects range from "Bossy" Gillis, the unique mayor of Newburyport, Mass., to "Slim" Lindbergh, whose latest exploits are still providing reams of copy for the newspapers and thousands of feet of celluloid for the newsreels.

What was to be found in the reels this week is set forth briefly as follows:

Fox News, Vol. 9, No. 36: A new cable railway in the Alps; new German envoy and Sec'y Kellogg; Lloyd George arriving at Rio de Janeiro; the new Wampas "baby stars"; Uncle Sam's native marines in the South Seas; famed Derby winners living in retirement and their offspring; Virginia college girls at a game of push-ball; graphic shots of the mad sea the Aquitania had to fight on a recent trip from Europe.

Paramount News, No. 53: Pershing received by Kansas City; Irish president honoring U. S. war dead; parade of Japanese firemen; Sir Thomas Lipton and Sir Harry Lauder in New York; test of motorless plane at Milan, Italy; Lindbergh hailed again—this time at Costa Rica; fattest family in Hartford, Conn.; U. S. Marines on the job in Nicaragua; New York City as viewed from above its skyline.

No. 54: Washington, D. C., swept by storm; sled drivers mush it at Minneapolis; merchant marine sailors at Hamburg display their skill with the ropes; the new master of the S.S. Leviathan; gas well burns at Corpus Christi, Texas; a high jumper from Bengal at the Luna Park Zoo; throngs in Guadaloupe honor patron saint; marine flyers in their maneuvers over the Nicaraguan jungles.

Pathe News, No. 11: Ford's flying flivver greeted in Washington as it lands; Harry Lauder; notables at the Havana race meet; new Arctic flights planned by explorers; Atlantic seaboard storms; bullet-proof vest tested; Emperor Hirohito reviews Japanese navy; daredevil does tricks on landing gear of plane in flight; German envoy arrives in Washington.

No. 12: Ambassador Herrick greeted at Havre en route to Paris; brunettes and blondes take love tests; Californian and her large feline friends; Prince Nicholas of Rumania takes part in sacred service; tests new suit by jumping into Potomac; Washington snowed under by blizzard; steel properties which will be merged; Pershing rousingly welcomed on Mid-West tour.

M-G-M News, Vol. 1, No. 48: French boys compete in 10-mile mud race; gray horse battery in exhibition; President Cosgrave of Ireland; F. W. Prittswitz-Gaffron, new German ambassador; Sir Harry Lauder; Moulay Mohammed, young Moroccan sultan; Dixie lassies play push-ball; skiing contest produces youthful stars; the strange elevated railway in up-to-date Germany; colorful crowds at Havana races; the gale that swept the Atlantic seaboard.

International News, Vol. 10, No. 8: Guns at Fort Myer, Va., roar their defiance; Southern girls clash in push-ball game; Ireland's president; the new German envoy; Senator James A. Reed of Missouri; Sir Thomas Lipton and Sir Harry Lauder; pedestrians battle winds in New York; Germany's unique monorail line at Elberfeld; Cuban horse races attract crowds; new U. S. submarines undergo diving tests.

No. 9: Cuban firemen demonstrate their prowess; the Sports Bay at the Cathedral of St. John formally dedicated; Washington, D. C., covered with blanket of snow; Doris Stevens, feminist; the new commander of the S.S. Leviathan; society women and their costumes for ball; Pa. college hall razed by blaze; the new baby stars chosen by the Wampas; dog teams in snow race in Maine.

Kinograms, No. 5365: General Goethal honored; dogs and boys race in sled Derby at Minneapolis; whalers' church at New Bedford, Mass., again has a crow's nest for a pulpit; the flivver plane landing at Washington; Germany's new ambassador; Ireland's chief executive; little girl takes her daily ocean plunge in icy Mass. waters; Mary Pickford; Harry Lauder; scene of the gale's onslaught in New York City.

No. 5366: Sepalla wins 2-day Eskimo dog-sled race; Marshal Haig, dead dommander-in-chief of British forces in the war, as he looked on the occasion of his first visit to Bath; Capt. Donellan, war ace, starts flight to South American republics; Columbia professor tests girls with lovemeter; a huge reindeer round-up in Alaska; snow strikes New York; stars of the stage who have aided fund to build new memorial for Shakespeare; trains giant cats for the circus rings.

Studio Briefs

Tiffany-Stahl is about to start work on a picture starring Sally O'Neil for which Ralph Graves has just been signed for the masculine lead. Eddie Gribbon, Sylvia Ashton and Jean Laverty have also been signed. The picture has the working title of ''Saturday Night.''

Walter Lang, after producing two pictures for De Mille, has returned to the Columbia studio, where he is to start immediately upon the production of a romance and adventure story of the near East.

Jack Natteford, Tiffany-Stahl scenarist, will write the adaptation for the third Jack London story to be filmed by his company. The title of this new production is unannounced. Natteford has finished the adaptation of ''The Devil's Skipper,'' also a London story.

Joe Brown, Broadway stage comedian, is making his motion picture debut at F B O's studio in Hollywood, where he is portraying the comedy role of ''Crooks Can't Win,'' starring Ralph Lewis.

''Pay As You Enter'' is the title announced by Warner Bros. for the fourth co-starring vehicle for Louise Fazenda and Clyde Cooke. Preparation for the script is now in progress.

Anthony Coldeway and Samuel Pike, scenarists, have joined the staff of writers at the Hollywood studio of Columbia. Pike's initial assignment is the adaptation of ''Virgin Lips,'' the story by Elmer Harris.

Reginald Barker, Tiffany-Stahl director, has returned from a 580-mile trip in the San Miguel district of California, where he explored the Stone Canyon for a location site. It is thought, however, that he will make his next picture in the coal region of Colorado.

Curtis Benton, author, has joined the Tiffany-Stahl organization as assistant to Raymond Schrock, supervisor of productions.

Frank Capra started camera work on the final scenes for Columbia's ''So This Is Love,'' in which a prize-fight forms the climax. The director used the American Legion Stadium in Hollywood as his setting for this scene. Film shots were taken between rounds of a professional match. Several ex-pugs appear in the cast.

Leo Maloney is about to begin production on ''The Valley Beyond the Law,'' a story by Ford I. Beebe, which will be used as a vehicle for Dan Coleman. The leading lady of this western will be Jeanette Loff, borrowed again from Cecil B. De Mille. Edward A. Kull will be in charge of the cameras. About 50 men will be a part of the cast. The company is using the Maloney ranch on top of the San Bernardino mountains as the location site.

Malcolm St. Clair, Paramount director, will make Lew Cody's first production under that star's new long-term contract with M-G-M. No title has been announced. Cody's latest, ''Wickedness Preferred,'' is set for January 28th release.

Eugenie Besserer and Burr McIntosh are two well known players who have been added to the cast of the First National special, ''Lilac Time.''

First National's new Charlie Murray vehicle, in work under the direction of Edward Cline, is still without a title. Thelma Todd, Spec O'Donnell, Big Boy Williams and Fred O'Beck are included in the cast.

''Barnum and Ringling, Inc.'' will be the title of Our Gang's next comedy for M-G-M. Joe Cobb will act as ringmaster, Farina as the wild man from Borneo and the other kinds in various roles. Robert McGowan will direct them.

THE Pastime theatre at Chicopee, formerly operated by Frank Wharton, is now under the direction of O. LeDuc.

At the annual dramatics of St. Catherine's Alumni Association in Charlestown, Mass., Miss Eleanor A'Hearn of Inedependent Films, Inc., was leading lady in the show.

Mayor P. M. Gagne, who also operates the motion picture theatres of Somersworth, N. H., was a visitor ot Boston during the week and, in addition to stopping in film row for some bookings, was a guest of Mayor Malcolm D. Nichols at Boston City Hall.

Mrs. Belle Taylor, owner of the Richmond theatre at North Adams, Mass., leaves the latter part of this week for Europe. She will be absent for two months, touring the Continent and the Mediterranean region. This will be her fourth trip over the same ground.

Louis Cohen, owner of the Jefferson, Strand, Phillips and Gardent theatres in Springfield, is starting the erection of another theatre in the Carew section of the city. It will be called the Liberty Theatre and work will be rushed day and night to complete the structure by the end of April.

Samuel Moscow, sales manager for Independent Films, Inc., has returned to Boston from Florida, where he went on account of his health. He shows much improvement but is not yet sufficiently recovered to return to business.

Mrs. Anna Harris, bookkeeper of Independent Films, Inc., gave a motion picture show and entertainment to the Jewish orphan children of Dorchester during the week at which about 150 children and their guardians were present. Vocal numbers were rendered by Phil Fox, booker of the Independent exchange, accompanied by Miss Sarah Lourie and Saul Simonds, shipper, all of the exchange, put on the pictures.

Two theatres in Lawrence, Mass., were visited by yeggs over the week-end and a total of between $1,500 and $2,000 was stolen from the safes of the two motion picture theatres. At the Modern, operated by John Dineen, the office was forced and after knocking the dials off the safe, a sledge hammer was used to smash in the inner door. At the Palace theatre, owned by Bosketti and Ziskin, the safe was dragged from the office to a back room and there smashed open.

Miss McCullough, from the New York home office of the Film Board, spent the week in Boston at the New England Film Board installing a new system of bookkeeping. She will tour all of the Film Boards of the country before returning to New York to see that they are conducted in a uniform manner.

Baltimore

THE Broadway Garden Theatre, Broadway and Gay streets, here, was leased by the Liberty Defense League, John G. Callan, president, for the moving picture performance scheduled to be given Sunday night, January 29, to test the Sunday Blue Laws here.

Before the doors opened about 2,000 persons had gathered. Mr. Callan, also a member of the House of Delegates, arranged for the performance under the auspices of the Liberty Defense League.

The admission was arranged so that patrons could buy programs at 50 cents each, thus using the same system in vogue at Sunday baseball games here.

As soon as William J McNeal and Winston Callan had bought programs the police, who were on hand, stepped in and arrested Mr. Callan, Irving Schlossberg and Charles F. Mules.

Before the show could start it was stopped. The program selected included "Mockery," with Lon Chaney, and a comedy.

Upon being taken to the station house, Callan was charged with working on Sunday and selling programs for a movie performance; Irving Schlossberg was charged with working on Sunday by operating a moving picture machine, and Charles F. Mules, who is treasurer and vice-president of the Liberty Defense League and former member of the Port Development Commission, who acted as doorkeeper, was charged with working on Sunday by taking tickets at the door of a theatre.

Joseph Schlossberg, proprietor of the house, was also on the docket, but the charge against him was dismissed when it was learned he had nothing to do with the performance.

The three men were released on their own recognizance and ordered to report at the station house at 9:30 Monday morning.

Upon making their appearance Monday before Magistrate Thomas O'Neill, of the Northeastern Police Station, they were represented by Paul Mules, counsel for the Defense League, who asked that the cases be sent downtown, meaning that they requested them being sent to a higher court for a jury trial.

The arrangement was agreed to by Magistrate O'Neill.

The crowd about the theatre was heartily in favor of having the performance on Sunday night, and on Monday morning an admiring group was present at the station house to hear the case.

Acting on a ruling handed down by Attorney General Thomas H. Robinson, Police Commissioner Charles D. Gaither has banned the showing of moving pictures on Sunday nights for the members of the Cinema Club at the Little Theater on North Howard street, operated by the Motion Picture Guild.

The members of the Cinema Club were to pay dues quarterly, which would have entitled them to sit in at the movie performance on Sunday nights at the Little Theatre.

This was banned by Commissioner Gaither because it conflicted with the Sunday Blue Laws here.

It is expected that building opertions on the new Universal house, located at Union and Killingsworth, will be started the latter part of March. All the necessary details have been attended to, with everything in readiness to shoot ahead. The house is being built by Ralph Lloyd, Los Angeles multi-millionaire, who recently invested about $3,000,000 in real estate in Portland. Universal has a 20-year lease on the theatre.

All the exterior and frame work on the new $1,500,000 Publix theatre has been completed, with a staff of 100 workmen starting the interior work. The theatre promises to be one of the finest on the Coast, it being patterned after the Paramount in New York City. The house is expected to open late in February.

New York & New Jersey

As a testimonial of esteem held for the four executives of the New Jersey Theatrical Enterprises, four hundred people, including relatives and employees, recently attended a dinner at the Jersey City Elks' Club.

Each of the guests honored on this occasion, Messrs. M. Kutisker, R. Schoen, M. H. Kleban and M. H. Kutinsky, were presented with an appropriately inscribed token of appreciation. The wives of these executives were presented with corsage bouquets of orchids.

H. R. Sheridan, general manager of New Jersey Theatrical Enterprises, made the presentation address, during which he said: "It is in a spirit of sincere appreciation for your constant consideration of us that we feel honored to present these humble tokens of our great esteem." Other speeches were made by the company officials and Advertising Manager Charles P. Carroll.

During and immediately after the dinner ten acts of vaudeville were presented, along with Joe Murphy, the original Andy Gump of the movies, as master of ceremonies. The affair concluded with dancing.

The New Jersey Theatrical Enterprises control the largest chain of theatres in Hudson County, New Jersey, and has the reputation of being one of the most efficiently handled organizations in this industry. M. Kutisker is president; R. Schoen, vice-president; M. H. Kleban, secretary, and M. H. Kutinsky, treasurer.

The epidemic of grippe is taking its toll from the local film industry, a considerable number being recently reported to be suffering from the malady. A few more names this week include J. Contributions from our sport editors continue to pour in,, the girls being represented this week as well as the boys.

First National was the first motion picture company to organize a basketball team among its girl employees. As a matter of fact, it is the only company which boasts such a team, although Paramount is in process of organizing one and promises to accept the First National girls' challenge in the near future.

The members of the girls' basketball team of First National are Gertrude Ryan, Miriam Levine, Louise Russini, Elinor Shweiger, Anne Leach, Anne Gatons and Margaret Victorson. Their coaches are Joseph Farren and Wm. Kline, both of the First National home office.

The team was organized in February, 1927, and one game was played that season. This year four games have been played with the girls' basketball teams of the following organizations: Consolidated Gas Co., New York Life Insurance Co., American Bond and Mortgage Co., and the Seaboard National Bank. The First National team won the Consolidated Gas match, and the game with the American Bond and Mortgage Co., losing the other two.

Games are scheduled with the teams of the Plymouth Institute of Brooklyn, and the American Bank Note Co. in the near future.

The First National players are ready to challenge all comers, and hope the other motion picture companies will organize teams so that a series of games in the film industry may be played.

Fox Films forged to the front in the 1928 motion picture basketball league this week by defeating Pathe, 1927 basketball champions, by a decisive score of 48-35. In a second contest, Consolidated outplayed Metro 50 to 18, and are now only half a game behind Pathe and Paramount, who are tied for second position. Charles Winter, popular six-day bike race winner, attended the games and tossed up the first ball of the Fox-Pathe contest.

Lou Fein, of Fox, rang up the highest number of points with 19, while Ernie Tobin led his Pathe teammates with 17. Spectacular plays were made by Harry Weiner, Al Star and Larry Theaman for Fox, and by Geo. Snyder and Herman Buschell of Pathe. O'Connell, Housle and Kubart helped Consolidated win over Metro, whose individual star was R. Schreiber.

Only one game now separates the first four movie teams, and with less than three weeks of tournament games scheduled, the remaining contests are sure to furnish plenty of thrills.

Florida

The new Rex theatre, located in the heart of the business section, on Main street, between Kentucky and Tennessee, in Lakeland, was opened this week. The house is owned by the Rex Amusement Corporation with J. T. Ashby and George Frellson in charge.

"Bill" Sharp, representing United Artists, and Fred Barnes, representing Liberty, were Tampa visitors last week.

The Franklin, Tampa, is adding several pieces to the orchestra and will have a "young symphony." Thursday is usually an "off" day at this house, due to the fact that this is the day both the Tampa and Victory make their mid-week change of program, so Manager McLaughlin is trying out a new stunt to boost the Thursday business by allowing two admissions on one ticket.

First National have a new salesman in Sterling Wilson, who is working out of the Pittsburgh exchange. Mr. Wilson worked for First National in the home office and then in Cincinnati, from where he comes to us.

Since Santa Claus gave Alexander Parke, of First National, a beautiful radio for a Christmas present, he has become a confirmed radio bug. Try and get Alex away from the loud-speaker after he gets in the house at night.

Joe Hanna, team manager of the basketball team that the employees of Fox have formed, has issued a challenge to the Pathe aggregation and any other outfit to a series of games to determine the champions of film row. The players on the Fox team are: Joe Hanna, Ben Hanna, Joe Vandergrift, Harry Rooney and Charles Matthews. The substitutes include: George Wheeler, George Pencoast and A. W. McCormack.

Exhibitor visitors to film row the past few days included: Geo. McGowan, Indiana and Vandergrift; Mrs. Andrew Naesnerr, Beaver; Louis Stoll, Natrona; Jas. Velas and Steve Gallas, Wheeling, and B. E. Cupler, Washington.

The new divisional manager for Warner Bros., Max Milder, made his first trip to Pittsburgh in his new capacity. Mr. Milder is well-known here and was manager of General Film Company's local branch, and is a veteran of the business.

Sam Sax, president of the Lumas Film Corporation, makers of Gotham Products, was in Pittsburgh last Tuesday, talking things over with Manager James H. Alexander of hte Columbia Film Service, who are the local distributors of the Gotham product.

Having finished a two months' stay in the local territory, C. A. Clegg, special representative from the First National home offices in New York, left for Cincinnati to do similar work.

Al Sugarman, former Universal chief in Pittsburgh and now manager for the Universal in the Queen City, was visited by First National Manager Roy Haines, who went to visit his old stamping grounds in Cincinnati.

Since his car has been stolen from where it was parked on Gibbons street one afternoon recently, Walter Wach, one of film row's popular artists, has asked this to be printed as a warning to others who park their cars in this vicinity. He advises that all auto owners lock their steering wheel, gear shift, doors, and any other place where they can to be safe. Here's hoping that Walter has the good luck of recovering his car in the near future.

The real reason that Ben Kalmenson, First National line salesman, is passing out cigars and candy to his friends, and for the grin on his face, is that his wife presented him with an eight-pound baby girl Thursday morning of last week. Little Diane and Mrs. Kalmenson are doing fine. Congratulations!

Fox has a "student" in George Pencoast, who was sent from New York to study every phase of exchange business. George is learning the ropes very fast.

Mark Brower, owner of the Kenyon theatre on the Northside, visited in Springfield, Ohio, last week.

Tuesday evening of the past week Mr. and Mrs. David Victor, McKeesport, had the girl employees as guests for dinner. Mrs. Victor was Miss Sarah Broder, employed by First National until her marriage, and Mr. Victor is the owner of the theatre which bears his name.

Joe Lefco, First National city salesman, spent the past week-end in Cleveland with relatives.

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, which is believed to already be considerably overseated, is to have another theatre, according to announcement recently made by Nathan Bernstein, who has under consideration the construction of a house on Beechmont avenue, the estimated cost of which is $60,000.

The Lyric Theatre Co., Point Pleasant, Ohio, of which Ross Filton is general manager, has a 600-seat house in course of construction. It is expected to be ready for opening about April 1.

It was the writer's pleasure to pay a personal visit to John James, manager of the Grand theatre, Columbus, Ohio, a short time ago. John, who is a brother of William M. James, erstwhile theatre magnate of Columbus, has established a continuous run record for his house, which has seldom, if ever, played a picture more than one week. "The Jazz Singer," with Vitaphone, was shown for five straight weeks, on account of which a permanent smile now adorns James' countenance.

The Orpheum theatre, Xenia, O., which was compelled to close recently on account of fire, which destroyed the projection booth and contents, including eight reels and film, has reopened, the entire interior having been remodeled and redecorated, according to H. L. Binder, who owns the house.

The Mirror theatre, a suburban house, at Dayton, Ohio, was purchased recently by George and Ruth Hembold, who in turn leased the house to Harry Friend for a long term.

The Palace theatre, Hamilton, Ohio, under management of the two Harrys—Silver and Turberg—is celebrating its eighth anniversary. A special souvenir edition of the house organ has been issued, and a number of super-special pictures have been booked to commemorate the occasion.

The Dreamland Theatre Company has been incorporated at Columbus, Ohio, by Theodore, Theofanti and August Perkas. There are 250 shares of no par stock.

Harry Brown, Jr., manager of the new Ohio theatre, at Mansfield, Ohio, acted as host to a number of distinguished out-of-town visitors who came on as special guests at the opening of the house recently, among whom were the Silverman brothers, executives of the Variety Amusement Co., who sponsored the house. An elaborate banquet was served following the dedicatory exercises.

Keith's theatre, Cincinnati, is being given over to noonday lectures which are being delivered by Don. Augustine Walsh to peoples of all creeds and denominations.

While paying a personal visit to Griff. Granger, manager of the Kaypee theatre, at Mt. Gilead, O., it was learned that several important improvements were in contemplation. The Kaypee is the smallest first-run house in Ohio, and has no trouble in packing 'em in, due in part to the excellence of the programs, and also on account of the manager's popularity. Granger says that he is looking forward to the biggest year ever for 1928.

Des Moines

JACK OSSERMAN, who is the new manager of the Des Moines office of Universal, returns to this territory after an absence of a year, during which time he has been manager of the branch at Wichita, Kans., for Universal. Mr. Osserman succeeds George Nalor, who was promoted to the managership of the office at Los Angeles.

Visitors in film row from the eastern offices last week were Capt. Baynes of the Kinograph Publishing Co. and J. R. Wilson, general sales manager for Pathe from the New York office, who were at the Pathe office for a day.

Jack Raper, the new manager of the office of Fox Films, is making good in this territory. He went out this week to visit the trade. He had a conference at Waterloo with the West Coast Theatre Company organization, which recently closed five of their Iowa houses.

The Ezy theatre at Toledo, which has been closed for some time, has now been reopened, under the management of W. J. Miller. Mr. Reagan was the former manager of the Ezy.

At Manila, Iowa, the Electric theatre, which has been in charge of James Jordan, changed hands last week. The new owner of the theatre at Manila is C. R. Grimes, who took immediate possession.

Diagonal, Iowa, now has a show. The theatre there, which has been known as the Crest, has been closed for over a year. Mr. Collier, who is the new owner of the Crest, has made a few changes in the theatre building. He plans some changes in the plan of management.

Bluechel and Lanon, who formerly had the Isis theatre at Cedar Rapids, have again taken the management of this house. They had the theatre three years ago. The theatre again came into their possession through the closing of the five houses formerly owned by the Frank Amusement Company. The theatres were recently merged with the West Coast Theatres, Inc., and were closed on January 15th, when a receiver was appointed. The five houses are the Plaza and Rialto at Waterloo, the Isis and Majestic at Grand Rapids and the Orpheum at Clinton. Jack Retlaw, who has been in charge of these theatres for West Coast Theatres, Inc., since they took over the houses, announces that the theatres would be reopened under new management.

Harry Frankel, the new manager of F B O's Des Moines office. Mr. Frankel succeeds "Jimmie" Shea who was promoted to the St. Louis branch

Harold Barnes, who has the Rialto theatre at Burlington for A. H. Blank, was at the Des Moines office last week. His report is in line with reports generally from points outside of Des Moines that the theatre business is seeing a depression at this time in Iowa territory. No reason is given for this slight slump, unless it could be the effects of the first of the year bills

The theatre at Sheldon, Iowa, suffered some damage from a fire there last week. The blaze was put out before great harm was done. The Sheldon theatre is the Lyric.

Stanton, Iowa, is to have motion pictures under the management of the Community Club. Pictures will be shown every Saturday afternoon and evening with the belief that this will do much to promote business for the merchants of the town.

Harry Briggs, who recently purchased the theatre at Primgharm, Iowa, is now operating the theatre there.

M. Stephens, of Stephens and Pudder, who have the Orpheum theatre at Websters City, was at the office of Paramount to purchase pictures and advertising.

S. S. Swarz, formerly with the Commonwealth Theatres Company, is now in business on his own, selling a new kind of carbon.

The office of Pathe has a new shipper in Jim Cadaro, who is making his first excursion into the film business. Mr. Cadaro succeeds Keith Roy, who was promoted to assistant booker when Ralph Miller resigned from that office.

Visitors in film row were H. Stanley, who recently became the owner of the Grand theatre at Greenfield, and M. L. Dixon, who has the theatre at Mt. Pleasant. Mr. Dixon has jut celebrated a year of married bliss.

Harry David, who is in charge of the Publix Shows in this district, was called into the New York office to confer with A. H. Blank, who went to New York a week ago.

A. G. Stolte, the popular manager of the Capitol theatre in Des Moines, who now has the management of the A. H. Blank-Publix gem house at Omaha, the Riviera, came to Des Moines last week for a visit pertaining to business.

The stockholders of the Des Moines Theatre Company had a meeting last week in the offices of A. H. Blank in the Commonwealth building. The meeting was in charge of Mr. Grusinier, the vice-president. The routine of business was transacted.

Jerry Eby, who has been acting as personality man for the Riviera theatre at Waterloo, which had its opening on January 29 as one of the A. H. Blank-Publix chain, will be succeeded by Casey Jones, who has been appearing at the Fort Armstrong theatre at Rock Island.

Jake Cohen, of the Strand and Capitol at Ottumwa, suffered a damaging fire last week in a booth fire, which badly damaged the machine and destroyed several reels of film. The fire was extinguished without any disturbance in the theatre proper, but the machines were so badly damaged that they had to be replaced.

J. C. Collins, who sold the Rex theatre at Perry, Iowa, to Youngclass and Latta early in the season, has just returned from a trip to California with his family. Mr. Collins is now located in Des Moines and is working for Columbia Pictures, which has their offices with Educational here.

Ted Schlanger, sales director of short subjects for Universal, has been making a tour of all the divisions. He called at the Des Moines exchange and will also visit Kansas City, Omaha and Minneapolis.

Rose Browder, head cashier of the office at Pathe, is now at Rochester, Minn., where she underwent a serious operation.

Lorenz Wegener, manager of the Rialto at Fort Dodge for A. H. Blank, spent several days in Chicago, studying the theatre business. Young Wegener is the son of one of the veteran showmen of the state, Wegener, formerly of the theatre at Valley Junction, Iowa.

South West

ANOTHER Dent Theatres, Inc., R. & R. Theatres, Inc., dinner was enjoyed by a large number of executives and employees of both concerns at Dallas, Texas, and in the Baker Hotel one evening last week. Mr. Dent and the Robb and Rowley executives were there and all the rest of the gang.

Dan Michaelove, who recently resigned as manager of the Universal Chain Theatrical Enterprices, and who joined the sales department of Pathe Exchange, Inc., as manager of the southern district, and is now in Dallas, Tex., and will go to other points in his district in tour of inspection.

The Ager theatre at Liberty, Texas, has closed temporarily.

C. K. Goss, well-known equipment man of Dallas, Texas, was married in New Orleans, La., January 5th, to Miss Antonia Marie Falgout, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Falgout, of Lockport, La.

W. F. Hamilton is erecting a new $15,000 theatre named Polytechnic at Fort Worth, Texas, to seat 1,000, including a balcony seating 200.

Dent Theatres, Inc., have purchased ten Peerless reflector arc lamps for their circuit of theatres.

The new theatre owned by W. H. Williams at Midland, Texas, has received a new Kilgen organ.

R. & R. Circuit are erecting a modern theatre at San Angelo, Texas, and, in addition to pictures, will show vaudeville two days a week.

The New theatre, with 600 seating capacity, has opened at Tulia, Texas.

Miss Mamie Sue McBurnett has been appointed manager of the Palmer theatre at Palmer, Texas.

A new theatre is being built by a local capitalist at Mason, Texas.

Eatle Zirkle of Coleman, Texas, has purchased the Cozy theatre at Miles, Texas, from J. W. Lumpkin and the house will be completely remodeled and refurnished.

A new theatre will be erected by Charles R. Vest at Nixon, Texas, soon.

The Queen theatre at Wharton, Texas, has started Sunday opening from 2 to 6 p. m. only, in order to not interfere with religious services at the churches.

The Carrollton theatre at Carrollton, Texas, has been remodeled and new equipment added.

The Lavista theatre opened at Raymondsville, Texas, January 5th to capacity business.

The Queen theatre, operated by Saengers at Houston, Texas, has inaugurated a split week policy with reduction of admission prices in order to compete with the De Luxe houses in Houston.

J. N. Byrd, formerly with Warner Bros. at Dallas, Texas, has been appointed salesman for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer at Oklahoma City, Okla.

Albany

THERE were quite a number of changes in house ownership in central and northern New York during the past week. The Bright Spot in Rensselaer, which has been operated by Abe Stone, of Albany, who has a number of other houses, was taken over by Ross F. Fayles, who resides in Rensselaer. T. O. Fuller acquired Grant's theatre in Hobart, which has been operated by Mrs. Ida Grant. The Wells High School has purchased the Wells theatre from George Babcock. So far as can be learned, this is the first instance of a school owning and operating a theatre. The State theatre in Utica has changed hands, having been acquired by J. J. Raymond and I. Schancupp from the G. B. Theatre Corporation.

No automobile these days for Harry Hellman, owner of the Royal and Paramount theatres in Albany. Bundled to his ears in a big coonskin overcoat, Mr. Hellman prefers to walk and says it's far healthier.

James Roach, of Schenectady, former manager of the Farley houses in that city, has the sympathy of his many friends, through the death of his sister in Springfield, Mass., last week. The funeral was held in Schenectady.

According to reports reaching Albany's film row from salesmen as well as through letters, business is none too good among motion picture theatres in the smaller places. Business continues up to standard in Albany at first run houses. The neighborhood houses are doing fairly well, the Paramount reporting that it has not had a losing week since it was opened last fall. There is one thing that has been rather favorable to the theatres and that is smaller coal bills during the winter thus far, on account of weather conditions.

H. N. Webster, of Buffalo, a branch manager for Bond, was in town during the week. Al Bothner, formerly of Troy, but now with the Smalley chain, was also in Albany. Robert Wolf, of New York, representing the Standard Theatres, Inc., also paid Albany a call.

L. J. Hackin, of Boston, district manager for Pathe, and L. W. Knickern, of the contract department in New York City, were in Albany during the week for a conference with Edward Hayes, local manager.

Harry Weinberg, who resigned as manager of Albany's F. B. O. exchange, is now on the road selling Fox product out of Omaha, according to letters that have reached here during the last week or so.

S. E. Feld, one of the best known film salesmen in Albany, and a brother-in-law of Alec Herman, resigned last week from the Pathe sales force.

J. Leon, of Timely Films, Inc., of New York City, was in town during the week. Others seen along film row included Frank Green, of Castleton; Sam Berger, eastern division sales manager for Metro; Clif Almy, of Buffalo, and Arthur Abeles, eastern sales manager for Warner Bros., these two joining Harry Seed, local manager, and spending a day with the Schine Brothers in Gloversville.

C. R. Halligan, of the Universal exchange, received the jolt of his life last week in connection with a special magazine story that appeared in one of the local papers, relative to Albany's "Hollywood," as film row is sometimes known. The reporter's interview with Mr. Halligan was perfectly satisfactory, but the make-up man at the newspaper office used a two-column cut of Thomas Hardy, the author, in illustrating Mr. Halligan's story, while Mr. Halligan's likeness appeared further on in the magazine in connection with a story on Mr. Hardy. Mr. Halligan's only comment was that he pitied Mr. Hardy.

R. H. McClure, who runs the Queens theatre in Saranac Lake, and who hails from Texas, journeyed to Albany to do some booking last week.

It is doubtful if there is any film row in the country where managers and office help are on the job more days to the week than in Albany. A visit to the row on Sundays generally finds Al Guteck of the F. B. O. exchange, Harry Thompson of First National, and others busily engaged in catching up with their work.

Snowblocked roads in the Adirondacks last week resulted in Harry Greenbloch being obliged to leave his car at Saranac Lake and continue over the territory by train. Mr. Greenbloch is employed at the F. B. O. exchange. Al Guteck, the local manager, was away last week, making the rounds of the circuit houses in Saratoga, Utica and elsewhere.

George Doolittle, shipping clerk at the Pathe exchange, was laid up last week with the grip and his work was handled by Frank Maher.

Louis Freiberg, a former well known booker, who is now connected with the International Screen Service, of New York City, was in Albany during the past week, calling on various theatres.

Pictures are so popular with the soldiers at Madison Barracks, near Watertown, that they will be shown every week night at the Barracks, according to an announcement made by the Adjutant General.

The common council of Canandaigua has decided to leave the question of Sunday movies to a vote of the citizens. A movement has been on foot for some little time to open the theatres in that city on Sundays, but it has been strongly opposed by the local ministerial association. Last week those favoring Sunday movies presented a petition to the council containing 2,024 names. The ministers presented one with 1,250 names and the Mayor then declared that the whole thing would be left to a vote of the taxpayers.

Canada

THE attempted robbery of the Gaiety theatre, Winnipeg, Manitoba, had its sequel on January 23, when three young men were found guilty of breaking into the theatre by Magistrate Noble and were given severe sentences.

It was only early in January that robbers held up George Law, manager of the Lyceum theatre, Winnipeg, a Universal house, and secured $4,100, making their escape in a running battle.

Chris. Georgas, manager of the Classic theatre, Owen Sound, Ontario, has discovered a newcomer at his home in the person of a nine-pound baby girl. Incidentally, Mr. Georgas has three growing boys who are the ushers at the Classic theatre at evening and Saturday performances. It has been suggested that the diminutive young lady will fit into the family arrangement by becoming the cashier some day.

A. P. Drohan, manager of Griffin's theatre, Chatham, Ontario, had an unusual patron when Clark Ticknor lost control of his automobile, dashed over the sidewalk and crashed into the front entrance of the theatre. Three lobby frames, windows and a post were broken. Despite the clatter, there was no panic.

Just before Walter P. Wilson, manager of the Capitol theatre, Edmonton, Alberta, left for Vancouver, B. C., to become manager of the Capitol theatre, he was given a public surprise that he will never forget.

It had been his custom to announce the musical presentations of the house orchestra, known as the Capitolians, in person. At his final appearance in front of the olio curtain, there was a short stage wait and when the curtain did go up he was dumfounded to see many of his business friends on the stage in place of the stage band.

Manager Wilson quickly announced to the packed house that this was not a part of the evening's program but before he could go any further he was presented with hunting souvenirs and a set of pipes. There were also short speeches which the audience accepted in good part.

Manager J. S. Smart of the Royal theatre, Port Hope, Ontario, has changed from the three-a-week policy to two changes a week. For the two weeks after the adoption of the winter policy, he found that receipts were practically the same as when programs were given only two-day runs.

George Rotsky, manager of the big Palace theatre, Montreal, Quebec, opened with an extended run of "The Circus" on Sunday, January 29, this being the first presentation in Canada.

The Russell theatre, legitimate house of Ottawa, Ontario, became a moving picture theatre during the week of January 30 for the presentation as a road show of Paramount's "Wings." This was the first film road show in the Canadian Capital this winter. Bookings into this theatre are controlled by Famous Players Canadian Corp.

Fire completely destroyed the Parc Royal, an amusement house of Hull, Quebec, early on Sunday morning, when no one was in the building. The actual loss was $30,000, although Charles Broadeur, president of the Parc Royal Company, declared that the building could not now be replaced for $75,000. The building was periodically used for moving picture presentations. It was erected in 1904 and had been the scene of a number of memorable political rallies.

Sunday concerts have been resumed in Bayswater Hall, Ottawa, Ontario, under the auspices of the Bayswater Council, Knights of Columbus. Theatrical programs are presented Sunday evenings.

J. M. Franklin, manager of B. F. Keith's theatre, Ottawa, spent the week of January 23 in New York City for the purpose of arranging bookings. Mr. Franklin goes to Gotham four or five times a year.

Newspaper Opinions on New Pictures

"The Private Life of Helen of Troy"—First National, Globe Theatre, New York City

American "Audience highly amused . . . and enthusiastic. Title writer certainly had his fun and each 'crack' topped its predecessor. Glorious tomfoolery. Maria Corda makes exquisitely beautiful Helen and gives sincere performance. Stone gives highly amusing characterization. Boasts some elaborate sets, beautiful photography and sprightly moments. Well cast and nicely directed."

Mirror—"Well-filmed, well-costumed and well-enacted comedy. New and intelligent step in movies. Don't believe anything like this has ever been put into pictures. Treatment reveals deal of shrewd forethought. Madame Corda attractive woman who plays slyly comic role for all there is in it. Exceedingly capable and she hereby placed herself high up in list of movie actresses. Stone continues to confirm growing suspicion that he knows his staff. Sets magnificent. One of best things moving pictures have yet produced and merry evening withal."

Evening World—"If reception accorded means anything, screen version of Erskine novel is in for long life and happy one. Will be very popular. As deliciously mirth-provoking as novel. Has taken on lot of laughs that Erskine didn't give it. Countless Twentieth Century touches have been injected into this 2,000-years old tale and in most instances result is side-splitting. Burlesque treatment will bring more shekels into box office than subtlety would have done. Maria Corda was perfect in piquant, exotic manner, and her very strangeness to silver screen contributed to her felicitous performance. Lewis Stone superb. Wisecracking titles. Most of them extremely funny."

Journal—"Modern story in old-fashioned clothes, made from satirical angle. Entertaining. Miss Corda effective and very decorative. Directed with good comedy. Background and sets pictorially beautiful. Picture history burlesqued—all in spirit of good, clean fun."

Graphic—"Amusing. Worth a trip to Globe. First National has gone farther than any other company dared in depending on audience's appreciation of what is funny without custard pies. Korda's achievement has been a group of sets of unusual beauty, excellence of background and smooth management of mob scenes."

Sun—"Brings breeze of originality from West. Lavish background. Maria Corda, grey-eyed blonde, effective as somewhat coy Helen. Welcome addition roster of European beauties. Pleasant evening's entertainment."

Morning Telegraph—"Yon won't go wrong if you spend your pennies for good time at 'The Private Life of Helen of Troy.' Droll play on frailties of married life; mischivious satirical darts at game of politics and statesmanship; skilful lighting; mammoth settings; splendid pace; merry mixings of present vogues and customs on ancient classic background—all this serves to make cinematic dish well seasoned with salt of humor and entertainingly palatable in every respect. Maria Corda a brilliant gem in finely wrought setting. Passages of rare beauty, idyllic and refreshing."

"The Circus"—United Artists, Mark Strand Theatre, New York City

News: "Howling success. Charlie once again proves a revelation. A screaming delight. A howling, hearty, happy, slightly slapstick cinema production. Gets you more often by a laugh than by a tear. One is kept so constantly in a state of grin, giggle and guffaw at this glorious picturization that even in the moments of pathos, one doesn't weep freely. Behind each tear there are at least a dozen laughs. Every reel is a revelation of humor. Throughout the film is spontaneous, intelligent. Nothing drags, no part is unnecessary. It is, in fact, Broadway's perfect film comedy, and we doubt whether the future months of 1928 will render anything as appreciable. One should see Chaplin; one owes it to oneself. Please, Charles Spencer, hurry up and give us another one."

Telegram: "Chaplin has done it again. The most hilarious barrage of humor—low, high and medium—to rattle the ribs. The return to the screen of Chaplin must be listed as the most important event of the current cinema year. 'The Circus' impresses us as the funniest theatrical offering. And that includes what is known as the legitimate stage."

Times: "Chaplin's latest cure for melancholy. Chaplin never fails to tickle one's fancy. He lifts the masks from the dejected or the cynical and discovers faces wreathed in merriment. A wild series of incidents that are more like his earlier films. Excellent. As soon as the swinging cane, the old bowler and the feet were seen at the opening show the spectators were thrown into a high state of glee. Chaplin makes people who were thinking about their appearances forget themselves in sheer joy. There are some splendid bits where Chaplin is learning from the circus clowns how to be funny. Here this born comedian portrays his genius. Excruciatingly funny."

Sun: "Is a competent, fast moving bit of slapstick, which will enjoy a healthy vogue. Is filled to the brim with running successful gags, fresh, spontaneous gags. A success. The laughter runs riot. Comes close to being as funny as anything Chaplin has ever perpetrated."

Telegraph: "Latest Chaplin 'epic' is an undoubted success. Thoroughly fine entertainment. It will bring the light of laughter to many millions. In brilliant touches, Charlie proves himself the greatest pantomimist that the screen has thus far produced. Charlie scintillates. Is good for roars of laughter loud enough to drown the voices of a jungle full of leonine monarchs."

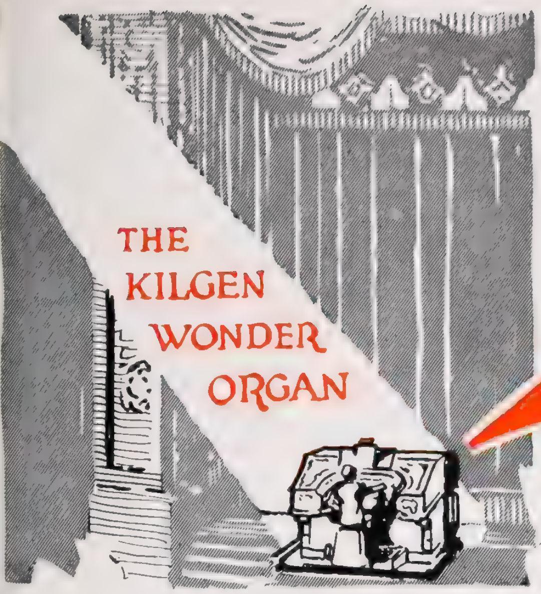
The Influence of THIS ... over THAT



"Successful exhibitors have found that next to good Pictures and an attractive House, outstanding Pipe Organ Music has probably the greatest influence over attendance, and satisfactory box office receipts."

more than a mere Pipe Organ

A Kilgen Organ in your Theatre gives a realism, a vigor, a thrill to your productions which carries the drawing power of your house far and wide. More than a mere Pipe Organ—since it is wholly designed for theatrical work, it strengthens and enhances every emotional effect which your screen portrays.

Shrewd exhibitors know this. Yet many a one, desiring to take fullest advantage of profit-adding Pipe Organ possibilities, is frankly puzzled to know just what qualities to look for, and what organ it is best to buy.

All the questions which arise in this connection are intelligently and fully discussed in our treatise on modern Theatre Organs—a book written from your standpoint. It will be sent free on request. Write for it today, to any of the National Theatre Supply Company's offices, or direct to Geo. Kilgen & Son, Inc., 4024 N. Union Blvd., St. Louis, U. S. A.

Gentlemen:

I wish to advise that I recently returned from Mobile, Alabama, where I attended the opening of our new Capitol Theatre in that city.

It affords me great pleasure to advise you that I received numerous compliments with regard to the beautiful tones and effects of the new Wurlitzer organ, which we installed in this theatre.

I am certainly glad our Company desires to continue using your Wurlitzer organs as they have in the past. This is again proof to us that we are getting an organ that is pleasing and appreciated by the public as well as ourselves.

I am enclosing herewith photos of the new Capitol in Mobile.

Every WURLITZER ORGAN is designed for each particular theatre requirement

Wurlitzer Organs are especially designed for each individual theatre installation, but every instrument embodies the same recognized quality—a distinction of tonal majesty, and an absolute flexibility of performance. There are no limitations in effects, other than in the ability of the organist to achieve them. It unites the tones of a Cathedral organ with the novelties of modern orchestras, enabling the organist to obtain effects enhancing the beauty and interest of every attraction.

WURLITZER Residence Organs, Church Organs and Auditorium Organs

The same recognition of superiority accorded the Wurlitzer Theatre Organ is also conceded to the Wurlitzer Residence Reproducing Organ—each a masterpiece in construction and tonal beauty—each type of organ distinctively designed for each installation.

My Heart Stood Still!

(No. 571—Straight from the Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation.)

WHEN MARY ROBERTS RINEHART LIKES A PICTURE WHICH HAS been screened from one of her famous stories — well, it has to be a genuine, blown-in-the bottle, copper-riveted knockout.

SHE IS A BITTER CRITIC WHEN SHE DOESN'T LIKE ANYTHING.

I KNOW FROM EXPERIENCE!

I'VE NEVER FORGOTTEN AND I NEVER SHALL FORGET A LETTER SHE wrote to the Universal organization several years ago when she didn't like what we had done to one of her books in screening it.

GENTLEMEN, WHEN I TELL YOU THAT HER LETTER SIZZLED, I mean sizzled. It was passed all around among the home office staff with speed because it was too hot for any one man to hold very long.

MRS. RINEHART KNOWS HER WORDS AND HER ENGLISH. SHE CAN give words a keen and incisive meaning that they never possessed before. She can make them do ground and lofty tumbling. She can sharpen them to a razor's edge. She can make them club you into a coma. She can put you to shame with them and make you yearn for a dark, quiet hole in the ground where you can hide away and shiver in terrific privacy.

SO, I SAY, I'LL NEVER FORGET THE TIME SHE WROTE A LETTER which turned the Universal inside out and upside down. My heart stood still. My ears still burn.

AND NOW SHE HAS WRITTEN QUITE A DIFFERENT MESSAGE. I SHALL always treasure it as an antidote to the poisonous one of years ago. I'll never let you read the sizzling letter, but I want you to read the following telegram, which refers to our dandy Laura LaPlante picture, "Finders Keepers" of which Mrs. Rinehart was the author:

Carl Laemmle, President,                                4:30, JAN 26, 1928
Universal Pictures,
Universal City, Calif.
     Have just seen "Finders Keepers" and feel it is excellent piece of work.  Fine casting and direction, Miss LaPlante gives splendid performance, has given me one of the heartiest laughs I have ever had.
Feel that she develops in this picture a type of subtle comedy which will endear her to even larger audiences.  Please thank her for me for her splendid work.  Also my congratulations to Mr. Ruggles.  Kindest regards.
                                             MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

NATURALLY, THE PICTURE IS ALL THAT MRS. RINEHART SAYS, AND so is Laura LaPlante. Naturally, you should give plenty of advertising to the fact that this LaPlante picture is from the popular pen of Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart.

THEN, JUST AS NATURALLY AS NIGHT FOLLOWS DAY, IT FOLLOWS that you'll do a corking good business.

DID YOU EVER, IN ALL YOUR LIFE, SEE ANY COMPANY IN THE BUSiness produce such an unbroken line of amazingly good pictures as this here now Universal Company.

Dear Mr. Shrader:

It gives me great pleasure to state that Harold Lloyd in GRANDMA'S BOY, re-issue, is making a distinct hit at the Apollo Theatre this week.

While this was expected, still it is rather remarkable in the face of the severe competition we have this week, ie; Mae Murray in person at the Indiana and SEVENTH HEAVEN at the Circle.

It is rather an exception for us to run a reissue of any kind, no matter how good it is but those in your company who have been responsible in reviving this Lloyd classic should be complimented as they surely made no mistake.

The box-office returns compare favorably with any big feature which we have run at the Apollo.

With best wishes, I remain,

"A Shame, But a Necessity"

H. M. Richey's Letter on the Crisis Facing the Industry

By William A. Johnston

AS announced last week, we print herewith the letter from H. M. Richey, General Manager of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Michigan, on the serious crisis now facing the industry, as the result of the introduction of the Brookhart Bill. Mr. Richey's letter follows:

Mr. Wm. A. Johnston,
Motion Picture News,
729 Seventh Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Johnston:

I have read with interest your editorial in the January 21st issue of the Motion Picture News and hasten to compliment you on it. While Michigan has endorsed the Brookhart Bill and intends to conduct an active campaign for its passage, there is little doubt but that it is extremely unfortunate that such drastic measures must be taken to accomplish, as you say, things that should be solved by the industry itself.

But the unfortunate part of the story is that little has been accomplished in this industry without force from either the outside or inside. I have been in the industry now for seven years, am not an old timer as many are, but during that period of time I have yet to recall one major thing that has been accomplished without force. That is a pretty broad statement, but I believe it is true whether we or they will admit it.

What has been done on Block Booking? Certainly, there has been for years a protest on it. Certainly, it is wrong in theory as well as practice. Certainly, the majority of exhibitors accept it only because of the threat that if pictures are not sold that way they will be hooked good on the price. I have yet to talk to an exhibitor who thought he was in favor of block booking but sooner or later in the conversation it leaked out that the threat if he did not buy the entire block he would be crucified on price and that was the deciding factor, especially when the situation was as he usually pointed out, "that he was paying the limit now and buying 'em all".

What has been done on compulsory arbitration? Not a thing. Despite the fact that attorneys in many states have said that you could not take away from a man his day in court or force him to leave his disputes to a jury of interested parties six in number, it is still being shoved down his throat. The alibi "we have no better plan".

Non-theatrical competition for legitimate exhibitor. After a seven year argument still no solution —a still on-the-fence policy.

Equitable contract, that exhibitor arbitrators can conscientiously say is fair. We have had to leave that to another committee, the results of which are problematical and the only safeguard of which is outside influence—a Supreme Court Judge, if the exhibitors have nerve enough to call him.

Cleaner pictures. The threat of censorship and pressure brought by the public to make us do the thing that was and is good for us to do.

And then we come to the wholesale grabbing of a majority of the whole by a few. Will that stop when the others haven't, unless some exceptionally strong force steps in from the outside and forces or scares them into it?

I agree with you it is a shame to have to apply such a drastic measure to solve our problems, but judging from the past it MOST CERTAINLY IS NECESSARY, for a diet of broken promises leaves little more than indigestion. Did the fact that certain things were wrong in the motion picture business as brought out in the Federal Trade Conference change the situation? Not yet. Only until one side or the other is right down on its back with some one's fingers around their throat does it seem that things are accomplished in this business.

Yes, W. A., there are enough brains in this business to find an equitable solution to every single problem that faces the industry for the good of the industry, but to date those brains have never asserted themselves or rather have never been allowed to assert themselves.

The surest way to get in bad, the surest way to get yourself taken off the preferred list, it seems, is to sincerely oppose—to sincerely try to correct—some of the apparent evils in the industry. Ask me, I know. And you probably do, too.

If the future of the industry is to be blandly settled with the answer given to the block booking problem, namely, "it is the best we have now and cannot be changed" and then sit back and be content to shoot holes in every solution that is offered, then it looks like a solution will have to come from the outside. It is time to cut out the bushwa and get down to hard pan.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) H. M. Richey

This letter we believe to be an exhibitor document of the first importance, not because we agree with all that Mr. Richey says—for we do not—but because it is a measured statement from an experienced and intelligent exhibitor leader.

We call attention, particularly, to the great reluctance with which the Michigan organization has decided to resort to force from the outside in order to correct evils that ought to be cured, but have not been cured by the industry itself.

There is no doubt in our mind that Mr. Richey has no illusions about the dangers of a resort to Governmental regulation. Neither have many other exhibitors.

And, while we cannot go along with them in their support of the Brookhart Bill, which—whatever the arguments to the contrary—would lay the paralyzing hand of political control on the industry—we denounce, as they do, the evils that threaten the economic life of the motion picture.

Once more—and in spite of all that has happened—we reiterate: these evils can be, and should now be stopped by the people responsible for them.

And if, in expressing that belief, we are leading a lost cause, we must continue on our course, insisting upon the principle of self-government for this industry, and calling upon those who have the power to make it a reality, to come to their senses before it is too late.

Contract Parley, in Agreement on 15 Clauses, Adjourns Until February 15

WITH agreement in principle reported reached on fifteen out of twenty-two clauses in the uniform contract, the National Joint Contract Committee of Exhibitors and Distributors has adjourned to meet again in Chicago, February 15

The distributor members returned to New York, while the exhibitor committee continued in session at Chicago. Each side is recapitulating the progress made after strenuous day and night meetings lasting a week. R. F. Woodhull, who alternated with R. H. Cochrane as chairman without vote, returned to New York and will go back to Chicago next week.

The following statement was issued in Chicago by the committee on February 6:

"After spending seven consecutive days and nights in conference at the Congress Hotel in an attempt to agree upon the terms of a uniform contract under which moving pictures will be leased and rented in the United States, The National Joint Contract Committee appointed for that purpose adjourned today (Monday) until February 15th.

"The Chairman of the Exhibitors' Division, Mr. R. F. Woodhull, and the Chairman of the Distributors' Division, Mr. R. H. Cochrane, announced that while agreements have been reached which, it is hoped, will do away with many of the erstwhile sources of contractual trouble between the two branches of the Motion Picture Industry, there are still many knotty problems to be solved. The conferences of the past week have enlightened each side as to the other side's difficulties and complaints.

"During the eight-day recess the exhibitor members of the committee will remain in session while the distributor members will return to New York."

The committee representative of the unaffiliated exhibitors is Ben Berinstein, R. R. Biechele and H. A. Cole, who took the place of Nathan Yamins; H. M. Richey, Secretary. Representing the affiliated exhibitors, E. A. Schiller and Fred Desburg. Representing the distributors, Felix F. Feist, Phil Reisman, Ned Depinet and Joseph I. Schnitzer, alternate; G. L. Hess, Secretary.

KINOGRAMS

IN THE LEAD

For the third consecutive time, Arthur James' review of news reels for ten issues shows Kinograms far ahead of the field—with seven firsts out of ten.

MOTION PICTURES TODAY February 4, 1928

THE NEWS REEL SCORE FOR TEN RELEASES—No. 3

The third ten weeks newsreel appraisal shows Kinograms in the lead with seven firsts out of ten (one of these being a tie with Pathe, Paramount and Fox). Kinograms also had 1 second and 2 thirds—and the distinction of always being "in the money." Fox was seven times in the money and stands second in the count for ten issues with 3 firsts, 3 seconds and 1 third. Pathe was seven times either first, place or show with 3 firsts, 2 seconds and 2 thirds.

The box score for the ten issues, beginning December 10, ends with the issue of January 14. The fourth ten weeks began with the issue of January 21st.

The keen interest in the competion among the six newsreels continues to be shown among exhibitors throughout the industry and as before, the analyses are serving as aids to managers who are anxious to serve their patrons with the best handled and most alive news material. "Banker Regulation" Seen As Big Moves Are Made

Fox Ready to Take Over Finkelstein & Rubin; Contact Man Between Groups Reported Wall Street Plan

WITH Fox ready to follow up his acquisition of West Coast Theatres, Inc., by purchase of the Finkelstein & Ruben circuit of 100 houses, in the Northwest, a reshaping of the film map with banker influence predominant was seen by close observers this week.

The Fox—F. & R. deal is reported to be completed within a week and the purchase consideration is reported to be about $4,000,000. It is believed that Finkelstein & Ruben will remain in charge of operation of the theatres at least for a time.

By acquiring the Northwest chain, Fox will have obtained 34 per cent of First National stock, and in some quarters it was conjectured that when all moves were completed, Fox would take over Stanley and First National by direct merger.

In circles more closely in touch with the situation, however, this view was discounted, largely in the premise that the bankers are now in more direct control of film affairs than they have ever been before. "Banker regulation" of the industry is the term that is now being applied to the general situation.

This is believed by these observers to be the key to the Fox-Stanley situation. Irving D. Rossheim, new president of Stanley, this week made a flat denial that his company would combine with Fox.

The bankers are said to hold that no combination is necessary or desirable. It might be supposed that Fox would seek to take over Stanley in order to gain control of First National. But it appears that this is unlikely. What is more probable is that there will not be war among the theatre chains, but a working agreement brought about, as to details, by the bankers through the selection of a contact man who would see that their idea of regulation was carried out among the different groups. It appears that the production plans of the groups may be worked out along the same line.

One of the reasons the close observers do not look for a war, is the definite approval which has greeted the Fox acquisition of West Coast and F. & R., thus placing himself in the big league class without question.

If the banker regulation idea through the contact man becomes a reality, the big chains would, for instance, decide how many pictures are to be made by the different producer groups, and keep them as separate entities, instead of merging.

An indication of this trend is clearly seen in the fact that, according to official announcement, West Coast Theatres will continue to operate the Publix, Loew and United Artists houses on the Pacific slope as heretofore. Furthermore, the Publix unit shows will now play the West Coast circuit.

Obviously, if there were going to be a war, this arrangement would not have been made.

One of the big figures in the situation is Harold B. Franklin, President of West Coast Theatres, whose future plans appear to be uncertain. While his contract as President of West Coast has several years to run, it is believed he may be asked by Fox to come to New York as director-general of all the Fox theatres.

Whether this happens, Mr. Franklin has now reached a commanding position as an operator of theatres on a big scale.

It is well known that he has the complete confidence of all the different groups—Publix, Loew, United Artists and Fox.

The entente cordiale brought about among these groups is reflected, for instance, in the statement made by Joseph M. Schenck, who said: "West Coast needs our pictures and we need the circuit's theatres. With the exception of Los Angeles, where we recently opened our pre-release house, we will play along with West Coast."

Mr. Schenck, besides expressing confidence in Mr. Franklin, also expressed confidence in the fairness of William Fox.

A like statement was made by Nicholas M. Schenck, of Loew's, and the attitude of Publix is the same.

In further development of the "banker regulation" theory, the observers point out that should the contact man be chosen, the selection might turn out to be Harold Franklin, in view of his great record and the fact that he has the confidence of the different groups.

The bankers are said to feel that the contact plan is the most practical from several angles. It would allow the different organizations to keep their individuality under regulation, and thus make for greater efficiency in operation.

Under this viewpoint, a fight between Fox and Stanley appears just as unlikely as the taking over of Stanley and First National by Fox. For a long time, it has been predicted that the bankers would run the industry. These predictions seem to have come true, one of the best proofs being, in the opinion of those best informed, the amazing quickness with which the Fox-West Coast deal was consummated.

Decides Against Theatre in Damage Suit

In a decision recently handed down by Judge Taulane, in Common Pleas Court No. 1, in Philadelphia, Ella Durning, a minor, was awarded a verdict of $1,500 and her father, Charles Durning, $1,000, for injuries alleged to have been received by her at the Paschall Theatre, owned by Sam Hyman.

Suit was first brought against Mr. Hyman for $25,000 when the girl was alleged to have been injured by falling to the floor when she took a seat in a defective chair. Mr. Hyman's contention was that the chairs of the house were inspected daily to discover defects, and that he could not be charged with negligence. Mr. Hyman will appeal the case.

Penn., Jersey and Delaware Unit Elects Officers

The M. P. T. Wax; secretary, George P. Aarons; treasurer, M. Lessy; board of managers for three years, Columbus Stamper, Louis J. Appell and Nick F. Power. Arthur B. Smith was elected an honorary member of the board of managers.

C. M. Davie Manager of Universal Omaha Branch

Charles M. Davis has been appointed manager of Universal's Omaha office, to replace H. J. Chapman, who has resigned.

Davie was a salesman on the Detroit exchange of Universal prior to his promotion. He started in the motion picture game in 1908 with J. H. Kunsky, Detroit theatre owner. He joined Universal in 1921, later going to the Minneapolis exchange, from where he returned to Detroit as a Universal salesman about four years ago.

Kansas City Waging Battle to Halt Depression in Attendance

IT is an interesting, although not yet victorious battle which Kansas City exhibitors are waging in an effort to combat a threatening depression in attendance, which persists in hanging on, despite all previous efforts. Thus far business has shown only a slight increase in night attendance, matinees having been fairly good heretofore.

At the Isis theatre, large suburban house, a prominent part of that theatre's newspaper advertising is given over to the announcement that candy will be distributed free to children at each matinee. The Alamo, Broadmour and Roanoke theatres, suburban houses, have cut their prices to 15 cents and lines prominent in their advertising read: "No jazz; no cheap vaudeville."

At the Liberty theatre, a downtown first run house, Samuel Carver, manager, resorted to staging public marriages on the stage. That theatre already has a tie-up with the street car company, through which suburban patrons are refunded car fare after 6 o'clock. The Apollo and Linwood theatres are offering free midnight previews on Saturday to patrons who buy tickets for the 9 o'clock shows.

In short, it is a battle to attract the attention of the younger generation, which are being lured away from theatres by several large and elaborate public dance palaces in the last four months. The Capitol theatre, which had been featuring first run pictures and a large stage show, was forced to close its doors last week. It will not be re-opened, Dan McCoy, manager, said. The theatre was operated by the West Coast Amusement Company.

The Orpheum theatre, which for the first time in history adopted first run pictures this year in conjunction with its regular vaudeville program, last week lowered its prices to 75 cents top and announced that no seats would be reserved. Fred Spear is manager.

Plan Four Penn Houses

New Theatres to Cost Over $1,000,000 to Be Built in Central and Eastern Cities

PLANS have just been disclosed for four new theatres in as many Central or Eastern Pennsylvania cities, to be built at an aggregate cost of more than $1,000,000.

The largest of these will be a new $750,000 theatre that the Stanley Company of America will erect in Norristown. It is expected construction work will start early in the summer. The structure will adjoin the William Building, on West Main Street, in the business center of the city. The policy of the theatre will be high grade motion pictures and vaudeville.

The recently incorporated Hanover Amusement Company, of Allentown, announces plans to build a $150,000 picture theatre at 422-28 Hanover Avenue, in the suburbs of Allentown. It will be directly on the William Penn Highway, between Allentown and Bethlehem. The seating capacity will be 1,000 and the equipment will include a $15,000 Moller pipe organ. It will be a two-story building on a plot 80 feet wide, and will contain two stores, and apartments on the second floor. There will be an electrically lighted marquee extending over the sidewalk and the interior of the house will be of Spanish design. The facade will be terra cotta with ornamental pilasters.

The College Theatre Corporation, of Bethlehem, has announced plans for a new $300,000 theatre to be known as the "College," for which ground will soon be broken. The theatre will be at Fourth and Vine Streets, and the building contract has been awarded to Frank B. Glasmire, of Bethlehem. The plans call for a building to seat 2,000, to be made of cast stone and brick. Part of the building will be devoted to stores. The plans have been approved by the city building department. It is intended to rush the theatre to completion by June 1.

The Comerford Amusement Company, of Scranton, which owns a chain of more than 150 theatres, announces it will erect a new picture house at 507-509 Lackawanna avenue, Scranton. Bids will be received from contractors at an early date, and then the buildings at present on the site will be immediately torn down. The plot is in the center of an important business zone. It is expected the theatre, which will have a seating capacity of 1,200, will be completed by the end of the year.

Department of Commerce Lists Educational Films

The Bureau of Mines, of the United States Department of Commerce in Washington, D. C., has issued its list of films for 1928 in booklet form. The films are produced under the direction of the Bureau. production being supervised by M. F. Leopold, safety engineer. The booklet mentions the titles of 50 films, giving a description of their contents and the correct footages. Such subjects as coal, sulphur, iron, steel, asbestos, rock drilling, machinery, motors, water power, gasoline, copper, petroleum, oil wells, mining, national parks, transportation and first aid are dealt with by the films, which total 145 reels.

On June 30, 1927, the Bureau had 608 sets of films, aggregating 1,823,000 feet. There were 1,823 reels in circulation and the number has increased since that date. The demand, it is said, far exceeds the supply.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927, the films were shown on 8,410 occasions before an estimated attendance of 2,381,900 persons. The Pittsburgh Experiment Station is the chief distributing center, but there are 13 subdistributing centers. The Bureau will supply a list of them on request.

Firms Granted New York State Charters

Newly incorporated motion picture companies chartered by the department of state at Albany during the past week and engaging in the business in New York state, included the following: Majestic Productions, Inc., $5,000, Evart Griggs, George M. Gatts, Mary F. Flaherty, New York City; Beacon Attractions, Inc., $20,000, Jacob I. Rothstein, Isidor Unger, Charles L. Kahn, New York City; J. Henry Lee Incorporated, $5,000, J. H. Minneapolis Plans Films of City's Progress

The city of Minneapolis is to have a collection of all motion picture films with "local color" which may be of historical interest in future years, according to a plan worked out by Mayor Leach in cooperation with Minneapolis film companies and exhibitors. Robert LaPiner has been appointed by Finkelstein and Ruben as commissioner of film publicity for Minneapolis. Mr. LaPiner will take charge of the collection and preservation of all films relating to activities of Minneapolis people, depicting Minneapolis events or of general interest to the city. The films will be placed in sealed containers, indexed and preserved by the city.

New Universal House at Sheboygan to Open Soon

Construction work on the new Universal theatre going up at Sheboygan, Wisconsin, is progressing so rapidly that Nate Blumberg, general manager of the Milwaukee Theatre Circuit, Inc., a local subsidiary of the Universal circuit, estimates that the house should be ready for opening about February 18.

Phillip Lonergan New Film Writer for Tiffany-Stahl

Phillip Lonergan, film writer formerly with Warner Bros. and Universal, is the latest literary man to join the writing department of Tiffany-Stahl.

Many Brookhart Bill Petitions

Congressmen and Senators Are Swamped With Pleas For and Against Passage of Measure

SENATORS and Congressmen are now being, or are about to be, deluged with a flood of petitions both for and against the Brookhart Bill, which promises to be one of the hottest-fought motion picture measures ever presented to the Congress. Independent exhibitors generally are rallying their support and will do all in their power to secure the passage of the bill, while Film Boards of Trade, distributors and producers are just as solidly against it.

Through the Albany Film Board of Trade petitions are being circulated these days not only throughout Albany, Troy and Schenectady, but elsewhere in northern and central New York, seeking signers in protest against the Brookhart bill. The petitions appear to be quite liberally signed not only by the exchanges in Albany but also by many of the exhibitors and theatregoers. It is claimed that if the bill becomes a law, it will work extreme hardship on the small town exhibitor.

Film salesmen traveling out of Albany are now selling these exhibitors blocs of pictures, the exchange managers claiming that if small town exhibitors bought their pictures one by one that it would not pay them to send a salesman from 50 to 100 miles for such business.

The text of the petition follows:

"To the Congress of the United States and to our own Senators and Congressmen:

"We, the undersigned, do hereby respectfully protest against passage of the bill known as the Brookhart Bill, which proposes to undermine the mechanics of how motion pictures are distributed in the different motion picture zones of this country, and for the following reasons:

"I. That we, individually, as citizens of your state and community, who are employed in the sale or distribution of motion pictures, or who are theatre owners engaged in the exhibition of motion pictures, will suffer serious economic injury if such a bill is allowed to become law.

2. If such a bill is passed it will upset the entire mechanical operation of the business and throw into chaos an industry which has solved its individual problems of distribution by careful judgment of its experience.

"3. When this bill was first introduced it appeared to the casual reader that it might be in the interest of the industry and of the public, and a few persons engaged in the business, without giving the particulars of the bill sufficient consideration, endorsed it and advocated its passage. After careful consideration, however, we find that the bill is not to the interest of the industry or of the public, but that it would work hardships on both. The selling of motion pictures, one at a time, at prices like $7.50, $10 and $12.50 for feature pictures, cannot be continued if the bill becomes a law. The travelling expenses of a salesman alone, to a theatre fifty miles from an exchange center, would be greater than any rental to be gained from the account. The result would be a cutting off of motion picture entertainment in many districts where motion picture entertainment is not only desirable but wholly necessary for the content and well being of the community.

Working Pacts May End Quota

Director of French Film Co. Says Reciprocal Arrangements Are Needed to Solve International Distribution Problems

WORKING agreements between European and American producers and distributors based on reciprocal arrangements in advance of production provide the means whereby difficulties in the international phase of the film industry can be adjusted, according to Frederick de la Roziere, a director of the Societe Generale de Films, a large French production and distribution company.

Mr. de la Roziere arrived in New York recently in connection with plans for the distribution in the United States of "The Passion of Joan of Arc," his company's first super production since the filming of "Napoleon," a screen spectacle to be distributed by Metro-Goldwyn in this country.

Working understandings between the American and the European picture producers and distributors, he says, are sorely needed to iron out the differences which arise and which are at the bottom of the "quotas" in force in Germany and England. France, he says, will adopt the quota, despite the bitterness of the French exhibitors and a sense of many of the producers and distributors that it is not the ideal way to solve the problems involved in marketing productions made there.

A better understanding between American and European film interests backed up by a whole-hearted endeavor to bring about mutually profitable arrangements for both, rather than regulation, legislation or contractual obligations, de la Rozier believes to be the method which eventually will do away with clashes arising from conflicting arrangements that now exist.

The merger of American with European producing and distributing interests, he says, is not the successful arrangement that those optimistic for its results expect it to be. On the contrary, he believes, the best interests of all, with more profit all around, has promise of being brought about through get-together methods between the producer and distributor in America and the producer and distributor in Europe.

De la Rozier points to the success which has attended these working agreements now in force between German and English firms, and German and French companies. Practically all of the European countries now engaged in film production on a sizeable scale, he says, have these inter-company arrangements. It is a practical working out of reciprocity, in which the companies in different European countries make affiliations by business agreement rather than contract.

Through consultations between the representatives in Paris of a foreign film concern, arrangements concerning the distribution of a projected production are taken up and agreed upon before the picture is started, and changes deemed necessary to the success of the picture in the foreign market are made before the picture is completed and the company disbanded. Thus it is not infrequent for a French producer, at the suggestion of the representative of the German company cooperating with his organization, for example, to film a duplicate episode or ending for a picture destined for distribution in Germany.

The agreements between the European companies have proved so successful and have brought together the various interests there, de la Rozier says, that unless the future brings a solution of the differences between European and American motion picture companies, eventually there may develop an European bloc, in which producers and distributors of England, France, Germany, Sweden, and other countries will present a united front as the opposition to the film producers of the United States.

Mr. de la Roziere is "half American." He is well acquainted with American people and American customs, through relation and associations among Americans. He is thoroughly acquainted with the film situation in France and throughout Europe, and he says that an understanding of the conditions facing European producer is essential to an understanding as to why the American methods of production cannot be transplanted bodily and successfully applied in Europe.

America, he points out, has seen some demonstrations of how the transplantation process has not worked out to entire satisfaction, referring in this connection to the instances of the importation by American producers of directors, stars and writers who attracted widespread notice through their work in European productions.

E. V. RICHARDS has been at the Hotel Astor for the past two weeks. W. H. Gueringer, Levi Ash, R. B. Wilby, prominent Saenger officials, are with him. This is Richards' first trip to New York in a long time. A number of people at various times have felt he should be here, where politics boil. Some feel that way, right now. To all these requests, however, he has made the one reply: "We've had a flood down here."

"Things are still pretty blue," says Richards. But we note that the Saenger enterprises are steadily busy in the South, building, as always, from the ground up. A fine organization this! It can stand hard knocks and still expand. Wonder what some other chains will do when the wind blows adversely.

CHESTER B. BAHN, the vigorous and able dramatic critic of The Syracuse Herald, writes an interesting article in his paper on the bitter patronage war which he sees looming when Loew's new State Theatre opens in that city. Says Mr Bahn:

"With the opening of Loew's new State Theatre, now scheduled for not later than March 3, although even that date is frankly a guess, the Syracuse Rialto will see the hottest battle for patronage in its history.

"And when the fighting ends, if it ever does, there will be more than one casualty in the downtown sector, and perhaps in the residential field as well, unless close students of the situation, including your reporter, are sadly in error.

"Since the Loew invasion of Syracuse was first announced, I have repeatedly expressed the opinion that the Rialto hereabouts was falling a victim to that grave theatrical malady, overseating. In this opinion, I seem to have been pretty much alone; other scribbing gentlemen, peering through those rose-colored glasses, have talked in Pollyanna terms, assuring that Syracuse would have little difficulty in digesting Loew's 3,000 seats.

"Today, with your permission, I will present the result of a survey of the downtown Rialto, permitting the figures to speak quite for themselves, with perhaps here and there a bit of personal emphasis upon the findings.

"On the so-called Rialto proper there will be no less than 11 theatres when Loew's throws open its doors. Ten of the houses operate on a seven-day schedule, the Wieting, devoted to the legit., being the exception.

"The 11 theatres have a total seating capacity of about 18,462. Minus the Wieting's 1,218 seats, the figures stand at 17,255. The 10 theatres in the group present picture or pictures plus. Keith's, the Temple and the Crescent have vaudeville of one description or another; the Savoy plays stock burlesque, and the Empire, presentations, not so different from vaudeville in the last analysis.

"Four of the theatres give three performances daily. I say 'give' on the assumption that Loew's will follow that policy, whether with presentations or vaudeville. It is possible, of course, that the Loew plan may be four rather than three shows. The seating capacity of the three-a-day category is 23,439 daily.

"Six of the theatres play six or more performances daily; the average, I suspect, would run well ahead of six, say seven or eight, but six is a fair figure. These six theatres have a total capacity of 9,331 seats. Multiplied by the six performances and the total reads 55,986.

"The 10 theatres have a combined daily capacity of 73,230, which, multiplied by seven, gives 512,610 for the week.

"And Syracuse has an estimated population of 200,000!

IT can be done. The short subject can be made to pull business definitely and in a big way at the box-office. Harold B. Franklin has demonstrated it again at the Metropolitan Theatre, Los Angeles.

But, of course, Mr. Franklin goes about it in the right way. First, he picks a short subject that will stand heavy advertising, and then goes to it. He tried this plan initially with "The Battle of the Century," Hal Roach comedy, and followed it up last week with another, "Leave 'Em Laughing," co-starring Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy.

The exploitation campaign included 100 twenty-four sheet boards devoted exclusively to the comedy in Los Angeles alone; special space in the newspapers and numerous merchandise tie-ups; radio broadcasting; tack cards; window cards, marquee lights, special trailer house programs, lobby cards and the Hal Roach fleet of 27 motor vehicles.

The campaign, originating at the Metropolitan, is carried through over the entire Wesco circuit.

The newspaper reviews in Los Angeles were extremely favorable. We print some of them elsewhere in this issue.

All of which shows that proper advertising of fine short subjects is a paying proposition for the exhibitor; and a better plan, it would seem to us, than the costly presentation act of unknown or doubtful value.

THE NEW YORK TIMES, in a recent issue, had this to say, under the heading "Movie Censorship":

"A well-organized minority is able to maintain and even to spread censorship of the movies in spite of the apparent desire of the majority to abolish it. The great producing firms have not been able to prevent activity by certain State boards of review and other organizations, some of them self-appointed. If this scattered censorship accomplished what it set out to do, we might approve of it, but it is in most cases so weak in judgment, so prejudiced and foolish that it becomes a source of either irritation or ridicule.

"One point made against it at Saturday's meeting of a thousand representatives of all kinds of movie interests was the importance of keeping so broad an influence free. The movies have an effect of some kind on the millions who see them. Everybody hopes it will be an ennobling, beneficial, enriching one. Not all movies can be educative and nothing more. Even the censors would agree to that. Those movies which are offered solely as entertainment are the most widely seen. They should not be degrading or demoralizing. Where they are seen by large crowds of children and very young people it is particularly important that they should not falsify life. Censors and their most violent opponents will agree on that. But the latter contend that censorship is ineffectual.

"Governor Smith has more than once given that as one of his reasons for asking the repeal of the censorship law in New York. It does not work toward the production of finer and more genuinely artistic results, but only to the repression of free, constructive effort In the arbitrary decisions of one person, or of a politically appointed committee, there is danger of suppressing what ought to be seen. If the censors fear for the morals of a people, let them consider the great growth in recent years of a kind of self-censorship. The public has become to some extent its own censor. Its attitude has compelled movie producers to watch the films closely for scenes which might be considered distasteful anywhere in the world. The enormous size and extent of the movie public have brought about something like an automatic censorship."

A REPORT from Chicago that a number of exhibitor leaders who attended the Contract Conference favor straight percentage as the solution of the tangled buyer-seller situation, recalls the campaign waged for years—and consistently—by The News in favor of the percentage system.

The guarantee-and-percentage plan was opposed by the exhibitors at Chicago on the ground that the exhibitor has no protection in case the picture flops, and, on the other hand, the average cuts into his net, if the picture is a big success at the box-office.

We still believe that some form of the percentage systm is the solution to a lot of the troubles in this industry. We do not say all the troubles, but a good many of them, at least.

Percentage is the fundamentally correct plan because it acknowledges that the whole commercial fate of the picture is in the hands of the public through the latter's verdict at the box-office.

SOME strong language is used by Gilbert Frankau, English novelist, in The Film Renter (London), speaking about British and American films:

"If we are going to make British pictures we shall not do it by merely copying Hollywood, or by pandering to the American market. It will be by expressing the British spirit in our pictures that we shall sell our pictures throughout the British Empire, and in the United States.

"The idea that the American trade is waiting for British pictures is all 'rot': we can only get an overwhelming demand by doing something so good that it will get the American public. It is here that the really British picture of the kind I suggest will have its chance.

"I am all in favor of amalgamation, such as we have heard of recently: we must have big strong companies to carry out British production.

"If we could have one good British picture a week for five years, we should be in a strong position. We should be able to depend upon the whole British Empire and not necessarily to rely on America. A steady stream of good pictures is what is wanted.

"Of one thing British production must beware. The American industry is in bondage to its stars. We must not base our industry on the star system or we shall meet with failure. In Hollywood, the stars are masters of the producing industry, as they control the type of story in which they shall appear.

"The British Industry must concentrate on stories, and if it does this it has any number of authors who would be willing to cooperate. Stories of English life should be made in England and not in America, where types are altered according to the idea of the producing heads.

"A story which I supplied to an American film company required as one of its characters a British earl of cultured habits. The Americans who made the film, presented him with a white tall hat, spats, and a monocle! That is one reason why I have refused to allow my novel, 'Peter Jackson, Cigar Merchant,' to be filmed in America

"Finally, it is going to be a hell of a fight to establish British films, and everybody will have to wake up."

THE FILM DAILY YEAR BOOK* for 1928 is the tenth edition of this recognized standard authority. As well try to imagine the picture business without pictures, as to imagine it without this exceedingly valuable work.

The 1928 edition is, as have been its predecessors, an indispensable reference volume. Our hearty congratulations go again to our contemporary.

JOHN EBERSON, internationally known as the creator of the atmospheric theatre, was interviewed in London by Kinematograph Weekly.

"He told us," says Kine., "much of his point of view and his aim to be considered the consulting specialist whose unrivalled experience will be at the service of those engaged in the building of Kinemas which are to bring our houses up to the level of the latest American practice.

"For Mr. Eberson says quite frankly that in the general run our houses are where the American ones were ten years ago. And they seem as though they are going still farther ahead there, for one house he has under consideration now is to seat 8,000, and is to carry suggestions of Venice and the Lido in its architecture. I asked him whether there was any fear of overseating on his side of the Atlantic, and he told me the tendency was to replace older halls with newly-designed ones to seat about 3,500. More seats at lower prices is the present development."

A VIGOROUS pronouncement against censorship was made by Congresswoman Florence Kahn, of California, at the recent annual luncheon of the National Board of Review.

Mrs. Kahn characterized censorship as un-American, unconstitutional and ineffective, and, added:

"The time has come when we might reasonably leave the motion picture people to govern their own affairs as far as internal matters are concerned, while we direct our efforts toward encouraging their making their artistic success more possible. The picture industry realizes its responsibilities. There is no indication that the public itself wants censorship. It is its own censor."

Pathe Reorganization Possible

Believed Company's Present Situation Will Be Worked Out; Has Assets of Exceptional Worth

WHAT is assumed to be practically a confirmation of the persistent rumors current in New York and at the West Coast that Pathe's recent profits have been far from satisfactory, is seen in the events of the past ten days.

Pathe recently passed the dividend on its Class "A" stock and failed to make a payment of approximately $150,000, due on Feb. 1st, into the sinking fund on the debenture bonds, and, in consequence, both stocks and bonds have slid on the market until at this writing the bonds are around 60 and Pathe "A" stock listed at nine.

This is a drop from 100¾ in August for the bonds and also a considerable decline for the "A" stock.

Official Confirmation Lacking

Official confirmation on the company's alleged difficulties was lacking up until the time of going to press, no statements being issued from either Blair and Company, Wall Street firm which has backed Pathe; J. J. Murdock, president of the company; Elmer Pearson, general manager, who is on the Coast and who is said to be ready to resign; or John C. Flinn, vice-president, who joined Pathe when P. D. C. and Pathe were consolidated; nor could any of these persons be reached for an interview.

Information, however, while unofficial, is available that seems to prove that at least a reorganization of Pathe is contemplated, and that Blair and Company have declined to advance further funds to meet production expenses at the De Mille studio and to cover alleged weekly running expense losses until some new deal that will promise better financial returns can be effected.

In the event that Blair and Company is not able to bring this about, there is much conjecture as to where the necessary funds to carry on the company and finance production on the De Mille lot might be secured.

Keith-Albee, affiliated with Pathe, which might come to the company's aid, appears not be be greatly exercised over Pathe's dilemma. It is said that up to the present time Keith-Albee has contented itself with booking a certain amount of Pathe product in its various theatres, and shows no particular worry concerning the price of Pathe stock.

Mr. Murdock and some of his associates have held several conferences within the week, it is said, presumably in an effort to work out some plan that will be satisfactory to all concerned. How far they have gotten is all a matter of conjecture. At least nothing has been announced.

De Mille's Position

Just what Cecil B. De Mille may do, either financially or his future production plans, announced as covering a $5,000,000 expenditure, is also unknown. It is reported at the West Coast that the De Mille studio will close in the near future, but this in itself does not mean anything in particular. A number of the studios will also close for the annual breathing period as is a custom. De Mille has five pictures completed and four others are at least partially in work. How much money is needed to complete these four productions only Mr. De Mille knows.

Those best informed in New York concerning the agreement between De Mille and Pathe, state that the former need not worry greatly about any financial troubles that his releasing company may have.

Mr. De Mille, so it is said, draws so handsome a salary that any profit his pictures might make, come as secondary considerations.

If Pathe is as short of ready cash as the stock market quotations seem to indicate, it will be the first time in a long and remarkable career.

One of the Pioneers

One of the pioneers, Pathe went safely through the early days of small rentals and sharp competition, selling short subjects to a large field, at reasonable prices. It was a byword in the industry that "Pathe always had something to sell."

The trend to big theatres, where short subjects were eliminated undoubtedly hurt Pathe. Advancing production costs made higher rentals necessary and higher rentals were difficult to get, especially for a company that had been built on popular prices as Pathe had been. The loss of the Harold Lloyd productions is assumed to have been another hardship, and when both Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Paramount entered the short subject field with the Roach product, formerly featured by Pathe, the fight for existence became proportionately more difficult.

It is not believed that Pathe will be allowed to pass out of the field regardless of the showing of the past two or three years. The company has assets of exceptional worth in thousands of negatives, some good story values in the features that have been produced from time to time, to say nothing of the current De Mille productions and the short subjects which have as yet been unplayed, wholly or in part.

"The King of Kings" has had only a limited number of pre-release showings, and, therefore, much of its expected two million dollar revenue is still to come in. "Chicago," while not in the same class as "King of Kings" and other De Mille specials of the past, is still a salable piece of property, so far has been shown in New York and one outside city.

The five finished program releases can be counted upon for a certain gross, how much in comparison to cost, being not for this writer to say.

Stories of what is termed "De Mille extravagance" have persisted no matter where the De Mille pictures were released. It is no secret that the Paramount split was over what was considered prohibitive negative costs, and it seems reasonable to suppose that in an era of advancing costs on the part of all producers, Mr. De Mille has not been able to be more economical.

Congress Receives Brookhart Petitions

"4. It is our further belief that intelligent men in all branches of the industry are perfectly capable of coping with any problem of distribution which may arise and that the men who sell and the men who buy pictures are the logical ones to determine by contract the terms and conditions under which their product should be sold and released for exhibition. In this connection let us say that representatives of all branches of the industry met recently in New York to discuss this whole question of wholesale selling and that they came to an agreement concerning various changes to be made in present selling methods. Late in January a committee of exhibitors and a committee of distributors will meet to work out a new uniform exhibition contract, and it is understood generally in the trade that these changes will be the same as advocated at the Federal Trade Practice Conference.

"For these reasons, therefore, we respectfully suggest that any attempt to set aside the mechanics of distribution of motion pictures would be extremely hazardous and we hope that substitution of any other plan be left to those who have had long experience in the business.

"We are Unalterably opposed to the Brookhart Bill and respectfully urge your opposition to its passage."

The motion picture operators' union of Cleveland has endorsed the Brookhart bill, and the organization, both as a whole and individually, will get back of it by sending letters to all the senators and congressmen of Ohio. This endorsement was passed at a midnight meeting of the union held last Wednesday at which George W. Erdmann, secretary of the Cleveland local, made an effective address.

Exhibitor members of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association are circulating petitions in their theatres for patrons to sign, endorsing the Brookhart Bill. An 85-foot trailer is run off at every performance, advising the patron of the nature of the bill. Petitions are then circulated and are being signed in great quantities.

To the Congress of the United States and to our own Senators and Congressmen:

Directors of the Colorado exhibitor unit voted their support to the Brookhart Bill in Baltimore Sunday Test

Grand Jury Dismisses Charges Against Exhibitors and Court Decision Now Suggested

IN due form the papers in the case against John G. Callan, Irving Schlossberg and Charles F. Mules, charging them with working on Sunday and specifying what they did to operate a movie house in Baltimore on the Sabbath, were sent by Magistrate Thomas O'Neill, of the Northeastern police station, to the office of the clerk of the criminal court, and by that office to the Grand Jury.

After deliberating about an hour and a half, the Grand Jury dismissed the charges against the three men. Preparations then went forward by Callan and Mules, the former president and the latter vice-president of the Liberty Defense League, for another moving picture performance at the Harford Theatre on Sunday night, February 5. This house is owned by a company of which Thomas D. Goldberg is president. A charge was brought against Goldberg, but it was dismissed.

In the meantime, the Lord's Day Alliance is taking notice and consultations are under way with the Rev. Dr. W. W. Davis, Joshua Levering and Isaac Lobe Strauss being advised on the matter.

It is pointed out that the way Sunday baseball came to be a fact in Baltimore was by the repeated arrests of Jack Dunn for opening the ball park and selling programs for admissions, and the Grand Jury dismissing him.

The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Maryland, Inc., through its president, Herman A. Blum, said that the motion picture people have nothing to do with Mr. Callan's actions, that they applaud his efforts, but that he does not, as the president of the association, approve the idea that the members should immediately open their theatres on Sundays while the law forbidding it is still on the books.

When the Harford Theatre was ready to open Sunday night, February 5, for its second test case performance, about 3,000 persons were there to get in the house, which has about 500 seats. Charges in the case were laid against Mr. Callan, Mr. Mules, and a film operator, Walter Stierhoff. As in the first case, programs were sold in lieu of tickets, and in this case there were ten program buyers who were retained as State's witnesses. These programs were sold at 25 cents each.

The three principals in the case were released on their own recognizance for a hearing on Monday morning. They appeared at the time designated the next day at the Northeastern police court before Magistrate John M. Pohlhaus, and the hearing was through in a short time.

It was pointed out by a police official that if a Sunday show was advertised by Callan, thus inducing an opposing organization to get out an injunction, that case would be taken to the court, and a court opinion would then be obtained on Sunday movies. Then the police could be guided by the decision whether to make arrests in the future or not.

Would Limit Admission of Minors to Theatres

A BILL has been introduced in the New York State Legislature at Albany by Senator C. A. Freiberg, of Buffalo, which, if passed and becomes a law, will permit children between ten and sixteen years to attend picture theatres where a matron is in charge between the hours of 2 and 6 o'clock P. M., and with the stipulation that children must be segregated in a portion of the theatre especially assigned to them. The theatre must meet the expenses of the matron, who would be required to be licensed at an annual fee of ten dollars.

The bill provides that no person or company, either conducting or managing a theatre, shall give away or sell any ticket of admission in excess of the seating capacity of such house. Standing room tickets may be issued to the standing room capacity of the theatre, which latter must be determined by local law.

Addison Elected to Head Buffalo Theatre Men

H. M. Addison, managing director of the Great Lakes Theatre in Buffalo, was elected president of the Buffalo Theatre Managers Association at their annual election of officers at the Hotel Statler the afternoon of February 30. Other officers elected are William K. Saxton, Loew's Theatre, vice-president; William W. Bradley, Elmwood Theatre, secretary and treasurer.

Members of the board of managers elected are: Jules Michaels, Regent Theatre, Chairman; Robert L. McNab, Teck Theatre; Vincent McFaul, Shea's Theatre; W. H. Raynor, Lafayette Theatre; Robert Murphy, Shea's Kensington Theatre, and Roy E. Van, Gaiety Theatre.

The association adopted resolutions endorsing the Boost Buffalo program of the Chamber of Commerce, and made arrangements for the showing of a special motion picture, displaying the growth of the city.

A resolution was adopted to send to Al Beckerich, former manager of Loew's Theatre, retired, who was manager president of the Buffalo Managers Association for a number of years.

More About Petitions on Brookhart Bill

principle, but opposed the blind booking feature. They feel that clause 5, which aims to prohibit sale of pictures before they are completed, is impractical.

A group of Eastern Washington state exhibitors representing a dozen inland towns held a one-day session last week and passed resolutions endorsing the Brookhart Bill, together with a decision to campaign for its passage. Another district meeting is to be held shortly at Spokane.

Senator Brookhart, a popular idol throughout Iowa, is lauded in an announcement of an exhibitor convention to be held in Des Moines on February 13th. He is declared the champion of all independent theatre owners of America as the result of the bill he has introduced, according to the announcements. C. C. Pettijohn of the Hays organization has been invited to attend the exhibitor meeting.

E. P. Smith, Iowa unit leader, however, in "Movie Age" declares the independent exhibitors will benefit whether or not the Brookhart Bill passes. He writes that everyone realizes some changes should be made in the uniform contract and unless this is done at the Chicago meetings the great majority of the independent exhibitors will support the bill.

Continuing, Smith said: "The independent attitude right now, is, wait and see what they are going to do. Quick action in accordance with the agreement entered into at the Trade Conference might prevent a lot of trouble. Most men are inclined to want to work out their own salvation and if the average theatre owner thought he had a fair chance he would prefer to fight it out himself. However, many of them have just about decided they were fighting a losing battle contracting for film which provided for forced arbitration and signing a complicated agreement that cannot always be interpreted in a satisfactory manner."

Edward T. Peter Dies of Heart Failure

EDWARD T. PETER, formerly president of the Texas exhibitors' organization, and for many years prominent in the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, died suddenly last week in Birmingham, Ala., of heart failure. He was 64 years old.

Mr. Peter had been active in a new enterprise which he launched nearly a year ago upon going to Birmingham —the Alabama Motion Picture Company.

At one time Mr. Peter was owner of the Atlanta baseball club and president of the Southern Baseball Association. From baseball, he went into picture theatre enterprises, spending many years in Texas. He was the first treasurer of the M. P. T. O. A. and one of its organizers at the Cleveland convention. Under the administration of Sydney S. Cohen Mr. Peter was a prime factor in the organization.

He moved his residence from Texas to New York and remained there until he was attracted by Florida three years ago. During a recent visit to Atlanta, he reported a very encouraging outlook for the studio which he and his associates were developing in connection with the Alabama M. P. Company.

D. Weshner Gets Publicity Berth With Stanley-Fabian

David E. Weshner, publicity and exploitation man, who has been associated with the Weshner-Davidson Agency and C. C. Burr in advertising and publicity capacities, has allied himself with the Stanley-Fabian Corporation. He will handle all publicity and exploitation matters concerning the management of the new Stanley theatre in Jersey City, a 5,000-seat house.

Pathe February 19 Shorts Include Sennett Comedy

Mack Sennett's new comedy, "The Best Man," presenting Billy Bevan, Alma Bennett and Vernon Dent in the leads, heads the Pathe schedule of short subjects for the week of February 19. This two-reel farce was directed by Harry Edwards under the supervision of John A. Waldron.

The seven other subjects on the program of shorts are "Crowned Heads," a Grantland Rice Sportlight; "The Spider's Lair," an Æsop cartoon; Topics of the Day No. 8; "The Road to Peril," sixth chapter of "The Man Without a Face"; Pathe Review No. 8, and Pathe News Nos. 18 and 19.

The Pathe Review number consists of three subjects: "The Jewel of Torbay," "From Farmyard to Fame," and "The Isle of the Green Savages."

Theatre Managers' Course Started at Institute

The first session of the Moving Picture Theatre Managers Institute in New York City was started Monday, last, February 6. Instructions for the first week of the course comprise the study of the history of the industry in the branches of production, distribution and exhibition. The student is given a working knowledge of studio organization, buying and booking, contracts, arbitration and exchange organization, the relations of the manager and the exchanges and other subjects.

Denny Plans to Inveigle Shaw to Sell Play Rights

Perhaps Bernard Shaw, England's grand old man of letters, will respond favorably to Reginald Denny's efforts to talk him into selling the rights to his famous plays on which movie producers have long had their eyes. The Universal comedy star is planning a trip to his native country to attempt negotiations with the playwright.

Denny has just finished "Be Yourself."

Town's Request to Ban Sunday Shows Refused

THE request of the town of Bagotville to the Provincial Government of Quebec for permission to prohibit Sunday shows locally has been turned down formally by Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Premier of Quebec.

Premier Taschereau issued a statement in which he declared: "We certainly cannot give a municipality the right to close its theatres on Sundays until we have determined how the law stands. If we find that the Federal law must be applied, theatres will be forbidden to operate on Sundays throughout the Province."

In the meantime there are rumblings of disfavor with regard to Sunday closing from great corporations in the Province of Quebec which are engaged in the lumbering, pulp and paper, asbestos, aluminum, mining and fishing industries. These huge companies do a certain amount of Sunday work in order to keep their equipment in constant operating condition. They feel that if the Lord's Day Act is applied to theatres, it will be applied to them, with considerable loss.

Loew, Publix and U. A. Theatres Continue Under Wesco

DEFINITE arrangements have been completed by which the Publix shows will be presented in Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles on the Pacific Coast.

The first Publix unit, "The Merry Widow Revue" will be booked for the opening of the new Publix Theatre in Seattle on March 1. These Publix shows will then move in rotation to the new Publix Theatre at Portland which opens March 8, and then to the Granada Theatre, San Francisco and the Metropolitan, Los Angeles.

These theatres are operated by the West Coast Western Theatres Company owned by Loew, Paramount and West Coast. The theatres will be supervised by West Coast Theatres, in accordance with an arrangement concluded by Sam Katz, the Publix, Nicholas M. Schenck for Loew's, and Harold B. Franklin for West Coast Theatres.

Ralph E. Crabill, now in charge of DeLuxe operations for Publix, will join the West Coast Theatres in a similar capacity, and will devote his efforts particularly in connection with the DeLuxe operations in which the three companies are interested.

West Coast Theatres will continue to route the Fanchon and Marco shows in the same situations, which will include the following theatres: Loew's State, Los Angeles; Loew's Warfield, San Francisco; Broadway, Portland and Fifth Avenue, Seattle, and will also include the other cities where Fanchon and Marco shows are now being shown.

Poli Option Expires But Is Not Vacated

Final Transfer of Theatres to Shoolman Interests Due in Near Future

EXPIRATION of the time for taking up the option on the S. Z. Poli circuit theatres by Max Shoolman, of Boston, has brought about two new angles to the pending transaction.

The first one is a definite statement from Mr. Poli, as well as a similar statement by an official close to Mr. Shoolman, that the deal has not fallen through but that work is actively under way and the final transfer is expected to be only a matter of days.

The second is the formation of a corporation by Mr. Shoolman in which the names of two men who are active in the E. M. Loew organization appear as incorporators. From this latter corporation it would appear that E. M. Loew interests will be active in the management and operation of the Poli theatres when Mr. Shoolman takes them over.

Attorneys for both Mr. Poli and Mr. Shoolman, who have been going into the details of the transfer of the theatres, are still working together in perfect harmony at the office of Charles H. Thayer in Worcester, where all of the meetings have taken place. Lawyers for both men state there has been no break in negotiations and no interruption with the expiration of the option date. They say that the relations between all concerned are most cordial.

While none of those engaged in the negotiations will make any statement as to the reasons for delay, it is understood that examination into the titles of properties has taken much longer time than was anticipated and that this may account for the delay in the actual transfer.

The Poli Theatres & Realty Co. has been organized at Boston and a charter has been issued to the new company. It is authorized to issue 1,000 shares of stock of no par value. Its principal offices are given as located in New Haven, Conn. In addition to Max Shoolman, the incorporators are Herman A. Mintz of Sharon, Mass., and Andrew A. Stone, of Brockton, Mass.

Messrs. Mintz and Stone are also given as the incorporators of the new Loew company, the E. M. Loew Pawtucket Theatres, Inc., organized in Pawtucket, R. I. This company has 1,000 shares of no par value stock. The third incorporator of the company is given as Sarah R. Krevoruck, of Boston.

Bromberg to Distribute Gotham Product

The releases of Gotham Productions will be serviced for the Louisiana and Mississippi territories from the office of A. C. Bromberg Attractions in New Orleans, by an arrangement concluded last week when Budd Rogers, vice-president of Lumas Film Corporation, signed papers with Jack Adams of Home State Film Company. Assuming charge of the sales will be Leo Seichsnayder of the Bromberg office. Service for the two states will have, it is said, the co-operation of Mr. Adams and his neighboring organization.

Gotham claims this will form an important distribution link in the chain of Gotham exchanges, particularly so between the Atlanta office of Eltaban Film Company and Home State Film Company, which handle the Gotham product.

Western Electric Co. Has Installed 202 Sound Projector Systems

THE total number of theatres that have contracted for installations of the Western Electric Company sound projector systems mounted to 202 during the month of January, during which a record for a single month was established with 47 new contracts. The projector systems are used in the presentation of Vitaphone and Movietone productions. The majority of the contracts signed are said to be with chain houses.

Among the 47 theatres signed during January were additional houses controlled by West Coast Theatres, Inc., and by the Dent Circuit in Texas. Other contracts are for initial installations in a number of important chains.

Through these new installations Vitaphone and Movietone are functioning in the following places: Sacramento, San Jose, Berkeley, Fresno, Bakersfield, Glendale, Pomona, Anaheim, Pasadena, San Bernardino, Los Angeles, Santa Ana and Alhambra, all in California; Bellingham, Olympia, Yakima, Walla Walla, Wenatchee and Seattle, in Washington; Astoria, Ore.; Butte, Mont.; Pueblo, Col.; Milwaukee and Kenosha, Wis.; Springfield, Mo.; Columbus, Cleveland and Findlay, Ohio; Philadelphia, Pa.; Camden, N. J., and Buffalo, Syracuse, Watertown and Utica, N. Y.

K-A-O Stock Goes Fast

Initial $10,000,000 Issue Reported Oversubscribed by End of First Day

THE Keith-Albee-Orpheum headquarters report the initial offering of $10,000,000 of the cumulative preferred 7 per cent stock of the new corporation over-subscribed on the first day of its release to the public. It was available Wednesday morning, February 1st, through Lehman Brothers, Halgarten & Company, Edward B. Smith & Company of New York, and their syndicate group of bankers in Boston, San Francisco and Seattle and met with an instantaneous response at the opening price of $101 per share and accrued dividend.

By noon of the day following the release of the stock the entire issue is reported as being over-subscribed four times, and before the market closed for the week these securities commanded a premium on the curb and in the open market. Applications for listing on the New York Exchange are in preparation and the confidence shown by the investing public gives assurance of the early appearance of the Keith-Albee-Orpheum securities there.

The official statement of the assets and liabilities of this new $100,000,000 vaudeville corporation forestalled doubt on the attractiveness of the issue and made the securities much in demand. The personnel of the officers and board of directors of the giant merger also served to instill confidence in the speculatively-inclined public. These executives have long been recognized as constructive business economists as well as expert and foresighted showmen.

E. F. Albee, president of the new organization, has achieved and maintained a national reputation as an authority on realty values in all the important cities of the United States. He has had a half-century of activity in vaudeville. Marcus Heiman, president of the Orpheum circuit and now executive vice-president of the Keith-Albee-Orpheum merger, is of the same type as Albee, as are John J. Murdock, vice-president and general manager, and the numerous other executives of the new corporation.

Ingram to Make Film in Britain for U. A.

REX INGRAM, director, last week signed a contract in London whereby he will make one picture in England that will star his wife, Alice Terry, and which will be distributed by United Artists throughout the world. The contract was signed with Louis Blattner, of the International Distributing Trust, Ltd.

Camera work is to be begun in six weeks on the production, to be personally directed by Ingram at an English studio. An all-English cast of players will support Miss Terry in the film. The director is said to be considering three stories, one of which will supply his theme for the picture.

Addition to Family of C. Sewell, Former Critic

Charlie Sewell, former trade journal reviewer of motion pictures, is the proud father of a brand new baby girl, who arrived last Wednesday morning, weighing exactly 6 pounds and 10 ounces at birth. Both the baby and mother are getting along well. Charlie has also another child, three years old.

Mr. Sewell is now associated as assistant editor with The Spice Mill, a 51-year-old trade journal devoted to coffee and spice trade.

Warners' New Social Club Holds Party and Dance

The first party and dance of the Warner Social Club, the newly formed social organization for the members of the Warner home office, was held at the Brooklyn Vitagraph Studio last Thursday evening. Over 150 Warner workers and their guests attended. For dance music the Vitaphone was pressed into service.

As a start towards financial independence, the Warner Bros. are giving a special midnight performance of "The Jazz Singer" at the Warner Theatre on March 3, the proceeds to go to the treasury of the club.

Eight Features on Pathe's February Schedule

Pathe has listed eight feature productions for release in February. Three of this group are De Mille products, four are westerns and one is a juvenile comedy drama.

"The Night Flyer," starring William Boyd, is set for February 5; also on this date will come "Crashing Through," a western featuring Jack Padjan. Jobyna Ralston is the leading lady in the former production and Sally Rand in the latter. A week later, on February 12, will be released a Leo Maloney western, "The Apache Raider," and the juvenile comedy drama, "Alice Through the Looking Glass." Eugenia Gilbert appears opposite Maloney in the western, based on the story, "The Border Raider." The juvenile film was produced especially for Pictorial Clubs, releasing through Pathe, and is a screen version of the fantasy by Lewis Carroll.

February 9 will bring "Stand and Deliver," starring Rod La Rocque, with Lupe Valez as the girl in the case, and "The Valley of Hunted Men," a Buffalo Bill, Jr., starring western, in which Kathleen Collins is the leading woman. The releases for February 26 are: "A Blonde for a Night," featuring Marie Prevost with Harrison Ford, and "The Bronc Stomper," a Dan Coleman starring western produced by Maloney. Eugenia Gilbert is also the chief female in this western.

Rothacker to Film Sequel to "The Lost World"

Watterson R. Rothacker, who in 1925 produced for First National A. Conan Doyle's "The Lost World," is rapidly completing plans for the production of a sequel to that picture.

Sterling Chain Theatres New Seattle Circuit

INCORPORATION of a new chain of second run movie theatres in downtown Seattle, Washington, was announced recently in that city by John Danz, veteran exhibitor of the Pacific Northwest territory. The new group includes the chain of seven houses acquired in the past and recently by Mr. Danz, which has been incorporated as the "Sterling Chain Theatres Inc.," with Mr. Danz as president.

Other officers of the organization include George I. Appleby, former sales executive for the Pathe Seattle exchange; and Roy Cooper, secretary, for a number of seasons identified with various Danz theatrical interests.

The houses included in the chain are the Capitol, Strand, Palace Hip, State, Colonial, Star and Florence Theatres, representing a total capacity of approximately 5,500.

Pettijohn to Attend Des Moines Meeting

C. C. PETTIJOHN, of the Hays organization, has reported to the Des Moines Film Board of Trade, that he plans to attend the meeting to be held in Des Moines on February 13 which will be attended by over a hundred of the leading exhibitors of Iowa.

A banquet and winter frolic is planned for the theatre men of Iowa who will also come to Des Moines for the meeting of the Iowa Theatre Owners Association convention scheduled for the same day. The headquarters for both organizations is the Savery Hotel, where the M.P.T.O.A. meeting is set for one o'clock. The Brookhart Bill, which has called forth some decided opinions of exchange men and exhibitors, will be under discussion. Officers and directors of the Iowa theatre men's organization will be elected at this session, which is called by the executive secretary and treasurer of the past year, E. P. Smith.

The Film Board banquet is set for seven o'clock at the Hotel Savery.

6 Comedy Releases From Universal in February

This month Universal is releasing six two-reel comedies produced by the Stern Film Corporation. The releases are headed by "The Newlyweds' Servant," a new comedy about the Newlyweds family starring, as usual, Snookums, with Addie McPhail and Jack Bartlett as his doting parents; this comedy was released this week as a Junior Jewel.

The first of the other five comedies is "Start Something," a new "Jones" comedy with Harry Long and Stella Adams in the leading roles. The Buster Brown release for the month is "Buster Steps Out." Charles King and Charles Dorety are again seen as "Ike and Mike" in "What a Party." Two of the "Let George Do It" series of comedies are set for the month. They are "A Man of Letters" and "George's False Alarm." Both of them star Sid Saylor; in the first he is supported by Marie Wood, Dorothy Vernon and Jimmy Kelley and in the second by Marny Elwyn and Max Ascher. The Los Angeles Fire Department cooperated in the making of this last comedy.

Several of these new Sterns comedies have had their premieres at the Colony Theatre in New York and have been booked for showings over the Loew circuit.

Fox Adds Berthold Viertel to Scenario Staff

Berthold Viertel, who has been associated with Max Reinhardt and who collaborated with Carl Mayer on the scenario of "The Four Devils," sails soon from Germany on the liner Hamburg, due in New York February 20. He will go immediately to Hollywood to join the writing department of Fox which is being augmented under the guidance of Winfield Sheehan, vice-president and general manager.

Viertel, like Reinhardt, is said to be a discoverer of new talent and an innovator in exploring art forms. He has been editor of a Prague newspaper and head director of the Royal Theatre in Dresden.

Campaign Book Ruled No Part of Contract

Warners Win Suit Over Exhibitor After Substituting Players, Directors Originally Named

WARNER BROS. were adjudged winner by an arbitration board in their suit against Waldo C. Ives, an exhibitor of Anacortes, Washington. The decision is of marked importance in that it holds a campaign book as no part of a contract. In coming to this conclusion the board reversed its previous stand in finding for Warners. The question of the suit hinged upon substitutions in the productions offered in the campaign book, upon which the exhibitor contended the contract was made.

Warner Bros. brought the action against Ives in the amount of $117.28 for rentals and expenses covering "Simple Sis," "Bitter Apples," "What Happened to Father," "Gay Old Bird" and "Dearie." Ives, in the original suit, claimed that substitutions had been made and that therefore his contract with Warners had been nullified. The Board found for Ives in this original hearing and awarded him expenses after denying the distributor's claim.

At the time of the first hearing the campaign books were offered in evidence and the exhibitor pointed out many discrepancies in the pictures he had contracted for. Great stress was laid upon changes made in players, directors and stories as they were outlined in the original book. It was contended that in some cases the pictures which eventually were delivered were entirely foreign in their makeup as to caste and directors to what was originally outlined. It was on this showing that the decision was made against Warners.

Warner Bros. succeeded in having the case reopened with Joseph Hazen, of the Warner home office, presenting his legal arguments to the board. He pointed out that there was no substitution as between the contract and the delivered product in that nothing but titles were specified in the contract. There was no mention of players and directors in the contract signed between exhibitor and distributor.

Ives contended that despite the omission of names other than picture titles in the contract which he signed, that the campaign book was a part of the contract, and that he bought the picture on the strength of the information the campaign book contained. The board agreed with Warners that only the terms specified in the contract were binding.

New Writers Join Staff of Paramount Scenarists

Many new faces may be seen in the Paramount scenario department, Hollywood, as Paramount executives have added considerably to the staff of writers as an important move in plans for the production program of 1928.

Louis Gasnier is one of the new writers; he is known in Europe and this country as playwright, producer and director. O. H. B. Garett, another Paramount literary man, has had a newsparer career, being associated for five years with the New York World as a reporter and The Globe and the Sun; he has also written some fiction. Norman Burnstine has had a collegiate background along with his writing experience. When he graduated from Columbia after having edited the college's humorous publication he was awarded a $1,000 literary prize.

Others of the new Paramount writers are George Watters, the co-author of "Burlesque"; John Farrow, only 23 years old, but who has several stories to his credit; Donald Davis, son of the playwright, Owen Davis; George Kates, Julian Moss and Robert S. Carr.

Atlanta Metropolitan Closes After Long Losing Battle

THE Metropolitan Theatre of Atlanta, Ga., an independently owned house, has given up the struggle and will close its doors on February 11th, in line with rumors that have prevailed for some time past. The customary two weeks' notice has been handed to all employees. It is now rumored that negotiations are under way for the leasing of the Metropolitan by entirely new interests.

The theatre had a brilliant opening on July 4, 1921, and provided splendid entertainment and was given generous patronage. This continued until the coming of Keith's Georgia and the Capitol, two major theatres of vastly larger capacity, more elaborate appointments and a combination policy, pictures and vaudeville.

Many months ago a desperate effort was made to save a losing proposition by reducing the size of the orchestra, but the house was defeated in the fight with the musicians' union. Still later, in an effort to stimulate business, the prices were cut to 10, 20 and 30 cents, but this did not result in increased patronage.

All other first-run theatres in Atlanta are producer-controlled, the Metropolitan being the one independently-owned house of its class.

Publix-Saenger Expansion Planned in North Carolina

FURTHER expansion of the Publix-Saenger Theaters of North Carolina is indicated in the survey now being made through the state by prime officials of the company. Prospective sites for new theaters are being examined this week and it is anticipated that definite announcement of important plans will be forthcoming shortly.

Preceding the tour of inspection major officials of the Publix-Saenger company of North Carolina came here from New Orleans and held a conference at which tentative plans were discussed. The party included: E. V. Richards, President, New Orleans; R. B. Wilby, Vice-President, Atlanta; L. M. Ash, Secretary, New Orleans; W. H. Gueringer, General Manager of Saenger Theaters, Inc., New Orleans; H. A. Benson of the firm of Emile Weil Company, Architects, New Orleans.

The North Carolina end of the Publix-Saenger Company is now operating seventeen theaters, four of which are located at Greensboro; others are in Raleigh, Durham, Fayetteville, Chapel Hill, Salisburg and Hendersonville. H. F. Kincey, General Manager of the North Carolina Corporation, said his company now has under consideration several deals in the state. The company recently leased the new theater now under construction in Winston-Salem, but it will be nine months before the house is completed.

Talking Film Pool Ends

Five-Cornered Producers Combine to Look Into Various Devices Is Dissolved

FIRST NATIONAL, Paramount, Universal, Pathe and FBO, which some time ago joined forces in a pool with regard to sound reproduction devices to be used in connection with motion pictures, have agreed to go their separate ways with regard to the matter and the pool has been dissolved.

The five firms originally banded together and named a committee to thoroughly investigate all apparatus devised for the synchronization of sound and pictures with the understanding that whatever findings the committee may make would be abided by by all concerned.

It seems quite evident that no definite conclusions were deducted by the committee as no concerted action was taken by the companies. Or it may be that they could not agree on the device to be adopted, for FBO first took the definite step when Joseph P. Kennedy tied up with the General Electric Company and the Radio Corporation of America in a deal which will bring FBO into direct competition with Movietone, Vitaphone, Vocafilm and Phonofilm.

It is not unlikely that among the reasons for the dissolution of the five-cornered pool of companies is the proposed system of licensing that is to be applied by the concerns governing talking moving pictures. It is said that all companies now in the talking film field will immediately, or sometime in the near future, license their devices to outside producers.

Wampas Baby Stars to Be Presented at Ball

PLANS for the annual ball of the Wampas, the Western Association of Motion Picture Advertisers, to be held on February 25, are rapidly being formulated. The 13 Wampas Baby Stars of 1928 have been selected and will be duly presented at the ball. The general opinion among film folk is that the selections have been well made.

The new Wampas stars are: Lupe Valez, Lina Basquette, June Collyer, Sue Carol, Molly O'Day, Ruth Taylor, Dorothy Gulliver, Gwen Lee, Audrey Ferris, Sally Eilers, Alice Day, Ann Christy and Flora Bramley.

Nineteen Paramount Films in Production Stages

Five pictures in production, five in preparation, nine others scheduled to go into work before the end of March—nineteen pictures in all—are now making the Paramount studios in Hollywood experience one of its busiest seasons.

The cameramen are grinding away on units making "The Code of Honor," "Partners in Crime," "Abie's Irish Rose," "Something Always Happens," and "The Patriot." In addition, "Speedy" is being made for Paramount release. Inside of three weeks' time production will start on "Easy Come, Easy Go," "She Wouldn't Say Yes," "Ladies of the Mob," a new Beery-Hatton comedy, and George Bancroft's second starring vehicle.

Eleven pictures are also in the Paramount cutting rooms.

Strengthening of Lumas Organization in Progress

During his transcontinental trip, Budd Rogers, vice-president of Lumas, is engaged in the task of strengthening the personnel of the organization. While in Chicago recently he called a special meeting of the staffs of the Illinois and Indiana offices for the purpose of outlining the new policies for distribution of the forthcoming Gotham program of 30 productions for the 1928-29 season. The Chicago meet was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Abrams, of the Chicago office, and Irving Mandel, President E. A. Sipe, Manager Russell Bleeke and John Bates, of the Indianapolis office.

Jack L. Sampson, former Chicago branch manager of FBO and president of the Chicago Film Board of Trade, has been assigned by Mr. Rogers to the post of exchange supervisor at the Chicago branch. In the near future he will act as exchange supervisor of all exchanges of Lumas in the central west.

Columbia Chooses Cast for "The Sporting Age"

Holmes Herbert and Carroll Nye have been selected as the leading masculine players who will appear in support of Belle Bennett, whose initial Columbia vehicle will be "The Sporting Age."

Supporting Warner Baxter and Margaret Livingston in "A Woman's Way" will be Armand Kaliz, Mathilde Comont, John St. Polis and Ernie Adams. The majority of these supporting artists are French by birth, and the company chose them with that fact in view when it came to casting this Parisian romance.

First National Purchases Story for Colleen Moore

A story written expressly for the star by Edmund Goulding and entitled "Tomorrow," has been purchased by First National from Mr. Goulding as a vehicle for Colleen Moore to follow "Lilac Time."

"Tomorrow" will be adapted to the screen by Benjamin Glaser, who will also do the continuity. Mr. Goulding will direct the picture.

It is expected that "Lilac Time" will be finished in six weeks' time; it has been shooting for 40 days.

Lupe Valez Will Star in United Artists' "La Piava"

"La Piava," the original story by Dr. Karl Vollmoeller, announced at various times as a vehicle for the talents of Gloria Swanson or D. W. Griffith, is to be produced by United Artists, with Lupe Valez, new Wampas star, as the featured player; she will be directed by Fred Niblo. Production has been set to begin on March 15.

Yamins Loses Theatres in Fall River Fire

THE severe conflagration that swept the Massachausetts town of Fall River destroyed the Rialto and the Premiere theatres, owned and operated by Nathan Yamins, a prominent official of the M. P. T. O. A. Both houses were burned to the ground; singularly enough, they were the only theatres destroyed by the fire. Mr. Yamins plans to rebuild them.

Both houses were modernized and had been reopened for only a few weeks. The audiences filling both structures were dismissed without disorder when it became apparent that the buildings were doomed.

Comic Shorts Continue Popular, Says 'U' Head

"THE two-reel comedy is holding its own on all fronts," says Ted Schlanger, Universal short subject sales manager, who returned to the home office of Universal in New York this week after a six weeks' survey covering the entire middle west and a part of the south. "Even in the houses," reports Mr. Schlanger, "where presentations and vaudeville supplement the feature picture, two-reel comedies continue as a staple.

The Universal executive found that exhibitors are not changing their position either one way or the other with regard to presentations and vaudeville. With few exceptions he found that houses featuring presentations or vaudeville are standing pat on that policy and that houses presenting straight film programs also show no evidence of changing.

Warner Studio Preparing for Start of New Films

Plans are now in the making at the Warner Bros studio on the Coast for the picture program for 1928 which is expected to be launched during February, around the latter part of the month.

The regular production forces, scenarists, directors, assistant directors, production managers and cameramen, are reporting daily for collaboration work on the stories that will be launched when the Warner players have returned from their customary vacations.

Now in construction are the sets that these various units will employ; special attention is being paid to those preparations that have to do with the features utilizing the Vitaphone. Technicians are said to be working steadily on new sound effects that will be incorporated into full length features, Al Jolson's next to be one of them. With this latter production one corps of workers is occupied exclusively.

These Vitaphone stages have been busy regularly, some short playlets to feature screen stars being in production.

When Jack L. Warner and Darryl Francis Zanuck return from abroad the exact opening date of the studio will be made public. With the starting of a new lot of pictures the signing of additional directors will be announced, it is said.

Novarro Signs M-G-M Star Contract

Effectively squelching various rumors that he was shortly to try his hand on the concert stage and that he was about to become a monk, Ramon Novarro, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star, has entered into a new contract with that company.

He is now working in a new film, "China Bound."

"The River" Bought by Fox Film Corporation

Tristam Tupper's story, "The River," which appeared as a serial in The Saturday Evening Post, has been purchased for screening by Fox Films. It is the tale of a backwoods girl's love for an engineer of a railroad construction crew.

New Blank Chain Formed

Company Is Organized to Handle Houses Independent of Blank-Publix Circuit

A. H. BLANK theatres in Iowa which are independent of the A. H. Blank-Publix chain were organized under a new name last week when the Central States Theatre Corporation was formed. J. W. Denman, who has been with the A. H. Blank organization for years as auditor and before that was in the banking business in Des Moines, is the secretary and treasurer of the new corporation. The vice president is B. W. Brusiner, who was vice-president of the Des Moines Theatre Company. Harry Weinberg, head of the Commonwealth Theatres Corporation which operates three houses at Ames, one at South Omaha and one at Albia, is president.

The details of the organization are still to be completed, but the announcement was made that no changes have been planned for the management of the houses in the chain. The new organization will have their headquarters in the offices of the Commonwealth Theatres Company at 703-4 Commonwealth Building. An office staff of five will conclude the executive office of the firm.

Theatres included in the new plan are the Rialto at Fort Dodge, the Palace and Bijou at Mason City, the Rialto at Burlington, the Englert and Garden at Iowa City, the Rialto at Boone, the Strand and Rialto at Clinton, and the Lincoln at Charlton.

Theatres which formerly belonged to the A. H. Blank chain until they were affiliated with the Publix organization are the Capitol, and Des Moines, Strand, Palace and Garden of Des Moines, the Riviera, Strand and Rialto at Omaha, the Riviera at Waterloo, the Capitol and Rialto at Newton, the Columbia, Garden and Family at Davenport, the Fort Armstrong and Spencer Square at Rock Island, two Sioux City houses, and the theatre at Council Bluffs.

The theatre now under construction at Cedar Rapids, which is scheduled to be completed this spring, will be an A. H. Blank-Publix house and is supposed to surpass anything before built in Iowa.

Exports Show Increase

Year 1927 Is Largest, With One Exception, of Shipments of Film to Foreign Countries

A REPORT just compiled and released by the Motion Picture Section of the Department of Commerce reveals some interesting statistics which show the upward trend of motion pictures and film. Among the outstanding facts is one that exports for 1927 were the greatest in a single year since 1919, which still stands as the high mark with 273,000,000 feet of American motion pictures. In 1927, 231,995,618 linear feet of positive and negative motion pictures were exported, as compared with 220,026,206 feet of the same kind in 1926.

The report shows that exports of positives in 1927 amounted to 222,546,067 linear feet, with a declared value of $5,775,730, as against 214,026,620 feet valued at $6,395,923 in 1926. Negative film also increased for the year 1927. The figures given in the exports show 9,448,951 linear feet valued at $1,455,519, as against 6,600, 536 feet at a declared value of $1,334,960 in 1926.

A peculiar feature of the report is that every section of the world with the exception of Canada has increased its consumption of American motion pictures. Latin America continues the largest market in point of quantity. For the year 1927, 82,822,376 linear feet were shipped to this part of the world, as against 73,592,660 feet in 1926.

Europe continues the second largest consumer in point of footage with 69,512,789 feet in 1927, as against 63,128,710 feet in 1926. Next comes the Far East with an increase of some 3,000,000 feet over the 1926 period. In 1927 there was exported to the Far East 58,827,613 linear feet, as against 55,407,018 feet in 1926. Canada showed a decline of a little over ten million feet in 1927 over 1926. In 1927, 10,920,724 feet were imported there from America, as against 20,985,072 linear feet in 1926.

The falling off in Canada does not mean that there are not as many American motion pictures being shown there as in former years. It is understood that a number of American companies have established their own laboratories in Canada and are sending negatives over the border to have positives printed for use in that country.

With regard to the individual markets, Australia still continues to be our leading market in point of quantity. During 1927, 27,017,656 feet were shipped to the Antipodes as against 26,188,320 feet in 1926.

Sordid Film of Murder Banned in Minneapolis

THE motion picture called "Hickman, the Fox" has been barred from showing in Minneapolis by Mayor George E. Leach. Motion picture exhibitors of the city, hearing that such a film was to be offered the theatres in the city, told the mayor, who promptly applied the ban. As the mayor has the power to revoke picture theatre licenses at his discretion, his order in such a case is final.

Two Films from Warners During February

Two Warner Bros. features will be released during February.

May McAvoy in "The Little Snob" will be on hand in the exchanges beginning February 11. Monte Blue in "Across the Atlantic" will come on the 25.

Philly Building Active

Contracts Are Let for Three Big Picture Palaces, With Some Construction Under Way

THEATRE building activities are booming along at a fast clip in Philadelphia, with contracts let or work actually under way on three new picture palaces. The Uptown Theatre Company has let a contract to Cramp and Company for the erection of a new house at 2220-2250 North Broad Street. The proposed theatre building will be six stories high and will be of brick, steel and concrete, with the upper floors devoted to professional offices. Plans are being drawn by Magaziner, Eberhard and Harris. The entire project will represent an investment of about $500,000.

Plans are being prepared for the Fox Theatre Corporation for the erection of a 5,000 seat house and office building at the southwest corner of 17th and Market Streets to cost approximately $8,000,000. This announcement was made by Roy M. Livingstone, attorney, representing the Fox corporation.

The site on which the building will be erected extends west on Market street 248 feet and has a depth of 176 feet to Ludlow street. The site was acquired subject to mortgages of $1,958,000 and ground rents totaling $51,450. The proposed project will be one of the two largest de luxe motion picture theatres in the city and will be the fourth addition to Philadelphia's new theatrical Rialto.

Work is being rushed on the foundations of the new Mastbaum theatre, named for the late Jules E. Mastbaum, president of the Stanley Company of America. The building is at the northwest corner of 20th and Market streets. Actual setting of the steel will take place within the next few days.

Subsequent installations will be rushed by the Hoffman-Henon Company, architects, and it is hoped the theatre will throw open its doors to the public in the early Fall. The Stanley company is planning to make this theatre the most elaborate motion picture house that has been erected in the eastern part of the United States.

This new palace will have a seating capacity slightly in excess of 5,000 and the actual construction cost will be somewhat in excess of $5,000,000. It will occupy more than an acre of ground. The house will be devoted to de luxe motion picture presentations with music and stage features, but the stage will be so built as to provide for the presentation of the most elaborate theatrical productions.

New Ice for Amusements

Artificial Substitute Does Not Melt, Evaporate Nor Freeze; Has Many Uses

NUMEROUS artificial substitutes have been invented or devised for natural ice in recent years, but the latest and one of the most remarkable of them is the substance that has been trade-named "Magic Ice," invented by Fred A. Gerner, a famous figure and acrobatic skater and holder of the world's records for jumping on skates. Mr. Gerner's invention, perfected and patented, is now being made available for the many uses to which it can be put.

"Magic Ice" is to be used mainly for amusement and exhibition purposes. It is a chemical composition sheet of ice in sections. It will neither melt nor freeze and does not evaporate. In fact, once made, it is virtually permanent, requiring only a very infrequent refinishing.

This invention makes it possible to give skating and winter sports exhibitions in any theatres, on steamships, in public squares or parks, and, in fact, any place where a flat surface can be obtained. The remarkable feature of it is that it can be used in any climate in the world, and makes possible the establishment of skating rinks in Tropical and sub-Tropical countries.

The amusement uses to which the ice can be put are so numerous that they have not been determined yet by any means. Several complete winter sports shows are now in rehearsal, and two are already on the road. Two huge traveling winter sports circuses are in preparation, and the owners of the ice are negotiating with several cities, steamships, theatres, cabarets, and other possibilities for establishing these skating rinks. Construction of miniature rinks, toboggan slides, ski-jumps and other winter sports paraphernalia is being projected for a special field. These will be sold to boys and children, for erection in yards and small spaces, or even basements, enabling them to enjoy winter sports no matter what the weather is or where they live.

"Magic Ice" can be used in both the legitimate and motion picture theatre. In the former it can be used as a regular show number or large feature act, and in the latter it can be used as a relief number or special act. "Magic Ice" also makes possible the "shooting" of skating pictures or hockey matches, etc., in the Hollywood motion picture studios, or wherever pictures are made.

Columbia Prepares for 3 New Productions

WITH the engagement of Edmund Mortimer and Frank Capra to direct "A Woman's Way" and "Broadway Daddies," and the signing of Belle Bennett to enact the dramatic portrayal in "The Sporting Age," Columbia Pictures is now ready to start work upon three new films. The studio has also assigned Elmer Harris, screen adaptor, and Will M. Ritchey, continuity writer, to prepare "A Woman's Way" for Mortimer, and Joe Jackson to do the continuity for "Broadway Daddies."

Players' Speech to be Heard in "Tenderloin"

THE conversation in the Warner Bros. picture, "Tenderloin," will not be understood by means of the titles flashed upon the screen, but will be heard plainly by an audience via the Vitaphone, which has been called upon to augment several of the important dramatic incidents of the story. The spoken words of Dolores Costello, Conrad Nagel and other principals add considerably, say the Warners, to the effect of the climax, a third degree scene. The Warners will use the Vitaphone more and more in forthcoming pictures. Only a few words of dialogue were used in that other Vitaphoned film, "The Jazz Singer," but the newer picture indicates the extent to which the producers have come to rely on the sound device for heightening the effect of a picture.

Universal Plans Series of Cohen and Kelly Films

A series of Cohen and Kelly pictures is planned by Universal because of the successful business being done by the latest Cohen and Kelly film, "The Cohens and the Kellys in Paris," in New York, Pittsburgh, San Francisco, Atlanta, St. Louis and other cities.

The scenario department at Universal City has already received instructions to prepare further stories of the Cohens and the Kellys. Directors and cast for these sequels will be released later.

Future pictures will bring these Irish and Jewish cronies to Ireland, Jerusalem, Africa, Hollywood, jail and other places.

Educational's Color Special Set for February 12

"Love's Springtime," the second of the new two-reel productions in Technicolor on the Educational program, will be released on February 12. Hope Hampton is starred in this dramatic subject, which was directed by Leonce Perrett; Jacques Catalaine, French actor, has the leading male role. Technicolor is used throughout the picture; Howard Greene is responsible for the color scenes. The picture was made in France.

Cabinet Supervising "U" Theatres Formed

HEADED by Charles B. Paine as operating executive, the operations of Universal Chain Theatrical Enterprises will be supervised by a cabinet recently formed. Beno Rubel and E. H. Goldstein are supervising the work of this cabinet whose other members consist of H. M. Messiter, assistant to Mr. Paine; Joe Weil, continuing as director of publicity, exploitation and advertising; Herbert L. Robinson, comptroller, and Charles Burden, in charge of the real estate department of the chain.

Sells "Arabian Knights" With Newspaper and Tie-Up Drive

J. EARL HAYES, director of publicity for the Jayhawk and National Theatres Corporation, of Topeka, Kan., in a report to this department of a campaign for the Orpheum Theatre, points a moral that can be taken to heart by every showman without any effort at lecturing. The facts of the campaign for "Two Arabian Knights," which Hayes describes, illustrates once again the value of "going after a picture with everything in the showmanship bag when you believe you have a picture that will stand up under the pressure of high-powered exploitation."

Above we are reproducing a few of the newspaper ads used in this campaign, which opened with teasers and was stepped up to displays. The details of the complete drive, as reported by Hayes, follow:

"I used two five-double teaser ads on the picture, hit it with the two larger ads on Saturday and Sunday, in the Topeka Capitol and Journal, just preceding the opening, and on the opening used the two-eight and two-nine, dropping to the singles on the balance of the week. We believed enough in the picture to offer the first advertising matinee ever offered here on a picture, which worked out nicely for us, giving a big opening performance, and the patrons naturally spread the good word to their friends. Another angle we worked was tying into the Merchants' Dollar Day by offering a dollar-day special on the opening night. We used half-sheets on the street cars, posted plenty of ones, threes, sixes and twenty-fours, used heralds, and on the busiest corner downtown we used a big double twenty-four cutout flash where a building is being reconstructed. We got away in good shape on this picture, and I thought you might be interested in how we do things out in Topeka, Kan.

"Texas Steer" Exploited by "Wise Crack" Tieup

A six-day wisecracking contest, with cash prizes to the winners, run in the columns of the Los Angeles Record, was an outstanding feature of the exploitation campaign put on by Loew's State Theatre, Los Angeles, for "A Texas Steer." This contest fitted in with the Rogers brand of wisecracks in the sub-titles, and it brought out hundreds of puns, aphorisms, humorous sallies and satirical wisecracks, the best of which were published in the Record.

A street ballyhoo that got the attention of the public from its very simplicity and its appropriateness, was a long-horned Texas steer (a live one) mounted on a truck and carried through the streets. Of course, the truck was bannered to advertise the picture, the theatre and the play date.

Because of Will Rogers' addiction to chewing gum when he is delivering his monologues, it proved easy to get a tie-up with a manufacturer of chewing gum. A stick of gum was put in a small envelope, on which was printed, in red, "Two Good Steers! A stick of Adams California fruit gum after meals and a good, hearty laugh any time. See Will Rogers in 'A Texas Steer,'" etc.

Showmanship

INDUCING the local postmaster to provide the home newspapers with some local data about the times of departure of the airplane mail from the city, as the basis for a newspaper story which also exploited the film play, "The Dove," was comparatively easy for Edward J. Melniker, manager of Loew's Regent, Harrisburg, Pa. The local facts about the mail service appeared in the papers in the form of an interview with Postmaster Charles E. Pass, and woven into the story was the fact that Miss Talmadge, late in December, had christened a United States mail plane with the name of "The Dove,"' just before its first flight on a new air mail route in California.

J. M. ROBERTSON, manager of the Dominion Theatre, Victoria, B. C., has found a valuable use for old prints in adapting them to the popular intelligence test idea. Procuring pieces of old films from exchanges at Vancouver, he removed titles and subtitles and joined the sections, using 12 scenes from as many features. The film was then screened at performances with the request that patrons guess the names of the pictures for prizes.

MANAGER Fred O. Slenker interested a whosesale house in a proposition to advertise both his brand of tea and "Tea for Three" playing at the Garden Theatre, Davenport, Iowa. The wholesaler furnished gratis 500 sacks. Tags attached to the sacks of tea announced the title. The sacks of tea were given to ladies upon leaving the theatre several days in advance of "Tea for Three."

"SCHOLEGIATE" night at the Sterling theatre, Greeley, Colo., was a recent and profitable innovation introduced by Manager C. T. Perrin. The bands of both the college and high school appeared on the stage in a contest that was to determine the winner for this particular night.

THE Imperial Theatre, Ottawa, Ontario, presented a Tom Mix feature during the week of January 23, whch is not listed in the book. The original title of the production was "$5,000 Reward," but a technicality over its title made it necessary to screen the picture under the name of "Daredevil's Reward." Hand-painted sheets were pasted over the title in the posters around town, and the small boys had a busy time trying to find out the name underneath. Ray Tubman is manager.

A SPECIAL matinee for newsboys, with its attendant noise and excitement, did wonders for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "West Point," starring William Haines, when that picture played at the Valentine Theatre, Toledo, Ohio. Manager Len Grotte, assisted by an M-G-M exploiteer, gave the special showing.

THE town of Oakland was spotted with the Pep-Will Rogers posters for the showing of the cowboy-humorist's "A Texas Steer" at the T. & D. theatre. Fifteen posters were used in Oakland, with 450 grocery and delicatessen stores displaying the window cards.

Novel Shadow Box Is Lobby Exhibit for "Love"

Manager T. R. Earl used a specially constructed shadow box in the foyer ten days in advance of play date to advertise "Love" at the Imperial Theatre, Asheville, N. C.

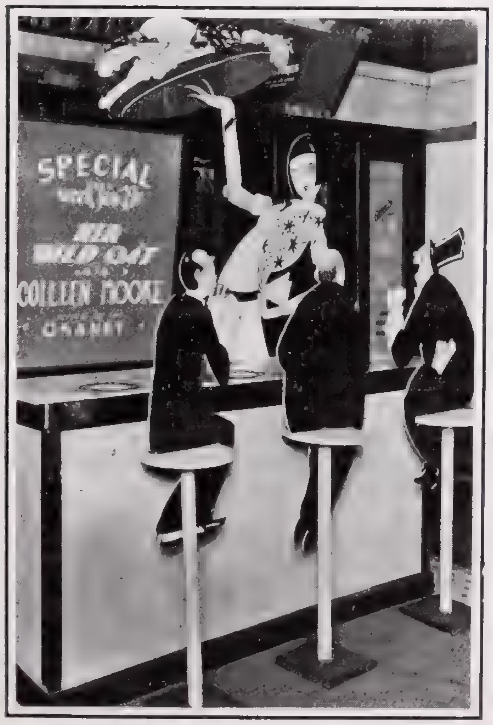
The box was made up to contain a one-sheet mat, set off by a black border, with a small platform at the bottom. The box itself was entirely black, and small torch lamps appeared on either side.

In the place for the mat was a cardboard piece with the letters of the stars and title cut-out and backed by colored paper. The word "Love" was in red letters, which appeared to be in flame, due to shadow effects from an electric fan blowing streamers.

Another light was used to illuminate the stars' names. This was on a flasher button, which added considerably to its appearance.

Harling Writing Another Music Drama for Roxy

Inspired by the current biographical literature on Napoleon, S. L. Rothafel has commissioned W. Frank Harling, American composer, to write a music-drama of the life of the "Little Corporal" for early presentation at the Roxy Theatre. Harling is the composer of the operas "A Light from St. Agnes" and "Deep River"; likewise the lyric pageant, "Joan of Arc," which was presented at the Roxy a few weeks ago as one of the most ambitious musical and dramatic offerings ever seen in a motion picture theatre. Mr. Harling's "Napoleon" will be constructed in a similar manner to his "Joan of Ac," touching upon the high lights in the life of the Emperor, and designed to utilize the orchestra, choral, ballet and stage and scenic features of the Roxy organization.



A realistic lobby display for "Her Wild Oat" using figures cut out from a stock six-sheet. The arrangement was designed by Pierre Boulogne, manager of the Granby Theatre, Norfolk, and displayed in the lobby of that house

Eric Clarke Lists "Ten Best" on Box Office Ratings at Eastman

THE "Ten Best" money makers presented during 1927 at the Eastman Theatre, Rochester, N. Y., are listed by Eric Clarke in the following order of their box-office rating, based on receipts at the Eastman:

1—"What Price Glory."
2—"Ben Hur."
3—"We're in the Navy Now."
4—"The Big Parade."
5—"Tell It to the Marines."
6—"The Kid Brother."
7—"The Cat and the Canary."
8—"Hula."
9—"Rookies."
10—"Chang."

Commenting on his list, which he published in his column "Movie Musings," in the Rochester Democrat-Chronicle, Mr. Clarke says:

"Of course, film taste varies in different cities, but the grand average for the country will find certain pictures have an appeal that is universal, and it is not likely that the Eastman list will differ very materially from those favored by other progressive communities."

Battle Tank on Ford Truck Key Stunt of "Big Parade" Drive

A WAR tank, constructed of composition board and mounted on a Ford truck—the total cost amounting to $20—was the mainstay of a lively and effective campaign staged by E. F. Nutter, of the American Theatre in Rowlesburg, W. Va., to exploit the presentation of "The Big Parade."

Mr. Nutter furnishes this department with the following details of this ingenious ballyhoo:

"The tank measured 18 feet in length, 9 feet in height at highest point, and wide enough to cover a portion of the wheels of a Ford truck. Guns made of regular stovepipe iron were mounted on all four sides and in the imitation turret at top.

"We covered the surrounding territory for a radius of twenty miles, using blank cartridges, large firecrackers, smoke-pots and a machine-gun effect constructed from a snare drum equipped with a suction vibrator attached to manifold of engine, when passing through various towns and villages.

"On opening night, secured permission from Mayor to place tank in action on street for two blocks east and west of theatre. Held up traffic at each end of area; placed six men inside of tank with Roman candles and bombs; three men in turret with flag, bugle and skyrockets. Placed colored flares and smoke-pots at front and rear of tank.

"At given signal tank moved down street with men inside firing Roman candles and bombs from guns on each side and at rear. Bugler in turret sounded 'charge' continuously which third man fired skyrockets high into the air, where they bursted with a loud report. As tank moved by the theatre a spotlight played on the flag.

"Result: We had both sides of the street lined for two blocks for the three nights' showing, and played to good average figure for the engagement."

Tie-Up Campaign Turns Theatre Business From Loss to Profit

A REMARKABLE demonstration of the fact that one thoroughly organized stroke of effective showmanship may prove a life-saver to a theatre facing failure because of a slackened public interest in it, is furnished in the case of the Lincoln Theatre, Waynesburg, Ohio, as related by the owner-manager, H. Sherer, in a letter reporting his success with a harmonica contest to the manager of the Educational Film Company's exchange at Cleveland.

Business at the Lincoln was in a discouraging state when C. S. Voge, Educational booker, suggested that Sherer try out a harmonica contest based on the plan arranged through the Educational-Hohner Harmonica Company tie-up. The results of the contest, into which Sherer put every effort to make it succeed are best indicated by the following excerpt from a letter he wrote to Voge a short time ago:

"I surely must thank the Hohner people for their donation of the beautiful prizes, and the fine co-operation I have received from them and you, in getting the material. This has been the salvation of the theatre in Waynesburg. It is now awakened, and I am going to do everything I can to keep the spirit at high tide. I feel that I have the kids coming, and if they come I can get more grown-ups, too. I have a fine program of pictures to offer my patrons, and surely hope to hold their good will. The contest has been a very fine conveyance in putting on this better program."

Sherer had previously reported that the preliminary contests went over nicely with "interest running at top pitch." There was quite an increase in the number of tickets sold.

The first elimination contest had a turnout of sixteen contestants, five of whom will play in the second contest, which has already fourteen players promising to participate. Players came from surrounding towns as well.

Studio Briefs

Charley Chase has completed "The Family Group," his next Hal Roach comedy for M-G-M. Ed Kennedy, Gertrude Astor and Edna Marian are in the cast. Fred Guiol directed.

Charles Brabin last week completed camera work on First National's screen version of Jack London's story, "Burning Daylight."

Max Davidson's latest comedy produced by Hal Roach for M-G-M will bear the title "Came the Dawn." It will be released shortly.

Allan Dwan has finished photography on "The Headliner," the latest Robert Kane-Dwan production for First National. The company has not definitely determined whether to retain its present title or not. Chester Conklin has the central role.

"Our Gang," Hal Roach's gang of kids whose pictures are released through M-G-M, will next be seen in "Edison, Marconi and Company," directed by Anthony Mack, under the supervision of Robert McGowan.

Five cameramen will be required to film Robert Flaherty's production for M-G-M, "Southern Skies." The task will take them six months, it is estimated. The large number of cameras are necessary, it is said, because of the number of tribal ceremonies and dances that will be included in the picture.

Noble Johnson was selected this week to play a leading part in "Something Always Happens," a melodramatic farce.

Al St. John, Educational comedian whose career in the movies dates back to the early Sennett days, has been cast for a role in "The Painted Post," a new Fox Films western starring Tom Mix. Also in the cast are Natalie Kingston, Fred Gamble and Philo McCullough.

Julian Johnson, film editor and title writer at the Paramount studios, will write the titles himself for "Doomsday."

"Lady Lion" is the title for a new Animal comedy that has just gone into work. The cast includes Caryl Lincoln, Eddie Clayton and Billy Bletcher. Mark Sandrich is directing.

The next costarring effort of Sammy Cohen and Ted McNamara for Fox Films will be released under the title of "Why Sailors Go Wrong."

Four productions are planned by Hercules Film Productions, Inc., as its program for 1928. The first of these has already been completed, namely, "The Little Wild Girl," including a cast headed by Lila Lee with Cullen Landis, Frank Merrill, Sheldon Lewis, and Jimmy Aubrey in support. The theme is from a magazine story by Putnam Hoover.

The remaining three pictures that Hercules will produce are called "Shadows of the Night," a mystery story by Shelley Carpenter; "Sally of the South Seas," a Hawaiian story by Gordon Romoly; and "Broken Hearts," by Louella Sorrel.

Clive Brook will not play opposite Pola Negri in "Three Sinners," because of a previous engagement to play opposite Billie Dove in a new First National picture.

Jerome W. Wilson and his wife, Agnes Pat McKenna, have been added to the scenario staff of Tiffany-Stahl.

James Pierce has been cast for the role of the giant in "Something Always Happens," a Paramount film.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., has been signed by Tiffany-Stahl to portray one of the principal roles in the production Reginald Barker is now directing under the temporary title of "Power."

The next production from Excellent Pictures will be "Women Who Dare," to star Helene Chadwick. The supporting cast is now being chosen and expectations are that the film will get under way before a week has passed.

Sam Hardy has been signed by Gotham to play the role of "Ace" Kearney in a forthcoming production.

Excellent is applying the finishing touches on "The Stronger Will," a special, starring Percy Marmont. Harry Chandlee brought the negative to New York from Hollywood several weeks ago, and has been editing it. Supporting artists in the cast are Rita Carewe, William Morton Bailey and Erin La Bissioniere.

Vera Clark, Tiffany-Stahl scenarist, is now busily engaged in writing the continuity of "The Scarlet Dove," soon to be put into production.

Adolphe Menjou's next Paramount picture to follow "The Code of Honor," now in production, will be "Super of the Gaiety," from the story by Alfred Savoir, who wrote "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter."

Tiffany-Stahl is soon to start production work on a picture entitled "Companionate Marriage," an original by Raymond Schrock and Curtis Benton.

In the chorus shots of F B O's "Sally of the Scandals," the chorus of "Sunny," now playing at the Mayan Theatre in Los Angeles, were used. Lynn Shores moved his megaphone and other equipment of a director right down to the footlights, and work went on at night.

William Strauss is the latest player to be added to the cast of Paramount's "Abie's Irish Rose."

Cullen Landis has joined the unit making "The Devil's Skipper" for Tiffany-Stahl.

Edward Clarke, a member of the Tiffany-Stahl staff of scenarists, is now engaged in writing the continuity of "The Albany Night Boat."

Jacqueline Logan has been loaned by Cecil B. De Mille to play the feminine lead in "Stocks and Bonds," an F B O picture written and now being directed by Dudley Murphy. Richard 'Skeets" Gallagher has the male lead. Gertrude Astor and Albert Conti are now playing the principal roles. Production has been started.

Neil Hamilton has completed his role in "The Showdown" and has begun working in "The Patriot" for Paramount.

Filming has been started on the new Tiffany-Stahl production, "Saturday Night," a temporary title.

Filming of "Three Sinners," Pola Negri's new Paramount picture, was begun last week with Anton Vaverka and Ive Harris among the newest additions to the cast. Rowland V. Lee is directing.

Robert Mc Gowan, supervising-director of the "Our Gang" comedies for Hal Roach, has completed another vehicle presenting the kid bunch. The new number is "Barnum and Ringling, Inc."

Vera Lewis, character actress, will be one of the principals figuring strongly in Paramount's "Something Always Happens." Miss Lewis is well known on the stage and has also been active in pictures.

Otto Lederer and Jack V. Lloyd have been engaged by Leo McCarey, supervising director and vice-president of the Hal Roach studio, for supporting roles in the new comedy co-starring Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy. Ed Kennedy will again direct the pair.

George Bancroft and Fred Kohler, who showed that they are a good working team in "Underworld," will again be together in Bancroft's next picture to follow "The Showdown" at the Paramount studio.

Lillian Leighton, Caroline "Spike" Rankin and Charles King have been signed by the Roach studio to be a part of the supporting cast in the next "Our Gang" comedy, to be directed by Charles Ohlze and Anthony Mack.

Following the completion of the direction of "Something Always Happens," Frank Tuttle will direct Richard Dix in his new Paramount vehicle, "Easy Come, Easy Go."

Dale Austen, the 1927 "Miss New Zealand," has arrived in Culver City to work in future M-G-M films. The contest she was declared winner of was staged in New Zealand by the Fuller Hayward Theatre.

"From Soup to Nuts," is the title chosen by the Roach studio for a new comedy costarring Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy.

:: "The Check-Up" ::

"The Check-Up" is a presentation in the briefest and most convenient form of reports received from exhibitors in every part of the country on current features, which makes it possible for the exhibitor to see what the picture has done for other theatre managers.

The first column following the name of the feature represents the number of managers that have reported the picture as "Poor." The second column gives the number who consider it "Fair"; the third, the number who consider it "Good"; and the fourth column, those who consider it "Big."

The fifth column is a percentage figure giving the average rating on that feature, obtained by the following method: A report of "Poor" is rated at 20%; one of "Fair," 40%; "Good," 70%; and "Big," 100%. The percentage ratings of all of these reports on one picture are then added together, and divided by the number of reports, giving the average percentage—a figure which represents the consensus of opinion on that picture. In this way exceptional cases, reports which might be misleading taken alone and such individual differences of opinion are averaged up and eliminated.

No picture is included in the list which has not received at least ten reports.

Key City Reports

New York City

ANOTHER so-so week for Broadway, the only flurries being the holdover of the "Student Prince" at the Capitol, the lucrative exit of the "Circus" from the Strand and the advent of Gloria Swanson's new picture, "Sadie Thompson," at the Rivoli. One other highlight might be mentioned and that is a report circulated to the effect that "The Last Command" is breaking all records at the Rialto.

The Capitol has fared very well of late, having two pictures strong enough to hold for a second week, "The Divine Woman" with Greta Garbo and "The Student Prince," the latter shown the first time at popular prices to a brisk business. When they counted up the final and fourth week's figures for "The Circus" at the Strand it was found that the Chaplin picture took in a total of $243,159 for the run, according to a statement made by the United Artists Corp. It is further stated that this picture exceeded all previous first, second, third and fourth week grosses at the Strand. This house can look forward to further gratifying returns as the "Patent Leather Kid" follows.

Most of the local newspaper critics praised "Sadie Thompson" although some of the wiser ones among the trade complained that it bore unmistakable signs of cutting here and there. At any rate, Miss Swanson's popularity will pull her customers to the Rivoli, cut or no cut. Considering the amount of publicity given "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," which gave way to "Sadie," the former did not measure up to the mark set for it during its three weeks' run.

Jannings' "Last Command" is pulling in a steady stream of patronage at the Rialto and seems destined to remain there for some time to come. The Paramount gave a print of "Old Ironsides" a home for a week and resting entirely upon its previous extended run laurels this film turned in satisfactory returns. The Colony with "Buck Privates" eased along to better than usual business. The Roxy had a below average week with "13 Washington Square." Universal's "Love Me and The World Is Mine" follows in.

"Wings" is apparently seeking the Granddaddy honors among the higher priced shows for the customers for this aviation picture can still be seen lined up at the Criterion box office and the Gilbert and Garbo fans are still filling the Embassy where "Love" is showing. "Love" has been here for four months and will undoubtedly stay until late in March when the Ronald Colman-Vilma Banky film "Two Lovers" is scheduled to go in. "Four Sons" (Fox) is being advertised to take the place of "Chicago" at the Gaiety next Monday. "Chicago's" entire run at this house has been nothing to rave about but good reports are coming in from the first out of town stands.

Warner's is still doing excellent business with "The Jazz Singer" and there's no sign of a let up as yet. Off to a rather slow start the Griffith picture "Drums of Love" is reported to be picking up. The Astor with "The Enemy" is just grinding along. Aided by some wise exploitation "Uncle Tom" still continues in the Central at a pretty fair rate. The Hipp did an average week's trade with the "Rush Hour."

Los Angeles

AS is customary with all Chaplin openings, Hollywood turned out en masse Friday evening to pay tribute to the comedian and to Sid Grauman in whose Chinese Theatre the long awaited film, "The Circus" was ushered in. There has been a constant line to the box office for seats ever since the opening.

"Wings" at the Biltmore, (legitimate house showing the motion picture) is setting a new popularity pace. Packed houses are the rule and turn-away throngs at many of the showings attest the hold that "Wings" has on Los Angeles.

Rated as being an unusual and beautiful picture that everyone should see, "Sunrise" at Carthay Circle came back to the mark again in its last week's showing. Patronage had weakened during the run, but the picture ended with a satisfactory box office record.

The popularity of "The Jazz Singer" is growing more pronounced. For six weeks the film with its Vitaphone sequences has been crowding the Criterion at every performance.

The Hillstreet, Orpheum Circuit Vaudeville, had its share of good business last week with a fine picture, "Let 'Er Go, Gallegher" and a very entertaining program of vaudeville acts on the stage. The boys and men attended the show in large numbers.

The Boulevard did snappy business with a snappy show. "Man Crazy" was the picture and Gene Morgan and Ted Doner held the center of the stage with their presentations. All together it made up for a very entertaining evening for motion picture patrons.

"The Dove" at United Artists Theatre was very well received and business was good. At Loew's State, "Beau Sabreur" played to fair attendance as did "Latest from Paris" at the Metropolitan. Cliff Edwards, "Ukulele Ike," was a big drawing card at the Met. on the stage. "The Last Command" succeeded in bringing in the customers and made the management happy.

Chicago

BUSINESS, which seems to go in waves in Chicago, generally, was about normal last week—nothing sensational but, on the other hand, not bad. "Beau Sabreur," billed as the successor to "Beau Geste," and Spitalny's fine orchestral creation "Pagliacci" and other stage features, made a combination which played to fair business At the Roosevelt "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" ended its run, attendance being somewhat off in its last week. "The Last Command" continued to occupy the screen at McVickers and pulled well. "The Whip Woman" on the screen and Paul Ash and his gang in "Under the L" were the Oriental attractions where business was about average. "The Gaucho" continued to draw strongly at United Artists, where it has one more week to go. The same is true of "The Jazz Singer," which is doing well as a road show at the Granada. "If I Were Single" was the show at the Oriental with Vitaphone accompaniment and presentations, business being fair.

On the south side the Tivoli had a good week with the mystery thriller "The Gorilla" and a big stage show, including among its stars, Clark & McCullough and Ross Cropper and others. The Avalon had a fair week with "That's My Daddy"; the same was true of the Capitol, which had as its feature "Ham and Eggs at the Front," both houses offering, in addition to their features, the usual big stage shows.

The Uptown's screen feature was "The Love Mart" and on the stage Frankie Masters' orchestra topped the bill, the box office report being about average. The Marbro and Granada theatres had "The Fortune Hunter" as their screen attraction, Kaley leading the stage band at the former and Meroff at the latter.

Philadelphia

IN spite of exceptionally cold weather and a heavy fall of snow most of the downtown motion picture theatres report fairly good business this week.

The Stanley Theatre celebrated its seventh anniversary with a program of exceptional interest, featuring the Herbert Brenon production, "Sorrell and Son," and a special birthday celebration in which Catherine Littlefield and her ballet played the principal part, with honors also going to Edward Albano, baritone, and Fania Davidson, soprano.

The Karlton Theatre, which changed its policy last week from a regular "grind" policy to specials with orchestra accompaniment, is playing to the biggest business in its history with the Metro-Goldwyn production, "Love," starring John Gilbert and Greta Garbo. The new policy was introduced after the long established grind program had failed to bring the desired results.

"Sunrise," with Movietone accompaniment, is going very well at the Fox-Locust. The Aldine, with "Wings," reports capacity business, and the Stanton, with "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," had a good week.

The Fox presented a miniature revue as the surrounding program in addition to the feature "Sharp Shooters." The numbers included the "Delft Plate Ballet," directed by Alexander Oukransky, Neville Fleeson and Bobby Folsom, the Fourteen Parisienne Redheads, with Bobby Grice, Muriel La France, coloratura soprano, and Mae Wynn, tap dancer. Next week the Fox will present Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" for the first time at popular prices.

The Carman Theatre presents a Syncopated Frolic this week with the photoplay "The Wizard." Murray and Allen, the Jesters of 3,000 Years Ago, Dorothy Githens, lyric soprano, Frank Salt, banjoist, the De Fay sisters and Mills and Walker, eccentric dancers, are in the Frolic.

The smaller downtown houses report a satisfactory week.

Kansas City

STILL another one of those "just fair" weeks passed into oblivion in Kansas City this week with no exhibitor laying claim to any profit worth mentioning.

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" at Loew's Midland played to a fair weekly attendance, but "Baby Mine," Charlotte Greenwood, Karl Dane and George K. Arthur at the Newman theatre had a pitiful week for a picture of that type, which was praised by both press and patrons who saw it. The afternoon was fair, but night business was deplorable. "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" at the Mainstreet fell below average attendance, as did "Getting Gertie's Garter" at the Globe. "Come To My House" did a fair business at the Pantages theatre, as did "Wine" at the Liberty.

Most of the downtown houses used larger daily newspaper space this week, especially the Midland, but nothing out of the ordinary was attempted in exploitation.

Minneapolis

FOUR of the biggest film attractions of the year moved into Minneapolis this week and three of them were forced to remain over for a second week. This is about the first time in local theatre history that three pictures have had to extend their runs the same week.

"The King of Kings" was given its roadshow production at the Metropolitan, a legitimate house, and did a fine business, holding over for a second week. "The Patent Leather Kid" also stayed over at the Strand, after playing to excellent crowds, while "The Student Prince" was forced to continue its engagement at the Garrick after proving itself a very popular attraction.

The fourth big film attraction of the week was Norma Talmadge's "The Dove," which showed to splendid crowds at the Pantages. Only one vaudeville act was used with this picture, yet the program certainly drew in the crowds. Richard Dix in "The Gay Defender" proved just about the average attraction at the State, where it was supplemented by a fairly strong stage program including a big stage band revue. The Lyric did about the ordinary business with "French Dressing." The Hennepin-Orpheum found "The Leopard Lady" a fairly strong program attraction, and the Seventh Street showed "His Foreign Wife.' The neighborhood houses had some good drawing cards, including "My Best Girl" at the Lagoon, "Ben Hur" at the American, and "Dress Parade" at the Rialto.

All the theatres had the advantage of mild weather for the week, a decided change after a long period of sub-zero temperatures.

Seattle

THE last seven days constituted an average week in local motion picture houses, with the leading theatres all reporting successful engagements of some popular films.

As far as average gross per seat is concerned, the Blue Mouse Theatre continued to lead the field with "The Jazz Singer," despite the fact that the film was in its fourth week, as against brand new film programs at all the other houses. "The Jazz Singer" packs the house at every one of the six daily performances, and continues to gross between $12,000 and $15,000 weekly in a house with a seating capacity of just 1,000. 50c and 75c top prevails.

Second in the running came "The Dove" at the United Artists Theatre and "Quality Street" at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, although neither of these attractions came near grossing what they were expected to. "Quality Street" was a film that was entirely enjoyable to every patron, but Marion Davies is difficult to put over in Seattle, and the box office suffered accordingly. Fanchon-Marco's novel "Back Stage Idea" more than held up its end of the program. Gross fell noticeably below the average of recent weeks, reaching about $14,000.

At the United Artists, "The Dove" failed to please the Norma Talmadge enthusiasts, and despite the fact that technically the film was an exceptional production, it failed to register very heavily. Originally planned for a two-week run, it was taken off after seven days when the box office showed a decided slump over previous weeks.

At Bob Bender's Columbia Theatre, many long waiting lines during the week attested to the pulling power of "Beau Sabreur" and the film kept the cashiers working overtime all week. In spite of the fact that the film disappointed many who expected a real sequel to "Beau Geste" in cast, story, etc., this picture piled up the largest gross that the house has enjoyed in a good many weeks, and it went into a second week's engagement with every indication for continued strong patronage. Business very good, due to a good campaign by Mr. Bender and appropriate musical settings.

The vaudeville houses featured average attractions only, with "Silk Legs" at Pantages and "Let 'Er Go, Gallagher" at the Orpheum both registering fairly good business, the latter leading. The advent of cheaper vaudeville on the Orpheum time has made considerable inroads into Pantages business. At the Embassy Theatre, "Scarred Faces" on the screen and a big musical and girl show on the stage registered the usual pleasing business that comes regularly to Joe Danz's house.

"Rain" played on the stage at the President Theatre by the Henry Duffy local stock company attracted capacity houses all week and acted as a fine ballyhoo and advance show for "Sadie Thompson" which opens at the United Artists this week.

Cleveland

BUSINESS was pretty good on the average at the theatres showing first-run pictures, with "Helen of Troy," "Quality Street" and "The Noose" as the outstanding box office attractions.

"Helen of Troy" was a real knockout at Keith's Palace. Even standing room was at a premium, especially for the evening performances. A picture, every foot of which is a laugh. "Quality Street," presented at the State, was another popular attraction of the week, with all the charm of the original Barrie play. "The Noose," an unusually interesting melodrama, attracted wide attention, patronage and discussion. It was offered at the Allen theatre, together with the Publix unit show, "Russian Revels." The combination of fine film attraction and fine presentation resulted in good business for the week. "The Dove," with Norma Talmade, did just fairly well during its second week at the Stillman. Reginald Denny's latest release, "On Your Toes," reminiscent of the old Leather Pusher series, brought out an average attendance at Keith's East 105th St. theatre during the week. "Shield of Honor," 100% thriller, launched with a good exploitation contest, did good business at Reade's Hippodrome. The Cameo did failrly well with a second week of "Ham and Eggs at the Front," a picture that went over very well during its first week. The Park offered a first-run neighborhood presentation of Lon Chaney in "London After Midnight." Business is reported as average. The Oriental is playing a continued engagement of "Damaged Goods" with success. The picture is offered to the sexes separately.

"The King of Kings" is playing its first local engagement at the Ohio theatre, a legitimate house. Business the first week was very large and seats are selling several weeks in advance. It is expected that the picture will remain at least a month.

(Previous Week)

ANOTHER one of those "Just Fair" weeks was experienced by most downtown first run theatres in Kansas City this week. There was nothing out of the ordinary in exploitation, although the line-up of pictures was considered as better than the average.

Ramon Novarro and Norma Shearer in "The Student Prince at Loew's Midland attracted a comfortable "average" attendance for the week, which is more than could be said for a return engagement of "What Price Glory" at the Globe, which played to a disappointing attendance. At the Newman, W. C. Fields and Chester Conklin in "Two Flaming Youths" attracted good matinee crowds, but night business was meager. "Wolf Fangs" at the Pantages did less than average business, as did "The Haunted Ship" at the Capitol. "Coney Island" at the Liberty and "The Shepherd of the Hills" at the Mainstreet did average business.

New Orleans

LOCAL first run houses "went over the top" last week. With a well diversified assortment of offerings at the theatres, local film patrons had the choice of a number of good things, and showed their appreciation in a way that was reflected on the box office cash registers.

The biggest drawing card was "The Noose," shown at Loew's State theatre. Practically every night during the week part of the audience had to stand. The house did the biggest business of the new year. Excellent exploitation and publicity by Manager Rodney Toups and his press agent put the picture over with a "bang." The vaudeville bill, too, was above the average.

Running Loew's State a close second for honors was the new Saenger theatre, its across-the-street neighbor. "The Last Command" was the screen feature and proved to be excellent entertainment. Coupled with the picture was the making of a moving picture on the stage by the Berkova Productions, starring a local cast.

"Quality Street" proved to be delightful entertainment at the Strand theatre and business was excellent. "The Cohens and Kellys in Paris" went over big at the Liberty, where the week's business was above the average.

"The Desired Woman" was the Tudor film, and business was good. The film fans like Miss Rich's work and all her films seem to draw well. Although Orleanians saw Lon Chaney in "London After Midnight" at the new Saenger a few weeks previous, the Globe got its share of the business. "The Spotlight," with Esther Ralston, drew crowds to the Trianon.

"Almost Human" was the Orpheum feature, and was liked. The house did an excellent business, as the week's vaudeville bill was above average, too. Ken Maynard still proves to be a popular western star with local theatregoers and he pulled them in at the Crescent with "The Demon Rider." The musical tab show was nothing to rave about but the film was liked.

Rudolph Schilkraut in "Turkish Delight" turned them away in good humor at the Palace theatre, but it was the musical comedy show that brought that house's business over the top.

Despite the races, Jai-Ali games, night clubs and numerous other competitive attractions, the theatres are doing a splendid business. Even the neighborhood houses reported business on the increase.

Dallas

DALLAS was favored with fine weather last week, with just enough cold to make every one feel good, and business was good.

At the Palace, Emil Jannings in "The Last Command," stood them up every night. It proved to be a very good matinee picture, which is unusual in Dallas. Comment was very favorable.

The Majestic with John Gilbert in "Honor First" registered another good week, with business holding up to the last day.

The Melba, after its first week as a Publix Theatre, reports a nice business done with Greta Garbo in "The Divine Woman." The outlook and attitude toward The Melba are very reassuring.

The Capitol showing "What Price Glory" in a return engagement reached the capacity plus mark every night and even brought a complaint from the chief of police for stacking them in the aisles. "The Old Mill" did an average business with Pola Negri in "The Woman on Trial." The Arcadia, the model suburban house of Dallas did a big business the past week, and as a result of the crowd turned away, Friday, the picture "Gow" and Capt. Edward Salisbury, who lectures with the picture and supervised making it, were held over until Monday.

St. Louis

MAE MURRAY, herself, none other, appearing in person at the Ambassador theatre, Seventh and Locust streets, in "A Merry Widow Revue," in which she danced the famous Merry Widow Waltz, is credited with establishing new box office receipts in St. Louis.

According to the official announcement made by Skouras Brothers in their advertisements Mae pulled more cash customers into the Ambassador on the first two days of her run than any other attraction ever offered in St. Louis for two days. The motion picture of the week was "The Irresistible Lover."

The Missouri theatre at Grand Boulevard and Lucas avenue also had a very good week with Dick Barthelmess in "The Noose" on the screen.

Across the street "The Jazz Singer" in its sixth week at the Grand Central did so well it was retained for another week. This attraction has proven the sensation of the current amusement year. So much so Loew's State theatre at Eighth and Washington avenue has billed Jolson himself to appear on its stage the week of February 11. His contract is so attractive he may be paid $25,000 for the seven days. That's more than ever paid any other stage person here or elsewhere according to the dopesters.

Gloria Swanson in "Sadie Thompson" was the screen attraction at Loew's during the past week. The St. Louis at Grand and Delmar boulevards showed "Let 'Er Go, Gallagher," while the Capitol showed "Legionaires in Paris" and "Back to God's Country."

Des Moines

"GENTLEMEN PREFER BLONDES" which played at the Des Moines theatre for the week did not do so very well and the appearance of the star was not enough to bring in the business which was expected to be due on this film. At the Capitol the picture was "Helen of Troy" and the audiences seemed not to care for it. However, the stage show, under Paul Spor, did prove an attraction. "Listen In" was the stage show with the radio featured. At the Strand the features were "Sailors' Wives" for the first half and "The Pioneer Scout" for the last half. The first picture did well and the other not so good.

Baltimore

BUSINESS at the first-run moving picture houses in Baltimore for the week beginning Monday, January 30, was generally considered good. But there were six houses which topped the records for the week with excellent patronage, including Loew's Century with "West Point," featuring William Haines and a presentation act with Sammy Kahn and other vaudevillians; Warner's Metropolitan, where "The Jazz Singer" starring Al Jolson stood them up during its fourth week at that playhouse, the Stanley with "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," featuring Maria Corda, with a presentation act with Leon Navarra and others; at the New theatre with "The Cohens and Kellys in Paris" and a stage act; at the Palace a burlesque and movie house with "The Girl in the Pullman" and at Keith's Hippodrome with "The Opening Night," featuring Claire Windsor and five acts of Keith family time vaudeville.

"West Point" went over big even though "Dress Parade" had been shown only a few weeks before and to a great extent the snappy caption work in the film is considered responsible for its success.

The reaction of the public on "Helen of Troy" was surprising, for many did not like it, as they seemed to expect it to follow the Erskine story more closely or that it would present the story in serious rather than a burlesque manner.

The Palace business was bigger during its second week than its first week since opening with the new policy but this is probably due to the storm which occurred here during the first week.

"Wings," during its third week at Ford's theatre, a legitimate house at which $1.50 top was charged for admissions for the spectacular air picture, only went over fairly well but was better during the last two days.

"The Last Waltz," a Ufa production, proved a good business getter at the Little theatre operated by the Motion Picture Guild. "Surrender," featuring Ivan Mosjukine and Mary Philbin, with eight acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville, proved a good drawing card at the New Garden. "Serenade," starring Adolphe Menjou and a special Victor Herbert memorial concert, proved a good business getter at the Rivoli during the nights, but the matinees were off.

"The Student Prince" held up excellently for its second week at Loew's Valencia.

Harrisburg

AIDED by the presence in the city all week of crowds attending the annual automobile show, and the fact that strong plays in a good variety constituted the motion picture attractions, the theatre managers of Harrisburg reported that business continued above normal, as it has been ever since the start of the year.

"The strongest pulling power, perhaps, was exhibited by "The Last Command," which kept the Victoria theatre crowded throughout the week.

"The Dove," made a box-office killing for Loew's Regent. The crowds there were made up chiefly of women, among whom Norma Talmadge always has a big following in the Pennsylvania capitol city.

By way of variety a largely men's play was presented at the Colonial where Tom Mix, in "Silver Valley," pulled some new thrillers that had a box office reaction that was more than satisfactory.

On the screen at the State, which is devoted half to vaudeville, the attraction for the last half of the week was Florence Vidor in "Honeymoon Hate," which proved a good drawing card. "Twelve Miles Out," starring John Gilbert, drew fair-sized crowds to the Royal while Adolphe Menjou, in "Evening Clothes," was shown with success at the Grand.

The Broad Street, though a neighborhood theatre, offered a first run picture, "Tom's Gang," featuring Tom Tyler and his Pals, —a picture which was overflowing with laughs and filled with typical Western action. The Russell offered "Loves of Carmen," with Delores Del Rio and Victor McLaglen, with satisfactory financial results.

Portland, Ore.

BUSINESS at the first-run houses improved considerably last week. The West Coast Broadway played to excellent intakes with Marion Davies in "Quality Street," and a Fanchon and Marco presentation. The house increased its matinee trade on the week, while the evening crowds were better than average. Tebbett's Oriental, sailed along to a profitable gross with F B O's "The Gingham Girl" and a novelty stage presentation. This house is hitting on all six, with the crowds.

"The Cohens and Kellys in Paris" at Universal's Columbia brought record-breaking business, getting some of the heaviest trade seen at this house for many weeks. The Rivoli, had a fairly-good week with "Helen of Troy," which went into the house for a "run." Good publicity and exploitation helped put the picture over to good results.

"The Swell Head" at the Orpheum, together with an excellent vaudeville program, headed by Leo Carrilo, brought the house a great three-days' business.

Albany and Troy

THERE were two pictures in Albany last week that pulled in the sheckels, "Man Crazy," running at the Leland, to what was termed by the management as "very nice business." The picture opened big on Monday and held up throughout the week in spite of all opposition. At the Mark Strand "Beau Sabreur" and a couple of Vitaphone presentations went over to big business throughout the week. At the Mark Ritz, there was just about ordinary business with "Beware of Married Men." The Clinton Square ran "Quarantined Rivals," but the picture caused little comment, and there was only the ordinary week's business. At Proctor's Grand, "Reno Divorce" pleased.

First-run downtown houses in Albany will probably benefit during the weeks to come in the announcement that burlesque will no longer hold forth at the Capitol theatre.

Neighborhood houses in Albany report business as showing some improvement over December and the fore part of January.

In Troy, "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," running at the Troy Theatre, did not please a whole lot of people, and, as a result, business on this picture fell far short of what was done by the same picture two weeks ago in Albany. The picture ran for four days, and the latter part of the week was given over the "East Side, West Side" with better results. The Vitaphone presentation was applauded. The American Theatre used "San Francisco Nights" for four days and "The Coward" for three days to fair business. The Lincoln Theatre used "The Divine Woman" for the first of the week and "Coney Island" the last half; the latter panning out better from the standpoint of the box office.

Pittsburgh

THE talk of the show game this week is the remarkable business the Penn is doing on "The Student Prince" with the first Publix Unit "Banjomania" helping in the draw. The house record held by "Love," which was played during a holiday week was shattered by a considerable amount. It was impossible to get near the theatre in the afternoon or evening during the peak hours. The Grand did better than usual with "Shepherd of the Hills" and no doubt the business the Penn did affected this house some, which goes to the credit of the First National hit. "Main Event" at the Aldine also did a better than usual gait although the vaudeville and not the picture should be given credit for this; and the same thing goes at the Davis, where the feature was "Silk Legs," the vaudeville was one of the best bills seen here in weeks. Cameo ran "Honor First," Fox re-issue with Gilbert, but the public shyed away from it. "Jesse James" at the Olympic and "Lonesome Ladies" at the State fared no better than the Cameo. The Harris with vaudeville and "Turkish Delight" did average business, which is good in this case. New Stanley house has started to advertise opening soon.

Birmingham

BUSINESS on the average was good in Birmingham last week.

Loew's Temple, with "Gentleman Jim" Corbett, as the stage attraction, and Ramon Novarro and Norma Shearer in "The Student Prince," and the Ritz, with Movietone, a good stage show and "Silk Legs," led the parade. Closely following was the Alabama with "Beau Sabreur" and a Publix stage show.

Pantages with Maria Corda and Lewis Stone in "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" and four Pantages acts enjoyed a good week.

Among the strictly picture houses, "The Noose" at the Trianon did the business, critics unanimously agreeing that it is a wonderful picture.

Ottawa

THERE were two splendid features in Ottawa during the week of January 30, these being "Wings" at the Russell theatre and "Service for Ladies" at B. F. Keith's. Incidentally, the weather had cleared up and very satisfactory attendance was in evidence generally, with the exception of the Thursday night when the hockey fans swarmed to the Auditorium to see a crucial professional hockey game.

"Wings" drew much better crowds than expected and it was a picture that had the town talking, particularly in view of the current meetings in Ottawa of the Aviation League of Canada and of the Ottawa Flying Club. The only complaint was from a few who thought the fighting scenes were too realistic and gruesome.

"Service for Ladies" at Keith's might have been considered a lot of "apple-sauce" but it opened your eyes when you saw it. Adolphe Menjou has never appeared in a better picture.

There was a drawing-card combination at the Centre theatre in "Silk Legs" and the Sharkey-Heeney heavyweight fight pictures.

Plenty of action, a popular star and a stirring story were found in "On Your Toes" with Reginald Denny at the Imperial theatre and good crowds turned out.

Something unusual was seen at the Regent theatre in the British-Stoll production, "The Chinese Bungalow," starring Matheson Lang. This was based on the well-known stage play and the film version was one of the best to come out of the British Isles in some time.

There was a big time at the Laurier theatre, Hull, with "Les Miserables," which was a treat for the French-Canadians. "Jesse James" also was popular at the Eden theatre, Hull.

Boston

BUSINESS in the motion picture theatres during the week has stood up fully as well as last week in spite of the appearance in Boston of a record number of new plays on the legitimate stage. Boston exhibitors were somewhat doubtful of conditions in advance but are extremely well satisfied with the week's business.

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" at the Metropolitan proved to be all that was expected of it. Appearance of Miss Ruth Taylor in person in Boston, where she was lavishly entertained during her brief visit, resulted in plenty of publicity for the film. The film also marked the first under the new opening Friday policy.

Loew's State is having a run of heavy grosses lately and last week's film, "The Student Prince," was no exception. In its six-day run it kept pace with the recent big pictures that have drawn SRO houses. For its Sunday offering, the State showed "Tea for Three." Judging from returns, it would not be a bad policy for some of the theatres that are complaining of poor attendance to adopt a plan of a special Sunday film, for the experiment at the State proved successful beyond hopes and amny were turned away. The special Sunday film was an experiment at the State, however, and is not a part of their regular policy.

"Beau Sabreur at the Scollay Square Olympia was another leading attraction, this comedy thriller drawing capacity houses all week. "A Texas Steer" and "Lonesome Ladies," proved a highly successful combination at the Fenway. "Streets of Shanghai" was the mystery film at the Modern and Beacon and, like most of the recent mystery films shown in Boston, was a big success from every angle.

Another screen star in person was in Boston during the week. Franklyn Farnum was on hand at the "Come Back to Erin" showing and drew applause, not only in his picture, but in his vocal numbers. Loew's Orpheum played to capacity houses with "Sorrell & Son." At the Keith Albee Boston Theatre "Love and Learn" grossed heavily. At the Washington Street Olympia the showing of "A Texas Steer" proved profitable. That "What Price Glory" still holds a place in the affection of Boston was proven by its showing at the Howard, where receipts jumped upward during the week's run.

Other films reporting good business are "French Dressing" at the Capitol, Allston and Strand, which showed the film simultaneously; "The Forbidden Woman" at the University and "Rose of the Golden West" at the 'Fields Corner Theatre.

Salt Lake City

AN exceptionally big week was had by downtown picture theatres of this city due to the fact that several special productions were run. The weather was bright and cold, encouraging theatre attendance.

The second week's showing of "Seventh Heaven," which broke all attendance records at the Pantages last week, is still bringing in the crowds, it is reported.

"The Last Command" proved to be exceptionally popular at the Capitol Theatre, packing the house every night. The Fanchon and Marco stage presentation offered in this connection was also greatly appreciated. "Old Ironsides," at the Paramount Empress, played to capacity houses all week, with extremely favorable comments having been made. "French Dressing" did very well at the Victory Theatre with a splendid patronage throughout the week.

"A Dog of the Regiment" did the average good business at the American; May Robson and Phyllis Haver in "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary" brought in fairly big business at the Gem.

John Barrymore and Dolores Costello in "When a Man Loves" was presented at the Rialto as a second run and drew well. John Barrymore was also featured here at the Mission, a neighborhood house, in "The Beloved Rogue" with very satisfactory business being the result. The Tower Theatre, a new neighborhood house of this city, is reporting business to be very active. The special picture shown here last week was "Getting Gertie's Garter." "Judgment of the Hills" was also presented the latter part of the week. •

Cincinnati

BUSINESS at the various Cincinnati houses, although spotty, was satisfactory taken as a whole, and while there is considerable unemployment throughout the city, it has not appreciably affected business.

The Lyric got off to a flying start with "The Student Prince," and maintained a steady flow of patronage throughout the week. The booking of this film for a two weeks' run was a master stroke, especially since the operetta, which played one of the legitimate houses last season, created a sensation.

"The Divine Woman," film feature at the E. 'F. Albee brought out all the Greta Garbo and John Gilbert fans and their neighbors. The box office' returns were entirely satisfactory to the management. The Capitol in the second week of "Seventh Heaven" duplicated their attendance record of the first week. Business was unusually good for the run. "American Beauty" at the Walnut did nicely for the seven day run, while "On To Reno" at the Strand in connection with an added attraction, featuring Mabel Normand in "Should Men Walk Home?" got its share of customers. "Judgment of the Hills," for the first half and "The Secret Hour" for the remainder of the week drew the customary patronage for this house.

Gifts theatre being closed for the week for remodelling and redecorating, naturally diverted business to some of the other houses.

Legitimate and vaudeville theatres report satisfactory returns.

Milwaukee

ALTHOUGH the weather was fair and mild, ideal for good theatre business, downtown houses failed to draw in the amount of patronage expected.

"Beau Sabreur" played to fairly good houses at the Alhambra throughout the week. "The Student Prince" was a marked success at the Merrill, and is being held over for a second week. "The Noose" failed to attract the usual crowds to the Wisconsin. "Love and Learn" at the Strand proved quite popular and brought in fairly good business. "The Dove" at the Garden will be held over for a second week, although the patronage during its first week scarcely warrants a second week. "The Wreck of the Hesperus" was an interesting addition to the Palace bill, although not of any very great drawing power.

Neighborhood theatres fared better than downtown theatres this week. "A Texas Steer" played to good houses at the Garfield and Modjeska. "The Wagon Show" at the Tower and Uptown was not very well attended. "Get Your Man" found popular favor at the Oriental. "South Sea Love" succeeded in keeping the Venetian well filled. "A Gentlemen from Paris" was only moderately well attended at the Egyptian.

Atlanta

BUSINESS in Atlanta theatres was very good last week.

Outstanding in artistic praise and drawing an unusually good box-office, Emil Jannings in "The Last Command" playing at the Howard led the parade. Jannings is a popular actor in the city.

Next in line came Keith's Georgia with "The Gay Retreat," a hilarious comedy with Sammy Cohen and Ted McNamara. This picture drew the heartiest laughs of the week's runs. Loew's Grand showing "Baby Mine" with Karl Dane and George K. Arthur rose high up the ladder. A special stage attraction, the "Circus," composed of the freaks of nature, assisted in swelling the box-office considerably.

With "Western Rover," "Is That Nice?" and "California," the Tudor had a usual week.

Tampa

THE opening this week of the big South Florida Fair and Gasparilla Carnival had its effect on theatre attendance. The big down-town houses got along fairly good the first half, but the big draw showed up in the receipts the last half. The outlying houses are feeling the effect more than those in the heart of the city.

The Victory led the field this week in point of attendance. This was the first showing in Tampa of the Vitaphone and the Sunday opeing was a "mop up." "When A Man Loves" was the feature attraction, with a number of other reels featuring singers and the presentation reel of Will Hays. The show was a real hit and in spite of the Fair the business all week was immense.

The Tampa had a good Sunday with "The Dove," but the remaining three days of the run was just about average. "West Point" was featured the last half. It failed to overcome the draw and went over just about average.

Receipts were "off" at the Strand this week, caused by the Fair and the Victory. The pictures featured were "A Woman Against the World," "Little Mickey Grogan" and "That's My Daddy." The first two were used two days each and the latter for three. It drew the best of the three.

Newspaper Opinions on New Pictures

"The King of Kings"—Pathe-De Mille, Prince Albert Theatre, Sydney, Australia

Sydney Sun: "'The King of Kings' possesses great emotional force, but the pathos has been cleverly handled, and the dramatic scenes are presented in a masterly fashion."

Evening Sun: "'The King of Kings'' is a magnificent picture—it is stupendous."

Daily Guardian: "How shall one criticize what is undoubtedly an inspired production? I will never forget the picture of Peter, giant fisherman; of Mark, the lad; of the Last Supper—cinematography created. Nor can one lose the grim scene of the betrayal, of Judas, of the priests, of Pilate, in this greatest drama of all times. Would that it were screened in churches!"

"The Circus"—United Artists, Mark Strand Theatre, New York City

American: "'Circus' brings out wholesome mirth. There is a laugh a minute. Vastly amusing. Don't miss 'The Circus.' But then, nobody ever does."

Herald-Tribune: "Police-controlled mobs. We find this newest picture as funny as anything Chaplin has done. No one would dream of missing 'The Circus.'"

Mirror: "Chaplin at his best. A great picture. Chaplin is at his best in a riotous comedy with an undercurrent of pathos. It's certain to live long and be loved."

World: "To me 'The Circus' is one of the best and most amusing of all Chaplin's pictures, and it is one of the best and most amusing largely because of the fact that it is cast in that same old mould out of which so many of his earlier triumphs rolled. I may assure you that in the picture at the Strand there is to be found quite as much of the deep and piercing drama which is imbedded in every lonely, humble life as there is of the flip and waggish buffoonery of a man who must be funny."

Graphic: "Chaplin, ace of all screen actors. Chaplin has the gift of making them laugh hilariously even while there's a lump in the throat. A sob behind every laugh he creates. Hilarious. One of the finest bits Chaplin has ever done is found in a wire-walking episode. It is comedy and drama of high-tension suspense presented with remarkable technique. Chaplin is the whole show. This star still shines in a lonely place in the film sky so high above the Hollywood constellation that no other screen luminary has ever reached it."

Journal: "Excels his previous efforts. 'The Circus' was worth waiting for. Far better comedy than 'The Gold Rush.' More entertaining. It's a riot. You'll enjoy 'The Circus' immensely. Chaplin's pantomime and mannerisms are gorgeous and the entire production is beautifully done."

Eve. World: "Ranks among his best. As funny as anything ever put upon the screen. His antics are so funny that everybody gets pains in his jaw laughing at him. Thrill the crowds. Side-splitting. Sends everybody into convulsions. Will send you from the Strand with very sore jaws. This reviewer has not laughed so much in months and months."

Post: "A piece of genuine artistry. Completely enthralling."

"A Texas Steer"—First National, Mark Strand Theatre, New York City

Herald-Tribune: "Rogers and his homely face are perfect in enacting the object of this satire. Climax is very funny and very exciting. Subtitles are the product of Rogers himself. They are very salty humor. Louise Fazenda is one of the best recommendations for the film."

American: "Story has been designed for Rogers' talents. You get a real thrill. Louise Fazenda can get more laughs out of a gesture than most comedians can induce from a film fall. Is at her funniest in this story."

World: "Has all of the old comedy that belonged to the best of the prolific Hoyt output with shrewd modern additions which for once increase the pace of an adaptation. Most of the success of the present version is due to the lazy, laconic work of Rogers."

Mirror: "A real movie. Some of the funniest celluloid scenes put on this year. Rork was evidently determined to shoot the works to make 'A Texas Steer' a best seller. He's succeeded. People are going to enjoy 'A Texas Steer' if only for the opportunity of watching Will acting the part of a Congressman."

Telegraph: "Rogers increases his prestige as a great American Institution. Well conceived and equally well acted, it has lost nothing in transition. Louise Fazenda has a role here after her own heart, registering humor in every action. Director has doped out to a T just how to get the Rogers personality across in pictures."

Times: "Rogers is a refreshing sight in a picture, for he not only succeeded in being comic, but he devotes a good deal of time to 'acting naturally.' . . . Those who have beheld him on the Follies stage will undoubtedly wriggle with laughter at sight of this writer, rope-thrower, gum chewer, juggler of words and phrases, dashing about in a woman's nightgown. Louise Fazenda is capital."

Evening World: "Story a perfect one for Rogers. A highly entertaining picture. One finds the star acting in it like an old-timer. Provides many a laugh. Louise Fazenda is superb."

Sun: "The spectacle and the idea back of it are amusing. Miss Fazenda funny. A funny climactic scene and hilarious gestures."

Graphic: "This film is entertaining and often funny. It has a human appeal and exciting action. Rogers one of the theatre's cleverest comedians. Louise Fazenda gave one of the best characterizations of the film."

Post: "Rogers is right out of Hoyt's play. Louise Fazenda outstanding as the termagant wife."

"Wings" — Paramount, Princess Theatre, Montreal

Herald: "Here is the finest of all war stories which have yet appeared. Stupendous, awe-inspiring, colossal and magnificent. This is the best war picture to come out of Hollywood. Does not advance the theory that either the United States or its airmen won the war."

"Sadie Thompson"—United Artists, Saenger Theatre, New Orleans

Tribune: "Among all Swanson's successes, none ranks higher than 'Sadie Thompson.' Gloria brings 'Sadie' to the screen where she will thrill and amuse thousands more than could have been reached by book."

Times Picayune: "An excellent motion picture now emerges, for its first public showing."

States: "Gloria makes it a real picture, a film of fire and love, jealousy and hate, smartness and slickness and, above all, one of the best acted that it has been the pleasure of local people to view. For Miss Swanson is Sadie Thompson to a 'T.' The action is fast and rapid. It has atmosphere a-plenty. The actors about Miss Swanson and Mr. Barrymore are excellent. In fact, the whole picture abounds in sensational episodes and startling climaxes and every one in town should see it."

"Her Wild Oat"—First National, Washington Street & Scollay Square Theatres, Boston

Advertiser: "Provides Miss Moore with one of her most hilarious farces. Something out of the ordinary . . . an amusing plot. Rattles happily along. Cleverly concocted to show Miss Moore to best advantage, and the whole affair is at once more artistic and far funnier than most of her recent releases. The star herself fairly skims through the role."

American: "Vivacious Colleen is the gay little star in this rollicking comedy drama. Colleen again displays her unlimited ability. From the start, the story is spiced with adventure . . . flavored with romance. Miss Moore is given excellent support."

Post: "Colleen carries the story by sheer personality."

Herald: "A rollicking story . . provides some of the best comedy touches. Neilan, the director, may add another feather to a cap already well supplied with them. Able support.

Transcript: "Miss Moore a natural gamine . . . asserts herself with a roguish glance of the eye or a quirk of the lips or a toss of the head . . . so capable an actress . . . so amusing an entertainer."

"West Point"—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Capitol Theatre, New York City

World: "Should put Haines in the ranks of the first class light comedians . . . Excellent and authentic scenes taken up at West Point. Film deserves considerable popularity."

Telegram: "The United States Military Academy is a glamorous and colorful place, and 'West Point' is a well-made and amusing film. The services of Haines . . . the good looks of Joan Crawford make 'West Point' one of the best."

Evening World: "There have been several pictures whose locale was West Point, but the one called 'West Point' is better than all its predecessors. Haines has the advantage of a very convincing story, ably handled. Miss Crawford is fast forging to an enviable position in the movie world."

Herald-Tribune: "Very funny in many scenes . . . Haines gives a deft and smooth touch to the comedy assignments. Joan Crawford is beautiful and the scenes of the Army-Navy game in Chicago bring forth cheers from the audience."

Times: "Impressive scenes of the United States Military Academy, notably those depicting the dress parade of the budding officers. Edward Sedgwick does some nice work . . . Joan Crawford is charming."

Telegraph: "Will provide good entertainment . . . Haines' military training in 'Tell It to the Marines' stands him in good stead. Joan Crawford is as beautifully seductive as ever."

"Leave 'Em Laughing"—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Metropolitan Theatre, Los Angeles

Record: "As funny as 'The Battle of the Century,' one of funniest giggle getters of year—one just can't help dwelling upon. Riot caused by Roach comedy with this new team of Laurel and Hardy."

Express: "Laurel and Hardy secure unusual number of laughs. Along about second reel after few preliminary smiles and chuckles they cut loose with some antics in wow class."

Herald: "Laurel and Hardy offer a laugh packed short comedy. There are some moments in this Roach fun item which leave spectator helpless."

Examiner: "Riotous comedy that had audience shrieking with laughter. 'Leave 'Em Laughing' is title. It does! And how! I don't think I ever saw Laurel and Hardy before, but I know one thing—it won't be last time."

Times: "Film goers who remember 'The Battle of the Century,' exceptionally laughable comedy, will be glad to know that "Leave 'Em Laughing' stars same two and runs other a second close. Way above ordinary two-reel feature."

Opinions on Pictures

Her Wild Oat

Colleen Moore Has a Good Film

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

FOR some time past Colleen Moore has been skipping about in her pictures with nothing much to do except cut up didoes. Exploited as a play-girl or something akin to a refined Sis Hopkins, it is a pleasure to see her in a film which projects something of her talent—and the real personality which is hers in abundance.

Here the star has a story which cannot by the widest stretch of imagination be called original. This is unimportant. What is important is the fact that it gives the star a chance to effect a real characterization and still retain something of her art. The piece (it's not much more than a mere trifle) is well gagged with incident and hokum and is worked out colorfully enough. The star portrays the role of a lunch-wagon proprietor who attempts to put on the "dog" and gets away with it. She picks up a title and finds her romance and even breaks into the papers and society before she's finished.

That's about all there is to it. But it breezes along, touching off its romantic sparks, kindling its humorous coals and glowing with a neat color. The star is very good. And so is Larry Kent as the young man who attends to the love interest.

Drawing Power: Star's name should draw them. Suitable for any type of house anywhere. Exploitation Angles: Feature title and tease it. Play up star as having one of her brightest films here. Bill as typical Colleen Moore picture.

THEME: Romantic comedy of working girl who masquerades and gets away with it, winning publicity and a sweetheart.

Produced and distributed by First National. Length, six reels. Released, February, 1928. The Cast: Colleen Moore, Larry Kent, Hallam Cooley, Gwen Lee, Martha Mattox, Charles Giblin, Julanne Johnston. Director, Marshall Neilan.

Sadie Thompson

At Last Gloria Has a Picture

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THERE was a question at the time the play "Rain" was considered as a likely document for the screen whether Gloria Swanson would be permitted to film it. She got around the issue by adapting the original story which furnished the background for the play. It emerges under its original title and easily proves to be the best picture since the star's "Humming Bird" days. Excerpts of the spoken version are captured, too. It is a very faithful adaptation and looms large as rattling good entertainment.

The yarn of the giddy girl from Frisco who goes to the South Seas and plays at love is one that carries a kick. The kick is still with us in the celluloid treatment. Where it has been censored is in the characterization of the minister who provided the motivation of the play. Here he becomes a welfare worker, a blue-nosed reformer—and the clergy are not offended as a result.

He has the same inhibitions as the original Reverend Davidson and takes the exit in the same manner. He reforms the girl and then his emotions get the best of him. Its a simple story but handled with the utmost simplicity and with fine emphasis upon its moral. There is a counterplot which saves it from being carried along a single groove. The atmosphere is very good and in some respects the film outshines the play. It sure does capture more of the essence of the South Seas. Miss Swanson makes a vivid Sadie, one always in character—and Lionel Barrymore as the inhibited reformer, who develops a sin complex, makes the study very genuine. Raoul Walsh as the marine admirer is adequate. His direction tops his acting, however.

Drawing Power: Title and star's popularity. Suitable for all types of houses. Exploitation Angles: Play up as film version of play "Rain," and story by Somerset Maugham. Tie up with long run of play. Feature as Swanson's best in several seasons.

THEME: Drama of giddy girl in search of romance. With bad reputation she is reformed by welfare worker who is conquered by her charms.

Produced and distributed by United Artists. Length, eight reels. Released, February, 1928. The Cast: Gloria Swanson, Blanche Frederici, Lionel Barrymore, Raoul Walsh, Will Stanton, Charles Lane, James A. Marcus, Florence Midgley, Sophia Artega. Director, Raoul Walsh.

A Race for Life

Fair Melodrama of Racetrack

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

RIN-TIN-TIN goes to the races in this latest of his thrillers for Warner Bros. It is a hackneyed tale of the ten-twenty-thirty variety of melodrama that has been worn to a frazzle and is saved only by the super-intelligence displayed by the dog-star.

The story must be fair enough or it would not have endured through the passing of many years, but it is a far cry from reality when a dog can be injected into a race course and made to win the great sweepstake for the horse about which the interest centers.

There is not a single new angle added to the old story. Rinty and his boy owner wander into the racetrack looking for work. The boy proves himself a driver of marked ability and is signed to handle the reins on Black Raider. The villain is a rival owner who contrives to injure Black Raider, but the boy averts this disaster by switching horses in the stalls. Then the villain disposed of the boy and sees to it that one of his own gang is assigned to drive Black Raider. Rinty releases the boy from his bondage just in time to be at the starting line, and then, in disgrace himself, because he is accused of injuring other horses, the dog-star dashes around the course at the heels of Black Raider, which had the habit of sulking unless Rinty was accompanying him around the course. Black Raider consequently wins and the owner's fortune is saved.

Drawing Power: The popularity of the dog-star and the type of the story should make it a fair draw in all but the larger houses. Exploitation Angles: Rinty's heroic deeds and the great sweepstakes.

THEME: Racetrack melodrama in which the dog-star overcomes the intrigue of the villain and spurs his boy owner and Black Raider on to win the grand sweepstakes and save the fortune of the horse owner.

Produced and distributed by Warner Bros. Released January 28th, 1928. Length, 4,777 feet. The Cast: Rin-Tin-Tin, Virginia Browne Faire, Carroll Nye, Bobby Gordon, James Mason, Pat Hartigan. Directed by Ross Lederman. Story and scenario by Charles R. Condon.

Love Me And The World Is Mine

Ordinary Romance Neatly Acted and Staged

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THE man who made "Variety," is responsible for this one. Yes, E. A. Dupont is the man behind the megaphone, and all things considered he has turned out a creditable job. If you haven't got the stores you can't turn out the masterpieces. Dupont didn't have much to work with here—just something which goes very, very romantic. But he has done his job well.

The film is rather cloying in its sweetness, but its sentiment is nicely expressed by Mary Philbin, who in her role of an innocent girl from the country, journeys to Vienna and is catapulted into a romance and a certain situation. It is worked out obviously. It couldn't be treated any other way. The heroine meets an eligible youth and her cousin tries to break up the romance since she has had an affair with the hero, an officer. When the certain situation develops and finishes by getting nowhere, the youth, who is going to war, jumps off the train. And it ends with wedding bells. A sweet, little tid-bit, but calculated to please most of any matinee audience or any spectator whose heart still beats with romance. The backgrounds, well suggested, dwarf the story. They truly make it worth while at that.

Drawing Power: The title has some lure about it. O. K. for average houses. Exploitation Angles: Tease the title and feature Mary Philbin, one of the sincerest actresses on the screen. Play up Dupont.

THEME: Romantic drama of country girl who goes to large city and after various adventures wins romance.

Produced and distributed by Universal. Length, six reels. Released, February, 1928. The Cast: Mary Philbin, Norman Kerry, Betty Compson, Henry B. Walthall, Martha Mattox, Mathilde Brundage, George Siegmann, Robert Anderson, Albert Conti, Emily Fitzroy, Charles Puffy. Director, E. A. Dupont.

Publicity Madness

Excellent Comedy

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

ALTHOUGH admittedly tardy, it is not amiss to offer the assertion that this Fox comedy is well calculated to please. Chock full of laughs, this co-starring vehicle for the breezy Edmund Lowe and beautiful Lois Moran is first-rate. What a different Edmund has come into being since his memorable role of Sergeant Quirt!

Yes, "breezy" is the word! For this boy has acquired the light, easy touch that every good comedian should possess. He can put over comedy with a grin, with a slight gesture of the hand or a movement of the features. When you compare his present work with his roles before the Stallings masterpiece, you must admit his forte is comedy.

He snaps out of it in this one; that is, he becomes suddenly imbued with a desire to work at the job of advertising and exploiting an old-fangled soap manufactured by Lois Moran's grumpy father. With the impetuosity of youth he tries out all sorts of ideas to put that soap before the minds of the public. Never crestfallen for a moment is this young man with the irrepressible ego.

There will be lots of laughs at the scene where he takes off for Hawaii on a non-stop flight, another of his schemes to get the soap into the headlines. Instead of going up after the manner of airplanes, his ship heads for the ocean's bottom like a submarine.

The picture carries you along with Eddie with plenty of speed and they throw laughs at you continuously.

By the way, what happened to Arthur Stone in the picture? We know for a certainty that he can roll up a fat average in any picture. But in this one they must have kept him under leash.

Drawing Power: Good for any house. Exploitation Angles: Lowe is a familiar figure now after "Glory" and Miss Moran after "Stella Dallas." Be sure to mention their past achievements. Trans-Pacific hop provides a good exploitation angle.

THEME: Comedy of young man who manages business of girl's father, a soap manufacturer. He wins the girl after swamping the company with orders via an exploitation campaign that knocked everyone dizzy. The girl, too, was affected that way.

Distributed by Fox Films. Released, October 2, 1927. Length, 5,893 feet.

The Cast: Lois Moran, Edmund Lowe, E. J. Ratcliffe, James Gordon, Arthur Housman, Byron Munson and Norman Pack. Story by Anita Loos. Director, Albert Ray.

His Foreign Wife

A Fine Little Picture

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

IT is a pleasure to recommend this picture. It handles a subject of vital importance and handles it well. Built along the lines of good entertainment, this little picture impresses one with its sincerity, its obvious lack of effort to impress, its avoidance of a preachy tone. And this in the face of an absence of action—that godsend to many a film. We hope that producers will turn to more subjects of a like nature when they come to consider what they will feed the movie public.

The story is told of an American doughboy and his German wife, parts nicely portrayed by Wallace MacDonald and Greta von Rue. The latter is a charming girl with an individual type of beauty. How nicely she fits into her role of the young German wife in her husband's house, in a land strange and for a time cold and mocking! When she comes to America with her husband she meets with the haughty glances of his father, a man with a one-way brain typical of a large horde. The hysteria created by the war has not died within him.

The picture mounts to a climax when MacDonald's father, as the town's leading citizen, performs the ceremony of pinning a decoration on his son's chest. The boy, then and there before the assembled throng, decries his father's false sense of patriotism, his inability to let bygones be bygones. With his electric note of tragedy hanging in the air he leaves the scene and it is not until later that the father's false pride and bitterness are dissolved.

The theme is international in scope and above the ordinary hum-drum affairs that Hollywood has been leaning on so long. We cannot see an audience, intelligent, of course, find a picture like "His Foreign Wife" devoid of good, strong and compelling entertainment.

Drawing Power: Some audiences are notoriously indifferent to pictures that do not deal with the usual love scenes, hokum or the proverbial action; but this picture should please the bunch caring for intelligent movies. Exploitation Angles: The war and the post-war angle. Play up the cast.

THEME: Drama of an American soldier and his German wife and their reception in his father's house.

Produced by W. Wallace Cook. Distributed by Pathe. Released, November 27, 1927. Length, 4,890 feet.

The Cast: Greta von Rue, Edna Murphy, Wallace MacDonald, Charles Clary, Elsie Bishop, Lee Shumway. Director, J. P. McCarthy.

Honeymoon Hate

Comedy of Married Life Just Fair

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

BEING the tale of two haughty ones, who have plunged into marriage and are at odds because neither wishes to submit to the other's orders, this celluloid tidbit impresses as only fair entertainment, although an attempt has been made (principally on the part of the title writer) to give it a cloak of satire and humor. It follows, in the main, the groove created by previous comedies of marital spats. It demands of its star, Florence Vidor, that she go through all her expressions of the subtle wife—a job on which she has concentrated in practically all her pictures of late.

The city of Venice serves as the background. The girl is a rich American sojourning there. After she has met a man she cannot bulldoze she plans to humiliate him; she never for a moment imagines that he is a proud Roman and a prince. He serves as her guide and paid companion and though she does her best to make him feel inferior he always rises to the occasion with the result that she begins to look up to him and even love him.

Following their marriage they begin to squabble as to whether he will continue to work or not—she demanding that he quit his profession as an art dealer and he remaining adamant in his opposite view. The rift grows, their pride keeping them from making an attempt at reconciliation. The woman then uses her subtle weapons. She makes believe that she is intimate with another man and the husband becomes furious. This, of course, is the beginning of the end; in no time their dispute has been settled and amity reigns.

Tullio Carminati is not an ideal choice for the role of the husband; but William Austin, as the other man, props up his part with an accentuated comedy characterization of a fop. As for Miss Vidor, it seems that her stock has fallen quite a bit because of vehicles that are weak, to say the least.

Drawing Power: This type of picture goes, as a rule, into the double feature houses; it is not very strong when taken alone.

Exploitation Angles: Play up as farce concerning marriage. Mention star's role in "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter."

THEME: Drama in comedy vein of an arrogant American girl who weds proud Italian nobleman. In him she meets a will just as strong as her own and there is danger of them separating. However, they soon again become ardent lovers.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Released, December, 1927. Length, 5,415 feet. The Cast: Florence Vidor, Tullio Carminati, William Austin, Corliss Palmer, Shirley Dorman, Effie Ellsler, Genaro Spagnoli. Director, Luther Reed.

Phantom of the Range

Deep Melodrama Full of Action

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

HERE is the usual deep melodrama of the west served with all of its flourishes and abounding in action, intrigue, romance and recklessness with Tom Tyler as the star and Duane Thompson as the leading lady.

It is the tale of a cowboy gone wrong and stranded in a small town as a member of a theatrical troupe. With Tyler is also stranded Marjorie Zier as Vera Van Swank, also of the defunct theatrical company. Tyler accepts a cowboy job from Tim O'Brien, grandfather of Patsy O'Brien (Duane Thompson) and Spuds O'Brien (Frankie Darro). Meantime Vera Van Swank employs her wiles on Flash Corbin, an unscrupulous real estate dealer.

Because of a prospective irrigation project which is unknown to the local settlers Corbin is anxious to buy the O'Brien ranch for $10,000 as an eastern concern advises him that it will go as high as $100,000. Of course the elder O'Brien would readily accept the offer, but is persuaded not to close the deal by Tyler, who is suspicious of the transaction. Just as he has won the complete confidence of the O'Brien family Vera Van Swank, in league with Corbin, lyingly accuses Tom of being her husband and the father of her children, and he is turned out of the O'Brien home. He negotiated with young O'Brien to keep him advised of conditions as he waits in the adjacent hills.

The eastern concern sends a man out to investigate conditions and he is made captive by the Coburn cohorts, but rescued by Tyler on the tip of young O'Brien. A fierce fight ensues at the O'Brien home where Coburn is compelling O'Brien to sign the papers under threat of immediate death.

The whole thing ends happily when Vera admits she lied about Tom and the eastern representative writes his check for the $100,000.

Drawing Power: Should do well in any house where they like an exciting western. Exploitation Angles: The usual line is applied to pictures of this type.

THEME: Western in which a stranded actor again turns cowboy, stops a crooked deal for a valuable ranch and wins the girl he loves.

Produced and distributed by F B O. Released, April 22, 1928. Length, 4,781 feet. The Cast: Tom Tyler, Charles McHugh, Duane Thompson, Frankie Darro, James Pierce, Marjorie Zier. Director: James Dugan. Story by Oliver Drake. Continuity by Frank Howard Clark.

Crashing Through

The Old Formula Once Again

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

IF a movie addict were to take his opiate seriously — especially that generally classed as a western—he could tear it apart unmercifully. He could point out how one sided (in story value) his entertainment is, how the hero is forever trouncing the villain, how he is forever saving the heroine, and, even though the hero be called to pass through seven hells, how he will emerge the eternal conqueror. The addict could protest that the stories of these screen westerners are all preposterous, and that in the wild and wooly west of old these celluloid invincibles would have been plugged pronto by a wicked, straight shootin' gunman. He could bewail the sameness of western films, their lack of ingenuity or the element of surprise. No doubt, he could gnash his teeth over several of their faults —that is, if he took them seriously.

It is the fact that these pictures possess action, a swift tempo, that dulls criticism on the part of the fan. What cares he as long as he sees some wild riding or some chap whom he likes executing all the heroics He won't mind the story at all if he is favorably inclined towards these two things. In "Crashing Through" he will see the old story told once again—of the villain who almost had the ranch and the gal, of the hero suspected as a fugitive from justice, and of the denouement which occurs in the form of physical combat between the heavy and the hero. It's not necessary to report how that little tussle turned out.

Drawing Power: Fair. Exploitation Angles: You know them all by heart by this time—at least for westerns.

THEME: Western action drama of hero's successful efforts to save girl, father and her ranch from the grasping hands of an unscrupulous gunman and rustler. He wins the girl after unmercifully trouncing the heavy.

Produced by Liberty Pictures, Inc. Distributed by Pathe. Released, February 5, 1928. Length, 4,480 feet. The Cast: Jack Padjan, Sally Rand, William Eugene, Buster Gardner, Tom Santschi and Duke R. Lee. Story by Jack Stevens. Director, Thomas Buckingham.

"Over The Bounding Blue With Will Rogers"—(Pathe—One Reel)

WILL ROGERS turns in his final page of the picture diary in which he concludes the last lap of the tour which took him to various parts of Europe and the Continent and in which he revealed some splendid scenic shots and the usual abundance of Rogers humor It proved an interesting and instructive series of pictures and he winds it up in a blaze of glory with the trip back home on the Leviathan.

The final page of this picture diary discloses all manner of interesting and humorous commentary aboard this mammoth floating palace. The Rogers sub-titles are more humorous in this one than in some of the preceding pictures of the series, all of which, however, have provided good entertainment. —CHESTER J. SMITH.

"Newlyweds' Success"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

SNOOKUMS is just about the whole show in this comedy of the Newlyweds series, which features Addie Mc Phail and Sunny Mc Keen. The youngster is the winner of the baby show in which he impersonates humorously and cleverly a cowboy and Charlie Chaplin. As a result of his victory he gets an engagement with a producing unit at Hollywood.

Snookums' first appearance on the set brings about the utmost confusion when he tries out the wind and snow machines and gets tangled up with all the props, to the complete consternation of the temperamental director and the slightly less temperamental members of the cast.

While there is action a-plenty up to this point, it increases when the leopard escapes and simultaneously Snookums dons a leopard skin rug, in which he is taken for the real leopard. This results in a mad scramble of all hands with the newlyweds frantic to find their missing offspring, who, tiring of the frolic, is eventually found asleep beneath the leopard skin.

There is some real lively comedy in this one, which, however, would not amount to much but for the cleverness of this gifted youngster, who, despite his extreme youth, seems to posses a keen knowledge of comedy situations.

"Indoor Golf"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

A COMBINATION of indoor golf and a blackmailing gold digger is used in an effort to produce some comedy in this two-reeler of the Keeping Up With the Joneses series. Pa McGinis falls into a trap when he rescues a girl caught in a barbed wire fence on the golf course. As he struggles to free her her cohort snaps a photograph, which shows her in the embrace of McGinis.

When Ma McGinis drives up, Pa explains that the girl has been giving him a golf lesson. Ma invites her to the house to take a course from her. McGinis comes to terms for the photograph, but the girl promptly steals it back from him. Arrived at the house she again reveals the photograph as the first golf lesson starts.

Between them the McGinises proceed to wreck the house in their efforts to learn golf, and what they do not demolish with the golf ball is accomplished when McGinis strives to rescue the photograph from the instructor.

"Wedding Slips"

(Educational—One Reel)

NOTHING much in the way of comedy has been incorporated into this one reel of slapstick and what-not directed by Jules White. Monte Collins has the starring role, but even though he is a talented comic he cannot enliven a comedy of this sort. If he is to be starred in this type of one-reeler it will be a case of rushing a good comedian into all sorts of roles whether they be suitable for him or not.

Collins is asked to play the part of a sap who has wrecked part of the equipment of a gypsy show. He falls into the clutches of one of the nomads, who makes violent love to him After a rough house scene inside one of the tents he knocks his tormentor out and escapes. This particular comedy strikes us as being a poor piece of work. In it you will find Lucille Hutton, Jack Lloyd, Robert Graves and Eva Thatcher in supporting roles. They have had better vehicles before.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"Flying Elephants"

(Roach-Pathe—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

A RATHER unusual comedy away from the usual stereotyped stuff, is this latest Hal Roach effort. It goes back to the stone age with cave women and giants dominating the action, and as a result it develops some very passable humor.

James Finlayson, Oliver Hardy, Stan Laurel, Viola Richard, Fay Lamphier and Dorothy Coburn head a splendid cast under the direction of Frank Butler and they get all the fun possible out of the two reels. The action is fast and furious and there are some unusually funny situations developed.

The theme deals with the edicts of the stone age, with cave women, giants and aesthetes, and the power of brain over brawn, which triumphs largely by the aid of a goat of tremendous butting proclivities. It is all very unique as these comedies go and should prove a good attraction because it is far removed from the usual run of comedies.

Stan Laurel who has always been among the leaders in the short comedy field does some exceptionally good work in this one and is ably assisted in the many humorous complications and situations which arise by the other members of the cast. Fay Lamphier also contributes a full measure of the comedy element.

"Madden of the Mounted"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

ONE of the easiest things an outlaw has to do in these western featurettes is to escape, and that usually, as in this case, is the making of the story. It's a fairly good story as these stories go, and not unlike many others.

Jack Perrin, who is featured, is Madden, the Mounty. As he stops at a creek for a drink, Barlow, his prisoner, renders him unconscious by a tap on the head with his handcuffs, and makes his getaway to a nearby cabin. This is the home of the La Monts, father and daughter, and Perrin is in love with the daughter.

It seems that La Mont is hiding out from the law for a murder he is supposed to have committed. Barlow recognizes him and threatens to expose him to the mounty unless he helps him get away. But La Mont tips Madden off and a fierce fight ensues with the arrival of the mounty at the cabin. Barlow is finally subdued and then tells Madden of La Mont's former crime. Madden reveals that another has confessed to the murder and it all ends happily.

The story is as well done as are any of these two-reelers and there is enough action and suspense to make it an interesting picture.

"Felix the Cat Hits the Deck"

(Educational—One Reel)

THIS cartoon release shows evidence of first-rate co-ordination in the introduction of the various figures in cards to a story that has been summoned out of the minds of the Sullivan men for the talents of Felix. It is one of the most interesting and artistic jobs in the line of cartoon work that it has been our pleasure to see. And if you arrive at the conclusion that this judgment is erroneous, we ask you to study the backgrounds (cartoon sets you could call them) which decorate the length of the cat's latest adventure in black and white. The story's continuity and the way in which its various parts are correlated show that plenty of ability and thought have gone into its making.

The people who inhabit the land of cards are arrayed against Felix—all except the Queen of Hearts, who won his eternal friendship by feeding him. The cat sees "a full house," meets the King's "auntie" and discovers that she is only a "penny aunt" when he asked her for money. He enters the "diamond" mine, incurs the wrath of the "Jack of Spades," whose henchmen capture him and turn him over to the "Jack of Clubs." He is then given the "Grand Slam." An excellent display of ingenuity and class in animated cartoon work.—RAYMOND GANLY.

Newsreel Resume

There is a diversity of subject matter in the issues of the newsreels this week. The value and significance of such events as the new peace pact between the United States and France, the landing of the Los Angeles on the deck of the Saratoga, the arrival of the French fliers in Mexico and the Fall River fire were not lost sight of by the enterprising cameramen. The reels were not devoid of human interest topics, either. In all, each had well balanced and interesting entertainment to offer.

Their contents are as follows:

In Paramount News, No. 55, the activities of the marines in Nicaragua are set forth. Additional topics are the fire in Fall River, "good luck" festival in Tokio, Nathan Strauss, Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium, Dempsey, the French airmen arriving in Mexico City, the Los Angeles landing at sea. A German who is attempting a long distance swim and a thrill stunt over a waterfall are also on view.

The following issue of this reel, No. 56, had Costes and Le Brix landing after hop from Mexico, commemoration ceremonies at the Statue of Liberty, Fall River's efforts at reconstruction, storms on the Atlantic, the activities of St. Bernard dogs in the Alps and the signing of the new peace treaty between the U. S. and France. Other items included Clarence Chamberlin's third failure to break endurance record, training pigs and the job of cleaning the world's largest clock.

The carnival in Cuba, the sport bay in the Cathedral of St. John and the landing of the Los Angeles on the Saratoga are some of the highlights of Fox News, Vol. 9, No. 38. Its other offerings consist of new costumes for bathing, Pa. cadets in pushball contest, large Italian family, birds' breeding haven in South Seas, Afghanistan King received in Paris, and the new English bridge at Newcastle.

Scenes of the fire at Fall River serve to lead-off the events in No. 39 of Fox News. These shots are followed by others of Costes and Le Brix landing in New Orleans, mid-south open golf tournament at Pinehurst, renewal of American-French amity pact, Florida girl directing traffic, ski-jumping, San Francisco's marathon run, rough seas pounding Havana's water-front and New Orleans' handicap.

No. 13 of Pathe News showed views of the great fire in Fall River, Lindbergh in Panama, Dempsey, Afghan ruler welcomed in French capital, the Los Angeles boarding the Saratoga, English inventor's super auto, the carnival at Havana, the new skipper of the Leviathan, and Tunisian horsemen in smart exhibition of their equestrian skill.

In Pathe News, No. 14, were additional scenes of the signing of the U. S.-France record of friendship, new Hawaiian dance steps, Kansas City school children fingerprinted, Tunney, New Orleans welcoming French fliers, Brooklyn nursery and its infant waifs, ski carnival in Japan and Chamberlin's crash on take-off for new endurance flight.

Vol. 10, No. 10, of International News also recorded the landing of the dirigible on the deck of the Saratoga, Cuban capital's annual fete, and marine activities in Nicaragua. This issue also gives views of a daredevil trick over rapids in Washington, French tennis champion fresh from France, Chas. A. Levine and crew preparing for Havana flight, Nathan Strauss, aesthetic Chamberlin's crash on take-off for new entertainers.

The winter sport of iceboating is played up in No. 11 of International News as well as the homage accorded the flying Frenchmen in New Orleans, Chamberlin, the 150th anniversary of the U. S.-France treaty celebrated at the Statue of Liberty, new arbitration agreement between France and the U. S., rough seas encountered by Coast Guard cutter, Babe Ruth, Tunney, Louise Homer, the Fall River conflagration, R. W. Stewart, cited for contempt of court in oil scandal.

M-G-M News, Vol. 1, No. 49 shows Niagara Falls during the winter time, an oil fire down in Texas, General Pershing, the late Field Marshal Haig, Cardinal Hayes, carnations, Olympic aspirants train with speedy duck swimmers, Jap troops in review, spectacular fire at Villanova College in Pa.

Another fire—that one in Fall River—is also recorded in No. 50 issue of M-G-M News. The method of carrying the wounded from the Nicaraguan front is also presented, besides shots concerning dogs, an ice jam in Stockholm's harbor, clubmen arrange details of Southern ball league's new schedule, Nathan Strauss, U. S.'s ambassador in France, the S.S. Leviathan's commander, London's new "great white way," trapeze artists performing over swirling cataract, the Los Angeles alighting on the plane-carrier, Saratoga.

The French greeting to Afghanistan's sovereigns, the dirigible landing on the Saratoga's deck, and a test of the use of radio in a railroad are the principal extracts of Kinograms, No. 5367. The Annapolis crew at practice, the Leviathan's new boss, skiijoring in Germany with motorcycles, Rin-Tin-Tin and ice skating steps are other numbers to be seen.

No. 5368 of Kinograms presents Fall River's stricken area damaged by fire, Chamberlin crashing to earth, French airmen warmly greeted in New Orleans, 94-year-old woman artist, ski experts at Bear Mountain, snow sculpturing, Ruth, France and America signing treaty to continue peaceful relations, and Benjamin Franklin's memory honored at base of Statue of Liberty.

"The Best Man"

(Sennett-Pathe—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

IT would seem as though the Mack Sennett production forces could concoct something of a more spontaneous brand of humor than is revealed in this comedy which features Billy Bevan, Alma Bennett and Vernon Dent. It is just a series of gags and all of them badly frayed from overusage. Here and there is a laugh from situations that have proven themselves sure-fire and will be used until there is not a smile left in them.

A newly asphalted street is responsible for much of the comedy in this one. Billy Bevan is the best man and as he steps from his taxi for the wedding ceremony his feet become enmeshed in the asphalt, which he carries into the church. The carpets are lifted as he walks up the aisle and eventually the misplaced wedding ring becomes attached to the heel of a portly dowager's shoe.

There is added confusion when Billy accompanies the wedded pair to their suite following the ceremony and a small fire starts there with the result that all are drenched with water.

As a matter of fact making these comedies all wet seems to be a reigning pastime with producers at present. This one winds up that way the next morning when Billy drives the bride and groom to the railroad station. The flivver boils over and relief is sought at a watering station, where the occupants of the car and those in the immediate vicinity are subjected to a thorough drenching. There is also exposed as one of the present-day comedy bits a man or two sans trousers and clad only in B. V. D's.

"New York's Sweetheart"

(Educational—One Reel)

THE iron lady who stands in New York harbor facing the sea with a torch held aloft in her hand is the title matter in this extract from the Curiosities series of Walter Futter. Miss Beth Brown puts words into the lady's mouth and these form the titles. In a reminiscent mood, Miss Liberty goes back to the early days of the metropolis. Several strips of celluloid—made in 1898, 1897 and 1905—show scenes of the city, the little paddling boats of that time, the old fire department in action, the old trolley cars, the old fashioned bicycle, the 5 cent glass of beer, Fifth Avenue as it appeared 22 years ago, the Poe Cottage in the Bronx and the old fashioned styles in ladies' head dress.

These old time films indicate to an amazing extent the progress of the city. When they were taken the movie photographers had not been able to eliminate the flicker in the film.

The titles are apt and to the point. The film should be interesting to all New Yorkers and to all who admire progress and to those who love to look back to "the good old days," as they are sometimes affectionately called.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"Back to Nature"

(Universal—One Reel)

A LIVELY little story is this one featuring Arthur Lake and Lillian Gilmore. It's a tale of a kid romance with a little of heroics and not too much comedy.

Arthur phones his girl, Mary Marsh, to join him in a ride in the family flivver, but his mother decides the family will picnic that day. Mary is indignant when the date is broken, and accepts an invitation from Arthur's rival to accompany him and a crowd on a picnic.

The two picnics are held in the same wood unknown to each other. Arthur's rival leaves the girl momentarily and a tramp intrudes. Arthur wandering about for a pail of water sizes up the situation and battles with the tramp, as his rival stands off, too scared to give him assistance. The girl calls upon Buddy to help, but he refuses, so when Arthur conquers the tramp he is again reestablished as the prime favorite.—CHESTER J. SMITH.

Regional News from Correspondents

New York & New Jersey

RUDOLPH SANDERS, well-known in the exhibition and political end of this industry, announces the opening of his new Sanders theatre, Prospect Park West and Fourteenth Street, on Saturday evening, February 11.

A 3,500 seat theatre will be erected on the south side of 161st Street, near the Yankee Stadium, New York City, at a cost of $1,500,000. The site comprises twenty-three lots and the property is valued at more than $700,000. The Weeks Avenue Construction Co., I. Robinson, president, will be in charge of construction work.

It is reported that Al Gould, owner of the Concourse theatre on Fordham road, has closed a deal whereby he will take over the Avalon theatre, a 1,750 seat house on Burnside Avenue, east of the Concourse. February 15 will probably see the Avalon open for business.

A 2,500 seat theatre will be erected by Sidney Cohen on the site of the old Strand theatre, 161st Street and Westchester Avenue.

Joe Weinstock's Tremont Avenue theatre, a new 3,000 seat house, will open about March 15. It is rumored that it will be eventually added to the Loew holdings.

The Park Plaza theatre, up until a short time ago operated by Universal Theatres, has been handed back to landlord Greenburg who, it is said, will continue to operate the house. Louis De Rocco, manager, will undoubtedly continue as manager.

What has been spoken of as Jos. Stern's invasion of New York City will materialize in the form of the Major theatre, Canal Street, on the evening of February 12. A Mr. Dollinger, Mr. Stern's nephew, will be in charge.

Goldstein and Leo's Kisco theatre, Mt. Kisco, opened last Friday.

Since disposing of their chain of theatres to the Stanley-Fabian Company, Messrs. Bratter and Pollack have set about building up another circuit. The third of their new holdings, the Ritz, is in Lyndhurst, N. J., where they also own and operate the Lyndhurst theatre. Another is in Arlington and this firm also has theatres under construction at Nyack and Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.

Three theatres of the Irving Lesser circuit have been turned back to their respective landlords, according to report. They are the Capitol theatre, Haverstraw, N. Y.; the Capitol theatre, Bayside, L. I. and the Strand at Rockville centre, L. I. The Haverstraw house is said to have reverted to the K. of C., the Bayside house to its builders, the Buckley Engineering Co., and the Rockville Centre theatre to its former owner, Mr. Gluck, who also operates the Ogden theatre, New York City.

David Tabachnick, owner of the Van Buren theatre, Brooklyn, recently acquired the Electra theatre, 1160 Broadway, Brooklyn, from H. Straussberg.

After being closed for the past five months, the Grant theatre, 142nd Street and Lenox Avenue, New York City, has reopened.

Aaron Schusterman has taken over the Grand theatre property in Perth Amboy on a twenty-one year lease and will spend thirty to forty thousand dollars toward reconstructing this house into a modern motion picture theatre.

Joseph Schildkraut will portray one of the leads in "The Blue Danube," a forthcoming special from Pathe-De Mille

When last seen on Tuesday of this week Mr. Schusterman was battling with the entire New Jersey Pathe-De Mille force and when the writer left the scene of action it looked as though the outcome might result in a draw, with Schusterman perhaps having a slight edge. The early rounds easily went to Messrs. Wolf, Carroll and Kenneth but Schusterman finished strong.

Any one of Milton Kronacher's customers who did not receive the handy little leather bound notebook which Milt recently distributed among his friends will please communicate with him at once as the stock is getting low. In addition to a note pad the book contains a 1928 calendar.

A tabloid newspaper last Tuesday morning screamed across its front page that several hundred people stampeded from a theatre fire in West Orange, N. J. Checking up we find that the fire occurred in a 600-seat house called the Savoy, owned and managed by B. Bodenstein at 33 Freeman Street.

Flames from blazing film in the projection booth were apparently the cause of the fire, which did damage estimated at between $20,000 and $30,000, indicating that the theatre was badly demolished. Chas. Billings, the booth operator, is reported to have had a narrow escape when the blazing film caused his clothing to ignite, forcing him to jump out of the rear window to the ground below.

Three motion picture theatres on the lower East Side of New York City recently let go by a circuit theatre operating company are to reopen again, according to report. The Lucky Star will be guided, on what we hope turns out to be a successful career, by its landlord and we also apply the same sentiment to the present owners of the New Atlantic and New Stand, also understood to be ready to reopen under owner-management.

Another downtown house to revert to landlord-management is the Forsyth. Chas. Goldschlag, who was in charge of the Forsyth, has left.

John Dacey, popular assistant manager of William Raynor's Pathe-New York exchange, is again wearing a cane as the result of the boating mishap which happened some little time ago. Mr. Dacey's knee was seriously hurt at the time and the injury now and then manifests itself.

Whether Dave Solomon of National Theatre Supply is trying to impress the fair sex or doubling for some film actor we do not know but the new moustache seems to have a secure hold on Dave's upper lip and he's looking more like Doug Fairbanks every day.

The purchasing department of National Theatre Supply Company has been moved to offices at 723 7th Avenue. Walter Green, First-vice-president of this company, also has his offices in this building and the Kilgen organ force under Neil Burk is also located in the building.

National Theatre Supply now has one hundred per cent distribution on Steel Furniture products, the eastern branch under Mr. Kronacher having been merged and now being located on the fourth floor at 1560 Broadway. Mr. Kronacher, under the new arrangement, continues as manager of this department.

The Verona theatre, 2nd Avenue and 107th Street, is closed again.

Six new trucks recently added to the fleet operated by the Prudential Film Distributors made an imposing array when backed up to the curb along 1600 Broadway last week. This company now has eight vehicles operating in Greater New York.

Lawrence Cox recently resigned his position as manager of the Regun theatre, 116th Street and Lenox Avenue, New York City.

Messrs. Schwartz and Smith disposed of their Elton theatre, 44th and New Utrecht Avenue, Brooklyn, last week. The new owners are reported to be newcomers to the local film trade.

F. G. Wilson is said to have closed his Rose theatre, 102nd street and Amsterdam Avenue, New York City. Lack of trade is the reason advanced.

Manager Fischer, formerly with the Lewis theatre, the Bronx, is now manager of the Plaza theatre, West New Brighton, one of the Leon Rosenblatt houses.

Small & Straussberg recently opened their new Crescent theatre, a handsomely decorated house located at Crescent Street, Astoria, L. I. All equipment is of the finest. The Crescent's policy will be pictures at popular prices. E. D. Marks, formerly of the Loew circuit, is in charge.

Sam Burman is said to be highly gratified with the business outlook at his new Walker theatre and the same can be said for Lesselbaum's Fortway where Adolph Pincus is manager.

Edw. P. Sachs, manager of the Embassy theatre, a Rosenzweig and Siegle house at 3208 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, is back on the job again after a siege of the grippe.

Business on the whole among Brooklyn neighborhood theatres has been somewhat dull, according to report. Outstanding, however, is the trade being done by Keith's Madison and Fox's Ridgewood. The Fox house, up until the Madison opened, did only normal business but now both are going in great shape, due to stimulation by the new Keith house.

Mary Astor, First National's cameo-faced star, is being co-featured with Lloyd Hughes. Their most recent release is "Sailors' Wives"

Albany

SIEGEL'S truck, which transports film from the Albany exchanges to points north, figured in an accident one day last week when the truck, loaded with film, plunged headlong into the Hoosick river at a point midway between Hoosick Falls and Bennington.

Ray V. Connors, manager of the Olympic in Watertown, for the past several months, reported last week to headquarters of the Schine circuit in Gloversville, and will be transferred to another theatre. John Thoma of Gloversville arrived in Watertown during the week and took over the management of the Avon, resulting in L. J. Carkey going to the Olympic.

Al Lemay, of the Lincoln theatre in Troy, doesn't worry much these days over the weather, despite the fact that he is erecting a new home on the outskirts of the city. Mr. Lemay is using a new type of concrete, which does not freeze even though the mercury drops below zero.

C. H. Buckley, owner of the Leland in Albany, was presented with a cigar lighter last week by members of a Jewish society which staged a benefit at the theatre during a recent Sunday.

The sympathy of the readers of this column is extended to William Donnelly, an operator at the Majestic theatre in Cohoes, in the death of his mother a week ago.

Jake Rosenthal, of the Rose in Troy, attended the automobile show last week, but did not fall for the high powered salesmen. One of Mr. Rosenthal's boys is now starring on a local basketball team, while the other is attending New York University.

James McFarland, manager of Gardner Hall in Troy, is once more back on the job, after having ben laid up for a few days with a sprained ankle, resulting from a fall on an icy sidewalk.

Basil Brady, manager of the Pathe exchange in Buffalo, was in town during the week, and, in company with Edward Hayes, local manager, spent a couple of days in Gloversville.

The Troy theatrical bowling league will hold its annual banquet this month at a date still to be fixed. Invitations will be extended to members of the theatrical stage employees and motion picture machine operators' union in Schenectady and Albany. It is hoped that William F. Canavan, of New York City, will be able to attend the affair.

Meyer Schine of Gloversville is back home after spending a week in Lima, Ohio, where a new Schine house was opened about a month ago.

C. W. Sawin of Boston, eastern district representative for Pathe, was in town during the week. Moe Silver, general manager of the Stanley-Mark Strand Corporation, journeyed up from New York during the week and spent a day in Albany and Troy, in inspecting the theatres and going over matters generally with Uly S. Hill, general manager for the two cities.

The Carlton theatre in Utica, which has been closed for over a year, has just been reopened by Rocco Ferro, of that city.

The Albany Film Board of Trade met on Monday of this week and among those who were in town were Henry Frieder of Hudson and Al Bothner of Cooperstown, the latter representing William Smalley.

Alex Herman, who recently resigned from the Pathe forces, and who was for several years manager of the First National exchange in Albany, is now doing special work for First National in the Syracuse territory, but under the direction of the Buffalo branch. Simon Feld, who recently resigned from the Pathe sales force, has gone with United Artists and will cover the Albany territory from now on.

The motion picture machine operators' union in Troy will install its officers on February 19th, at which time a committee of which Edward Nugent is chairman, will submit its report on a new constitution and by-laws.

The many friends of Charles Stombaugh, one time manager of the Pathe exchange in Albany, gave him a royal welcome last week, when he stopped over in the Capitol City for a day or two. Mr. Stombaugh is now located in New York City.

Walter Roberts has added to his duties as manager of the Troy theatre, having been made custodian of a canary bird, owned by his wife, who is spending a couple of weeks with relatives in New York City.

George Markell of the Strand in Pittsfield was in town during the week on a booking trip. Isidor Schmertz, local manager for Fox, and Harry Seed, who has a similar position with Warner Bros., were in New York City during the week.

Mrs. Benjamin Stern, wife of the manager of the Lincoln in Troy, was called to Philadelphia a week or so ago through the death of a sister. Mrs. King, wife of the nightwatchman at the Mark Ritz in Albany, died during the past week. Mrs. Michael Kearns, wife of the janitor at the Paramount building in Albany, died during the week.

William Smalley is busy these days in supervising the building of his theatre in Johnstown, which was burned to the ground a few weeks ago. It is expected that the house will be in shape to open during the summer or early in the fall.

Mrs. Briggs, who runs the Tvler theatre in Pittsfield, has one of the most beautiful homes of any exhibitor in this section. She has just moved into the new residence.

Bert Gibbons has resigned from the Kaufmann Mat Service and is back in Albany.

The Fox exchange in Albany is in the midst of a Jimmy Grainger drive and the chances are that James Dermody and Edward Bergman will come in for a slice of the prize money.

Fenton Lawlor, who covered northern New York for Fox, has resigned and has made no announcement of his future plans.

Jake Golden put on an anniversary week last week at Proctor's Fourth Street House in Troy.

Atlanta

IT IS announced that C. S. Smith has sold his interest in the Ritz and Alamo theatres in Newnan, Ga., and has purchased the Rose and Crystal theatres in Dublin, Ga., from A. H. Yeomans.

E. J. Smith of New York, general sales manager of Tiffany-Stahl Productions, visited the Atlanta branch of the company on Tuesday of last week. William G. Minder, manager in the Southeast for the company, with headquarters in Atlanta, met him at Miami.

Paul Short, of the West End theatre, Lucas-Jenkins suburban house, who was ill for a week with the flu, was able to be up and around last week.

Ralph B. Williams, district manager for Universal, has returned from New York, where he was in conference with Earl W. Kramer, Eastern sales manager, and Lou Metzger, general sales manager.

Salesmen O. K. Bourgeois, H. R. Kistler, B. A. Wallace, M. Mitchell and S. T. Wilson of Pathe spent last Monday in the Atlanta office in conference with branch manager W. W. Anderson.

S. T. Wilson, salesman for Pathe, was promoted to short subject sales manager last week.

N. Shiron, traveling auditor from Tiffany-Stahl's home office, who has been visiting the Atlanta branch for several weeks, left last Monday.

Lee Marcus, general sales manager of FBO, visited the company's Atlanta branch last week.

Friends of W. E. Finch, booker for Warner Bros.' Atlanta branch, will regret to learn he has been confined to his home with mumps.

Ben Y. Cammack, Atlanta branch manager for Universal, returned to his desk last Friday after undergoing an operation for tonsilitis.

Wm. Conn, Charlotte branch manager for FBO, was guest of the company's Atlanta office last week.

C. B. Ellis, manager of FBO's Jacksonville branch, was guest in the Atlanta office last week.

Included among visitors to Atlanta's Film Row last week were Frank Plaginos, State theatre, Gainesville, Ga.; James Freeman, Imperial theatre, Griffin, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Simpson, Princess theatre, Millen; F. L. Wadsworth, Rose theatre, Tuskegee, La.; H. E. Edenfield, Dreamland theatre, Augusta, Ga.; P. A. Wyse, Strand theatre, Winder, Ga.; W. E. Dunn, Olive theatre, Donaldsonville, Ga.; R. T. Hill, Strand theatre, Tullahoma, Tenn.; and Wendell Welsch, Strand, theatre, Dallas, Ga.

Among exhibitors who visited Birmnigham the past week were F. D. Gibson, of the Palace, Moulton, Ala. Mack Jackson, of the Strand, Alexander City, who states that his new theatre is well on the way to completion and will likely open within the next 60 days; Jim Daly, of the Empire theatre, Empire, Ala.; John M. Johnson, of the Johnson Circuit at Dora, Jasper, Cordova nad Parrish; the Griffin Brothers, of the Strand, Cullman, Ala.; Morris Watson, of Montevallo, and his mother, Mrs. A. H. Watson, of the Strand theatre; C. T. Bobo, of the new Bocanita, Scottsboro, Ala.

Montgomery Hill, district supervisor, Publix Theatres, visited Birmingham the past week and conferred with Manager Sidney Dannenberg of the Alabama.

Boliver S. Hyde, of the Strand and Galax theatres, states that the remodeling on the Strand will be completed and the house reopened Monday, February 6. The Strand has been refurbished from top to bottom, a new Wurlitzer organ installed, and it may be confidently stated that the theatre will be one of the most popular houses in Birmingham.

It is reported that Robert J. O'Donnell, general representative, Inter-State Amusement Company, accompanied by Dan Freeman, chief broker of that circuit, visited Birmingham the past week.

Joe Steed, of the Steed suburban theatres, visited Atlanta last week.

"Bill" Anderson, genial manager of the Pathe-DeMille Atlanta exchange, and L. J. Duncan, sales manager of the same company, visited Birmingham the past week.

"Films and Footlights," edited by Petterson Marzoni, motion picture editor of The Birmingham News, made its bow the past week.

Milwaukee

IT is rumored in Milwaukee that the Oirental theatre will be used in the near future as a legitimate playhouse. Dramatic productions are to be presented there and in addition the theatre will be used for concerts, according to the report recently circulated. The Oriental, with a capacity of 2,500, has a fully equipped stage and is one of the theatres involved in the recent Fox deal.

J. S. Grauman, president of Celebrated exchange, is credited with the introduction of a novel idea at Mt. Sinai Hospital. It is through his efforts that patients of the hospital are treated to a picture show every Monday night.

The Badger theatre at Reedsburg, of which O. V. Kelly is manager, has been showing stock company plays for the past week. Pictures will be resumed at the beginning of next week.

Miss Elsie Luedtke, manager of the Columbia theatre at Kenosha, was in the city last Wednesday.

Frank DiLorenzo is no longer on the sales staff of Paramount.

Ed Kueppers has been appointed assistant director of advertising in the Widwesco offices. Mr. Kueppers was formerly associated with F. & R. at Minneapolis.

Nat Weinbaun, salesman on the Celebrated staff, is proudly touring about in his new Essex sedan.

Jack Anton, former exhibitor of Plymouth, was in the city recently and visited the exchanges. Mr. Anton formerly managed the Princess at Plymouth.

Frank Cook of the Gem theatre at Sheboygen was a recent visitor to exchanges.

Several changes have been effected in management of U-theatres in the city. Harry Tondreau is now managing the State and E. R. Franke, who formerly managed the State, is now head of the Venetian. Stanley Gross, formerly of the Venetian, is now managing the Downer, which was previously under the direction of Dave Goldman.

R. V. McIntyre, representative of Paramount in Japan, who is back in this country on short leave, spent a few days early in the week with his brother, J. H. McIntyre, who is manager of the local Pathe branch.

The building of the new M-G-M and Fox exchange is complete so far as appearances from the outside indicate. "It won't be long now," says F. G. Sliter of the Fox exchange, "and we'll be in our new offices."

The latest addition to the Universal chain in Wisconsin, the Sheboygan theatre at Sheboygan, will open on February 18th. It is a 1,600 seat house of atmospheric design. Jack Gross has been selected as its new manager. Mr. Gross comes from Kansas City, where he has been associated with Universal.

Marco S. McVey has been added to the sales force of Pathe and assigned to southern Wisconsin territory. Mr. McVey was associated with Screen Classics in Minneapolis.

Dan Kelliher, southern Wisconsin exhibitor, was in the city this week, but would not confirm the rumor that he has taken over the Idle Hour theatre at Jefferson from Park Waterbury.

W. H. Voight has taken over the Old Hall theatre at Marathon City from E. H. Newhouse and has renamed it the Opera House.

Fred Knispel, district representative for Pathe, is spending a few days in the local office.

Goetz Bros., of the United Theatre Circuit, have turned back two Milwaukee theatres to their original owners recently. Fred Seegert is again managing the Regent and Anton Billeck has taken over the Radio. This change in ownership became effective on February 1st.

E. E. Hemmings, salesman on the M-G-M force, is the father of a boy, Robert Louis, born January 31st.

It was recently reported in these columns that George Fischer of the Badger Theatre Circuit had taken over the Egyptian theatre from Earl Rice. This statement is in error. Mr. Rice continues to own and manage the Egyptian, and the Badger Theatre Circuit is not involved financially.

Francis Kadow of the Mikado theatre at Manitowoc was in the city recently on a short business trip.

Tom North, representative of Topics and Fables, and F. C. Aiken, division manager of Pathe, were at the local Pathe office for two days last week.

Sam Shapin, special representative for Warner Bros., stopped in at the Milwaukee branch on his way from Minneapolis.

G. E. Maxey has reopened the Grand theatre at Oshkosh, which the Saxe Bros. closed some time ago. F. E. Butler, formerly with Balaban and Katz, is managing director.

Otto Meister of the Whitehouse, Milwaukee, celebrated his birthday last Wednesday by holding open house at the theatre.

Kansas City

BILLY GANZ, organist at the Isis theatre, Kansas City suburban house, was headlined in daily newspapers as a hero of the hour last week. Wednesday night as Billy was playing a solo he noticed flames leaping up behind the dark wings in the rear of the stage. Only six months ago he had been playing a solo in the Sedalia theatre, Sedalia, Mo., when fire broke out. In Sedalia Billy rushed to the basement and attempted to help extinguish the flames, but the theatre and $200 worth of Bill's music was burned. He decided to profit by that lesson this time. Quietly pressing a buzzer, Billy informed an usher to tell "Mickey" Gross, manager, the house was on fire. Gross walked out onto the stage and told the audience in a quiet voice that Billy would play an exit march and requested the audience to file out slowly. The audience did, but just as the last of the patrons filed out of the theatre the burning curtain fell onto the console of the organ, scattering flaming debris over Billy. But Billy hurriedly piked up his music and made a dash in "0" flat from the organ to the front door. The damage to the theatre was estimated at $15,000. Friction in new velvet drops on the stage caused the fire, Emmett Scanlon, fire inspector, said, the process working pretty much on the same order that enables one to scuff one's feet over a new rug, then observe electric sparks come from the finger tips when applied to the proper substances.

Harry Taylor again will head the Kansas City Film Board of Trade, having been re-elected president at a meeting the other day. A. H. Cole, Paramount branch manager, was re-elected vice-president and C. A. Schultz, Midwest Film Distributors branch manager, secretary-treasurer. E. S. Olsmith and L. J. Doty, were elected to the board of directors.

Universal branch managers from Dallas, San Antonio, Des Moines, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Omaha, Sioux Falls, Chicago and Oklahoma City attended a sales meeting of Universal at the Hotel Muehlebach, Kansas City, Sunday. Lou Metzger, general sales manager, and M. Van Praag, division manager, presided. Ted Schalanger, manager of short subjects, also attended. The latter three left for Los Angeles after the meeting.

It all started when "Berny" Bernfield, Educational salesman, tipped the operator of the Strand theatre, Emporia, Kan., for screening three 1-reel subjects last week. The other day Russell Borg, Educational branch manager at Kansas City, received a letter from that operator, inclosing ten cents, and saying that Bernfield had given him fifteen cents for one hour's extra work, which, the operator believed, was an "excessive" tip.

"Perhaps, after all, that guy smoked 5-cent cigars," was "Berny's" comeback.

The DeLuxe theatre, Bucklin, Kan., has been sold by Mrs. Emma Elland to C. C. Johnson & Son of Ellinwood, Kan.

The Gem theatre and Pratt's Opera House of Fulton, Mo., have been taken over by Barney Dubinsky, manager of the Miller and Jefferson theatres, Jeffrson City, Co.

William Sars, who has been manager of Universal theatres in Boonville, Mo., for the last eight years, has been transferred to St. Joseph Mo., by the Midland Circuit, which recently acquired the Universal houses.

The Hubbell theatre, Trenton, Mo., was damaged by fire last Tuesday.

Eight policemen were required to quell a riot in the Globe theatre, first run house of Kansas City, last Tuesday night, when a man saw his wife with another man. A free-for-all fight started, with only about one-tenth of those participating in in the fight knowing what it was all about.

M. C. Sinift, Warner Bros. branch manager of Kansas City, was out in the territory hustling for more business this week, as were Bob Withers, Enterprise branch manager, and Russell Borg, Educational branch manager.

Capt. McLeod Baynes, president of Kinograms Corp., was a Kansas City visitor.

Max Stahl, former Paramount salesman, has joined the Fox force.

William Flynn, Jr., son of Bill Flynn, manager of the Globe theater, Kansas City, is covering Southern Missouri for Warner Bros.

STORAGE OF MOTION PICTURE FILMS

St. Louis

SOME of the theatres in the extreme Northwestern Section of St. Louis were inconvenienced on the night of February 4 when a feed wire supplying that section with electric light broke. For about one hour and thirty minutes the district affected was without electric lights.

St. Louis Film Stocks listed on the St. Louis Stock Exchange closed February 4 as follows: St. Louis Amusement A, $36 offered compared with $45 a year ago. Skouras A, $40 asked.

Meeting the competition of the Ambassador and Loew's State in the down-town theatrical district which in recent months have added elaborate vaudeville and specialty numbers to their programs, the Orpheum Theatre at Ninth and St. Charles Streets left the two-a-day field on Sunday, February 5, and entered upon a policy of continuous entertainment at reduced prices.

The time between the vaudeville numbers on the Orpheum's bill will be filled by motion pictures. Tickets on the main floor will be 65 cents, the general price charged by the Ambassador and State, while the balcony scale will be 25 cents and 50 cents compared with 65 cents charged by the motion picture houses.

During the week the matinee rates at the Orpheum will range from 15 cents to 35 cents. Children at all times will pay 25 cents.

Fire in the operator's booth of the Palm Theatre, 3010 North Union boulevard, St. Louis, Mo., destroyed $600 worth of film and damaged musical instruments which had been stored in the room a few minutes before about $600.

Edward Baker, operator, was burned severely on the hands in attempting to extinguish the fire.

The Skouras Brothers Circuit has closed its Woodland Theatre on Gravois just west of Morganford Road.

The Granada Theatre, several blocks east of Woodland, has gone over so successfully the Skouras Organization decided that the new house and the Kingsland on Gravois near Kingshighway could take care of the motion picture fans of that district.

Motion picture scenes in Hamburg, Cologne, Dresden and along the Rhine and Danube rivers brought to St. Louis by Dr. George Ahrens, German consul, were shown at Alhambra Grotto at 8 p. m., February 3.

George Johnpeter of Posey, Ill., reported to the St. Louis police that his pockets were picked as he passed along an aisle in the Grand Opera House, St. Louis, on February 1. The thief secured $155. Johnpeter did not discover his loss until he returned to his room in a local hotel.

Dr. Cora Johnstone Best, who has hunted grizzly bears in the wilds of Canada and guided a canoe through swirling rapids, told of some of her ventures in a talk before the St. Louis Rotary Club on February 2. Her discussion was illustrated with motion pictures taken on her trips through the wilds of North America.

The dinner dance given by the St. Louis Film Board of Trade at the Chase Hotel on the night of Saturday, February 4 proved a big success and it is certain that it will be a fixture for many years to come.

The successful affair was largely due to the work of the special committee headed by Harry Weiss, manager of the First National office in St. Louis.

Minneapolis

THE following officers were elected at the regular meeting of the Minneapolis Film Board of Trade, held last week: Bob Workman, branch manager of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, president; W. R. Friedman of the Friedman Film Corporation, executive secretary. Tom Burke, manager of First National's branch office, and Moe Levy, manager of the Fox exchange, were elected to serve with the three executive officers on the board of directors for the coming year.

The product of the Sterling company is to be handled in this territory by a new exchange which has just been formed in Minneapolis, to be known as the Sterling Pictures company. The new exchange will be headed by W. C. Lestico, well known Minneapolis exchange man.

Recent visitors in Minneapolis included C. E. Bond, divisional manager of Warner Bros., S. A. Shirley, district manager of the middle northwest division for M-G-M, Art Johnson, owner of the Orpheum theatre, Aberdeen, S. D., Fred Aiken, mid-west divisional manager of Pathe, and Tom North, representative of Topics of the Day and Fables.

Manager Moe Levy of the Minneapolis Fox exchange has had as his assistant for the last two weeks Eddie Grainger, home office representative. Mr. Grainger has been helping Levey to close some important key run situations.

Ray Menzel has purchased the Bluebird theatre in Argyle, Minn., from W. O. Gast and Joe Coninx.

Matt Biggins of Bonesteel, S. D., has purchased the Star theatre at Osmond, Neb., from Victor Gross., who has bought a half interest in his uncle's theatre at Bloomfield, Neb.

The State theatre in Minneapolis staged a revival of the old time fiddlers' contest last week, and more than a score of the veterans around town sent in their entries.

Minneapolis' new theatre, the Minnesota, which will open on March 24 under the direction of Finkelstein and Ruben and the Publix interests, is to be decorated inside by a local contractor, although large firms from New York and other eastern centers competed for the job. The contract for $40,000 has been let to Harold A. Larsen, a member of the Minneapolis Builders' exchange.

The decorating scheme will be carried out in Spanish and Italian motifs. The ornamental plaster work is almost completed and the remainder of the work consists in painting and laying of silver leaf. The auditorium has a dome 5,000 square yards in extent and this will be covered with silver leaf and lacquered in various colors. Mr. Larsen expects to use sixty men in the work. Final inspection of the theatre, total cost of which will be $2,000,000, was made last week by Ben H. Serkowich, representative of Publix interests. A party of Minneapolis newspapermen were conducted through the structure later and they pronounced the structure wonderful in size and arrangement.

Bob LaPiner, who was recently appointed commissioner of film publicity for Minneapolis, has made a good start on his job by collecting three motion pictures for the permanent film record of the city.

Canada

THE Oriental Amusement Company has been established at London, Ontario, with a capitalization of $100,000, for the purpose of erecting a new moving picture theatre at 705-707 Dundas Street, the site already having been purchased. The theatre will have 1,000 seats. Max Lerner and W. H. Hawkins are directors of the corporation.

The Strand Theatre, 91-93 Yonge Street, a landmark of Toronto, Ontario, is no more as a result of the sale of the rear half of the structure by the owner, the Holy Trinity Church, for $80,000 to a syndicate which will erect a business arcade in the downtown block.

The Strand was the original variety or vaudeville house in Toronto and was operated for many years by Jerry Shea for vaudeville and pictures before he built the Victoria Street and Hippodrome theatres. For some time, Clarence Robson, now with Famous Players Canadian Corp., was the proprietor of the Strand and Famous Players had control of the house for a while. In recent years it had experienced a precarious career because of the erection of fine cinema palaces.

One of the outstanding stars of the Ontario Badminton Championships at Ottawa on February 2 to 4 was Harry Sedgwick of Toronto, important official of Famous Players Canadian Corp. Mr. Sedgwick played game after game in the men's singles to the finals.

Maidstone, Sask., now has a neat new theatre which replaces the amusement structure which was burned down some weeks ago.

Harold A. Bishop, new manager of the Capitol Theatre, Edmonton, Alberta, has announced that this theatre is now a big-time film house, special pictures only being booked for week engagements.

During the performance at the Capitol Theatre, Regina, Sask., the house was thrown into darkness by a break in the power lines, the whole city being dark for two hours. Manager E. P. Fields had his hands full when some miscreant in the balcony blew up a paper bag and exploded it with his fist. The noise caused a flurry of excitement but a panic was avoided when the ushers spotted the scene.

Seattle

AL ROSENBERG, who with Al Finkelstein comprises the DeLuxe Theatres, Inc., of this city, returned last week from Los Angeles and has just announced that within the next few weeks work will begin on the installation of Vitaphone and Movietone apparatus in the company's Egyptian theatre in the University district. The announcement has signal significance in this territory because it represents, as far as is known, the first installation of this apparatus in a second run suburban theatre on the Pacific Coast, and gives Seattle the distinction of being one of the first cities in the nation to have two theatres both equipped with the "speakie" apparatus. It is now in use in John Hamrick's Blue Mouse, from which theatre the Egyptian will get its Vitaphone subjects.

The first meeting of the new Arbitration Board of the Seattle Film Board of Trade was held last week, and the officers who were installed include Walter Graham of Shelton, Leroy V. Johnson of the Jensen-VonHerberg chain, and Ned Edris of the Blue Mouse in Tacoma as exhibitor members; Matt Aparton, Universal manager; L. J. McGinley, Columbia Pictures manager; and Ben Fish, Metro-Goldwyn- Mayer manager, exchange representatives. Johnson will preside as chairman and Fish will act as secretary.

Ray Felker, new manager of the Universal chain theatres in the Pacific Northwest, announced last week the appointment of F. F. Vincent as publicity and exploitation dircetor of the ten Seattle suburban houses, the downtown Winter Garden theatre, and the Universal houses in Corvallis and Eugene, Oregon. Mr. Vincent was formerly in the exploitation department of the Pacific Coast Universal exchanges. He will maintain headquarters at the Winter Garden theatre here.

Seattle friends of Jake Millstein, former sales representative for Manager Ben Fish's local Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer office, were pleased to hear last week of his appointment as manager of the M-G-M branch office in Los Angeles. During his few months in this territory Mr. Millstein was acting as assistant to District Manager George Hickey.

Joe Goldburg, buyer for the West Coast Theatres circuit, accompanied by Mrs. Goldburg and Herman Wobber, district manager for Paramount Famous Lasky, arrived in Seattle last week on a brief visit to Manager Herschel Stuart's local headquarters for the Wesco group in this territory. The incoming party were met at the depot by a delegation that included L. O. Lukan, First National district manager; George Endert of Paramount; Les Davis of First National; A. McRae, local West Coast booker; and Mr. Stuart himself.

The Princess theatre at Prosser, Washington, was sold last week by B. J. Paccius to Don Pearl, according to information just received on Film Row.

Howard Sheehan, district manager for the Fox Film Corporation, was a guest of Manager George Ballentine in this city last week, making a tour of his Coast territory.

With the opening of the new 3500-seat Seattle theatre just a few weeks away, plans are already under way for the assembling of the large staff of house employees. Bernard J. Hynes, assistant manager of the Fifth Avenue theatre, who will assume the same position at the new Seattle, is already spending several hours daily interviewing would-be ushers, stage employees, operators, etc., in special offices opened for the occasion in the Skinner Building.

O. W. Newton, well-known exhibitor of this territory, died last week at his home in this city after a very brief illness. He was at one time operator of the Hillyard theatre, a suburban house, and more recently operated the Green Lake theatre here. The latter house has been taken over by Glen S. Bishop, according to latest reports.

A. J. Kennedy, special exploitation director for Manager Les Davis' local First National exchange, left last week for the Oregon territory after a brief visit to his headquarters in this territory. He plans to spend several weeks in Portland.

Two new installations of Vitaphone and Movietone were announced in this territory during the last two weeks. The former contrivance is being installed in Dr. E. T. Mathes' Avalon theatre in Bellingham, Washington, and the Movietone apparatus is now performing at Pilz & Swanson's new Granada theatre in Everett.

Jack Lannon is looking for an immediate location for his Greater Features Exchange! The reason is the fact that he has just received notification that he must vacate his present quarters at 2006 Third Avenue within three weeks to make way for a new motor bus station project. Mr. Lannon plans the erection of a building on the new Film Row, but this will require about three months, and so for the present he is almost "homeless."

News was received on Film Row last week of the death of R. C. Hobson, formerly of the Astoria theatre in Astoria and the Woodstock theatre at Portland. At the time of his death, Mr. Hobson was associated with Harry Poole, exhibitor at Klamath Falls, Oregon.

Herschel Stuart, general manager of West Coast Theatres in the Washington and Oregon territories, last week announced the appointment of [illegible] as manager of the Wesco Hollywood theatre in Portland. For the last five years he has been managing the Liberty theatre at Astoria, Oregon, in which position he has been succeeded by Edgar Hart.

Les Davis, manager of the local First National exchange, who is also dividing his time as manager of the Portland branch, left for a short visit in the Oregon territory last week. J. W. Perry, veteran assistant manager of the local office, assumes control during the time that Mr. Davis spends out of the city.

W. Stefan Perutz, genial manager of the United Artists theatre in this city, last week received a prize of $250 from the officials of West Coast Theatres, Inc., for his recent record business at that house. During the few months that he has been in charge, the house has shown a gain from 24th to first place in increased business in the Northwest territory, and the prize is a reward for this showing.

George Pampel, publicity and advertising manager of Carl Reiter's local Orpheum theatre, returned recently from a trip to California and Tia Juana. He was the guest of one of the Seattle newspapers on the entire trip, having won a recent contest staged by the newspaper telling about its most entertaining and interesting features.

Florida

THE big South Florida Fair and Gasparilla Carnival opened last week for a fortnight run. Of course it will have its effects on business of the theatres. Show folks are used to these "breaks" and it all makes 'em hustle to keep the customers coming.

Well, you "gotta" hand it to George Peck, the boy at the helm of the Victory, Tampa, for the way he put over the first showing of the Vitaphone in Tampa. His campaign was a corker and how the people did flock to it last Sunday. They simply mobbed him. Four shows to absolute capacity and hundreds turned away, followed up by a full week of immens ebusiness. Peck says there are "four of 'em in a bushel." Peck knows his onions but this is one week where Peck was the full bushel.

A man, who is in a position to know, tells the writer that St. Petersburg interests have purchased a corner on Lafayette street in the Hyde Park section, and will build a neighborhood theatre there. There have been several rumors lately about a theatre for this section of Tampa, which is the most thickly settled residential section, but nothing developed. This time, according to information, it is sure-fire, with the land actually bought. Neighborhood theatres don't seem to prosper in Tampa, outside of the theatres in Ybor City and West Tampa, which are the Latin sections. Three neighborhood houses have closed within the last six months, the last one being the Palm in Sulphur Springs. The Seminole, which is the best of the neighborhood houses, had a hard struggle for existence until the Consolidated Amusements added it to their string, gave it their pictures, and put O. G. Finley in charge with theatres.

C. E. Lindall, who has been operating a circuit of six school auditoriums, where he gave a weekly picture show, has gone in for "roller skating." He is building a rink on 7th avenue, between 20th and 21st Streets in Ybor City and expects to have it in operation before the first of March.

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Eleanor Bagnall McKenna, of Dunbar Road, Palm Beach, Fla., and A. P. Talley is of outstanding interest to many friends and acquaintances in the South.

Miss McKenna is a native of Palm Beach and popular in social circles. Mr. Talley is manager of the Arcade theatre at West Palm Beach, one of the E. J. Sparks instructions to put it over, which he did.

Jack Cohen of Columbia Pictures, arrived from New York, Wednesday, and is expected to remain here for several days.

A party of Finkelstein & Rubens managers enjoyed a trip to Chicago as a reward for being winners in the "Bell Ringers'" contest recently held by that circuit. The party, which was headed by H. D. Finkelstein, included Bill Recaz, Joe Ryan, Stanley Seigalbaum and Bob Guitteman. While here they visited the B. & K. theatres, legitimate shows and enjoyed the sights generally.

The Belpark Theatre has changed managers, George Aylesworth taking charge as successor to Manager Goldson, resigned.

The opening of L. & T.'s new theatre, the Regal, was an interesting event of the week. It is said to be the largest and finest house devoted to entertainment of colored people and, situated as it is in the heart of their residence district, brought out a tremendous throng. The stage entertainment is provided by colored people, including Fess Williams and his stage band of twenty-two pieces. The house is a large de luxe theatre and classes with the finest in Chicago. The outside lighting is particularly brilliant and created much favorable comment.

Philadelphia

THE Equity Theatres Corporation, representing an amalgamation of local independent theatre owners, has recently taken over several theatres, bringing the total number under their banner to more than thirty. John Smith, who has been operating the Northwestern, Liberty and Tacony theatres in the northeastern section of Philadelphia, has turned the operation of his theatres over to Equity. The Cambria theatre, in Philadelphia, which had been run for several years by George Naudascher, has been taken over by Equity, as well as the Metropolitan theatre in Baltimore, which was formerly leased by Warner Bros.

Pittsburgh

ALTHOUGH it seems to be a foregone conclusion that the Forbes Street Film Row will soon be deserted, a location for the new film center has as yet not been definitely settled. Rumors are persistent, however, that a decision has been reached to construct a series of buildings each adjacent to the other, and all but one story in height.

Three sites are said to be under consideration, according to rumor, are a large plot of ground on the 1900 block on the Boulevard of Allies; the site of the old Children's Hospital (on Forbes street near Craft Ave.), and the corner of Forbes and Craft, diagonally across the street from the car barns.

More definite information is promised within a few days.

Al Harteau, office manager of the Pathe exchange, worked over time last Monday night, and didn't get to his home in Dormont until nine o'clock in the evening, whereupon he was treated to the surprise of his life. No sooner had he entered the front door of his home when at least 40 voices shouted out "surprise!" and Al suddenly remembered that the day had been his birthday anniversary, and the crowd of men and women who had so surprised him were his co-workers at the Pathe office.

David Silverman, booker at the Pathe exchange, played leading male role in a play given by A. P. Moore club at the Y. M. and Y. W. H. A More Powerful Mazda Projector?

A CORRESPONDENT from Portland, Maine, who seems a bit bashful about making known his name, writes in and wishes to know what are the chances of his obtaining a more powerful incandescent lamp for use in his Mazda projector outfit.

He says he is well satisfied with the operation of the Mazda equipment in general but that his employer thinks a little more screen illumination would be desirable, especially when dense prints are being projected.

He writes thus:

Dear Sir:

I have noticed some discussions of Mazda equipment in the Projection Department recently and as I am using this equipment also it occurred to me that perhaps you could offer some advice which would help me overcome my trouble.

I am using the General Electric Mazda lamp projector and find it very satisfactory as far as general operation is concerned. When this equipment was first installed about a year ago, my boss was well satisfied with the light it gave and although it took me a little while to learn to handle it properly I did not object but proceeded to learn what it was all about.

The results obtained now are pretty good, if I do say so, but lately the boss has been after me to see if I cannot get a brighter screen because lately we seem to be getting some prints which are rather dense. While this is the principal reason why he believes we should have more light, another one, I think, is because he has become used to seeing the screen that bright and it has become kind of stale, if you know what I mean.

In looking around for ways to get this brighter screen, it appears that the only way is to use a bigger, more powerful incandescent lamp. My outfit is equipped with parabolic condensers and as these are the latest development, nothing can be done here. The projection lens is a Series II Bausch and Lomb, so no improvement at this point in the optical system seems likely.

Can Raise Current

Of course, I know that I can increase the current through the lamp by means of the regulator and I have tried this for a few minutes at a time just to see what would happen. I know that this shortens the burning time of the lamp as the lamp people spent plenty of time explaining this to me.

I told my boss about raising the current and showed him how much brighter the screen was at 32 amperes than at 30. Everything was lovely and he was just tickled until I went on to explain to him that if this was done all the time the lamp bill would be doubled. Then he lost all enthusiasm and said ''not so good.''

So there you are. The screen is all right because a new one was installed along with the Mazda equipment.

It seems to me that I read something in the Projection Department about a more powerful incandescent lamp being developed for motion picture projection but I have been unable to locate this in looking over the back numbers.

I certainly would appreciate it if you will advise me concerning this new incandescent lamp and at the same time tell me what are the chances of using it in my equipment. If new equipment is required, I don't believe that we would get it as the boss feels that he cannot afford any more expense. However, that may be a natural feeling which might be changed if the results were much better.

I hope you will excuse the length of this letter but this thing is important to me because I feel that it is up to me to find a satisfactory answer to the problem.

I shall also appreciate it if you do not use my name in connection with this letter.

New Lamp Not Available

Friend Portland, we shall grant your wish this time about that matter of not publishing your name, although we cannot see a single sensible reason why you should refuse to make it known.

A Washington, D. C., projectionist made the same request some time ago and we refused it because there was absolutely nothing in his letter to make anyone ashamed of signing his name to it. We never heard from this chap again so we assume that he was peeved at the outrage we committed and never will write to us again.

As concerns a new and more powerful incandescent lamp for projection purpose, Friend Portland, you are right in your belief that such a lamp was described in this department. Nothing much was said about it at the time other than it had a ribbon of tungsten in place of the 4 section filament of coiled wire used in the 900 watt lamp for motion picture projection.

Requires 150 Amperes

This new lamp is rated at 150 amperes and 10 volts, making it a 1,500 watt lamp. The filament consists of a solid sheet of pure tungsten which is ''crimped,'' sawtooth fashion or like the folds in an accordion, to take up the expansion and contraction in the filament. The overall dimensions of this crimped filament are 10 mm. high by 14 mm. long which makes the filament of approximately the same proportions as the aperture in the projector head.

Because the filament is solid, no mirror can be used with this lamp so that in this respect it is less efficient for motion picture projection than is the 900 watt type.

The net gain in screen illumination is about 15 per cent when the lamp is operated at the same temperature as the 900 watt lamp. This comparatively slight gain in screen brightness is hardly worth while in view of the fact that 600 additional watts are required to obtain it.

The most serious objections to the use of this lamp are its size and current requirements. The lamp measures about 13½ ins. overall, which means that special (?) is required to adapt it to the present projectors. The high current required by the lamp makes it an awkward proposition because a special socket is required to hold it. In fact, the lead wires of the lamp terminate in two large brass prongs which stick out of the base of the lamp. These prongs are inserted in a base block which both supports the lamp upright and also leads current into the prongs.

Life Is Uncertain

The life of this lamp, at present, is very uncertain and is critical for various operating conditions so that it still is unsuitable for general use by persons unexperienced in handling such lamps. The cost of the lamp, also, is quite high.

This lamp, Friend Portland, is not yet ready for general use in projecting motion pictures so it would be well for you to put it out of your plans for the time being.

Operate Lamps Above 30 Amperes

We believe that the best thing for you to do is to operate the present 900 watt lamps at about 32 amperes during such times when dense film is being projected if you do not wish to stand the expense of operating them continuously at that current.

If the lamps are operated constantly at 32 amperes the average life will be about 60 hours instead of 100 hours. The lamps are rated on a basis of 100 hours average life when operated at not over 30 amperes. If more than 30 amperes are used the theatre must bear the expense of early burnouts when such occur.

But even so, these lamps are now perfected to such an extent that they can be used with confidence and no theatre should hesitate to use 32 amperes in order to raise the screen brightness about 50 per cent, even though the usual life is not 100 hours.

The cost of increased lamp burnouts is not great enough to justify passing up the excellent screen illumination thus obtained, especially in view of the fact that the incandescent lamp equipment is so economical in the matter of operating costs.

Schreck To Build House in Ashland, Pa.

A modern motion picture theatre, to be equipped also with a stage for vaudeville attractions, will be erected in Ashland, Schuylkill County, Pa., by J. V. Schreck, of that city, and several associates, he recently announced. William H. Lee, architect, of Philadelphia, is preparing the plans for a house that will seat 1400 and which will be erected at a cost of $200,000, on the Fred Lauer plot on Center street, between Fifth and Sixth, with a frontage of 62 feet and a depth of 125.

Construction work will begin at once, excavations for the foundations having been started the first week in February. The seats will be arranged in a spacious parquet and an attractive balcony. The equipment will include a modern Moller concert organ and a costly ventilating system.

Mr. Schreck is a pioneer motion picture exhibitor in Ashland and for the last fifteen years has been engaged in the successful management of the Temple Theatre in that city.

Charters Issued to Penn Theatre Owners

Among theatre concerns that received Pennsylvania charters at the capitol in Harrisburg recently, was the Harris Amusement Company, of Dormont, Pa., with offices in Pittsburgh, which was formed for "establishing, maintaining and operating a theatre or theatres." The capital stock is $150,000, consisting of 1,500 shares with a par value of $100 each, of which $1,500 is paid in. The treasurer is George S. Harrison, of Oakmont, Pa., and the incorporators D. A. Harris, who owns 250 shares; F. J. Harris, 50 shares, and John H. Harris, 50 shares, all of Crafton, a suburb of Pittsburgh. They are the same Harrises who control the big Harris chain of theatres in Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and other states.

The Keystone Amusement Company, of Pittsburgh, obtained a Pennsylvania charter to "establish and maintain a theatre or theatres." The capital stock is $25,000, consisting of 500 shares of a par value of $50, of which $2,500 is paid in. The treasurer is Milton Jaffe, care of the Academy Theatre, Pittsburgh, who also is one of the incorporators and owns one share of stock. The other incorporators are George Jaffe, Pittsburgh, 498 shares, and Daniel Nocholson, Pittsburgh, one share.

New Colored Consoles for Marr and Colton Organs

New color schemes for organ consoles developed by the Marr & Colton Organ Co. during the past year are meeting with favor among exhibitors in various sections of the country, one of the most popular being the white and gold which shows up very well when colored spots are used. Another popular scheme is the Chinese Red and gold. Other color combinations include the Burmese Blue, Antique Mahogany, Palmetto Green, Abbott Gray, Oriental Gold, Bolero Cream and Driftwood Smoke.

Recent installations of Marr & Colton instruments were made in the Great Lakes theatre, Detroit; the Plaza theatre, East Stroudsburg, Pa.; the Palace theatre, Johnsonburg, Pa., and the Cameo theatre, Allentown, Pa. More than a dozen other instruments were recently installed in upper New York State and Middle West theatres.

Sentry Negotiating Sale of English Rights

Negotiations for English rights to the merchandising of the Sentry Safety Control, fire preventive device manufactured by the Sentry Safety Control Corporation, Philadelphia, and distributed in this country by the National Theatre Supply Co., were practically concluded last week when Jos. E. Cohen, head of Sentry, talked to London from Philadelphia by long-distance telephone.

It is probable that Mr. Cohen, accompanied by Senator Aaron, attorney for the Sentry Safety Control Corporation, will go to England shortly to consummate the final details.

New West Va. Theatre To Open April First

Point Pleasant's new motion picture theatre, being built in Main Street, opposite the post office, by the Lyric Amusement Company, of which Ross Filson is local manager, will be ready for opening by April 1st, it has been announced by Manager Filson.

The theatre building will be 40 by 135 feet in size, and will be constructed so that a balcony can be added when needed. At present a small apartment will be in front of the second story. A foundation capable of holding three stories is being constructed by the Lyric company.

Brick and fire-proof tile are being used in the outer walls.

The seating capacity of the new theatre will be 608.

Shearer Coast Manager for Heywood-Wakefield

B. F. Shearer who recently severed his connection with National Theatre Supply Company has been appointed Western Manager of the Heywood-Wakefield Public Seating Division. In his new position Mr. Shearer will have charge of all his firm's public seating sales.

AL CHRISTIE'S 3-RING CIRCUS OF JOY

"TILLIE'S PUNCTURED ROMANCE"

A Paramount Picture

TILLIE'S PUNCTURED ROMANCE.

W. C. FIELDS

CHESTER CONKLIN

LOUISE FAZENDA

¶ Millions roared at the old "TILLIE'S PUNCTURED ROMANCE" and called it the comedy classic of all times. The same millions—and millions more—hail with delight Al Christie's new 1928 "TILLIE'S PUNCTURED ROMANCE" (everything bigger and better but the title, and that couldn't be improved!) ¶ A three-star laugh riot from the producer of "Charley's Aunt" and the director of "Behind the Front" with a cast made up of the best comics in the business.

"TILLIE'S PUNCTURED ROMANCE"

Presented by Al Christie. An Edward Sutherland Production.

10 GREAT PARAMOUNT SPECIALS FOR 1928

HAROLD LLOYD in "SPEEDY"*
"LEGION OF THE CONDEMNED"
"GENTLEMEN PREFER BLONDES"
"BEAU SABREUR" "OLD IRONSIDES"
"THE LAST COMMAND" (Jannings)
"TILLIE'S PUNCTURED ROMANCE"
"BEHIND THE GERMAN LINES"
"STREET OF SIN" (Jannings)
"KIT CARSON" (Fred Thomson)

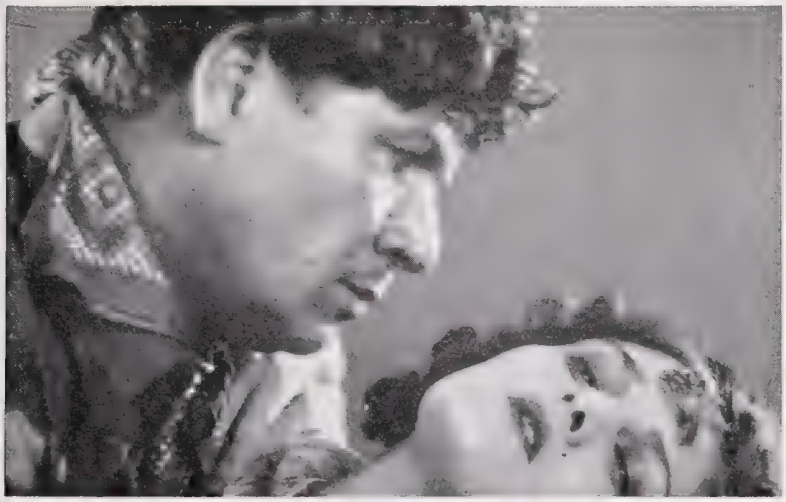
Prod. by Harold Lloyd Corp. Par. Release.*

CLARA BOW proves why she's the most popular girl on the screen in "Red Hair." By Elinor Glyn. Clarence Badger production. Star, author and director of "IT."

RICHARD DIX in "Sporting Goods" flashes his best since "The Quarterback." Smart, breezy 1928 comedy. Malcolm St. Clair production. Your public will thank you.



GEORGE BANCROFT leaps from his smashing hit in "Underworld" to stardom in "The Showdown." Red meat drama. Evelyn Brent and Fred Kohler. Directed by Victor Schertzinger.

BEBE DANIELS shows how petting beats fretting in "Feel My Pulse." Two handsome lads, Richard Arlen and William Powell, are the pulse feelers. Director Gregory La Cava delivers a pip!

4 big star hits in the same month when

"LEGION OF THE CONDEMNED" is hailed as "one of the great pictures of all times." "THE LAST COMMAND" (Jannings) splits records wide open. "OLD IRONSIDES" tops St. Louis and Providence high marks. HAROLD LLOYD in "Speedy" (Lloyd pro., Par. release) on the way.

Magnificent console of Page DeLuxe Unit Organ installed in W. H. T., the broadcasting studio of The Radiophone Broadcasting Corporation, in the Wrigley Building, Chicago, Ill.

Broadcasting from W-H-T

Al Carney, well known organist in W. H. T., who daily thrills a vast radio audience with his masterful playing of the Page DeLuxe Unit Organ, recently installed in Station W. H. T., Wrigley Building, Chicago—and Pat Barnes, premier W. H. T. announcer, in the combination of "Al and Pat," so enjoyable to listeners of the air—have made the W. H. T. station universally popular all over the country.

Superior tonal qualities, instant responsiveness and master workmanship were the prime factors in the adoption of the Page Unit Organ by this powerful, well-known broadcasting station.

They wanted an organ suited beyond compare for the radio. Because of their size and standing, they wanted the largest organ used for direct broadcasting. They wanted the organ to be absolutely outstanding—more than an orchestral organ—a cathedral organ as well. And Page built that organ, fulfilling every wish and specification.

Four manuals, fifteen hundred pipes, a galaxy of traps and orchestral effects, all tied together by the famous Page Unit Relay System, and a beautifully carved console in rose and gold—these are the notable features of this Page masterpiece.

Percentage As the Solution

Independent Exhibitor Attacks Brookhart Bill

By William A. Johnston

HERE'S a letter from an independent exhibitor who is unalterably opposed to the Brookhart Bill. He tells why in pointed language:

February 13, 1928.

Mr. Wm. A. Johnston,
Motion Picture News,
New York.

Dear Mr. Johnston:

We are independent exhibitors. I have been in this business for twelve years and I am unalterably opposed to the Brookhart Bill. The more I hear and read, I realize that I am pretty much alone and I can only wonder what business experience the majority of exhibitors had prior to their entrance into our business, if they think that Governmental regulation can cure the evils of our industry.

I have always found that problems are bound to exist between buyer and seller, but mine are no greater in this than any other business. I battle with salesmen and exchange men but have never had a problem that couldn't be adjusted some way, and I am not in the habit of taking all the lickings. Square shooting more often finds a mark than a miss.

There is one of the numerous angles of this whole mess that I would like to have answered: Who is going to pay for the flops? Who, by the way, is to determine the value of a picture—the exhibitors—after a review in a cold projection-room? (They're all rotten there.) Of course, there will be poor ones. Are the producers going to take it on the nose every time they make one? If they do, how long will they continue to make pictures for us and maintain distributing centers that we may get the pictures we think our patrons are going to pay us for? Can the Government make them do that?

If the whole industry doesn't absorb its share, what is to prevent the producer-theatre owners making pictures for their own theatres and sending the shows around as they do presentations? Couldn't Paramount, Loew, Fox and Universal do that? They would eliminate the cost of distribution and could easily absorb the cost in their own and allied houses.

Consider the plays that closed on Broadway this season—forty or more. Small casts, three or four stage sets, something concrete to mold and improve—and the public refused to buy. Compare that relatively simple operation with the production of a picture, with all the elements that are vital and the money that our average good pictures cost—and tell me that the producers are going to hold the bag for the poor ones, unable by regulation to put the cost of a poor one onto the good one that we will all want—and they honestly trying to make good pictures for their own theatres as well as ours.

If you think we are soft picking for the producers, get a line on us from any distributing headquarters in New York. Our account is well known there. I hold no brief for any of them, but business is business and I fear for the future under the guidance of radical politics.

It was only a short time ago that Senator Brookhart was condemned by all loyal Republicans for his stand against our President. This bill, with its attendant publicity, is meat for a man of his inclinations. It's a wonder to me the forces back of this bill didn't go to Helfin—or Heflin—either looks rotten to me. I am a Republican, too. Reading the statements of some of the bill's proponents reminds me of his tirades. A prominent exhibitor in our territory figures that the bill must be good for us because the producers are opposed to it. And such is the power behind it.

Perhaps my attitude is biased because for years I have advocated straight percentage. I was laughed at when I sprung it at the inception of Artcraft. I have lived to see it come and lay this fact to the fair dealings and relations that invariably exist between the exchanges with whom we do business and us. If the picture dies, we both suffer and we profit by the reverse. However, I know that legislation will never make 100 per cent perfect pictures. We will rue the day it comes.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) E. D. Rhind,
Manager,
Bates Theatre Company,
Attleboro, Mass.

That's a two-fisted, sensible, constructive viewpoint stated in a letter that is almost sensational because it is written by an independent exhibitor who actually gives fair expression to the producers' side of the question.

Like Mr. Rhind, we have for twelve years advocated straight percentage. We, too, were laughed at. But we have gone right along, consistently maintaining our position.

We will say now that if straight percentage were universally practiced and fairly administered in this industry, we doubt whether there would be any Brookhart Bill today.

Also, we are in favor of the exhibitor booking in block, if he wishes to do so. It should be a matter of election with him, and not a matter of coercion or intimidation.

Our unalterable opposition to the Brookhart Bill is, by this time, well known, of course.

We have stated—and we repeat—with equal emphasis that self-regulation, not outside regulation, is the solution for the industry's ills.

The first step toward real self-regulation is doing away with all forms of coercion, intimidation, trade restraint and unfair practice.

Unless and until this is done, you'll have more than one Brookhart Bill, and the industry will continue to be under the menace of political control.

The enforcers of coercive block-booking, by persisting in their attitude, are endangering the life of the whole industry.

Let these people realize that it is they who are responsible for the present situation, because they are perpetuating the evils that open the way to radical legislation.

Let's see some real action by the powers-that-be so that such dangerous and paralyzing political control will be rendered impossible. Unless these evils are removed by the people responsible for them, the menace of political control will persist.

Walker Declined to Head Stanley Company At Salary of $150,000 a Year

MAYOR JIMMY WALKER of New York was made an offer of $150,000 a year to become the President of the Stanley Company of America, according to authentic advices this week. The offer was said to have been made directly to Mayor Walker by Mrs. Mastbaum, widow of the late Jules Mastbaum, who was a very close personal friend of the Mayor.

It is said that the first offer of Mrs. Mastbaum called for an annual salary of $125,000 and that when Walker declined that the figure was raised to $150,000, which he also declined.

Mrs. Mastbaum endeavored to persuade Mayor Walker to give up his political career to assume the presidency of this extensive theatre chain and she also urged others to bring pressure upon him to accept the post and fill the vacancy in the unexpired term of John McGuirk, who recently resigned as president.

The Mayor is said to have been considerably tempted by the offer when repeated requests were made to him by Morris Wolf, counsel of the organization, and Irving Rossheim, treasurer. After he positively declined, however, Rossheim was named as McGuirk's successor.

That Mayor Walker will ultimately be inducted into an important administrative position in sports or amusements seems more than likely and the Stanley Company had every confidence that their proposition would be an appealing one. The Mayor's name has frequently been used in connection with stories that had to do with administrative powers in baseball and amusements. He at one time was prominently mentioned as the likely successor of Ban Johnson, when the latter resigned the presidency of the American League.

PICTURES AND PEOPLE

The Mirrors
of Filmdom

IT'S been a long time between pictures—good pictures—for Gloria Swanson. Not since the days of "The Humming Bird," has she been presented with anything worthy to be called a celluloid document 'til she hit upon the happy idea of filming "Rain."

To screen this memorable stage hit offered a problem at the start. Conferences were held to seek some way of getting in out of the rain and still preserve some of the moisture of the original. Someone (it may have been Gloria) hit upon the happy idea of adapting the story, "Sadie Thompson," upon which "Rain" was founded. And someone else presumably said—"well, what of the Reverend Davidson? Can't he be made over or divested of the cloth so he won't offend the clergy?" And the clergyman turned over a new leaf and became Alfred Atkinson, a welfare worker or reformer or what have you.

So the play and story emerge as "Sadie Thompson," and praises must be sung in Gloria's behalf and those of her sponsors who saw her through with it. At last she has a picture. It is presented with remarkable fidelity to the play considering it was supposed to be adapted from the story. But there wasn't so much to Somerset Maugham's yarn as there was to the play. Hence Sadie of the stage is the same Sadie of the film—and she still sports the same flamboyant manners, clothes and trimmings—and the same flamboyant manners. She has her affairs with a marine or three—and the welfare worker sows his wild oats, gives vent to his inhibitions, and finally seeks the easiest way out.

It is told with fine simplicity and treated with first rate dramatic skill. The characterization of Sadie is touched with a splendid warmth and intensity. Even those who saw Jeanne Eagels in the original can say that Gloria's performance approaches it. None of the color is lost. Lionel Barrymore gives a superb portrayal of the reformer.

In all "Sadie Thompson" is to be highly recommended. Those looking for dirt won't find it, yet they won't find a Pollyanna with paint on her face.

It is good to see Miss Swanson in something which measures up to her stature as an actress. In this new film she scales the heights. It is carefully and appropriately staged, realistic, dramatic, romantic and suspensive. A tip-top entertainment any way you look at it..

WE have spoken, at various times in the past few years, about service advertising in the trade pages for the exhibitor's use. Most of our argument, we are constrained to believe, has not been understood by a good many people in the industry, notably some film executives, whose knowledge of what advertising is, and what it is intended to do, seems very limited.

We are greatly interested, therefore, when we see an actual example of service or exploitation advertising in our pages. Recently, First National has been using this style of copy in its "Stories of Success," in which an exhibitor tells exactly how he put a picture over, in this case "The Patent Leather Kid." The kind of exploitation and publicity used is told by the exhibitor himself. This is, of course, real service; and it is presented in so attractive a layout that it can not fail to register.

"BANKER regulation" was the term we used last week in speaking of the new era in the industry. The oft-repeated prophecy that the bankers would run the business is coming true—or, shall we say, coming to the surface of the news, as it has been pretty much true for some time?

The correctness of the term is evident enough in the announcement that Joseph P. Kennedy is becoming an advisor to Pathe in order to help alleviate the present situation. Mr. Kennedy is, of course, both a banker and a film man; and it is obvious enough why the Pathe bankers would turn to him in the emergency.

We spoke last week of the new idea that is evolving in Wall Street—namely, the selection of a contact man among different groups, allied in interest but not merged as to capital structure.

The designation of Mr. Kennedy is perhaps the first visible evidence of the working out of the new idea. This shows something of an evolution in the minds of the bankers themselves. "Contacting" instead of "merging" is likely to be increasingly used in the Wall Street handling of the industry.

To us it has been obvious for some time that the picture industry is not a particularly fertile field for the mere Wall Street merger. That is to say, the merger for the sake of a financial set-up.

But, if you keep two or more companies operating separately—and economically—with the contact man smoothing out the wrinkles, the chances of success in this industry, at any rate, are far better.

Apparently, Wall Street has seen this. In any case, the designation of Mr. Kennedy is unprecedented in film annals, is an entirely new departure and its final result will be watched with great interest.

ACCORDING to the report of our Berlin correspondent, British International, the well known English concern, have just started a distributing organization of their own in Germany by acquiring Suedfilm A. G., which used to be part of the Emelka Concern before the recent von Lustig deal linked up Emelka and the remains of the Phoebus concern.

The former Nucleus of Emelka, Munchener Lichtspielkunst A. G., will in the future be a producing company only, their product to be handled by the Bayrische Film G. m. b. H. (which also used to be part of Emelka) and the old Phoebus renting organization.

The Emelka theatre circuit which is now controlled by Herr von Lustig and linked up with the Phoebus circuit will be run as a separate joint Stock Company.

Part of the former Emelka circuit which had been controlled by Suedfilm, has now been taken out of this company and joined into the von Luftig group, so that the British company has only a renting organization but no theatres on the German market.

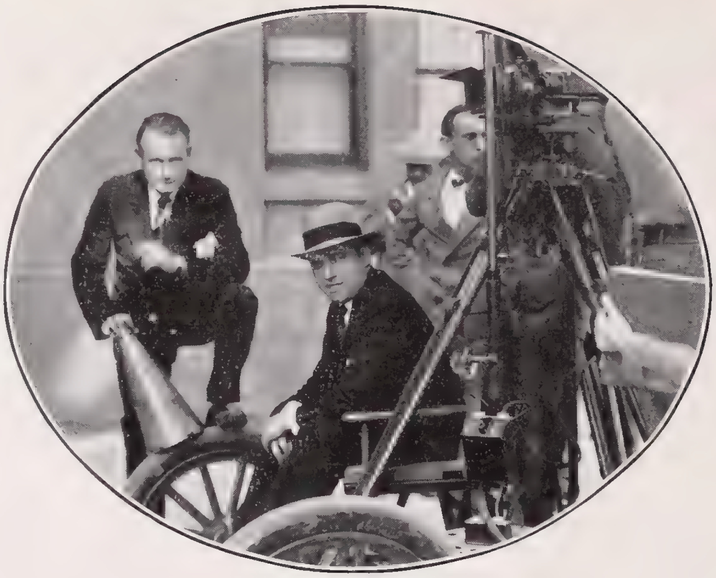
VIVIAN M. MOSES joins Paramount as head of its story department on the Coast, according to official word this week from Walter Wanger.

We are glad to hear of the appointment of Mr. Moses to this post, because we regard him as exceptionally well-fitted for the work, and we congratulate Paramount on acquiring him.

David Lake, general sales manager for M-G-M in Australia, who is now in New York attending M-G-M's International Convention of sales executives



Allan Dwan, directing a Ben Hecht newspaper story for First National, does his megaphoning from a rolling camera car. Dwan has been one of the busiest directors out in Hollywood of late

Malcolm Stuart Boylan, who did such an excellent job with his titles for "What Price Glory." His latest work for Fox is "The Red Dancer of Moscow"

Irving Berlin, song writer, is presented with a life pass to Grauman's Chinese Theatre on the occasion of the "Irving Berlin Jubilee." Witnessing the presentation of the gift, a watch, are Fred Niblo, Joseph M. Schenck, Berlin, Grauman and Charlie Chaplin

Before shooting an intimate scene for the Paramount film, "The Patriot," a few moments are devoted to its discussion by Lewis Stone, Florence Vidor and Ernst Lubitsch. Emil Jannings has a fine supporting group in this production dealing with the Russia of the czars

Ramon Novarro seems to have acquired a liking for sea stories since he appeared in "Romance." He is now working in "China Bound"

Mr. Moses is one of the very ablest of the younger executives in the industry. He has had wide experience in newspaper and magazine work both here and abroad, and brings to his new position the exceedingly valuable distribution background gained while Director of Advertising and Publicity for Fox over a period of eight years.

The work he did in that capacity established him in the forefront of advertising and publicity executives. We have had the opportunity to observe him at close range over a long period, and we do not hesitate to say that he is a real asset to this industry.

His very fine personal qualities have brought him a host of friends, among whom we are proud to number ourselves.

FOR the first time in two years, Skouras Brothers eliminated their stage show last week to find out whether a special could stand on its own merits. The picture, in question, was "Old Ironsides." The box-office receipts at the end of the run justified their decision. The picture was the whole show.

THE European production giant begins to stir. He is not yet fully in action, but he will be.

A clear indication is a British film, "The Battles of Coronel and the Falkland Islands," being shown at the Cameo Theatre, New York City. It's history, and it has been put on the screen in a vivid, workmanlike way. There is no fiction story; none is needed. Just the stirring, gripping facts of an authentic page of British naval history in the Great War.

We do not call it the best picture ever made; but we say it certainly ought to be given a place in the American market.

Most important of all, it shows what may be expected when England gets fully under way with its production activities. That it will cut a large figure in the world market, there can be no doubt.

In view of this, we repeat once more our firm belief that film reciprocity with foreign nations should assuredly be undertaken by the American industry. Reciprocity on the basis of film merit, of course; but reciprocity of that kind, sincere and business-like.

If the American trade is doing anything in that direction on a settled policy, we'd like to know what it is. All we hear about are detached instances, and not many of them.

The ostriches-in-the-sand on this side of the water ought to wake up. They know, of course, that the income from our films abroad is absolutely necessary to the life of the American industry. They must know, too, that because America is pre-eminent in picture sway now, it does not follow that America always will be. And there are the quota restrictions and the other barriers to be hurdled.

The foreign policy of the American industry is mostly composed of blunders, blunders, blunders, plus a smug provincialism that would be laughable if it were not dangerous.

How much longer is this shortsightedness going to continue?

"I HAVE come to realize that exploitation is 50 per cent; no, I would say even 60 per cent of a picture star's success."

No, this is no movie producer speaking, but Mary Pickford, Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, recognized leader of the film colony socially and artistically—admitting that stars owe more of their success to clever producers, directors and advertising managers than to their own merits!

Mary establishes a Hollywood record for unorthodoxy and perfect candor in an interview to be published in Photoplay Magazine for March. For example, she doesn't consider that either she or Doug has produced the world's best picture, and says so!

"The best picture ever made? I think it was 'What Price Glory,'" she declares. "Even its vulgarity enchants me. And I loved 'Seventh Heaven.'"

Of her own pictures, she declares that she has always disliked "Daddy Longlegs," which won a large share of her fame. She likes "Pollyanna," "Suds," "Through the Back Door," and admits that a few others are passable.

"But 'Lord Fauntleroy' was a mistake," she says. "No woman could ever play a male role—ever! And 'Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall' came when there were so many costume pictures, and most of them done better than mine."

THAT Wall Street and the bankers continue to be interested in the motion industry is indicated by the amount of space the Wall Street News devotes from time to time to events as they happen in the business.

A recent issue of the News comments on the Stanley-West Coast control of First National.

"The link-up provided First National with a fixed and steady market for its films, while it gave the Stanley and West Coast a definite motion picture producing and distributing agency," the publication states. "Each concern, under the arrangement, continued to function separately, maintaining its own identity in the trade. The affairs of the three are directed by a joint committee composed of representatives of all companies. As the amalgamation took the form of a co-operative movement, it did not entail any exchange of properties or financing.

"First National Pictures has been enabled to concentrate more on film production and as a consequence has not only increased producing activities, but has turned out a higher grade of photoplays.

"Likewise this new procedure has been reflected in augmentation of the company's earnings."

Schenck-P. C. T. Deal Is Result of Paramount Expansion

JOSEPH M. SCHENCK'S deal with P C T was only for the purpose of insuring proper distribution over the Provincial Cinematograph Circuit, according to word just advanced from London. This was the result of the continued theatre acquisition on the part of Paramount in England and the further fact that British theatre interests are rapidly acquiring larger holdings, according to the explanation.

The new Standard Film Company is being organized to take over the Standard concern, which controls P C T. Schenck is said to receive 25 per cent of the new company stock, which gives him 25 per cent of the controlling interest of the circuit, but not 25 per cent of the whole P C T issue.

Richey Denies Brookhart Bill Price Tilt

Warns Exhibitors Not to "Be Kidded" That Raise in Rentals Would Follow Passage of Measure

H. M. RICHEY, general manager of the Michigan exhibitor unit, has warned members of the exhibitor body not to "be kidded" by the plea of the Brookhart bill opponents that its passage will mean higher picture rentals. He denies that the bill will have such an effect, and also that it will mean governmental control.

Richey laughs at the exchange men who are endeavoring to have petitions signed in opposition to the measure with the warning that it would bring higher rentals. He declares no exchange manager could hold his job who would oppose anything which advocated or would bring about higher rentals. It is his opinion that a careful reading of the bill only, is necessary to show conclusively that it would not bring about higher rentals.

The Richey statement, in part, is as follows:

"Can you imagine a film exchange manager worrying about the poor exhibitor having to pay higher film rental? Say, if his boss overheard him spout off in earnest like that there would be an empty chair the next Monday morning.

"He was trying to scare the exhibitor into thinking that the Brookhart bill provided that a film company had to sell their pictures not more than two at a time. But that is not true. It provides that if they want to place a total price on the pictures sold not more than two pictures can be tied together, nor can he go to the exhibitor and offer him 30 individual pictures, the prices of which individually shall bear such a relationship to one another as to work an unfair restraint on the exhibitor who does not want to buy the entire 30. That is what the bill really provides. It takes away the big stick. But it does not prevent the salesman from coming to you with 10, 20, 30, or even 40 pictures at a time, but it does not let you pick what you want without penalizing you in price because you will not take all.

"Section 5 of the bill makes it necessary that the exchange, or rather the producer or distributor, make the picture before they offer it for sale. No more change of titles, stars, stories, or directors. No more paying known prices for unknown quantities. No more buying from press sheets alone. And do not let any one tell you it cannot be done. If the law passes, as it looks like it will, it will be done. It is done in every other business, you know that, and it is time we quit hiding behind the statement 'this business is different.'

"This does not mean higher film rentals either. It means actually money saved the exhibitor. For the price of pictures will never be higher than the trade can absorb. How silly it is to threaten smaller theatre owners with such statements as contained in this so-called petition. Do you think the government that would pass this bill would allow such a situation to exist? Such a statement simply reflects the ego of some producer, not good common sense.

"The last section provides against the producer affiliation with exhibitors, and sets up that every one must be given a free and fair chance to buy the pictures, which today is not the case.

"There is no government regulation of your profits, or your methods of doing business. But let us assume there is. Isn't that better than positive obliteration, which will be the case if the situation becomes more aggravated?

"But whatever is done, I insist on getting the truth. Not a lot of half truth as contained in such petitions as are now in the hands of film salesmen who do not know it but are actually out being paid to work against their own interests. They have not gone into the situation far enough to discover that fact. If they will they may pass the petition around, but it will be in a mighty half hearted manner, for you cannot blame any one for not becoming enthusiastic about bringing about a situation where salesmen and some managers will not be needed. That is a point not covered by the petition."

Mo. Senator Is Against Amusement Taxes

STATE SENATOR McCAWLEY, of Carthage, Mo., who is the first candidate to file for the Democratic nomination for Governor subject to the August primaries, has included in his platform a plank against amusement and other special taxes. He led the successful fight against Governor Baker's 10 per cent amusement tax at the last session of the Missouri General Assembly.

Tax on Traveling Shows Upheld in Alabama

The validity of the $300 per week license tax on traveling shows in Alabama, imposed by the last legislature, has been upheld by the Supreme Court in a decision in the appeal case of H. D. Hale versus the State. Mr. Hale, a partner of the concern owning and operating the Milt Tolbert Big Tent Theatre, alleged that the tax was confiscatory, prohibitive and illegal, and that even in their show's best year, had they been forced to pay the tax, they would have been unable to make a profit.

The Supreme Court held that the Legislature, in passing the statute, evidently intended to discourage the operation of itinerant shows, as a class, throughout the state. Between itinerant shows and vaudeville, said the Court, existed a valid distinction as vaudeville and theatrical performances in a regularly maintained theatre were constantly subjected to the police supervision of the town or city.

Virginian's Bill to Tax Admissions Set Back

Delegate L. L. Watts' bill to impose a 10 per cent tax on theatre admissions for two years, to provide funds to establish an institution for the blind apart from the Staunton School for the Deaf and Blind, has been passed by indefinitely by the House Committee on Finance. It is believed by supporters of the bill that an effort will be made to bring it to the floor of the House by asking that the committee be discharged.

Delegate Watts has estimated that the bill will yield a million dollars' revenue for the two years starting July 1, 1928, and ending July 1, 1930. Ten-cent admissions under this bill would be exempt from the tax.

Mintz Dines Paramount New York Salesmen

Charles B. Mintz, producer of the Krazy Kat cartoons released on the Paramount program, threw a lunch last Saturday for the sales force of the Paramount New York exchange. The luncheon was in the nature of a thank offering for the manner in which the New York salesmen have pushed the Mintz cartoons. There were no set speeches the guests ad libbing when the mood seized them.

Present were Charles B. Mintz, president of Charles B. Mintz, Inc., and Nat. L. Mintz, vice-president.

Col. J. A. Cooper Becomes Toronto Red Cross Head

Brookhart's Home State Votes Against His Bill

Iowa Exhibitor Unit Says Bad Features Of Measure More Than Offset Good Ones; Hearings Postponed

THERE have been a number of new developments during the past week with regard to the heated controversy being waged for and against the Brookhart Bill, as the author of the measure waits an opinion from the Department of Justice regarding its constitutionality. Meantime the principal feature, perhaps, is the turning down of the bill by the Iowa unit, which functions in Senator Brookhart's home state.

At a meeting held during the week the Iowa exhibitor association commended the spirit of their Senator's bill, but went on record as opposed to its passage. There were a number of factors that brought about this decision, which came following an address by C. E. Williams of Omaha, President of the Nebraska and western Iowa unit. In the course of his address President Williams said he was personally opposed to the passage of the measure and announced that his organization would take a stand against it at the next meeting.

The action taken by the Iowa exhibitors was explained by President E. P. Smith as being because of fear of school and free show competition, which it was anticipated would result. He expressed the opinion that the bad features of the bill would overshadow the good ones.

Sargent's Opinion Awaited

Some time ago Senator Brookhart petitioned Attorney General Sargent in Washington for an opinion on his measure and he is still waiting a reply from the Department of Justice. It is expected it will be forthcoming within the next few days, though no date has yet been announced. Hearings were expected during the week, but it is now likely they will not be had for some ten days.

Meantime it is anticipated that if the block booking bill is ever passed by Congress there will be considerable controversy as to who fathered the measure in the House of Representatives, there now being four copies of the bill introduced. The last measure was filed last week by Congressman Hudson of Michigan, Republican. Previously the bill had been introduced by Representatives Cannon of Missouri and Celler of New York.

The measure was introduced originally in the Senate. The bill was sponsored by Senator Brookhart of Iowa, and the measures in the house are the same as his bill, with the exception of that of Congressman Cannon, who shortened the bill by eliminating a section or two.

Opposition to the measure has been voiced by the Northern California exhibitors because they consider it likely it will result in Federal control. Thomas D. Van Osten, business manager of Allied Industries of California and also publisher of The Independent Exhibitor, expressed himself as deploring open endorsement by exhibitor organizations. He says that if the contract committee writes a permanent and unbreakable contract on motion picture distribution, blind and block booking the Brookhart Bill will be made unnecessary.

From Washington comes the word that action of the Federal Trade Commission on its cease and desist order against Paramount is expected to depend upon the outcome of the Brookhart and other similar bills now before Congress. Paramount has offered to compromise on the order in accord with Trade Practice Conference action and agreeing to the dictum of the conference, as concerns its future policy on block booking and theatre acquisition.

It is likely, according to Washington advices, that the matter will be given a complete airing before committees when hearings get under way on the Brookhart and other block booking bills.

Seattle seems to be somewhat agitated against the Brookhart Bill. During the past week opponents to the bill have been making the rounds of the exchanges getting signatures on petitions against the measure on the basis of government intervention.

Cleveland's Campaign

On the other hand, Cleveland exhibitors are getting a big response to the petitions they are circulating in their theatres urging patrons to support the bill. It is claimed that approximately 20,000 signatures have been affixed to petitions distributed by the exhibitor members of the Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors Association. The petition explaining the bill as interpreted by the exhibitors, and asks the support of the public in securing its passage.

Salt Lake City reports a special meeting attended by about seventeen exhibitors for the purpose of considering the bill. No definite announcement was made at the conclusion of the meeting.

Contract Committee Again Meets

Major Part of Job Reported Still to Be Done; T. O. C. C. Sends Demands to Exhibitor Conference

SESSIONS of the National Joint Contract Committee were resumed in Chicago February 15th, after the eight-day recess. The distributor group, composed of R. H. Cochrane, Felix Feist and Ned E. Depinet, returned there and joined the exhibitor delegates who remained in Chicago during the recess. Phil Reisman, distributor delegate, was unable to go back to Chicago with them, his departure being delayed by the details of the Pathe reorganization.

R. F. Woodhull, president of the M. P. T. O. A., also went back to the scene of the conference.

As the sessions were resumed, strict secrecy as to developments continued to be maintained, but in some quarters it was said that the major part of the work remained to be done.

The Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce of New York made public a letter it sent to the exhibitor members of the contract committee, in which it was urged that the whole contract be written by an impartial judge, in case the producers would not make any concessions of consequence. The letter said, in part:

"We regret and sympathize with you in the tiring out process which has made this protracted adjournment necessary, in consequence of which you have been kept away from your various businesses. Without any official information having been received by us, we cannot see that the necessity of any delay on the part of this conference is necessary.

"We again point with pride to the fight we have put up in order to obtain for you the concession of a seventh arbitrator to settle your disputes, and we believe that, if this concession is properly insisted upon by you, it is simply a question of you stating your demands, and if they are not conceded, allowing them to be arbitrated.

"We again make our position very clear, that we believe we are entitled to the decision of the seventh arbitrator on any of the points which we have asked for and which are not conceded by the producers. We believe it is your duty that these points, as well as the demands of the other bona-fide exhibitor organizations, shall receive the consideration of the seventh arbitrator, and, if, as is usual, the producing delegation has once more made up its mind that no concessions of any consequence will be given, we are of the opinion that you should

Labor Union Considering National Motion Picture Chain

A NATION-WIDE chain of motion picture shows, to be used at first as an inducement to union men to attend meetings, is under consideration by officials of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. If successful, the exhibitions may be put on an admission-charge basis and a special effort made to have union men attend the shows operated and managed by their union brothers.

The plan was suggested by the Hollywood union, composed of studio electrical workers, who, it is understood, have found men with sufficient funds to underwrite the scheme. It contemplates the showing of pictures in the various labor temples, lodge rooms and meeting halls throughout the country, of which, it is claimed, there are some 6,500 here and in Canada.

So far, the plan is only in the formative state and officials of the brotherhood are awaiting the reaction which will follow the formal announcement that it is under consideration. It is contended that labor can easily operate a chain of exhibition halls and, eventually, production and distribution of its own pictures. The success of the unions with banks and the work now being done through the labor insurance company are cited as proof that the union men can do more than produce for others.

First Albany Bill Due

Hearing Scheduled Feb. 28 on Measure Relating to Admission of Unaccompanied Children

THE first hearing scheduled on any of the motion picture bills that have thus far been introduced during the present session of the New York State Legislature will take place at the state capitol in Albany, on Tuesday, February 28, according to an announcement made this week by Charles A. Freiberg, of Buffalo, a senator, and the sponsor of a bill relating to the admission of unaccompanied children to motion picture theatres in New York state.

The hearing will be held at the Senate cities committee room, and, although no definite hour has yet been fixed, it is expected that it will take place immediately after the close of the morning session of the Legislature. With the session due to adjourn on March 16, it is a hard matter to definitely fix an hour for a hearing, as some sessions run for an hour or more, while others run into the afternoon.

Judging from what one hears around the state capitol there will be plenty of fireworks at the hearing on the Freiberg bill. Although the introducer of the measure declares that judges of children's courts in western New York, as well as a number of women's welfare organizations, are in favor of the bill, Senator James L. Whitley, of Rochester, declares that he has received many letters from all over the state from persons and organizations who desire to be registered as being against the bill.

The bill provides that unaccompanied children, under the age of sixteen years, may be admitted to motion picture theatres of this state between 2 p.m. and 6 p.m., provided that the theatre itself maintains a matron, at its own expense, to watch out and have supervision over such children, who must occupy a section reserved entirely for them.

M. P. Capital Corp. Out

Withdraws from Industry Because of Tightening Up of Independent Production

CONSIDERABLE speculation has been indulged in in the motion picture field as to why the M. P. Capital Corporation announced its withdrawal from the industry so far as specializing in film financing is concerned. The announcement is now made that the reason for the company's curtailing of its activities in this direction is merely because competition in the industry has narrowed down to a point where it is virtually impossible for an independent producer to secure adequate returns on his investment. With the independents thus hampered in their production activities the company considered it best to function only as an investment banking trust.

Frank R. Wilson is at the head of the M. P. Capital Corporation and he is recognized as one of the foremost financiers in motion picture transactions. His company has a paid in capital of $3,000,000 and has been in continuous operation in the industry for several years.

During its period of activity in financing picture productions the corporation is announced to have loaned about $30,000,000 in the financing of some 250 independent pictures. Among many notable productions that were fianced by the corporation were several that ranked as real financial leaders. Included in these were a number of De Mille productions.

In announcing its withdrawal from the picture field the corporation is declared to have made a profit every year since it became affiliated with the industry, but feels that with a $3,000,000 investment returns are not commensurate with the risk involved.

N. Yamins Rebuilding His Empire Theatre

Nathan Yamins, of Fall River, two of whose theatres, the Empire and Rialto, were burned in the fire which destroyed part of the business section of that city, has started excavations for the reconstruction of the Empire.

The plans were ordered prepared for the new theatre before the ruins of the old had sufficintly cooled to allow their removal. The new theatre is to be considerably larger than the former Empire theatre and will embody many new ideas.

It is probable that reconstruction of the Rialto will be delayed until work is well along on the new Empire. The plans for the new theatre provide a seating capacity nearly equal to that of the old Empire and Rialto combined.

Kansas City Blaze May Cause New Fire Rule

A city ordinance in Kansas City compelling all theatres to be equipped with non-inflammable curtains and drops may result from the recent fire in the Isis theatre, suburban Kansas City house, which suffered $15,000 by fire shortly after it had been reopened after extensive redecorations.

The fire, according to Emmett Scanlon, fire inspector, started from friction created by the raising of new velvet drops, electric sparks resulting from the friction. Despite the fact that virtually all Kansas City motion picture theatres are fireproof and fire starting among the curtains could scarcely harm patrons in the theatre, the fire backstage could easily cause a panic which would result in the loss of many lives, Matt S. Shinnick, superintendent of buildings, said.

Contract Sessions Again on in Chicago insist that the whole contract be written by an impartial judge.

"Under no circumstances will this organization concede the right of giving up their privilege of trial by jury by agreeing to arbitration unless the article that this arbitration is based on has been impartially arbitrated.

"We tender you every assistance at our command to help you in this most responsible work that you have undertaken."

Proposes Admission Tax in Kentucky

A TEN per cent tax on tickets of admission to motion picture shows and other commercial enterprises was proposed in a bill prepared for introduction in the Kentucky House of Representatives, Frankfort, by Daniel Boone Smith, of Barbourville. Smith said the bill was intended to produce revenue to pay for free textbooks, favored by Governor Sampson, whose home county he represented.

Joseph P. Kennedy With Pathe As Advisor; Merger Denied

FBO Chief Declares Two Companies Remain Separate; Will Recommend Lower Production Costs to De Mille at Coast

OFFICIAL announcement was made late last week that Joseph P. Kennedy, President of F B O, is joining Pathe as a business advisor, without remuneration, to assist the latter company in working out its present situation.

Mr. Kennedy, in an interview with newspaper men, denied flatly that this move meant either a merger of Pathe with F B O or of F B O with Pathe.

Denial that any merger was planned was also made by Blair & Co., the Pathe bankers, who stated that Mr. Kennedy has become associated with Pathe at the request of officials of the latter company. He would continue to be associated with it, the announcement said, "as long as needed." Blair & Co. denied that there was to be any reorganization of Pathe.

Following the announcement, the Pathe A stock reacted sharply from its low of 8⅛ to 16 on Tuesday, and the bonds rallied from 50 to nearly 70.

"No stock in either company has changed hands," Mr. Kennedy said to the press." Pathe has not bought into F B O and F B O has not bought into Pathe. I will have no title with Pathe and will get no remuneration of any nature for my services, which are founded purely on a desire to help Pathe out of a situation."

For the next few weeks, Mr. Kennedy will devote himself to a study of the Pathe distribution system in the East, after which he will go to the Coast for conferences with Cecil B. De Mille.

He indicated in the interview that he believed it economically necessary for Pathe to make pictures at a lower production cost, and this is the recommendation he will make to De Mille.

It is understood the bankers will agree to provide funds for the filming of the Pathe 1928-9 schedule on this basis, after Mr. Kennedy has made his Coast trip.

The status of Elmer Pearson appeared still undecided when this issue went to press. In some quarters, it was said that, soon after his arrival in New York from the Coast this week, he would leave the Pathe organization, but this was not official.

It is reported that curtailment of personnel in the Pathe distribution department is already under way, some sixty salesmen having been let out. A number of employees at the Pathe home office in New York have also received notice, according to reports.

The designation of Mr. Kennedy as advisor to Pathe is without precedent in film history. It resulted chiefly, according to belief, because of his close friendship with J. J. Murdock, who still remains President of Pathe.

Plan Co-Operative Association

N. Y. Independent Theatre Circuits in Combine Headed by Aaron Sapiro; Buying Power $3,000,000 Annually

AARON SAPIRO is organizing a theatre owners' co-operative association in New York City, designed to purchase product for theatres represented in its membership. It will be composed of eleven large New York circuits of independents, which are declared to pay over $3,000,000 annually in film rentals. The new body will be known as the Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, Inc. Contracts have been drawn and, it is said, will be signed by the end of the week.

Sapiro is recognized as one of the leading organizers of co-operative movements in the United States. He was responsible for the organization of the Farmers co-operative movement, which gained him national prominence.

Of the eleven chains that will be brought together in this latest Sapiro movement, six have been ready to sign the agreement for some time past, and the other five have been conferring through the week.

Among the requirements demanded of members of the new association by Sapiro is one that the combined annual buying power of the charter members total at least $2,500,000 a year. This is considered a conservative figure, as the eleven chains included in the group are now said to purchase over $3,000,000 of pictures during each year.

So near was the entire project to culmination as this issue goes to press that a general meeting was planned for the Plaza in New York City on Saturday. At that time Sapiro will again go over all details with the charter members and will discuss future activities with prospective members.

Among the accomplishments the new organization hopes to achieve is to halt the tendency toward overseating by putting an end, as far as possible, to theatre "bootlegging."

Joseph P. Kennedy

Included in the by-laws of the new organization is one providing that no member will acquire nor build a theatre in any zone for a period of three years unless the board of eighteen directors of the Motion Picture Exhibitors Association first passes favorably upon the transaction. It is thought that in this way the building evil will be stamped out, and that an understanding can be reached with the affiliated circuits to the end that overbuilding can be eliminated.

Another evil that it is hoped will be remedied is the over-exhibition of a picture in the downtown houses, so that when it reaches the neighborhoods it has lost a good part of its drawing power.

Paving the way for easier financing for members in their expansion programs is another end the organization hopes to accomplish. Many times exhibitors find difficulty in obtaining loans because they have no assurance of a consistent supply of quality product, due to the competition or threatened competition of affiliated circuits.

It is the belief of Sapiro and those who are affiliated with him in the project that when the organization begins thoroughly to function its buying power will assure exhibitor members a source of pictures which

The Gifts in Cincinnati Passes Into New Hands

THE Gifts Theatre, located on Vine street, between Fifth and Sixth streets, Cincinnati, which for the past several years has been under management of I. Frankel, has passed into possession of the Keith-Albee-Harris-Libson-Heidingsfeld interests, following negotiations pending for several weeks. The house will be under general management of Isaac Libson, Cincinnati, and will form another link in the chain of Cincinnati theatres now controlled by the organization mentioned, which includes the Albee, Lyric, Capitol, Walnut, Strand, Family, Palace and Keith's.

After remaining dark for a week or two, during which time interior changes will be made, the house will reopen with pictures at popular prices. The theatre, seating 600, and known as the "cozy" type, derives its name from occupying the site of the old Gifts fire department. When abandoned for fire department use many years ago, the property was acquired by McMahon and Jackson, erstwhile theatre operators, subsequently passing to control of Frankel.

New York Theatre Owners Plan Combine can be depended upon from year to year to make financing considerably easier.

The eleven circuits said to be interested in the new project are declared to control 95 per cent of the theatres in their respective districts. They are:

Harry and Billy Brandt and Rachmil and Rinzler, in Brooklyn and East New York; Joelson and Suchman, Lawrence Bolognino and Grob and Knobel, in the Bronx; Mayer and Schneider, Charles Steiner and Leo Brecher, in the East Side and Harlem; Hamburger and Springer and Leo Brecher, in the Broadway district (above 72nd St.); Henry Siegel, Small & Strausberg and the Brandts, in Brooklyn; and Arthur Hirsch, in the Bronx.

Adaptors Working on New First National Scripts

The scenario and editorial department of the First National Burbank studio is whipping a dozen new scripts into shape for early production. The current week will see two or three of these new pictures launched.

The story by Edmund Goulding entitled "Tomorrow" is being adapted to follow "Lilac Time," Colleen Moore's new picture. Bess Meredith is working on an adaptation of Lajos Biro's script, "The Yellow Lily." James T. O'Donahue is doing the screen story for a new Milton Sills vehicle, as yet untitled, while Gerald Duffy is finishing the adaptation of Fannie Hurst's story, "Roulette." Barney Glazer is engaged with the script of the Kenyon Nicholson play, "The Barker," Harry Thew and Howard Green are occupied with the adaptation and continuity of "The Boss of Little Arcady," Lajos Biro is adapting Sir Phillip Gibbs' "Out of the Ruins," and Philip Bartholomae is adapting a story called "Sailor Love."

Marion Jackson is preparing the continuity on her own scenario for "The Royal American," Al Cohen is putting the finishing touches on his adaptation of the play, "The Butter and Egg Man," and Barney Glazer is doing the adaptation of "Baby Face," another future vehicle for Colleen Moore."

First National and Strand Conducting Straw Vote

A straw vote on the public's preference for the Democratic and Republican nominees for the presidency is being conducted by First National and Joseph Plunkett, manager of the Strand in New York City, the results of the straw vote appearing daily in the New York World. Ballots bearing the names of five of the leading candidates of each party were handed to patrons at each of the seven daily performances of "The Patent Leather Kid," starting Saturday, February 11. The marked ballots are placed in a box in the lobby of the theatre.

Selwyn Buys Edith Cavell Film for U. S. Showings

Arch Selwyn has purchased the exclusive American and Canadian rights to "Dawn," the English moving picture depicting the life and death of Edith Cavell, the nurse executed during the war. Mr. Selwyn is planning to sail from London within a fortnight with several prints of the film.

"Dawn," produced by Herbert Wilcox, stars Sybil Thorndyke. The picture is eight reels in length. All the scenes are said to have been taken in Belgium. The film has aroused much protest in Germany.

"The Street Angel" Opens at Globe on March 5

The Globe Theatre will have the premiere of the Fox Films special, "The Street Angel," on Monday evening, March 5. Fox has leased the New York house for 32 weeks. At the present time, "The Student Prince" is playing there. Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell are co-starred in "The Street Angel."

Palace Hip in Seattle Again Bomb Target

FOR the second time within three weeks, The Palace Hip, downtown picture and musical revue house in Seattle, Washington, was the target for a bombing shortly after midnight one evening last week. Windows in nearby buildings and stores were shattered, and considerable damage was done to the interior of the house in an entranceway to the stage.

Just three weeks ago, a bomb was exploded in the alley behind the theatre, breaking windows throughout the neighborhood. The Palace Hip, one of the chain of Sterling Theatres, Inc., owned and operated by John Danz, is run on a non-union policy, and because of the many past differences between Mr. Danz and the unions the bomb outrages are believed to have been perpetrated by sympathizers with union operators, stage hands and musicians.

In and Out of Town

DARRYL FRANCIS ZANUCK, chief production assistant to Jack L. Warner, is again in New York after a six weeks' vacation in Europe.

AL JOLSON, star of "The Jazz Singer," expects to leave New York next week for Palm Beach to resume his vacation, which will probably last until it is time for him to begin his next Warner Bros. vehicle at the Hollywood studio.

SAM E. MORRIS, general manager of distribution for Warner Bros., is back again at his desk in New York after a visit of a week in Chicago.

MORRIS SAFIER, head of the extended run department of Warner Bros., has left the New York office for Cleveland. He will visit from that city others in the middle west in the interests of "The Jazz Singer."

IRVING THALBERG, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio executive, and his wife, Norma Shearer, are planning to sail from New York February 21 for Europe, provided the actress has finished work on her resent starring production. They intend visiting London, Paris and Berlin and expect to be gone for nearly three months.

JOHNNIE DOWNS, who was for several years a leading member of "Our Gang," and Mary Kornman, juvenile feminine lead, are now enjoying a vacation from work in New York. They will be featured in a forthcoming vaudeville tour.

W. C. BOOTHBY, financial comptroller of First National, returned last week aboard the Berengaria from a European trip which lasted four months.

W. E. CALLAWAY, southern sales manager for First National, is back from a four weeks' trip through the country, during which he visited most of the company's exchanges in the south.

MAX ALEXANDER, eastern sales representative of the Stern Film Corporation, has just returned to New York from his first sales trip.

BEN LYON, a member of the cast of "Hell's Angels," arrived in New York February 18 on the Century from Los Angeles.

RICHARD A. ROWLAND, general and production manager of First National, left New York last Wednesday for the company's studio at Burbank, where he will remain for several weeks conferring with Watterson R. Rothacker, managing director of the Burbank studio, Al Rockett, west coast production manager, and other officials.

ff EO. ROTSKY, manager of the Palace Theatre, Montreal, one of the best-known showmen in Canada, was in town last week.

ELMER HARRIS, newly appointed scenario editor for Columbia, arrived in New York last week for a series of conferences with Joe Brandt and Jack Cohn regarding the film program for next season. While in New York he will arrange for the showing of "The Great Necker," his new play, at a Broadway theatre.

Threatens to Restore Ontario Ticket Tax

BECAUSE the complaint was made to him that the exhibitors of Ontario were not passing on the reduction in the Provincial Amusement Tax, in the abolishment of the tax on tickets up to 25 cents provided last year, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, premier of Ontario, has threatened to restore the tax in its entirety so that the Province would get the revenue. The premier declared that the exhibitors should reduce their admission prices to the extent of the tax cut on the tickets up to 25 cents, so that the public could have the advantage. If they did not do so, the tax would go back on.

At the time this warning to exhibitors was made—just before the formal opening of the 1927 session of the Ontario Legislature at Toronto on February 9—a deputation representing 12 women organizations waited upon the premier to ask for the appointment of women inspectors for Ontario theatres and particularly for the enforcement of the regulations pertaining to the admission of children under 16 years to theatres. They also asked for a closer supervision of theatre matrons.

Premier Ferguson intimated that there was no likelihood for any change in the regulations governing the admission of children under the age of 16 in Ontario.

First National Releasing Four During March

Four features will be released during the month of March by First National. They are "Mad Hour," to be released March 4, in which Sally O'Neill, Donald Reed, Larry Kent, Alice White and Lowell Sherman are featured players; "Burning Daylight," to come on March 11, in which Milton Sills is the star, and his wife, Doris Kenyon, his leading lady; "The Heart of a Follies Girl," to arrive on March 18, in which Billie Dove is the featured player, supported by Larry Kent, and "The Big Noise," set for March 25, in which Chester Conklin is the principal player.

Universal to Make Third Series of "Collegians"

A new series of "The Collegians," the two-reelers of college life starring George Lewis, Dorothy Gulliver and Eddie Phillips, is planned by Universal. Work on the first production of the new series will be started at an early date. The opening picture will be made at Big Bear, California, and will be a snow picture. The company will go on location just as soon as Lewis has finished his assignment in "Give and Take."

Dorothy Mackaill to Star in "The Whip"

Dorothy Mackaill will be the leading player in "The Whip," which Sam E. Rork will produce for First National from the old Drury Lane melodrama. The picture is to go into production early in March, with John Francis Dillon wielding the megaphone.

Europe Can Use Shorts

Despite Large Number Now Shown, Report Says Field Offers Wider Possibilities

ACCORDING to a report filed by N. D. Golden, of the motion picture section of the Department of Commerce, there is ample opportunity for the makers of short subjects to materially increase their consumption output in the markets of Europe. This is said despite the preponderance of American short subjects screened in European countries. The annual average of these is said to be about 8,250.

Of the short subjects shown abroad, according to the report, nearly all are of American origin, particularly those of one and two reels in length. This applies generally with the possible exception of those shown in Germany and Italy. The proportion of American-made short subjects shown abroad is estimated at approximately 90 per cent.

Golden reports that Greece requires the smallest number of short films of any country in Europe, with approximately 150, while the United Kingdom shows the largest number, about 800 annually. The average is reported as about 360 for each country, making the grand total about 8,250. This does not mean that that many different pictures are shown, as many of the same short subjects are shown in nearly all of the different countries.

The report says, in part:

"Europe offers an excellent market for American short-subject films. But, regardless of the country discussed, the feature film in Europe, as in America, is the backbone of the motion picture industry, whereas the unsystematic manner in which short films are now handled clearly indicates that they are used mainly as fillers. In a few first-class houses, however, the short film receives some distinction.

"Whether the chief cause of the present lack of appreciation of the short film lies with the producer, the distributor, the exhibitor, or the public is hard to determine. True it is that short-film rental prices are insignificant (except for German educational shorts), thus tending to discourage distributors, who can hardly hope to profit from them. Then, too, the exhibitor, with high theatre taxation, is unable to advertise his short-subject exhibitions as he does his features, with the general result that the public is indifferent to them."

Sales Congress Opened

International Delegates Attend New York Event Which Is Sponsored by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

WITH delegates on hand from many different parts of the world, the first International Film Sales Congress sponsored by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, got under way at the Hotel Astor in New York on Wednesday, February 15th. It will continue in session for the next week.

The program for the gathering includes an exchange of ideas on various problems of production and distribution with leading executives from the various countries expressing their views. Visits were also included to Broadway's leading motion picture and legitimate playhouses.

The first of the foreign representatives to arrive in New York for the Congress were David Lake, general sales manager for M-G-M in Australia and New Zealand, and Benjamin Fineberg, district manager for the company in Brazil. Other notable sales representatives in attendance include George Forman, Chile; P. M. Gonzales, Porto Rico; George Fatt, Guatemala; T. Nielson, Denmark; Allen Byre and H. Gunderlock, France; P. N. Brinch, Germany; J. C. Squier, England; J. J. Letsch, Belgium; F. L. D. Strengholt, Holland; F. Curioni, Italy; Dave Lewis, Portugal; Raoul Lemat, Sweden; Louis Goldstein, Cuba; A. L. Kalb, Mexico.

A number of messages from important personages in various parts of the world were read to the convention delegates. R. S. Wallace, Vice-Chancellor in New South Wales, cabled, in part, as follows:

"I am glad to learn that the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation is bringing together an International Congress to discuss the problems of the motion picture industry. The corporation is to be heartily congratulated on its initiative and foresight. I have been chief censor of films for the Commonwealth of Australia for seven years and it has been borne in upon me that many of the problems connected with the industry will be solved when the producers of films get an international outlook."

Other messages of commendation were received from H. E. Bratten, Minister for Trade and Customs in Australia; A. H. Messenger of the Department of Internal Affairs, New Zealand; W. R. Kimball, of the De Luxe Theatre Co., Ltd.; Fuller-Hayward Theatres, Ltd.; V. J. Howe, of the Federated Picture Showmen's Association, and R. V. Wilson, of the Motion Picture Distributors of Australia.

Columbia Signs Bosworth for Another Sea Role

Hobart Bosworth, star of Columbia's "The Blood Ship," has been signed by that company to star in another story of adventure on the high seas, which will bear the title of "After the Storm." The film, scheduled for early shooting, is to be given an imposing supporting cast, it is said.

A definite title has been allotted Betty Compson's first starring vehicle for Columbia, a screen adaptation of "The Adventuress"; it will hereafter be known as "The Desert Bride." Walter Long will handle the direction of the new production for which Elmer Harris did the adaptation from the screen story by Ewart Adamson.

Paramount Pays Off Bank Loans for First Time In Three Years

THE Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation is entirely paid up on its bank loans for the first time in three years, according to information just at hand, and the company is in an exceptionally strong financial position. In paying off the final loans Paramount anticipated payment of $1,000,000 of purchase money obligations which are not due until next October.

According to the preliminary report issued recently by Paramount the net earnings for 1927 were $8,050,000, the largest annual profit in the history of the company. The figures represent a jump of approximately $3,000,000 over the company's average earnings for the three years from 1924 to 1926.

The loans from banks, which are now reported having been met in full, were reported as of July 2, 1927 as aggregating $15,985,882.

British Report Sums Up Progress of 1927

Defines Conditions in Quota Law and Tells Activities of Production During Year

C. J. NORTH, chief of the motion picture section, Specialties Division of the Department of Commerce, has forwarded a copy of a special report analyzing motion picture conditions in England for the year 1927 as compiled by C. Grant Isaacs, assistant trade commissioner of London, England.

The report, after summarizing at length the conditions of the new quota law, gives many interesting particulars regarding progress made during the past year. With regard to the quota law the report recites that in order to qualify as a British film under the act, a picture must comply with the following requirements:

''It must have been made by a British subject or by a company registered in the British Empire, the majority of the directors of which are British subjects. The studio scenes must have been photographed in a studio in the British Empire. This does not apply during the first year of the scheme, as it is thought that there may be a scarcity of studio space. The author of the scenario must have been a British subject.

''At least 75 per cent of the salaries and wages paid in the making of the pictures must have been paid to British subjects, but one foreign actor or actress, or a foreign producer may be engaged, and the salary paid to such person need not be counted in the 25 per cent allowed to be paid to foreigners under the clause.''

Gangster Story Bought by Fox Films

''ME. GANGSTER," the story by Charles Francis Coe which ran serially in The Saturday Evening Post, has bene purchased by Fox Film Corporation for release next season. The story is of a ward-heeling politician.

The current Broadway stage successes and other sources of screen material were culled last week by Winfield R. Sheehan, vice-president and general manager of Fox, who has been in New York supervising the opening of "Four Sons," the Fox special.

Continuing, the report reads:

''American production accounted by far for the major proportion of the films exhibited in Great Britain. It is estimated that fully 80 to 90 per cent of the films exhibited in Great Britain during the year were produced in the United States. Distribution of films in this territory might be divided into three classes. Approximately 50 per cent of the films exhibited are distributed by American companies, or, that is, the direct representatives or distributors of American companies operating in Great Britain. Second, approximately 30 per cent are distributed by British companies distributing American films and about 20 per cent is accounted for by British and other foreign films which are generally distributed by British renter companies. Without access to statements of the box office returns, it would be almost impossible to definitely determine the value of this market for American films.

''The total box office receipts taken in by cinemas throughout Great Britain is estimated to aggregate approximately £33,000,000 to £35,000,000 a year.

''It is estimated that the total numbers of features released for exhibition during 1927 was approximately 800. Of this quantity there were approximately 600 American features released in Great Britain during 1927. The major proportion of the American film trade is divided between about eight well-known American companies.

''The total footage of film submitted for censorship during 1926 amounted to 6,288,176 feet, embracing 1,718 subjects. Of these 1,384 were passed for universal exhibition, and 334 for public exhibition with the restrictive ''A'' certificate, while four films were entirely rejected. In addition, 18 films were submitted for censorship but were held in abeyance and no certificate will be issued for these unless certain drastic alterations are made in the themes. The ''A'' certificate approves a film only for adult exhibition.

''The principal points enforced by the British censors are an observance of certain religious and political customs, a proper presentation of British military organizations, and a general censorship of themes relating to social problems, sex, crime and cruelty. Considering the quantity of films censored during the first eleven months of this year, it would appear that the total footage will be appreciably larger than during 1926. For the period January to December, 1927, inclusive, 6,105,431 feet of film were approved by the British Board of Film Censors. This quantity embraced 1,637 subjects.

The schedule of British film production varies, but it is stated about 47 British films of four or more reels in length were started in production during 1927. One organization (Federation of British Industries) which has actively sponsored British film production, estimate that over sixty feature films were actually started in production during 1927. This estimate, however, includes those films that were started in 1926, but were not finished until 1927.

''It is very difficult to accurately estimate the average cost of these British films, but the cost ranges from a minimum of approximately £10,000 to a maximum of £30,000 per film. As yet, British studios have not undertaken the production of costly films, or, that is, films of the £100,000 or £150,000 class. There are, too, very few film stars of any importance. Thus far, British producers have mostly sought to engage well known artists of the legitimate stage and capitalize on his or her established name. It is believed this practice proved a failure in the United States and has been discontinued. Only a few exclusively film stars have been developed in England, and in this respect the film is practically open and free of serious competition, as is the case in Hollywood.''

Rogers Adds Three New Men to Lumas Force

While touring Lumas exchanges, Budd Rogers, vice-president of Lumas, is also engaged in aumenting his sales force. He has engaged Jack Sampson, in Chicago, and E. J. O'Donnell, in Cleveland. He has also signed Albert Alltvater as associate manager, with Jack Weil, of the branch in St. Louis.

Rogers is planning to meet the Gotham franchise holders in the Kansas City territory in Kansas City. Jack Adams, of Dallas, and H. K. Buchanan, of Oklahoma City, will attend the meeting.

Dynamite Blast Damages the Idlewood, St. Louis

Police of East St. Louis, Ill., and the Sheriff of St. Clair county are investigating an explosion of dynamite that damaged the Idlewild Theatre, 2200 Illinois Avenue, East St. Louis, shortly after midnight on February 2. The police are inclined to attribute the blast to labor difficulties between Grover C. Thomas, proprietor of the theatre, and union organizations.

The theatre, a neighborhood house, was damaged to the extent of $200.

E. E. Fulton Company Reorganized to Distribute Supplies Throughout the Country

AT MEETINGS of the stockholders of the reorganized E. E. Fulton Company, one of the pioneer theatre equipment concerns with headquarters in Chicago, held in New York City, the following board of directors was elected:

C. H. Fulton, A. G. Jarmin, F. A. Van Husan, Frank Meyer, Chas. C. Moskowitz, Pat Casey.

Immediately following the first meeting of the stockholders, the directors held a meeting and elected officers of the corporation. These officers now are:

C. H. Fulton, President; Pat Casey, Vice-president; F. A. Van Husan, Vice-president and Salesmanager; Frank Meyer, Secretary; A. G. Jarmin, Treasurer.

The reorganized company will distribute theatre supplies and function as a theatre servicing organization on a national scale. The expansion program calls for the opening of branch stores in cities throughout the United States to supply theatres in all territories. The Fulton Company now operates branches in St. Louis, Indianapolis, Milwaukee and New York, in addition to the home store in Chicago, where the general offices and manufacturing plant are located.

Several of the products distributed by the company are of its own manufacture and are marketed under the brand name of "Fulco" products. Standard equipment apparatus and furnishings of other manufacturers are also distributed by Fulton.

C. H. Fulton has been in charge of the company's affairs for some time past. Mr. Van Husan and A. G. Jarmin have been associated with him in the business and will continue as the other chief executives of the expanded company.

Equipment House Launched 22 Years Ago

History of Company Organized in 1906 Reflects Development of Picture Theatres in this Country

EVER since the pioneer days of moving pictures the house of Fulton has been actively associated with the motion picture business and has kept pace with the progress of the industry, playing an important part in its development.

E. E. Fulton's introduction to the industry came in 1906 when he became manager of the Enterprise Optical Company of Chicago which, under his supervision, branched out and became one of the big factors in the projection machine business.

Leaving Enterprise Optical Company in 1910, Mr. Fulton became special representative for Lubin Films, also jobbing projection machines and supplies. His keen, appraising mind held a deep conviction that here was the beginning of a mammoth business as yet unfathomed and unsurveyed. He foresaw the coming of magnificent, commodious theatres enlisting the talents of high grade men of business and artists of renown. Believing this, his policies and activities were shaped to harmonize with everything tending to advance and dignify the business. Time has proven the clarity of his vision and the soundness of his deductions. In spite of many handicaps his business grew and prospered, and E. E. Fulton called on his sons Carl and Ralph, who took their places at their father's side, so that they too may be regarded as pioneers in the equipment business.

Mr. Fulton developed many ideas which are still in use in the supply business. He was the originator of the model theatre, and built the first one where his organization, the E. E. Fulton Company, could demonstrate to prospective purchasers, equipment under actual working conditions.

He was a progressive business man and as such made extensive use of advertising, both in trade papers and direct by mail, and compiled the first theatre catalogue placed in the hands of theatre owners. It was known as "Fulton's A to Z List," and created much interest in the field.

Shortly before this time the growth of the E. E. Fulton Company made it necessary to add another floor to their quarters, and to install light manufacturing equipment for the repair of projectors and the manufacture of Fulton accessories. This was the forerunner of the well known E. E. Fulton Company Factory, which specializes in Fulco accessories, and which has become internationally known as an accessory manufacturing concern.

The sale of the E. E. Fulton Company to the United Theatre Equipment Corporation, took place in 1917 when the latter took over some fifteen supply houses throughout the country, but in 1918 Mr. Fulton, together with his three sons, bought back the corporate name and rights of the E. E. Fulton Company, to re-enter the manufacture of equipment and accessories.

CARL H. FULTON, with his father-in law, A. G. Jarmin, in 1920 organized the Fulco Sales Company. Shortly after this, E. E. Fulton was taken sick and his responsibilities were divided among his three sons, with Carl acting as head of the organization. A little less than a year later E. E. Fulton passed away.

Following the incorporation of the Fulco Sales Company, that organization soon became distributor for many of the prominent firms that had distributed through the E. E. Fulton Company up to 1917. Ralph joined his brother Carl in 1921 and the business showed a continuous and substantial growth.

Ralph Fulton was stricken by serious illness in the spring of 1926, which resulted fatally in April of that year. He was deeply mourned by all who knew him for his kindly spirit and the worth of his friendship.

In March, 1922, a branch office was opened in St. Louis and in February, 1924, another branch was opened in Indianapolis, Indiana.

FOR a number of years the Fulton brothers had discussed plans for consolidating and reestablishing the Fulco Sales Company and the E. E. Fulton Company, as an interlocking unit under the name of the E. E. Fulton Company, as founded by their father, E. E. Fulton. This plan developed into a reality on July 1, 1925. The same month the organization moved into its new quarters at 1018 S. Wabash Avenue, where the main office and Chicago branch store have since been located; the store and office with their model theatre and organ school are service features of such practical worth and convenience that thev have won the admiration of service specialists in other business fields as well as theatre owners, managers, projectionists and musicians.

Quick to perceive changing conditions, C. H. Fulton soon realized the need for an enlarged organization of a nation wide sort and promptly proceeded to evolve a greater E. E. Fulton Company. Thus a reorganized corporation conceived on coast to coast lines became an accomplished fact in January, 1928, with increased capital and organized to function through main and branch offices and sales representatives advantageously situated.

Throughout the pages of this special edition further details may be gleaned concerning this organization, and its personnel, its policy and its facilities for service.

Announcing---

The Reorganization of the E. E. Fulton Company

THE tendency today in the world of commerce and industry is to build business organizations upon national lines, equipped with the most advanced facilities for efficient and economical distribution of commodities and for rendering service over far-flung areas.

In harmony with the spirit of the times the E. E. Fulton Company recently effected reorganization upon a basis which realizes long cherished ideals of expanded activities and improved service.

As a pioneer in the motion picture field we have enjoyed from the beginning a steady, consistent growth and it is our ambition to make the house of Fulton as intimately and favorably known to the most remotely placed exhibitor as it is and has been to our closest customers.

Thus a reorganization plan based upon sound principles of modern business methods brings truly national scope of activities to a concern which for years has enjoyed a national reputation as "the department store of the motion picture trade."

It is not without full appreciation of the enlarged responsibilities entailed that we embark upon this program of expansion. We face the future with confidence born of a sound and carefully drawn plan for the expansion of business policies and practices, which years of experience have tested to the fullest satisfaction of the institution we are privileged to serve—the motion picture theatre.

A BACKGROUND of experience and demonstrated capacity to undertake the entire detail and responsibility of equipping completely, or partially, the largest as well as the most modest theatre project to the complete satisfaction and financial advantage of clients we have served, is the basis of our solicitation to the many new clients an expanded organization now enables us to serve.

Our various services will become promptly available to existing or prospective exhibitors everywhere through a series of branch offices and sales representatives to be established presently. Zone offices will soon be opened in Atlanta and San Francisco and to these regional headquarters will gradually be added numerous supplementary service stations and sales representatives in important cities following the creation of the zone offices mentioned.

Our plan of representation is indicated by the following list of branch offices which we propose to establish:

Chicago, Ill.
St. Louis, Mo.
Indianapolis, Ind.
New York
San Francisco, Calif.
Atlanta, Ga.
Philadelphia, Pa.
Cleveland, Ohio
Boston, Mass.
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Detroit, Mich.
Omaha, Nebr.
Jacksonville, Fla.
Milwaukee, Wis.
Kansas City, Mo.
Dallas, Texas

To which will be added service stations in Washington, D. C.

Denver, Colo.
Seattle, Wash.
Minneapolis, Minn.
Los Angeles, Calif.
New Orleans, La.

Sales representatives at Oklahoma City, Okla.

Salt Lake City, Utah
Albany, N. Y.
Baltimore, Md.
Tampa, Fla.
Des Moines, Ia.
Portland, Ore.
Buffalo, N. Y.
Charlotte, N. C.
Memphis, Tenn.
Cincinnati, Ohio

OUR well equipped factory continues to supply the well known line of Fulco specialties, and is being enlarged to produce additional items of unusual interest and usefulness related to picture theatre outfitting. Details of office, store or factory developments will be reported from time to time and in the meantime please bear in mind that our Chicago headquarters and our St. Louis, Indianapolis, New York and Milwaukee branches—each in charge of an experienced staff—is well prepared to serve you. The personnel of the Fulton establishment, composed of seasoned executives and assistants, understand your requirements and the need for prompt, efficient attention to your orders.

It is our aim and purpose to cater to the entire field, and to the end that we may serve all—the largest organizations and the smallest individual theatre operator—we have concentrated upon the development of a system which will realize our ideal of intimate contact and personal interest in the equipment needs of all, and to all we pledge personal, conscientious and dependable service.

Well Known Equipment Men to Direct Reorganized Company

C. H. Fulton, F. A. Van Husan and A. G. Jarmin in Charge of Affairs of E. E. Fulton Company as National Distributor

THE conspicuous achievements of many prominent business men are frequently traced directly to a capacity for discounting the future and the energy to carry through ambitious undertakings.

Among the traits possessed by C. H. Fulton, experienced but youthful chief of the greater Fulton Company, are these qualities of leadership—vision and energy. The ability to sense the trend of events and to act promptly upon the most logical and most desirable course in anticipation of eventualities frequently has evidenced itself in C. H. Fulton's administration of the affairs of the company he heads.

The announcement of the reorganization of the company on national lines brings to fruition an ambition upon which he has lavished his best efforts as a business man thoroughly experienced in his line and imbued with the spirit of modern methods of increased efficiency, economy and service through the agency of an organization operating on a large scale.

C. H. Fulton made his entry into the motion picture business with his father, E. E. Fulton, a pioneer in the motion picture theatre equipment business. Carl Fulton began as an operator, later working into sales work, in which he established a highly creditable record for concluding big contracts.

He later became more deeply interested in theatre operation, and for a while severed business connections with his father and brother and established himself as an exhibitor, operating several theatres in northern Michigan. This enterprise was abruptly terminated when he entered military service at the beginning of the World War.

After the death of the elder Fulton and his brother Ralph, C. H. Fulton took upon himself the full burden of management. It was a responsibility which brought to sharper focus his capacity for management and direction and he has guided the concern skillfully. Foreseeing the need of reorganization he plunged into the ambitious task of developing into a detailed plan his well defined object. With characteristic energy and directness he formulated a plan of expansion on national lines which was convincingly presented to and promptly accepted by his company.

C. H. Fulton is widely known in the motion picture trade and has won many friends in every branch of the business. Added to his capabilities as a business man of the type who makes friends, is a forceful personality and qualities which inspire confidence.

In connection with the announcement of the reorganization of the company, Mr. Fulton said:

"We have created a greatly expanded organization and our aim is to reach every exhibitor in this broad land and to serve him in a way to merit his complete satisfaction. We want to make it known that our establishment is not simply a supply house from which needed articles may be purchased. Rather, it is an institution devoted to the interests of exhibitors in all that concerns the outfitting of the picture playhouse. Our model theatre for instance affords the established and prospective exhibitor a visual demonstration of what a properly equipped and appointed showhouse should be and what is possible to accomplish with the aid of special electrical and mechanical devices as well as with many elements designed for decorative effect.

"We are glad to be of service to anyone who is or who contemplates becoming an exhibitor by extending our assistance and advice upon any problem in this line which he may offer."

F. A. Van Husan, vice president and sales manager is comparatively a newcomer in the house of Fulton, but he is neither a stranger to them nor a novice in this line. In fact, Van counts himself a pioneer in the moving picture field and considering the short span of years bridging the history of the art, he is indeed a veteran, having served various interests of prominence in the motion picture industry.

After thirteen years of service with Carl Laemmle he established the Western Theatre Supply Co. on his own at Omaha, selling out to U. T. E. six years later. About this time he became vice-president and general sales manager of the Wm. H. Swanson Theatre supply business, which was later acquired by Argus Enterprises. He then re-acquired Western T. S. Co., but within a short period sold the same to the National Theatre Supply Co., and shortly thereafter, entered the E. E. Fulton Organization.

His vigorous personality is well and favorably known to inumerable friends in all branches of the business and his intimate knowledge of theatre equipment is an asset of real worth to the organization and a factor of service efficiency in catering satisfactorily to the needs of established or prospective exhibitors.

Mr. Van Husan has prepared for the use of Fulton branch offices very complete sales portfolios in which are compiled trade and technical information, costs, prices, etc., covering every item of machine, accessory, supply and miscellaneous listed by them. Thus equipped, every branch office or sales representative is prepared to supply full information and quotations with the same promptness and accuracy as may be had from the main office.

THE Fulton Co.'s executive staff includes no member with greater business experience than the treasurer of the company, Mr. A. G. Jarmin, and his associates quite naturally turn to him for counsel and advice, especially when final decision is to be made upon matters of importance.

The fine abilities which have brought him a generous measure of success have been guided by high standards of business and personal ethics. As a personality he is first of all a kindly man, always courteous, ever considerate and tactful. Gentlemanly in bearing and optimistic in the best sense of that much-abused term, he inspires confidence and wins friendliness from those with whom he comes into contact in business as well as social activities.

For an unbroken period of twenty-six years Mr. Jarmin has been secretary-treasurer of the Joslyn Mfg. & Supply Co., and is in a large degree responsible for the continued prosperity of that concern whose annual sales have increased from $50,000 to well over $10,000,000. From small beginnings the company has expanded to national proportions with a number of factories and branch offices.

Mr. Jarmin is the author of an accounting system of extraordinary simplicity and thoroughness, suitable for any kind of business and so flexible as to be usable by a one man concern as readily as by big business. Needless to say, Fulton's main and branch offices function under this system which maintains all transactions of the business in a state of perfect accuracy, clarity and orderliness, to the advantage of themselves and their customers.

Theatre Equipment Distribution on a National Scale

FROM the main headquarters at 1018 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, the affairs of the E. E. Fulton Company will be directed. The centralization at these headquarters will extend to the purchase of supplies, which except for minor items required for the local needs of branch offices will be under the direct supervision of the Home Office executives.

The executive staff, composed of Carl H. Fulton, president: F. A. Van Husan, vice president and sales manager; and A. G. Jarmin, treasurer, will be assisted by the following departmental heads:

F. McMillan, Manager, Manufacturing Division
Carl Krumrei, Field Representative
H. C. Stiff, Engineering
Jacob Mitchell, Purchasing
S. J. Vail, Credits
Undine Fulton, Perpetual Inventory
Elma Hands, Bookkeeping
George Kegley, Orders
E. E. Hart, Factory

Present established branch offices will continue under existing management, viz.: The St. Louis office in charge of Manager W. C. Earle and the Indianapolis branch headed by J. F. Bommerscheim. The recently opened Milwaukee store is managed by P. A. Rogers.

As rapidly as may be possible, zone offices, and branch offices will be opened in various parts of the country as indicated in announcement at the beginінg of this special section.

These zone and branch offices will be managed by seasoned executives, thoroughly experienced in this line and of a calibre to assure intelligent, adequate service to all customers.

Announcement will be made of developments as they occur, including opening dates and personnel of new branches. Service stations and sales representatives will be provided plenteously in accordance with carefully worked out plans to make it easy and convenient for any exhibitor or intending exhibitor no matter where located to be served promptly, efficiently and adequately.

The Fulton Co. will announce opening of branch offices with name of branch manager and staff as promptly as occasion allows. Their present offices at St. Louis and Indianapolis continue under direction of W. C. Earle at the Missouri metropolis and J. F. Bommerscheim in the Hoosier capital. Neither of these men need any introduction to the trade. Mr. Earle is now in his fifth year with Fulton, having joined them after a fourteen-year connection with General Electric Co. He has made the St. Louis establishment solidly successful and the business under his guidance continues to show a healthful, substantial growth.

J. F. Bommerscheim knows and is known not only to every exhibitor in his territory but also to scores of them in all parts of the country. He was connected with the house of Fulton long before the days of U. T. E. He knows the kind of service that every exhibitor appreciates, because he is a former exhibitor himself, and he therefore sees to it that his customers have no cause for worry or complaint.

Each branch office will carry stocks adequate to the requirements of the territory served and a system of supply has been worked out that will enable every branch to serve all customers with a degree of promptness and efficiency never attained heretofore.

Establishment of branches under the plan contemplated by Fulton has already begun as evidenced by the new store opened in Milwaukee recently at 151 Seventh St. in the heart of the district harboring various establishments associated with the movie industry.

An adequate stock of all sorts of staples will be found there and exhibitors' wants will be cared for by Mr. P. A. Rogers, who understands the exhibitors' problems perfectly.

A branch store has been opened in New York. This is located at 115 west 45th St., with Carl Krumrei, field representative temporarily in charge.

THE personnel of the Fulton organization includes few individuals who have had the extensive experience credited to the head of their purchasing department, Mr. Jacob Mitchell.

For an uninterrupted period of twenty years he has labored in one branch or another of the movie industry, working under the banners of Carl Laemmle, U. T. E., Argus Industries and several others. Arriving in Chicago recently he was promptly offered a place at Fulton headquarters, where his experience and general fitness make him a valued member of the Fulton service crew.

Service features which have been developed by the company over a period of several years and which are carried out in the various departments of the main distribution office at Chicago are to be extended to the branches as rapidly as new stores in other cities are opened.

The entire direction of the company's operations is carried on from Chicago, and according to plans which officials of the organization have worked out in anticipation of the extension of their activities, there will be established a system which will make it possible to assure every service available to the buyer dealing directly with the home store in Chicago to the exhibitors located in distant cities through contacts with the branches in their territories. Particular attention has been given to the development of a system to cover stocking and facilities for rapid delivery of supplies.

Model Theatre an Equipment Showroom

Unique Application of Modern Merchandising Feature Gives Demonstration of How Furnishings Look and Work by Supplying Realistic Setting

An eminent economist in a recently published article dealing with the part that advertising plays in the modern economic scheme, gives his sanction to the contention that advertising is a time-saver for the ultimate consumer because it acquaints him with all the information necessary to an intelligent selection of the articles for which he has need.

As a means of conserving the time of the buyer and reducing the effort involved in selecting articles of furniture or equipment, the modern show-room serves a similar purpose, because it enables a buyer to see the article under conditions which duplicate or at least simulate those which will obtain when the article is put into use in the home, the office or whatever place it is destined to occupy. Thus the effort of visualizing—or, as is in many instances the case, the effort of trying to visualize—how the article will work and how it will look when it reaches its ultimate destination, is removed from the shoulders of the buyer.

The modern show-room, with its realistic setting, has been found one of the best guarantees against disappointments because an article when delivered "doesn't work" or "doesn't look" as the buyer had thought it was going to when he selected it.

This modern idea of merchandising is applied to the business of theatre equipment and furnishing by the E. E. Fulton Company, and it is one of the outstanding service features provided at the headquarters of the organization in Chicago, where a model theatre on a miniature scale serves the purpose of affording exhibitors an opportunity to see the latest articles of equipment under actual working conditions and, in addition, provides an experimental laboratory for demonstrating and testing new devices.

ENTRANCE AND LOBBY

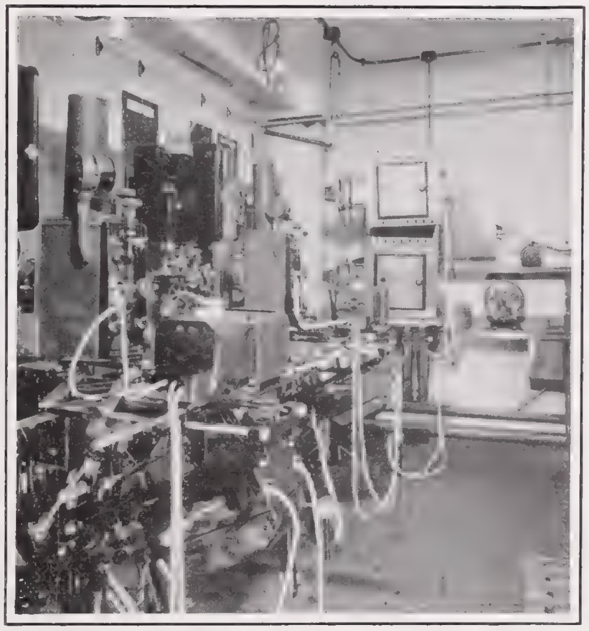
This model theatre is a miniature show house de luxe seating about seventy persons. It is completely furnished and draped throughout. There is a mezzanine rest room of generous proportions, bordered by a typical theatre lobby, completely furnished with ticket booth, photo frames, etc., and embellished with a flowered lattice arch. A few steps to the right is a canopied entrance to the Fulton Model theatre.

The auditorium is equipped with theatre chairs, a stage setting for the screen, articles of decoration, a projection booth of the newest design and fully equipped for modern presentation. Its Kimball organ is almost in constant use by students of the music studio, who are thus afforded opportunity to acquire proficiency amid ideal theatre surroundings. Kept up-to-the-minute in its various scenic and decorative features, sanitation, furnishings, stage effect, mechanico-electric and projection equipment, it serves as a laboratory for testing all sorts of ideas, suggestions and contrivances calculated to improve theatre safety, appearance, comfort, attractiveness, etc., and for the tryout of all proposed devices for booth equipment in any way related to optical projection.

THE MEZZANINE LOUNGE
Above is shown a corner of the lounge where furniture, carpets and decorative objects used in the public rooms of the theatre are on display

TO exhibitors planning a new theatre or seeking new equipment to improve an old one, this model playhouse provides a scene-plan which gives him an accurate idea of what the market affords in the way of furnishings or equipment. Step by step, the theatre man covers every department of the playhouse, observing as he goes and unburdened by the necessity of visualizing his needs or the conditions which call for improvement in his theatre. He compares his present furnishings or accessories with those on display before him accurately for the new furnishings are placed before him in a manner to show how they work and how they look under actual theatre conditions. No amount of verbal or written description, explanation or comment is capable of conveying the information a buyer needs before he can intelligently select with the ease and accuracy this decidedly modern merchandising feature affords. Definite, practical and valuable ideas are at once suggested in a convincing manner.



The projection room—laid out according to the most efficient plan and completely equipped to render efficient projection in the Fulton Model Theatre

The progressive exhibitor, who wishes his theatre to measure up to his own standards and as well to the satisfaction of his patrons, can readily understand the advantage of a plan which is worked out in Fulton's model theatre.

In carrying out this plan the Fulton company has the hearty cooperation of manufacturers who welcome the opportunity to have their products displayed to interested persons under realistic conditions. This cooperation makes it possible for the company to afford the exhibitor a close-up of every feature of theatre furnishing and equipment, and as well to demonstrate apparatus and appliances in actual use.

The model theatre has attracted many visitors from distant points, intent upon seeing this "show room" theatre for the purpose of informing themselves upon new developments in furnishing and equipment articles now on the market.

The Fulton technical specialists generally have under test or development some new feature of special interest. For instance, they are at present engaged in working out some novel ideas conceived by Mr. C. H. Fulton, which, when perfected, will enable theatre managers to "put on," at trifling cost, a sort of prelude in presenting special feature pictures, by means of ingenious scenic and lighting effects, with appropriate organ accompaniment, in a manner to approximate the "atmosphere" prologue, frequently staged by de luxe theatres at considerable expense.

From time to time it is planned to announce invitation occasions — evening gatherings of a somewhat social nature—when something newly perfected and of particular interest to exhibitors is to be demonstrated in the course of a program. If interested, they will be glad to welcome you and to acquaint you with the proposition to be presented.

All items of equipment used in the model theatre are handled by the various branch stores of the E. E. Fulton Co.

The entrance, as shown in the illustration, is equipped with: Fulco Canopy, Stanley Corner Frame, Stanley Photo Case Frame, Stanley Banner Board.

The equipment for the mezzanine floor of the theatre is shown in a space 22 x 18 feet, railed with brass standards and E. L. Mansure guard rope, the floor covering being Ozite lining and a taupe rug. Other items of equipment shown installed in the mezzanine display are special Compolite electric fixtures, an Ingersoll electric fountain, a four-piece over stuffed furniture set with three different type chairs manufactured by Fenske Brothers, two Kiel tables, a Kimball Baby Grand piano, and two G. Reising & Co. palm trees.

Passing from the lobby into the auditorium of the theatre we find a beautifully decorated and lighted small theatre and stage, the equipment of which includes:

ALL Leather Upholstered Chairs, Special Fulco Exit Box Fixture, Fancy Kiel Desk and Stool, Ward Leonard Dimmer System, Kiel Bench Supreme Blower for Ventilation, Red Designed Aisle Rugs, Beaumont Studio Stage Steting, Kaus-a-lite Aisle Lights, Blue Satin Front Drop, Compolite Crystal Electric Light Fixture, Gold Drop, Kimball Pipe Organ, Silver Drop, A. L. Randall Flower Decorations, Red Velour Drop, Edison Lamps Throughout, Black Velour Drop, Vallen Electric Curtain Control, Gold Scrim, Vallen Noiseless Curtain Tracks, Exterior Painted Drop, Brenkert Pin Spots, Half-tone Screen, Brenkert Floor Spots, Da-Lite Gold Fibre Screen.

Following an inspection of the auditorium proper, we turn to the projection room of the model theatre, which is located at the rear of the house, and includes a complete line of modern, standard equipment which would assure any theatre, high grade projection. The equip-

Theatre Decoration and Stage Equipment

Robert E. Powers Studios and Armstrong-Powers Studios Among Leaders in Development of Features for DeLuxe Houses

NO more important assignment falls to the theatre specialist than that of decorating and furnishing the interior and equipping the stage. For these are functions which make extraordinary demands upon the artist and the technician. Since the development of the de luxe theatre in this country and the fulfillment of the ideal to make the setting for the picture presentations and stage divertissements something more than merely efficient from the standpoint of comfort and safety for the patrons, there has been an amazing progress toward the application of what is termed Showmanship to the art of theatre design and decoration. Of many who have devoted special study to the subject, only a comparatively few have made their way to outstanding leadership in this field of the theatre.

Among the most prominent organizations specializing in decoration is the Robert E. Power Studios, with headquarters in Los Angeles, and with many notable accomplishments in theatre decoration on the Pacific Coast, through the Middle West and in the East. An equally prominent place as equippers of theatre stages designed along the most modern lines, is the Armstrong-Power Studios, Inc. These two organizations, each an individual enterprise, are both headed by Robert E. Power. Walter B. Armstrong is vice-president of the latter company.

The Robert E. Power Studios was organized in 1919 by Robert E. Power, whose one idea has been the better theatre. It has been operating in the Pacific Coast States, as well as in the East and Middle West, for the past eight years.

The first office of the firm was situated in Los Angeles. The general offices are still maintained there, with branch offices in Chicago, New York, Seattle and San Francisco. In each of these locations there is an organization sufficient to serve the decorating needs of these districts.

The Armstrong-Power Studios, Inc., was organized with the idea of improving and developing the modern stage to its present-day standard. This organization originated the "Arpo" counterweight system as well as the other well known "Apro" products.

The organization is particularly known for its original ideas in stage equipment, each new theatre being individual in treatment.

The Manufacture of Equipment Apparatus

THE manufacturing branch of the Fulton Company had its beginning in a small shop provided with a handful of tools wherein picture machines were adjusted and repaired, and where Fulco 2 in 1 Film Cement was prepared. This trade marked cement, by the way, was the first item to be produced bearing the Fulton trade mark and from this starting point a veritable procession of original motion picture specialties in increasing variety went forth to market.

From time to time much additional machinery was provided until now the plant is very thoroughly equipped to turn out almost every conceivable mechanical or electro-mechanical device or accessory of use to the motion picture theatre.

New ideas are constantly undergoing test and examination in the well equipped experimental laboratory and when these emerge in the concrete form of improved appliances the factory facilities are abundantly sufficient to provide for production in any needed quantity.

All this is a guarantee of cooperation with dealers handling Fulco branded specialties and nothing is lacking to assure a highly satisfactory service both as to the prompt dispatch of orders and as to the serviceability of the goods bearing the Fulco trademark.

Machine repair and overhauling has always been an important department of the Fulton business and as might be expected, their repair shop holds a valued accumulation of ingenious devices and special tools gradually evolved over a span of years for facilitating repair work and insuring the highest possible degree of accuracy.

Their mechanics have long been in their service and have naturally acquired an intimate knowledge of all types of machines and apparatus connected with picture projection, plus skilled and experienced handicraft, which is reflected in the shortness of time required for any given job and the nicety of result in the mechanical performance of machine after completing repairs.

EXPERIMENTAL DEPARTMENT

All makes of projectors are repaired in this department.

McMillan Manager of Manufacturing Division

Most people think of motion pictures as an insittution belonging exclusively to the present century and as a matter of fact, picture theatres even of the humblest sort were unknown prior to 1905. Nevertheless, film of present standard and spesification was perfected and adopted during the middle nineties and the peep-hole kinetoscope provided the first form of public movie entertainment in which film—such as is now familiar to us—was used.

Frank McMillan dates his start in the industry as an exhibitor of this now almost forgotten marvel which astonished the multitude in those early days of animated pictures. Except for several periods of time during which his attention was diverted to other pursuits he has been in close contact with the industry ever since.

In the late nineties he became associated with Mr. A. C. Roebuck, who with R. W. Sears originated the mail order house of Sears, Roebuck & Co. As a result of this association, A. C. Roebuck and F. McMillan established the Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co. A few years later, McMillan, who was then president and manager of the Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co., retired from the concern and disposed of his interest in the same to Mr. Roebuck.

It was McMillan's retirement from the Enterprise Co. which created the occasion by which the late E. E. Fulton first became identified with the motion picture industry, in the capacity of Chief Executive Aid to Mr. Roebuck.

After some years spent on the Pacific coast, Mac returned to take up his present duties with the reorganized Fulton Co. As the background of his long contact with the industry is largely a picture of mechanical and manufacturing activities, he was selected to manage Fulton's division of manufacturing and production.

Chief of Technical Staff

MOTION Picture projection is tied up with many different lines of applied science and a real expert in this field besides having an intelligent grasp of the most approved principles of architectural practice as related to the theatre design must also be an electro-mechanical engineer and practical optician.

He must possess a generous knowledge of optical lenses, lighting devices and the various and sundry contrivances within the realm of stagecraft by means of which many strikingly novel and impressive effects are achieved.

Homer C. Stiff, technical engineer, has been with the Fulton Co. for many years. Stepping from general electrical installation work, he joined this organization when the art of projection was young and crude and has ever kept in close touch with developments not only in projection technique but with all things pertaining closely or remotely to the equipment of the modern picture theatre, particularly where mechanical or electrical devices are concerned.

Not only has he followed with close attention and understanding the activities of the many agencies engaged in improving the art of projection, but he has helped to establish existing high standards and developments.

to handle complete Stage Equipment, Draperies, and specially designed Period Furniture for this well known Organization, throughout the United States, with supply stores and headquarters in all key cities.

The trade-mark "ARPO" is recognized as the ultimate in artistry for Stage Drapery, Effects, and Equipment and as such has been selected after thorough investigation as the logical associate to the trade-mark "FULCO" which has been Standard in the theatre world for many years.

Also, the "ARPO" double steel-guide counterweight system has proven to be the most efficient and satisfactory device for the operation of stages, and has been adopted as standard equipment by many builders, architects and owners after investigation of all devices of similar nature.

Unequaled facilities, backed by practical knowledge of theatre stage craft obtained through many years of actual experience, places this firm in an enviable position to give the prospective customer the very best equipment, particularly adapted for the purposes intended.

Many new ideas in artistic Draperies, Stage Curtains, Special Furniture, etc., have been developed in the past few years, combining the very latest in design and material, together with practicability and indicate a great advancement, which has been in keeping with the wonderful progress made in theatre construction.

Quality, combined with fair prices, and backed by personal service, assures each and every patron of complete satisfaction in the handling of theatre equipment contracts, which combined with FULCO Products, enables the theatre owner to make one contract which assures harmonious blending of all the various elements tending to produce a perfect theatre at a decided financial advantage.

Service Theatre From Top to Bottom

THE reorganization of the E. E. Fulton Company on a national basis gives national scope to a merchandising idea in the realization of which the founder of the company was a pioneer. This is the Department Store principle of a buying center equipped to supply the needs of the theatre man for furnishings, apparatus and accessories of whatever nature required for the complete equipment of his theatre.

In principle, and experience of years has shown that in practice as well, the department store idea applied to specialized lines of merchandise fits into the industrial and commercial scheme of an age in which specialization is the keynote of business operations. The centralization of related articles of equipment enables the company to maintain a staff of experts whose technical advice may be placed at the disposal of the prospective theatre builder or the exhibitor whose problems concerning lighting, projection or other important factors of theatre operation necessitates repairs or replacements according to the peculiar difficulties involved. Thus a service feature of unquestioned value and for which there is real necessity is a direct outgrowth of the department store idea in its application to the theatre field.

The need, also, for companies organized to take complete charge of the equipping of a theatre, from the smallest item to the largest, has frequently been demonstrated in connection with theatre projects throughout the country. The architect concerns himself with the design and con-

Maintain Model Organ Studio

Theatre Instruments and Musicians Developed Under Experts at Fulton Studio Operated in Conjunction with Model Theatre at Chicago Headquarters

Two Kimball organs are used at the studio and school. Above a two-manual unit and at the right a two-manual straight Kimball organ.

THE importance of music in motion picture theatres was early recognized by the E. E. Fulton Company, and as part of its service to exhibitors, the Fulco Organ Studios were organized with Frank Van Dusen, director of the organ department of the American Conservatory of Music at its head. Mr. Van Dusen realized that the ultimate object, that of training students, not only as organ players but as theatre organists, made it necessary that the equipment include a theatre, screen, organ and complete projection outfit and this need was supplied through installation of a Kimball theatre organ in Fulton's model theatre, which is in daily use by students of their organ studio. In addition to this there are two study rooms, one equipped with a Kimball two manual unit and the other equipped with a Kimball two manual straight.

Teaching facilities and screen classes were started, and at present time what are believed to be the largest theatre organ classes in the country are working under Mr. Van Dusen, together with Mr. Eigenschenk, his first assistant and a staff of teachers, including Miss Emil Roberts, Miss Helen Searles Westbrook, Mrs. Gertrude Bailey, and Paul Esterly.

Van Dusen and Eigenschenk Supervise Instruction

The standing of Messrs. Van Dusen and Eigenschenk in the music world is a guarantee of successful teaching in the Fulco Organ Studios. Mr. Van Dusen early began the study of music and not only received instruction in this country, but worked under the renowned master organist, Alexandre Guilmant, in Paris, and successfully filled the position of organist in leading Chicago churches, and is at the present time director of the organ department of the American Conservatory of Music, director of school for Motion Picture Organ Playing of American Conservatory, president of the Illinois Council of National Association of Organists, and the director of the Society of American Musicians.

Mr. Eigenschenk is not only a prominent theatre organist, but is internationally known as a recitalist and concert organist and has appeared as soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

Cooperate with Architects on Plans

IT HAS long been a recognized need in the motion picture theatre field of greater cooperation between architects and equipment specialists. Often a theatre is built with no detail overlooked nor expense spared in its perfection excepting in one department, that being the matter of equipment.

This oversight, however, is in no way due to lack of recognition given to the importance of equipment but rather to failure of cooperation between builder, architect and equipment specialist. It is encouraging to note that during the last two years a great amount of attention has been given to securing greater cooperation among the various parties responsible.

In line with this new tendency the E. E. Fulton Co. have organized an engineering staff of theatre specialists for the express purpose of offering services to theatre owners and architects. The services of this engineering organization cover the multitude of engineering phases of theatre equipment, such as illuminating engineering, projection room design, recognitions of decorations and stage equipment, etc. C. H. Fulton, President of the E. E. Fulton Co., has given this phase of his organization particular attention, an dhas issued a statement in regard to the company's activities along these lines.

"In connection with our engineering services to cooperate with architects, builders and theatre owners, we have not the slightest notion of endeavoring to function as architects, but simply to lend our endeavors to secure greater efficiency from the equipment installed in theatres. We do not undertake to furnish theatre plans nor to encroach in any way upon the architects' legitimate field. These services are offered in line with our policy of being an organization fully equipped to handle all the problems dealing with equipping of a theatre in every department."

Complete Theatre Outfitting Service

struction of the theatre building and frequently concentrates his efforts to the extent that he welcomes, and often advises, the placing of a so-called "blanket contract" for the equipment of the theatre with an organization capable of servicing the house from top to bottom. One of the benefits to the architect and the owner which derives from this arrangement is that the architect has at his disposal the advice of experts supplied by the contracting company on matters pertaining to the design of the projection booth, stage layout and any number of features which must be taken into consideration as vital essentials of a properly designed theatre.

As a pioneer in offering this type of service, the company has frequently undertaken the task of completely equipping theatres of the largest de luxe type as well as smaller houses. The maintenance of an organization equipped to do this requires a catalogue carrying lists of articles that range from "A" to "Z".

An illustration of the complete equipment service, its extensiveness and its practical working out of the specialization idea is provided by work done for the Roosevelt theatre at Gary, Ind., one of several houses which the Fulton company has completely equipped. The list of articles supplied and installed includes the following:

Four electric signs for the front: an upright name sign, a channel letter sign for the front of the canopy, and two three-line changeable letter signs for two corner columns with globes for canopy sign installation includes two cabinets of letters, a flasher and all lamps. Two corner brass photo display fronts, ticket booth equipment, including two automatic ticket selling machines, one coin changer, one brass admission sign, one ticket chopper and one-sheet and photo display frames, complete the equipment for the front.

The auditorium equipment includes 1,068 mahogany theatre chairs, 16 wall paintings and draperies. The stage was equipped with an asbestos curtain, and all stage rigging, including: a satin draw curtain, curtain tracks, ten sets of lines each counterweighted for scenery, one set five lines counterweighted for picture screen, street and landscape drops, wood wings, grand drape, tormentors with flippers, exterior cut borders, picture screen with frame, pin rail for locking device, in addition to counterweight arbors, stage braces, stage crews, roping, cable and piping.

The Roosevelt projection room equipment includes: two projectors, with lenses; spotlamps, color wheels, complete set of changeover devices, fireproof unit with film box, steel table, waste can, rewind bench, motor driven rewind; metal reels, fire extinguishers, 2 motor generator sets with resistors, panel boards and starting switches, effect projector.

Fulton Co. Now Operating as All-state Concern

That the Fulton Co. is already functioning as an all-state concern, even though contemplated branches with several exceptions are not yet actually established, is evident from the many installations being handled by them.

Their sales department reports the closing of contracts with prominent theatre interests and invididual exhibitors.

The case of the Rialto Theatre, Waterloo, Iowa, one of a chain belonging to the Frank Amusement Co., illustrates a typical all-embracing contract wherein the Fulton Co. outfitted the theatre from sidewalk to rear wall, in accordance with architect's and owners' specifications.

Some installations recently completed include:

Experts to Advise Theatre Men on Lighting Problems

The Fulton Company has consistently followed the practice of co-operating with its clients in every helpful way. As an indication of this you will find elsewhere in this section their double page announcement, offering expert aid in all matters appertaining to theatre lighting in any of its phases.

This offer is based upon a working arrangement between the Edison Lamp Works of General Electric Company, and the Fulton Company, whereby the former extends the services of its staff of theatre lighting experts free of charge. These lighting engineers have made a special study of lighting problems of all kinds, but especially those of the theatre.

Vail Heads Credit Department

Mr. Samuel J. Vail, who heads Fulton's credit department, has been a member of the Fulco organization for the past four years.

For many years he has held important executive positions with well known concerns in other lines of business.

THE LIGHT THAT NEVER FAILS
EMERGENCY LIGHTING SYSTEM
Roth

Send for the bulletins with full descriptions.

One power failure in the middle of a performance costs more than an installation of the Roth Emergency Lighting System.

Find out about "The Light that Never Fails"

Have you ever had your house lights go out suddenly because of a temporary failure of the power supply? The dangers and inconvenience resulting from even a temporary interruption of the regular power supply cannot be tolerated in the modern theatre. The Roth Emergency Lighting System protects against these dangers, continues your house or exit lights without any dangerous period of darkness. Instant and automatic in its operation, always ready for the emergency. There is a Roth plant of correct capacity for any requirement, large or small, and all of them operate on the same principle of absolute protection against emergency power failures.

Air Washing— Now a part of the SUPREME Cooling System

A wonderful new feature of the Supreme Cooling System—washed air. Now any theatre can have the summer-time attraction that only the biggest theatres have been able to afford—namely, positive cooling by washed air!

The Supreme Cooling System, noted for dependability, now washes and positively cools the air. The effect is amazing; the cost is small. It is destined to revolutionize theatre cooling.

"Washed Air" means
Bigger Profits for You

People will patronize a cool theatre in summer. The Supreme System is the answer. It will keep your theatre positively cool and breezy—yet is sold at a price that even the smallest theatres can afford.

The New Feature. Illustrated above, the Supreme Turbo Air-Washing Unit, electrically operated. It creates a perfect, foggy water-spray through which the air must pass before entering the cooling blower.

This unit can be installed with cooling systems now in use.

Phantom view of the big New Supreme all-steel Cooling Blower, showing the multiblade steel wheel which forces air into your theatre at such high velocity that all the air is changed 30 to 60 times an hour.

No Vibration—No Noise

Perfect balance of all moving parts and absence of all vibration makes the Supreme System noiseless at all speeds

KIMBALL ORCHESTRAL ORGAN

Each represent the highest development of the art of organ building and are built to order to suit the musical requirements of the theatre in which they are placed.

There is only one quality of Kimball Organs, the best. The same artistic design, the same materials, and the same workmanship which went into the building of the Kimball Organ in the Roxy Theatre, (The largest unit organ in the world) goes into the building of the smallest Kimball Organ.

Why buy a stock organ of inferior quality not built to fit your needs, when at only a slightly higher price you can buy Kimball quality?

A Kimball Organ will give you more satisfaction for a greater length of time with less service than any other organ made—Why be satisfied with less than the best.

KOHLER ELECTRIC PLANT MODEL 10A2
10,000 Watts 110 Volt D. C.

Kohler Electric Plants are made in 1500, 2000, 5000, and 10,000 watt capacities. Sturdy, smooth-running, four-cylinder engines directly connected to large, compound wound generators. Start and stop automatically. No large storage batteries, only a small one for starting. Both gasoline and gas operated models.

A KOHLER Electric Plant To Insure Your Theater Against Darkness

THE lights cannot fail in theaters where a Kohler Electric Plant supplies auxiliary electric service. Even when storms, sleet, fire, floods or lightning break down the regular electric service, the show continues.

For, the instant that city current fails the Kohler Electric Plant starts automatically to generate the current for the projectors, house lights, exits, etc. And for as long as it is needed, because the current flows directly from the generator and not from storage batteries. When city electricity comes back on, the Kohler Plant stops automatically.

This auxiliary service will protect your theater against the consequences of current failure: disappointed audiences; losses on film rentals; wasted advertising; refunds, perhaps; and the danger of panic that lurks in every theater every time the lights go out.

"Saving" a few shows pays for a Kohler Electric Plant. And, if you will tell your patrons how Kohler auxiliary electric service insures their safety, it will help mightily in building and maintaining their preference for your theater.

The dependability, sturdiness, compactness, safety (approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters) will meet your instant approval. Prices are reasonable. If you will give us the seating capacity of your theater and the maximum electrical load of lobby, exit lights, and projectors, we will gladly make specific recommendations.

Sold under a positive guarantee to give full satisfaction in results as well as saving in current and carbon.

You know high intensity lamps, give PERFEX a thorough trial in your house. You be the judge.

Increases Brilliance---Cuts Costs

Recent tests held in Country's leading picture houses amazed owners, electrical engineers and operators.

The PERFEX Super High Intensity Arc Lamp registered 100% in efficiency in every respect.

Owners were highly gratified with the meter readings made by power company engineers. Current consumption practically cut in two.

Projection results were marvelous. Pictures screened with startling brilliance and clarity.

Operators were pleased with the automatic controls, the ease of operation, the positive action, the many conveniences.

Only after witnessing the most exhaustive tests, and watching PERFEX Super High Intensity Arc Lamps under actual working conditions for the past few months, have we decided to handle and endorse this amazing lamp.

Improve your pictures. Cut your current costs in half. You judge the light. We invite comparisons. A trial will convince you of the economies and advantages of the PERFEX.

Major Ten Gang Portable Plugging Box

One of the thousands of great York vaults that safeguard money and valuables. This picture shows the entrance of the vault of the First National Bank, Jersey City, N. J.

Below: The York Burglary Chest used by hundreds of theatres to protect their cash.

Protection--- in small doses

Write today for booklet "York Safes for Theatres." It tells what you should know about the York Burglary Chest.

THE money you have deposited in your bank is protected by giant vaults against burglars and other forms of attack. But the money you cannot deposit—that you take in Saturday nights and Sundays—needs protection just as much.

Probably this total of cash receipts is more than that which you take in all the rest of the week. It needs protection before you put it into the bank, and the York Burglary Chest will give it real protection.

Made by the makers of the world's most respected bank vaults, the York Burglary Chest is a small edition of their finest vaults. Send for the interesting booklet describing these chests. It's free and there is no obligation.

EVENHEETERS

Correct— Organ Chamber Heating.

RELIABLE organ chamber heating is a necessity; organ men realize that. Nothing can so greatly interfere with the performance of your organ than sudden temperature changes and excessive moisture. You can remedy this condition and protect those delicate mechanisms found in organ chambers by installing EVENHEETERS.

EVENHEETERS provide an absolutely even temperature for organ chambers and they maintain that even temperature—keeping the air warm in the chamber and keeping that warm air circulating to every part of the chamber.

EVENHEETERS are endorsed by all the leaders in the theatre world—architects, owners and builders, as well as organ men and organ makers all recommend them. There must be a reason—they must be good! Investigate this today. Protect your organ parts and correct your organ troubles due to temperature changes and dampness by installing EVENHEETERS.

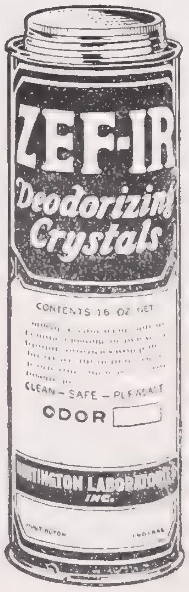
ZEF-IR
Air Sweetening BLOCS

ZEF-IR Blocs are made in various odors, such as Cedar, Lilac, Rose, etc. They are pleasant and effective. Wall fixtures are neat and unobtrusive. Blocs are firm, clean to handle and evaporate cleanly to the last particle.

Complete Sets

Zef-ir Blocs are packed as complete outfits each of which lasts a year. Neat cartons contain one wall case and a tin box in which six Zef-ir Blocs, each wrapped separately in oiled paper, are packed.



Zef-ir Crystals

These Crystals may be sprinkled around in inaccessible corners and under seats. They are packed in shaker top cans which makes them very handy to use. Theatres find Zef-ir Crystals tremendously helpful in re-conditioning the room after large audiences have vitiated the atmosphere.

Strong Change-Over Devices

and Remote Control Systems

No theatre, regardless of its size, is properly and adequately equipped for showing motion pictures as they should be presented without Strong Change-Over Devices, and the remote control systems for efficiently maintaining the continuity of the projection. No theatre, large or small can afford to be without them.

These electrically operated, automatic devices are replacing the old style methods of change-over; eliminating the unsightly strings, wires, rods and other unsightly and cumbersome makeshift apparatus. They make possible a quick, positive, noiseless change-over that cannot be seen on the screen. Easy to install and absolutely dependable at all times.

The PARAMOUNT and ROXY in New York; the MARBRO and SHERIDAN in Chicago—these world's finest new theatres and many others that have opened recently are equipped with STRONG CHANGE-OVER DEVICES.

Three Philly Legitimate Houses Playing Films

For the first time in the history of the industry in Philadelphia, three houses with a reserve seat policy are running straight motion picture programs. The Fox-Locust is running "Sunrise," the Aldine "Wings," and the new Erlanger is presenting a program of films. This latter house has been forced to rely on the cinema because its engagement of Florenz Ziegfeld's "Follies," which was to have opened it, has been detained owing to the illness of Eddie Cantor, the featured player of the company.

Until a legitimate attraction is booked into the house the Erlanger will run "The Patent Leather Kid" at $1.65 top.

Kansas Theatre Razed by Night Conflagration

Fire entirely destroyed the Columbia theatre, Junction City, Kans., Tuesday night. The house was owned by the Glenn Dickinson Circuit of Theatres. A new house would be built and opened in about four months, Mr. Dickinson said. The Cozy theatre, Junction City, owned by the same circuit, but which has been closed, will be operated during the rebuilding of the other house.

A fire which swept nearly all the business section of Frontenac, Kans., Wednesday, destroyed the Lyric theatre.

New Stanley in Pittsburgh Opens on February 22

The new Stanley Theatre, Pittsburgh, which will be operated by the Stanley Company of America through the local subsidiary, the Stanley, Davis, Clarke Corp., has announced its intention to open its doors to the public February 22nd.

The house is a 4,000 seater, and will be managed by James Balmer, now operating the Grand, in Pittsburgh, for the same company. This opening gives Loew's Penn, 3,600 de luxe house opened last September, its first real opposition.

R. I. Poucher to Assist First National Head

Richard A. Rowland, general and production manager of First National, has appointed Ralph I. Poucher to assume charge of special work in the production department. In order to fill his present post Mr. Poucher resigned his position of vice-president in charge of sales with Consolidated Film Industries, which position he held with Consolidated since April, 1926.

He left with Mr. Rowland for the Burbank plant last Wednesday.

Jeena and Co. Handling FBO Films in India

Jeena and Company, one of India's best known houses, are distributing FBO productions in India, Burma and Ceylon. They are known throughout the Orient as the distributors of many widely advertised commodities; their FBO contract marks their first venture into the film field. J. P. Katgara is the principal partner of the company.

Fox Planning Building Program in Principal Capitals of World

NOT satisfied with their extensive theatre holdings in the United States, Fox Films are now planning to launch a theatre-building program in the principal capitals of the world. It is the policy of the company, according to announcement, to support independent exhibitors, but wherever Fox pictures are not getting proper representation abroad the corporation will build its own theatres.

Clayton P. Sheehan, manager of the company's foreign department, sailed on the steamship Southern Cross, February 11, for a three months tour of South America, accompanied by Mrs. Sheehan. His first stopping place was to be Rio de Janeiro, where the company has just signed a contract to supply pictures to the Pathe Theatre, said to be the finest motion picture house in South America. No building is contemplated there, but Sheehan will look over various other cities with the idea of building.

In addition to Rio de Janeiro, Sheehan will visit the several Brazilian branches at Sao Paulo and seven other key cities of Brazil. From there he will go to Montevideo, Uruguay, Buenos Aires, Rosario, and then to Chile, where he will visit branches in Santiago, Concepcion and Valparaiso.

Germany Not to Support Import Restrictions

Government Fails to Appeal for Exemption from Free Trade Principle Agreed Upon at Geneva

By HEINRICH FRAENKEL

Berlin Correspondent, Motion Picture News

FEBRUARY 1st has been a critical day for the future development of the all-important import situation on the German market. This was the last day on which the Government could have appealed for an exemption from the general free trade principle agreed on during the international Geneva conference last November.

Readers of the NEWS are well aware of the development of the situation during the last three months. The German film trade had unanimously been clamoring for an appeal to be lodged on their behalf with a view to continuing restrictions of import. Up to the very last hour efforts were made on those lines. The Government, however, could not see their way to comply with the demand and an official statement has just been issued explaining the Government's attitude on the ground that the free trade principles stood for by the German Geneva Delegation could not be jeopardized to satisfy the interests of an individual industry.

The present import situation in Germany has been so exhaustively dealt with in the NEWS that it should suffice to sum up that until June of next year imports are numerically restricted to 170 plus a special reserve of 90 full length features.

After June of next year, under the circumstances created by the recent Government decision it will not be possible to restrict foreign imports of films numerically.

Unless the German trade considers itself sufficiently strong to do away with import restrictions altogether and allow altogether free imports—unless this rather doubtful course is taken, the obvious outcome of the present situation must needs be: reverting to the old system which, entailing no numerical restrictions of imports, would not fall within the sphere of the Geneva agreement and, thus, the jurisdiction of the Government.

It will be remembered that the old German "Kontingent" system—somewhat on the lines of the present British quota law—allowed a theoretically unlimited import of foreign films, provided that each distributor was handling footage of German-made productions corresponding to his foreign imports.

Anyway, the new situation will have to be dealt with in the near future, as the present settlement is only valid for little more than a year. If, as indeed it seems rather likely, the old system is reverted to, it remains to be seen if the old 50-50 basis will be chosen or any other ratio. After all, this will have to depend on the market developments of the next few months.

The essential point always to be borne in mind will have to be the necessity that the German market would never again be overcrowded with more pictures than it can possibly digest. Even now, in spite of the drastic move of the recent import settlement (which will now have to be done away with), the market is still suffering from the excessive supply of pictures, such as frequently and statistically dealt with in these columns.

Publix-Saenger Theatre for Winston-Salem

Contracts were signed last Tuesday for the erection of the ten-story Publix-Saenger office and theatre building in Winston-Salem, N. C. The building will be located on Fourth street, back of the Robert E. Lee Hotel.

Chances Slim for Tax Reduction This Year

LITTLE hope now exists for the enactment of a tax-reduction bill in Washington, D. C., this year. Faced with the threat of having tariff "riders" attached to it if it reaches the Senate floor, Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, has so far refrained from reporting the measure on the plea that results of the 1927 tax returns, to be filed next month, should first be ascertained, and it is now freely predicted at the Capitol that only drastic moves will be able to "blast" the bill out at all this session.

Democratic leaders assert that if a tariff rider is attached to the bill, both Senate and House can be forced to accept it but President Coolidge would veto the measure. At the same time, they taunt the Republicans with fear of an amendment abolishing affiliated tax returns by corporations which, they claim, would increase the taxes of large corporations by $50,000,000.

Treasury officials have expressed fear that the 1927 returns may not develop the revenues anticipated.

Pathe Sets 11 Reels of Shorts for February 26

Hal Roach and Mack Sennett, the two principal comedy producers for Pathe, will both be represented in the collection of short subjects to be offered by the Pathe company during the week of February 26th. The former is presenting a new two-reel comedy, ''The Smile Wins,'' and the latter another short feature of the same length entitled ''The Swim Princess.''

Also on this program for the 26 are Topics of the Day No. 9; ''A Blaze of Glory,'' a new Aesop cartoon; Pathe Review No. 9; ''The Master Strikes,'' seventh chapter of the serial, ''The Man Without a Face''; and two issues of the Pathe newsreel, Nos. 20 and 21.

''The Smile Wins'' is an ''Our Gang'' comedy produced under the direction of Robert McGowan. ''The Swim Princess'' is a Sennett girl comedy with Daphne Pollard, Andy Clyde and Carole Lombard, and a large supporting cast directed by Alf Goulding under the supervision of John Waldron. Many Technicolor sequences are included in this comedy. The new issue of the Review series presents ''On African Game Trails with Prince William of Sweden,'' ''The World's Most Northern Bathing Beach,'' and another camera interview with ''Interesting People.''

Photography Finished on First National Films

Camera work was completed last week on three new productions at the Burbank studio of First National. In addition, the highlights of the new Colleen Moore George Fitzmaurice special and the initial sequence of the new Robert Kane-Allan Dwan picture were taken.

First to be finished by the cameramen was the Ben Hecht story which Dwan directed for Kane under the tentative title of ''The Headliner.'' A few days later Charles Brabin shot his finishing scenes on the new Milton Sills vehicle, ''Burning Daylight.'' John Francis Dillon then followed with ''The Heart of a Follies Girl.''

The new Kane-Dwan picture to go into work was ''Harold Teen,'' which Mervyn LeRoy is directing with Arthur Lake in the title role and Alice White, Jack Duffy and Lucien Littlefield as members of the supporting cast. Albert Rogell has just begun photography upon a new Ken Maynard western.

Other films that are nearing the finishing stage are ''The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come,'' in work for about 45 days; ''Lady' Be Good,'' which has been in work for more than a month; a new Charlie Murray comedy, which has been in the making for about four weeks, and ''Chinatown Charlie,'' in work for five weeks.

Ziegfeld Girl Signs Film Contract With Warners

Agnes Franey, 17-year-old actress of the cast of the Ziegfeld show, ''Rio Rita,'' has been signed to a contract by Warner Bros. Archie Mayo, Warner Bros. director, while in New York on a vacation, saw her dance in the Ziegfeld production and immediately arranged for a camera test. She is scheduled to leave for Hollywood in May, when she will have finished her ''Rio Rita'' engagement.

Dolores Costello, Warner Bros. star, was also developed from a stage dancer.

Sax Signs George Jessel to Gotham Contract

The first star to be signed for the 1928-29 production schedule of Gotham Productions is George Jessel, the stage star. His first Gotham vehicle will be ''Abie of the U. S. A.,'' an original by Arthur Caesar, author and playwright. Immediately after he has closed his current tour with his stage vehicle, ''The Jazz Singer,'' Jessell will leave for Hollywood to start work on this, and also a second picture.

L. M. Scheuer Resigning From Paramount Post

Lewis M. Scheuer, who has been a member of the Legal Department of Paramount Famous Lasky during the past three years, will sever his connection with that organization on March next.

Tiffany-Stahl Agent Leases Portland Site

A DEAL has been closed by D. C. Mullward, Northwest manager for Tiffany-Stahl Productions, for a 20-year lease on a 100 x 100 downtown site, situated on the corner of Fourth and Morrison streets, Portland, Ore., considered one of the town's busiest corners. Millward is president of the Capitol Investment Corporation, which is supposed to be a subsidiary of Tiffany-Stahl. A first-run theatre, seating 1,000, is to be erected on the site, together with an office building.

Work of tearing down the old building on the site is to be begun in March, with the theatre ready for occupancy some time in July.

At the New York headquarters of Tiffany-Stahl, it was said that nothing was known of the Portland project.

New "Kings" Companies on the Road

Several new touring companies are being organized by Pathe Exchange, Inc., to roadshow the Cecil B. De Mille production, ''The King of Kings.'' Four companies have been touring the chief metropolitan cities for some time now.

The Academy theatre in Lebanon, Pa., will house the first of these new touring units for three days beginning, February 9. Three days at the Mishler theatre, Altoona, and three more at the West End theatre, Uniontown, will then follow. This company will play around Pennsylvania and the smaller cities of Ohio, playing, in addition, several return dates.

The Biblical photoplay has been exhibited for the third time in St. Louis and Cincinnati and is scheduled to play return engagements at seven other municipalities. It has been booked for four weeks at the Erlanger in Chicago, starting February 26, and four weeks at Werba's Brooklyn, starting March 25.

Three New Films Started at First National Studio

Three productions were last week launched at the First National studio at Burbank. The first of the trio was ''The Upland Rider,'' a vehicle that will exploit Ken Maynard's riding ability and the intelligence of his horse, Tarzan. Following the Maynard western by a few days, Richard Barthelmess began ''Roulette,'' and Milton Sills started his new vehicle, as yet without a title.

Next week will see ''The Yellow Lily'' and an untitled story for Dorothy Mackaill launched at the studio, it is said.

"Police Reporter" Weiss Bros.' New Serial Release

The initial serial that Artclass Pictures will release this year will be ''The Police Reporter,'' which has been scheduled for general distribution in March. ''The Police Reporter'' supplants ''The Mysterious Airman'' as Weiss Bros.' first serial release on their schedule. Walter Miller and Eugenia Gilbert are the featured players in this new chapter, which Jack Nelson directed.

Institute Making Progress in Theatre Course

The Managers Institute in New York City has brought its second week of instructions to a close. The course for the week consisted of theatre organization, selection of staff and staff duties, general service, the working of the Hays organization, contract and arbitration.

The Institute plans to open its spring term on April 2.

Marcel DeSano, Hollywood Director, Signed by Ufa

Erich Pommer, has, according to a report from our Berlin correspondent, signed Marcel De Sano to direct one of the four Ufa productions scheduled to be made this year under Pommer's supervision. Another picture will be directed by Joe May. De Sano, who but lately directed in Hollywood, has arrived in Berlin to take up his new duties.

Educational's March List Includes 12 Shorts

Five two-reel comedies, two one reel comedies, five one-reel novelty subjects, as well as the eight regular issues of the Kinograms newsreels, make up the group of Educational short subjects scheduled for the month of March.

Johnny Arthur stars in a new Tuxedo two-reeler, "Visitors Welcome," which Harry Sweet directed. Lloyd Hamilton has the stellar role in "Between Jobs"; Dorothy Devore is the featured player of "Circus Blues," directed by Charles Lamont; and Jerry Drew is to be seen in a Mermaid comedy, "Indiscreet Pete," which Sweet also directed. Lupino Lane has a new starring production, "What a Girl," directed by Clem Beauchamp (Jerry Drew).

The two Cameo comedies are "Spring Has Came," featuring Monty Collins and directed by Jules White; and "Count Me Out," starring Barney Hellum and directed by Zion Myers.

Felix the Cat is represented by two cartoon vehicles for March, "Japanicky" and "Polly-tics." The month also brings a new Lyman H. Howe Hodge-Podge entitled "How to Please the Public?" A new Robert C. Bruce scenic number is scheduled; it is "Felix Frolics—"The Tonquin Valley." "Mother Bird," a release from the Curiosities series, is also included.

Eight New Firms Secure New York Charters

Motion picture companies chartered to incorporate in the motion picture business in New York state, at Albany, during the past week, included the following: John C. Jackel Amusement Enterprises, Inc., $5,000, Ellis B. Armstrong, George Raab, John C. Jackel, New York City; Empire Productions, Inc., capitalization not stated, Jack Lustberg, H. G. Kosch, E. Souhami, New York City; International Motion Picture Booking Corporation, capitalization not stated, John W. McKay, M. M. Tepper, Milt Collins, New York City; Tenasy Photo and Film Corporation, $50,000, John W. Mazzuka, Beatrice Tenasy, Brooklyn; Frank L. Ippolito, New York City; Majestic Productions, Inc., $5,000, Evart Griggs, New York City; George M. Gatts, Little Neck; Mary F. Flaherty, Brooklyn.

Unit of Owners, Managers Elects New Officers

At the first meeting of the Tacoma, Washington, Theatre Owners and Managers Association of the current year, the following officers were elected to serve during 1928:

President, Ned Edris, manager of John Hamrick's Blue Mouse Theatre; vice-president, R. C. Porter, owner of the Community Theatre; secretary, Robert McKinnel, owner of the New Rose Theatre; treasurer, Earl Cook, manager of the Pantages Theatre.

L. J. Schlaifer Appointed to New Sales Post

L. J. Schlaifer, who has filled various sales posts with Universal Theatres, among which was general manager of Universal Theatres in the west, assumed last Monday his new post with United Artists of District Manager No. 1.

Quota Plan Is Reported Approved by French Council

ACCORDING to a report coming from Paris the French Council of State has approved a quota plan which requires the showing of one French picture for every nine foreign films brought into the country. No details have yet been made public, but French producers are hoping the restrictions will reduce film importations by at least 25 per cent. It is said that the new arrangement will become effective next September.

After approval by the Council of State, the plan must go to the Council of Ministers, which body, it is thought, will undoubtedly concur. However, the Herriot Commission, which resumes meetings September 15, has the right to alter the plan, so it will not become effective before that time.

An important detail of the new plan provides for a board of twenty-five members, which will serve as a censorship body. It is said they will handle imported films in accordance with the manner French pictures are handled in the country from which the imported pictures come.

Sunday Closing In Court

Baltimore Hearing Set Within Week on Indictments Returned by Grand Jury

THE Baltimore Sunday closing test cases will probably be given a court hearing some time within the next week. The Grand Jury has returned indictments against John G. Callan and Charles F. Mules, president and vice-president, respectively, of the Liberty Defense League of Baltimore, and Walter Stierhoff, an operator. These are the cases which will be heard, probably within the week. The charges are for violation of the Sunday work law.

Similar charges were brought against this trio a week previously, but were dismissed by the Grand Jury. Two additional charges were included against Callan and the Grand Jury on February 8th returned presentments against him that he unlawfully kept open and caused to be kept open the Hartford Moving Picture Parlor in Baltimore. He was also charged with working on Sunday by selling programs.

Stierhoff, the operator, and Mules, who acted as doorman, were charged with working on Sunday and operating a moving picture machine in the former case, and working on Sunday and taking tickets in the latter.

It is noticed in the indictment against Callan that he is charged with working on Sunday and allowing others to work with keeping open an "opera house." The term "opera house" is used because the revised blue laws were passed previously to the time motion pictures started.

The coming case is being looked forward to with considerable interest as the pastors of various churches in Baltimore seem to be divided in their opinions as to whether or not there should be movies on Sunday. A rally was held at the New Theatre Sunday night, February 12th, and the principal speaker was Rev. Dr. C. S. Longacre, International secretary of the Religious Liberty Association. His subject was, "Why the Maryland Blue Laws Should Be Repealed."

"A picture or play that is immoral on Sunday is immoral on Monday, and therefore should be prohibited every day of the week," said Dr. Longacre.

On the other hand, Rev. Dr. G. W. Haddaway, of the Star M. P. Church, called upon all Christians to give active support to Sunday observance laws. He referred to Sunday movies as only one phase of an attempt to commercialize the day. The Rev. Dr. Hugh Birkhead, rector of Emanuel P. E. Church, opposed Sunday pictures in a sermon which he broadcast over the radio.

Price Reduction at Detroit State Theatre

A REDUCTION in prices has been announced by the management of Loew's State, Detroit. Following this action which occurred last week, Charles H. Miles is retaliating with special matinee and children rates for customers at the Oriental, where first-run films and Pantages vaudeville are displayed. Both theatres are located a short distance from the downtown shopping district and for the past five months have fought constantly over the motion picture and variety trade.

Keith's Temple, the third largest combination house here, also retains a strong hold so far as prices are concerned, having scooped the State and Oriental admissions last year. Meanwhile, considerable clocking, large ads and name acts feature the campaigning.

Haled to Court Because of Ancient Curfew Law

The proprietor of the Rex Theatre, Ottawa, Ontario, has been prosecuted in the Juvenile Court under a forgotten regulation of the curfew law which prohibits the admission of children to a place of amusement after 9 o'clock at night.

The defense was that the Ontario Theatres and Cinematographs Act supersedes the other regulation. The Theatres Act permits children to attend performances at any time when accompanied by parents or guardians. An adjournment of the case was ordered so that the legislative situation could be investigated.

Sunday Show Fracas Shapes Up in Quebec

MATTERS concerning the impending legal tangle over the Sunday motion picture impel the thought that the situation will be a serious one. It is said that the case will be brought to the Privy Council at London, England, the highest court of the British Empire if necessary. The flurry of excitement in Canadian amusement circles follows the announcement by Hon. L. A. Taschereau, premier of the province of Quebec, that legal proceedings will be instituted by the government against one theatre in Montreal and one theatre in Quebec City as test cases under the Lord's Day Act, which prohibits Sunday performances. It has always been the case in the past that Sunday shows went on in spite of the Federal prohibition.

The forces aligned against the Sunday show include high representatives of the Roman Catholic Church, the W. C. T. U. and other denominations or organizations. In session in Montreal last week the W. C. T. U. adopted resolutions against the Sunday motion picture and against the admission of children.

It is said that the test cases may be settled in months or even in years. If the Privy Council declares that the Canadian law is ultra vires insofar as Provinces are concerned, it would have the effect of granting the privilege of holding shows on a Sunday to every exhibitor in the Dominion.

Myrna Loy Signs for New Gotham Production

Myrna Loy, screen actress who first came to the fore in Warner Bros.' ''Don Juan,'' has been signed by Gotham Productions and will make her debut under the Gotham trademark in ''Turn Back the Hours,'' a forthcoming production. Negotiations for the services of the new star were recently completed between Warner Bros. and Sam Sax, president of Gotham.

Also in ''Turn Back the Hours'' will be Walter Pidgeon, Sam Hardy, Sheldon Lewis, Josef Swickard, George Stone and Ann Brody.

M-G Quarterly Dividend Declared by Directors

The Board of Directors of Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation has declared a quarter dividend of 1¾ per cent on the Preferred Stock of this company, payable March 15th, 1928, to stockholders of record at the close of business on February 25th, 1928.

4 Kane-Dwan Films Made In Less Than 3 Months

Speed in production is evidenced in the record of Robert Kane, who with Allan Dwan, director, has produced four features in less than three months' shooting time. The Kane-Dwan combination has turned out ''French Dressing,'' ''The Whip Woman,'' ''Mad Hour'' and ''The Headliner.'' ''Harold Teen,'' a picturization of the comic strip, is the latest of their films to be started at the Burbank studio. Two of the finished pictures were made in less than 15 shooting days.

Kane declares that the shortness of the production period more than accounts for the lavish use of casts, sets and writers. He maintains that by preparing the script until it is an airtight unit, a great deal of money is saved in the cutting down of the shooting schedule; that it is impossible to economize by hiring low-salaried players for important parts or by using cheap sets; that the preparation for the shooting of a picture is the important thing on which to concentrate.

Rare Stills Donated to New York Library Collection

The Hays organization in New York has received a collection of rare moving picture stills for the New York Public Library film collection. The stills are the donation of Clarence Locan, of the publicity department of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City, California.

The Locan collection includes a series taken by Edward Muybridge, whose experiments, it is said, led to the development of motion pictures. His experiments led to the invention of zeotrope, which paved the way to the modern film and motion picture. The still group also includes scenes from ''The Roman,'' the first motion picture made by Selig in Hollywood 18 years ago. Robert Z. Leonard, Hobart Bosworth and Tom Santschi appear in the picture. The first motion picture in history, ''Ivanhoe,'' made in 1904 by Universal in England, is also represented by a group of stills.

Current Themes in Monte Blue's Latest Vehicle

Aviation and transoceanic flights, themes which have ever been before the public since the epic-making flights of Lindbergh, Byrd and Chamberlin, are the topics around which the plot of ''Across the Atlantic,'' Monte Blue's newest vehicle for Warner Bros., is centered. It is set for release on February 25.

Phonofilm Marketing Now in Progress

PLANS for marketing the De Forest Phonofilm device are now getting under way, it is reported, and the Schlesinger interests, who recently acquired control of the American De Forest Phonofilm Corporation have already begun working on a schedule of production that will include approximately 1,000 Phonofilm machines. I. W. Schlesinger head of the concern, is in charge of the plans for the marketing of the productions. Schlesinger, who recently took over the British Phonofilm Corporation, controls all the rights to foreign distribution. His syndicate is now entering the production field in Britain. One of the objects to his present visit to Hollywood is said to be the acquisition of the services of English players to return to England and work there in pictures.

The Schlesinger syndicate also controls the theatre situation in South Africa. It is said that its new activities are but part of the Schlesinger plan to build up an international producing and distributing organization.

Activity Prevails Over M-G-M Studio

PRIOR to Irving Thalberg's departure for Europe production plans for nine new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures are being rushed for completion at the studio of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The new pictures are either in work or are to go in work inside of a few days.

On February 20 Clarence Brown expects to begin shooting a production of the tropics, tentatively titled "Heat." Marion Davies will soon be working on "Polly Preferred" under he direction of King Vidor. Karl Dane and George K. Arthur are shortly to begin work on "Detectives," which Chester Franklin will megaphone. Sam Wood will also be working shortly on "He Learned About Women," Buster Keaton, under Edward Sedgwick's direction, will also be hard at work on a comedy vehicle.

John Gilbert will be another player who will shortly be working under the Kliegs in a story as yet untitled. Monta Bell is already preparing to film "The Bellamy Trial," John P. McCarthy is preparing to begin by February 20 "Diamond Handcuffs," Harry Beaumont is making ready to film "The Dancing Girl," and Nick Grinde is about to start a Tim McCoy western.

On the stages at the present time are units engaged in producing "The Actress" and "Laugh, Clown, Laugh." On location is the Robert Flaherty unit filming a story of native life on the isle of Tahiti.

First National Completes Tenth German Picture

Defu-First National, in keeping with its production schedule, has finished its tenth film. Work on 14 new productions is to start immediately; they will be screen adaptions of several prominent books as well as many original stories; three of them will be Zelnik supers, with Lya Mara in the lead.

Max Reichmann, who directed the Defu production, ''Manege,'' commences his next picture some time this month. The entire Defu production schedule is under the supervision of Ray Rockett, who is interested in the possibilities of these pictures at American box offices.

Universal Signs for 3 More Years of Oswald

Universal's cartoon series, the Oswald cartoons, produced by Winkler Productions, will be released by the Laemmle company for another three years, by the terms of a new contract just concluded with Charles B. Mintz, president of Winkler.

Walt Deaney is the creator of the Oswald cartoon character; he also does the art work and animation.

"A Woman's Way" Set by Columbia for February

Columbia Pictures' second release for the month of February is ''A Woman's Way,'' in which Warner Baxter and Margaret Livingston have the leading roles. Armand Kaliz is the heavy. Edmund Mortimer was the director.

Key City Reports

New York City

THE Rivoli Theatre, with Gloria Swanson's "Sadie Thompson," created what furore there was along Broadway last week, practically every New York reviewer of films greeting this picture with their very best manners and acclaiming it as this star's best performance. And maybe they're right, for the Rivoli hung up a house record of $48,500 for the first week, and this figure does not include the proceeds from the Friday evening benefit show. U. A. has a right to shout a bit about "Sadie Thompson" and "The Circus"—the former taking almost a quarter of a million away from the customers, and the latter will undoubtedly do at least half as well.

Outside of Miss Swanson's picture there was nothing outstanding, unless it be the showing of "The Patent Leather Kid" at the Strand, and the holdover of "The Student Prince' at the Capitol. "The Patent Leather Kid" is in for at least a two weeks' run, and the first week's business was very good, it being the first time at popular prices. Manager Joseph Plunkett is holding extra daily performances, and a couple of midnight shows. The second of "The Student Prince" gave the Capitol fair business.

Jannings' "The Last Command" is still doing satisfactory trade at the Rialto, and the Paramount did an average week with Colleen Moore in "Her Wild Oat." The Roxy was again somewhat behind its regular gait with U's "Love Me and the World Is Mine." The Irish-Jewish picture fans gave the Colony a better than average week with "The Cohens and the Kellys in Paris." The Colony management is bringing back "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" for a week's run.

"Wings" and "The Jazz Singer" are still doing the best of any of the top-priced films, with "Love" a close second. At the Cameo "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" finished a satisfactory run, and was followed by a British war picture. The balconies are pretty well patronized at the Times Square, where "Sunrise" still holds forth, but there's no trouble getting orchestra seats. "Chicago" finished its engagement at the Gaiety, and was followed by Fox's "Four Sons." Comment is favorable on the latter. The Astor still has "The Enemy," but is not doing so much with it. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" continues to surprise some of those who predicted a shorter run for the film.

"Simba" is still doing well at the Earl Carroll.

Chicago

WITH another week of favorable weather, Chicago theatres generally reported good business, houses with strong attractions enjoying an exceptionally good week.

The Chicago got away in high on Monday, the house being full by noon, and for the balance of the week, big crowds attended to see "Love and Learn" on the screen and a big stage show headed by Mae Murray in person, who proved a strong business stimulator. "The Last Command" was in its closing week at McVickers and held up well, while at the Roosevelt "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" got away to a good start. The comedy attractions did well at the Oriental, "Wife Savers" being the screen offering and Paul Ash was back on the stage after a brief illness in "Ship Ahoy," "The Jazz Singer" continued its long run at the Garrick, where it is road showing and had another good week. "The Gaucho," another long run attraction, with one more week to go, drew well at United Artists Theatre.

"Chicago After Midnight" was the feature offering at both the Granada and Marbro Theatres, north and west side patrons turning out in good numbers. The Uptown screened the mystery feature, "London After Midnight," Benny Kreuger and his orchestra staging "Rainbows," to large audiences.

"Chicago After Midnight" proved a strong attraction on the south side, the Avalon having it for its screen feature. "Sharpshooters" did fair business at the Capitol. "Love" with the popular stars, John Gilbert and Greta Garbo, and Frankie Masters and his band in "Marching On" went over big.

Los Angeles

MOTION picture theatres in Los Angeles at present are having an unusual amount of competition in the strong line-up of musical comedies and plays on the legitimate stage among which are "Chauve-Souris," "A Connecticut Yankee," "Kongo," "Hit the Deck," "No, No, Nanette," "Undertow," and "The Desert Song." The latter is selling every seat in the house for every performance. Fannie Brice holds sway on the stage of the Orpheum.

Sid Grauman states "The Circus" has given Grauman's Chinese Theatre the greatest success ever known. Every audience leaves praising the picture and the demand for seats is immense.

"Wings," at the Biltmore, finds the fourth week of its run drawing capacity crowds to the theatre. The manner in which this film is shown cannot be copied in many theatres, and it is considered a novelty as well as a thrilling picture.

"Love" had a successful run at the Million Dollar, and duplicated its record last week at Grauman's Egyptian. Great interest was created in the endings as the tragic and happy endings were both shown at the Million Dollar and the Egyptian, respectively.

A Hal Roach comedy, "Leave 'Em Laughing" with Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, at the Metropolitan last week, was the drawing card, with the picture "Rose-Marie" taking second place. This laugh-packed short comedy was widely advertised on billboards, and proved to be all that was written about it. The "Rose-Marie Idea" was especially entertaining on the stage, with the girls doing a clever Totem dance. The theatre had practically full houses at each show.

The run of "The Last Command," at the Million Dollar Theatre, was not half long enough to enable all those who wanted to see this show, judging from comments made. The last week the picture brought in splendid business.

Carthay Circle had another famous opening Tuesday night with the premiere showing of John Ford's "Four Sons." Newspapers printed favorable criticisms of the picture, and the patronage is rapidly increasing.

Lines are still forming before the box office of the Criterion for tickets to "The Jazz Singer," as it is one of those pictures that everyone intends to see—not only once, but several times.

Cleveland

BAD weather was the official alibi for an average of mediocre business last week. "The Jazz Singer" was the one bright spot on the theatrical horizon. The picture, playing with Vitaphone at the Stillman, opened its continued engagement so big that an extra morning performance was included in the regular schedule. Keith's Palace also had a good week with the foreign-made picture, "Peaks of Destiny," coupled with a satisfactory vaudeville program. "Beau Sabreur," a good audience picture, but not so good as "Beau Geste," did just fairly well at the Allen, where it was presented with the Publix unit presentation entitled "Treasure Ships." "Baby Mine," excellent comedy, in which one good laugh follows right on the heels of another good laugh, produced just average results at the box office of the State Theatre. The Cameo's business dropped somewhat with "Wife Savers," a disappointing picture. The Park also reports just fair business with "The Silver Slave" as the feature attraction, a picture with little novelty and no high spots. Keith's East 105th St., offering "Surrender," did about average business, and "The Harvester," mild, pretty, and sentimental romance, played to good matinees at Reade's Hippodrome, but didn't pull so well for the evening performances. "King of Kings" continues to do big business at the Ohio theatre, where it is being shown at $1.65 top. And "Damaged Goods," an up-to-date screen version of the classic sex hygiene stage play, played to big attendance at the Oriental. Legitimate competition consisted of "Oh Kay," musical comedy, starring Julia Sanderson; Fritz Lieber in Shakespearean repertoire; Ethel Waters in "Africana," dramatic stock, and the now famous Clarence Darrow-Rabbi Barnett Brickner debate on "Is Man a Machine?"

Detroit

PICTURE houses here enjoyed a profitable week, despite the opening of United Artists' new theatre.

"The Jazz Singer" continues as the biggest money picture playing Detroit this season. Officials at the Madison have estimated a gross of more than one-quarter million, which represents six record-breaking weeks.

The Michigan, with "Shepherd of the Hills" and a Publix unit titled "Treasure Ships," which Manager Immerman claimed is one of the best ever offered in this city, had an extremely good week. "Quality Street" went over nicely in the Capitol, augmented by a stage presentation, and the Adams played "Love" to average attendance.

At the film and vaudeville palaces, normal conditions prevailed. "Ragtime" drawing heavily throughout the week on the Oriental screen, while the State rated above par by presenting "The Four Flusher" and Loew Variety. 'Two Girls Wanted," featured on the Uptown and Temple bills in conjunction with Keith attractions, was well attended.

United Artists' opening was a big event. The feature, "Sadie Thompson," brought numerous Swanson admirers to the foreground, and the management was highly pleased with the financial returns. All local critics expressed themselves in favorable terms, and the turnover for this theatre, naturally, proved higher than at most downtown enterprises as a result of the "whole show on the screen" policy.

Minneapolis

LAST week's business was very good at the moving picture theatres. The city was holding its annual automobile show and market week, and thousands of out-of-town visitors moved into Minneapolis for the occasion. This, of course, helped to crowd the theatres.

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" did exceptionally well at the State, where an unusually strong program helped to pull in the crowds. Richard Barthelmess, in "The Patent Leather Kid," held up very well for its second week at the Strand, while "The Student Prince" also did very nicely during its second week at the Garrick. "The King of Kings" enjoyed a very good business its second week at the Metropolitan. Zane Grey's "Open Range" did about the average trade at the Lyric, Pantages showed "Two Girls Wanted," and the crowds seemed to like it, if only on account of Janet Gaynor. The Hennepin-Orpheum featured Irene Rich in "The Desired Woman," and the Seventh Street Theatre pleased its audiences with "Red Riders of Canada," a story of the Northwest Mounted Police.

The neighborhood houses, on the whole, found business up to or a little above average. Some of the pictures they showed were "The Gorilla" at the Lagoon, "Love" at the Loring, "Irish Hearts" at the American, "Annie Laurie" at the Lyndale and "My Best Girl" at the Rialto. The theatres had a good break with the weather.

Kansas City

AUGMENTED newspaper advertising was productive of a slight increase in attendance at first run downtown houses in Kansas City this week. At Loew's Midland, William Haines and Joan Crawford drew well in "West Point," as did Jean Hersholt and Poli Negri in "The Secret Hour" at the Newman Theatre.

"Stand and Deliver," with Rod LaRocque, did a fair business at the Mainstreet also, the attendance for the week being slightly more than the previous week. "The Wizard," at the Pantages, played to average crowds, but "Harp in Hock" fell a bit below normal at the Globe.

Jack Holt, in "The Warning," at the Liberty, showed a decided increase in attendance, especially at night performances. Aside from larger newspaper space than usual, there was nothing out of the ordinary in the way of exploitation at any of the houses.

Boston

FOR some unknown reason, business was rather spotty during the week, and some of the downtown theatres, noticeably the Metropolitan, reported a decline in box office receipts. Metropolitan promptly countered with announcement of "Take-a-Chance" week for next week. A year ago this was one of the big occasions, with no announcement as to film, presentation or short subjects made in advance. With Gene Reodmich slated to appear in New York with his company, the entire program will probably be wholly new.

Boston theatres have been travelling at high speed all season, and it is to be expected that there would come a week or two with less activity. Apparently that let down came this week. Exhibitors are optimistic as to coming weeks.

Metropolitan's feature was "The Last Command," but it apparently lacked some of the appeal of recent offerings, although, as a picture, it was far ahead of many recently shown.

Loew's State was one bright spot in the desert for "West Point" drew the large audiences which have been the rule of late at that house. "Loves of Carmen" moved along to Loew's Orpheum, and did a good week's business.

"Rush Hour," at the Keith-Albee Boston, played to an average business, while the Keith and Bijou Theatres did but an average week.

Some of the theatres outside the shopping district played to good houses. "Flesh and the Devil," at the Lancaster, did well in spite of the somewhat confused condition of that section of the city during the extensive terminal alteration work under way across the street. "Lovelorn," at the Fenway, was followed by "Beau Sabreur," which did a splendid week's business, one of the best in months for the Fenway. "French Dressing" and "The Irresistible Lover" grossed well at the University. "Lovelorn" also played to average audiences at the Washington Street Olympia.

"The Fortune Hunter" and "The Haunted Ship," at the twin theatres, Modern and Beacon, had a good week at both houses. "London After Midnight," at the Capitol, did an excellent week's business, and "My Best Girl," at the Exeter, was also in for a good gross.

"Wings," at the Tremont, continues to play to heavy business in its eighth week.

Philadelphia

ANOTHER week of unusually good business was enjoyed by Philadelphia motion picture theatres.

The Fox, with Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" with Vitaphone accompaniment, and Allan Rogers, tenor, on the stage, played to tremendous business. This was the first time that "The Jazz Singer" had been given at popular prices in Philadelphia.

At the Stanley, with Lon Chaney in "London After Midnight" on the screen and Donald Brian, musical comedy star, on the stage, there was a slight falling off in attendance as compared with the previous week.

The Karlton is still doing turnaway business with "Love," which began the second week of a limited run at that house. The Stanton had a fairly good week with "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," while "Sunrise" continues to draw crowds at the Fox-Locust.

The new Carman Theatre, with "Silk Stockings" on the screen and "The Ingenues," an orchestra of 22 girl musicians, who previously appeared in the Ziegfeld "Follies," is doing a remarkable volume of business.

"Sorrell and Son," at the Arcadia, a repeat from the Stanley, continues to draw crowds at the Arcadia, while "Underworld," a repeat from the Stanton, did very well at the Victoria, with the aid of a big lobby display.

"Wings" completed its tenth week at the Aldine, with good results.

The other downtown houses also reports a very satisfactory week.

Indianapolis

THE picture, "The Jazz Singer," starring Al Jolson, with the Vitaphone, was only a fair attraction at the Circle last week. Many who attended were disappointed with Jolson on the Vitaphone. The film was widely advertised, but did not bring in extraordinary receipts.

Emil Jannings, in "The Last Command," had a fair run at the Indiana. Charlie Davis's popular stage orchestra presented "Russian Revels" as a part of the Publix program. Other downtown houses had normal business.

Managers are expecting the annual auto show Feb. 17th week to draw considerable from box office receipts that week.

"Wings" drew a good house a week ago at English's, according to Manager Ad Miller.

New Orleans

WITH real spring weather prevailing all week, New Orleans' first run theatres did excellent business. However, it wasn't only the weather that helped swell the box office receipts, it was the strong line-up of pictures presented.

The New Saenger Theatre led the field in attendance with Charlie Chaplin in "The Circus." Coupled with "The Circus" were five Publix acts with Ben Black as master of ceremonies. The stage show was one of the best of the season, but it was Charlie Chaplin that packed them in.

Running the New Saenger, its across the street neighbor a close race for first honors, was Loew's State Theatre. Although business was not as good as the week before, when "The Noose" was shown, the house did a fine week's work. "The Latest from Paris" was the screen feature, and was liked by all who saw it. The stage bill was a good one too.

The Strand featured "The Garden of Eden," and the house management reported a fine week's business. The Palace played "Yours to Command," with George O'Hara, and business was an improvement over last week.

The Orpheum's business, too, took a spurt. With a few more excellent films, the Orpheum's business would compare with the best of them. "East Side, West Side," with George O'Brien, was the photoplay attraction, and those who saw it were loud in their praise. A strong stage bill was also presented, and this can be given credit for drawing them to the University Place house.

"One Woman to Another" proved to be excellent entertainment, and Trianon's patronage took a spurt last week. "The Last Command" had its local premiere the week previous at the New Saenger, yet the Tudor did its share of the business with it. "The Cohens and Kellys" was the Liberty attraction and, besides being pleasing entertainment, did a nice business for the house.

The New Saenger celebrated its first anniversary during the past week.

Neighborhood theatre managers report business on the increase also.

Cincinnati

BUSINESS at the local houses continues to register around the normal mark. The recent closing of B. F. Keith's as a two-a-day vaudeville and picture house, has undoubtedly diverted considerable patronage to the other houses.

Gifts, which recently passed from the Frankel interests to the Keith-Albee Libson-Heidingsfeld local chain, reopened, after redecoration, with "London After Midnight," which brought out the legion of Chaney fans, resulting in a holdover for the second week.

Richard Barthelmess, in "The Noose," at the Albee, together with the stage presentations, attracted a steady throng throughout the week. This house, on account of being new and very elaborately equipped, is attracting quite a large transient patronage, who come to see whether the interior of the theatre lives up to the notices.

The Lyric did an excellent business in the second week of "The Student Prince," playing same right ahead of the road show engagement at another house.

"The Gay Defender" and Vitaphone attracted satisfactorily at the Capitol, which house offers special admission prices until 1:00 P. M. daily, except Sundays and holidays.

The Strand, with "The Secret Hour," piled up a nice gross for the week, as did also the Walnut, with Menjou in "Serenade."

Split week at the Family with "Let 'Er Go, Gallegher," first half, and "That Certain Thing," for last half, reports business entirely satisfactory for both engagements.

Albany

THE best bet of the week in Albany last week, from the standpoint of the box office, proved to be "The Student Prince" at the Leland Theatre. The receipts ran ahead of "Love," which means much in view of the fact that up until last week, "Love" had been one of the biggest money getters of the winter in Albany. Preceded by much newspaper advertising, "The Student Prince" opened to exceptionally good business on Monday, and by Wednesday it became necessary to stop the sale of tickets several times each evening. As an extra attraction, the Leland featured pictures of Albany's ice carnival, and these went over big, for the carnival itself had attracted thousands.

The second best bet of the week went to "The Divine Woman," at the Mark Strand. This picture ran to consistently good business day in and day out, although it did not approach any box office record by any means. In connection with the feature the management used two Vitaphone presentations, one of which, "In a Monastery Cellar," was applauded. The other included a sketch by Richard Carle. "Silk Legs" appeared to carry considerable appeal at the Clinton Square Theatre in Albany, with good business throughout the whole week. At the Mark Ritz business was only fair with "Baby Mine." At Proctor's Grand, "Hero for a Night" did its part along with vaudeville, in the way of entertainment. The best business of the week, aside from the first-run houses, was done by Harmanus-Bleecker Hall in a combination of three vaudeville acts and double features.

In Troy, "Sorrell and Son" went over big at the Troy Theatre, with one Vitaphone selection. The Lincoln continues to split its weeks with "The Lovelorn," running to fair business for four days, and Buster Keaton in "College" a bit better for the last part of the week.

Seattle

WITH "SADIE THOMPSON" as the screen attraction, Manager W. S. Perutz's United Artists Theatre led the field in this city last week, with a very successful box office showing. The film came right on the heels of a stage showing of "Rain," and, consequently, was given the benefit of much word-of-mouth advertising. Gloria Swanson's work was well liked, and a good musical score, by Jan Sofer, put the film over to an opening week's gross around $15,000, with a second week to follow.

At John Hamrick's Blue Mouse Theatre, "The Jazz Singer" played its fifth week to capacity business, having this week broken all local film records by finishing its 210th performance at 50c and 75c admission prices. Because of the large business that still continues, the film will go into a sixth week, something unprecedented in the annals of motion pictures in this city. Gross still above $12,000.

At the Fifth Avenue, the usual big gross house, business fell off to a very noticeable extent. The reason was two-fold: first the screen attraction and then the stage show. "A Texas Steer" on the screen failed decidedly to please the audiences, who were greatly disappointed at this picture. Then Fanchon-Marco's "Harvest Time" stage idea was not up to the usual standard of these productions. Altogether, a mediocre bill that caused a decided drop in gross.

"Beau Sabreur," in its second week at Manager Bender's Columbia Theatre, continued to draw pleasing houses for the final showings, after a first week that was well above average. The film was quite a disappointment to those who really expected an answer to "Beau Geste," but nevertheless it did have entertainment value as a program attraction, and registered a decidedly pleasing business for the Columbia. Gross well up above average.

"Topsy and Eva" was the screen attraction at Pantages Theatre last week, and was considered pretty much of a failure. Local theatre men question the wisdom of playing this film when the Duncan Sisters are expected to play Pantages in person within the next two weeks but, regardless of policy, the film could not be called much of a box office attraction. A fairly good vaudeville bill put the show across to just average gross.

At the Orpheum Theatre, "The Leopard Woman" was a little above the average calibre of films that this house has been supplied with as far as entertainment value goes, and seemed to please many of the patrons. Charlotte Greenwood was the stage headliner, assisted by several fairly good supporting acts. Business very good.

"The Warning," at the Embassy Theatre, attracted the usual pleasing houses, and the stage show kept the patrons well entertained. This house clicks along at a considerably good mark with its smaller first run features and stage shows, and seems to be building up a regular following.

Neighborhood and suburban business was slightly off. At the Metropolitan Theatre, legitimate house, "The King of Kings" opened during the week as a road show, $1.65 top, but failed to draw the business, with the exception of week end matinees. The film is scheduled for twelve days here, under Pathe auspices, but it seems to be the same old story of patrons waiting for regular price engagements. There seems to be very little interest in the film among regular show-goers.

Atlanta

ATLANTA theatres last week stood up fairly well with close running between them.

The Capitol with Laura LaPlante in "Finders Keepers" came near the top, boasting a filled box-office.

Loew's Grand showed Jeanne Eagels and John Gilbert in "Man, Woman and Sin" which was well liked.

The Howard enjoyed a good box-office with Charlie Chaplin in "The Circus." Chaplin received commendation from local critics.

Keith's Georgia featuring William Boyd in "The Night Flyer' boasts of an average week.

Harold Lloyd in "Grandma's Boy" brought the Rialto an unusually good week.

The Metropolitan closed this week with "Women's Wares" starring Evelyn Brent and Larry Kent, doing a nice business. It will reopen February 20th under a new management with "The Jazz Singer," accompanied by Vitaphone and starring Al Jolson.

"Land Beyond the Law" and "Canyon of Light" drew fair audiences for the Tudor.

Portland, Ore.

THE West Coast Broadway had an excellent week's business with Wallace Beery-Raymond Hatton comedy, "Wife Savers." The house packed them in, coming through with a great gross for the week. The Fanchon and Marco's stage act, together with Oliver Wallace, were of the first water. The Blue Mouse found the going of an improved nature, and, as a result, held over "The Jazz Singer" for a sixth week. The Rivoli, with "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," was just fair in its second week. The Columbia also found a slide from its first week's receipts on "The Cohens and the Kellys in Paris," which was held for a second week.

The Oriental showed strong returns at the gate with "The Forbidden Woman," while Pantages exhibited Fox' "Women Wise," and Francis X. Bushman in person, to excellent results.

Pittsburgh

"THE PATENT LEATHER KID" did the outstanding business of the week, starting with a midnight show Sunday, played to capacity and continuing during the week. The picture played the Grand and First National sent along an advance man also spending extra money in the newspapers, in addition to the theatre's ads. The Penn played Norma Talmadge in "The Dove," her first United Artists picture, and did a little below normal, as the picture did not please the fans, Noah Beery walking away with it. Davis had an average work with Dolores Del Rio in "Gateway to the Moon;" the feature here need only be fair as the vaudeville pulls the trade, unless, of course, the feature is exceptional. Harris, another vaudeville and picture house, played "Coney Island" and did a nice business.

"Lovelorn" played the Aldine and backed by the Hearst papers turned in a fine week's business.

"Serenade," at the Olympic, failed to cause any excitement, as did "Beware of Married Men," at the State, although a Charlie Chaplin re-issue, "Sunnyside," drew some customers. Cameo, the Universal house, played "Cohens and Kellys in Paris," which started off slowly, but picked up to capacity business the rest of the week, and will play two more weeks at the house; the theatre only seats 600.

Dallas

PATRONAGE at the Dallas theatres was only fair the past week, although the weather was pretty, and the attractions offered were good.

At the Melba, Charlie Chaplin in "The Circus" opened slow, but after a three-days' showing played to capacity houses for two days, and then started down again. It was held over four days, however, and the gross in the eleven-day run will show a good average.

At the Majestic "Alias the Lone Wolf" with Bert Lytell did an average week's business.

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" at the Palace failed to bring the big crowds expected after much publicity. But the week's business was satisfactory.

At the Capitol "One Round Hogan" fell far below the business of the past few weeks. The main reason was that the patronage at the Capitol is largely women, and as usual a fight picture fails to get them.

The Old Mill, showing "Sailors' Wives" and the "Spotlight," had fair houses throughout the week.

The Arcadia did a nice business with "Love," using the happy ending to the film for the first time in Dallas. A Sally Field Vitaphone Specialty finished the program.

Birmingham, Ala.

THE Ritz and Pantages led the town the the past week. The Ritz, with the "Love Mart," Al K. Hall and other Keith acts, coupled with a sensational and lucky break on Movietone, packed 'em in all week. The Pantages, with "The Lost Battalion" and the usual Pantages acts, one of which featured Mabel Cody, aviatrix, did phenomenal business. Loew's, with "The Divine Woman" and five Loew acts, had a fair week, but "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," proved somewhat disappointing at the new and palatial Alabama. The Trianon, with "The Whip Woman" had a good week, and the Galax, with a return showing of "Grandma's Boy," had fair business . The second and suburban run houses reported that business was up generally speaking.

The main reason for this rather sudden spurt in B. O. returns is given by many as being due to the fact that the local steel mills are resuming operations on a larger scale, thus providing more money for employees.

Harrisburg, Pa.

THERE was no falling off last week from the more than satisfactory business the Harrisburg theatres have been enjoying ever since the Yuletide lull. Among the biggest crowds were those attracted to Loew's Regent, where John Gilbert, in "Man, Woman and Sin," was the feature, and where, as usual in the case of a Gilbert show,feminine attendance predominated. The receipts were far more than average.

Rainy weather in the early part of the week perhaps was responsible for some vacant chairs in the Colonial, where Billie Dove and an all-star cast presented "The Love Mart," but, as the exceptional merits of the play were broadcast about the city by those who saw it first, business improved tremendously, and by Saturday capacity audiences were on hand.

"Love and Learn," featuring Esther Ralston, and containing a lot of good comedy, brought gratifying returns to the Victoria. At the State, devoted to both vaudeand movies, the presence of Fatty Arbuckle, the former film star, who appeared in person on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, packed 'em in to the roof at all performances. Half a dozen ministerial or kindred organizations had, in advance, protested his showing in Harrisburg, because of his court difficulties of a few years ago, but the State Theatre management declined to take him off the program. The newspaper publicity that the protests brought served only to stimulate the size of the crowds that went to see Arbuckle. The film attraction at the State was Madge Bellamy in "Very Confidential," and the play was well received.

Milwaukee

THEATRES in downtown Milwaukee were treated to an unusually good week. Business everywhere was brisk. The weather may have helped some to induce people downtown, for it was clear and fair throughout the week. Clara Bow, in "Wine," kept the Alhambra well filled at practically all performances. "Rose of the Golden West" brought in fair results at the Wisconsin. Matinee business here was very fine throughout the week. "The Student Prince" was held over for two weeks at the Merrill, and was very well attended during its second week. "Serenade" was well received at the Strand. The Garden offered "The Dove" for a second week. Business here was not up to par.

Average business was reported in the neighborhood theatres for the week. "A Texas Steer" drew only fair patronage at the Tower and Uptown Theatres. "The Valley of the Giants" was moderately popular at the Milwaukee, National and Savoy. "Almost Human" was well received at the Venetian. "Tea for Three" was very well attended at the Oriental.

Washington Objects to "Man, Woman and Sin"

BUSINESS men of Washington, D. C., are up in arms over the picture "Man, Woman and Sin," shown recently at Loew's Palace, which was represented to have been filmed in part in the city. Following a heated discussion of the film, the Washington Chamber of Commerce has sent a letter to Will Hays, the producer and the local distributor of the film, and the Washington Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, requesting that action be taken to eliminate all scenes represented as taking place in Washington.

"Serious complaints regarding the picture have been brought to the attention of the Board of Directors of the Washington Chamber of Commerce," the letter stated, "it being alleged that this film is not only highly immoral, but that it also casts an unwarranted slur upon the Capital and the citizens therein. The Chamber hopes that you may be able to take steps through your office as a result of which this film will be modified or suppressed."

Tampa

LAST week was the end of the South Florida Fair and Gasparilla Carnival, and they drew immense crowds. The theatres, however, did not seem to suffer, at least the downtown houses, due no doubt to the vast number of strangers in the city. As the fair did not operate on Sunday, it gave the theatres a wonderful start; all houses being packed both afternoon and evening.

The Victory took the lead again last week, the second week of the Vitaphone presentations, and held it all through. The feature was "Old San Francisco." Other presentations were, "Van and Schenck," "Anna Case," "Aunt Jemima" and "Eddie Peabody." Business was simply great.

The Tampa had a good week, but hardly in excess of average. "Sorrell and Son" was featured the first half, and "Sporting Goods" the last half. This latter picture proved the best draw.

The Strand had three sure-fire pictures, and held up pretty fine in spite of the big opposition. "The Secret Hour" was used Sunday and Monday, and went over good. "The Angel of Broadway" kept 'em coming the next three days, and "The Legionnaires in Paris" was a good card the last two.

The Franklin did about average last week on their three changes, "The Red Riders of Canada," "The Wreck of the Hesperus" and "The Demon Rider."

Salt Lake City

THE week's theatre business did not come up to expectations in some instances, here, this past week, it is reported. In spite of the fact that weather conditions were favorable, and some special productions were shown. This lull may have been due to the fact that the preceding week's business was exceptionally big throughout the city.

The Capitol Theatre seems to have led, as far as crowded houses were concerned, with a great deal of the interest being due to the Fanchon and Marco stage presentation being shown here, rather than to the picture production alone, which was the comedy-drama "Love and Learn."

The Paramount Empress Theatre used a great deal of exploitation for their showing of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," including a big "Preferred Blonde" Contest, which was staged with more than two hundred entrants. This was in the form of a tie-up with local merchants. However, business at the Paramount Empress did not result quite satisfactorily, considering all of this publicity. Miss Ruth Taylor, Paramount star appearing in this production, also made a personal appearance.

"Old San Francisco," at the American Theatre, was received with great praise by the slightly above average crowds who attended throughout the week.

"The Pioneer Scout" was shown at the Victory Theatre, this having been National Scout Week. The picture went over fairly well.

Tremendously heavy exploitation was used on "Love," with Greta Garbo and John Gilbert, which was the week's picture offering at the Pantages. Some of the performances during the fore part of the week were attended heavily, but, as a whole, business did not come up entirely to expectations on this picture.

Virginia Bradford, Alan Hale and Frank Marion, in "The Wreck of the Hesperus," went over to good houses at the Gem, it is reported.

Ottawa

PATRONAGE was generally fair at the leading moving picture theatres of Ottawa, Ontario, during the week of February 6th. There were really no super-productions on the local bill-of-fare for the week, and the 1928 motor show also cut deeply into regular theatre attendance, it was admitted.

"Love," starring John Gilbert and Greta Garbo, started off the week at the Regent Theatre like a sensation, but enthusiasm tapered off. Matinee crowds held up, but night crowds fell off.

At B. F. Keith's Theatre "The Main Event," with Vera Reynolds, held the popular fancy. This was generally regarded as a pleasing feature, but caused no tremendous excitement.

Crowds at the Centre Theatre were quite up to the mark for "East Side, West Side," and its melodramatic situations aroused comment.

At the Imperial Theatre there were several attractions, including the feature, "The Thirteenth Juror"; first episode of the "Beauty Parlor" series, and the novelty reel showing the children of Hollywood film stars. "The Thirteenth Juror" was a good one of its type, but there was too much slapstick in the "Beauty Parlor." The juvenile stars were interesting because of their names.

Baltimore

FIVE first-run moving picture theatres in Balitmore boasted excellent business for the week beginning Monday, February 6th. They were the Motion Picture Guild's Little Theatre with the re-issue of "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari"; the New Garden with Ken Murray in Harry Carroll's revue on the Keith-Albee time and Ralph Ince's picture "Chicago After Midnight"; Loew's Valencia with "The Dove," starring Norma Talmadge; Keith's Hippodrome with five acts of Keith-Albee family time vaudeville and "That's My Daddy," starring Reginald Denny with little Jane La Verne running away with starring honors, and Warners' Metropolitan with "The Jazz Singer," starring Al Jolson, in its fifth week.

So good a drawing card did "The Cabinet of Dr. Calgari" prove that it was held for a second week at the Little Theatre, and the laughs contained in the Denny picture, in which little Jane La Verne proved a knockout, were many, and came often. "The Jazz Singer" is not playing a forced run at the Metropolitan, for the demand for the picture is a healthy one, and it is said that many persons are going back to see it two and three times.

"Beau Sabreur" did not prove such hot potatoes at Loew's Century, for it seemed to be too many what was left over from "Beau Geste."

"On the Stroke of Twelve," a melodramatic picture with Ernest Torrence and June Marlowe, proved a good business getter at the Palace, where burlesque is presented with moving pictures.

"Grandma's Boy," starring Harold Lloyd, shown as a re-issue at the New Theatre, proved only a fan drawing card.

While it was funny in spots, "Wife Savers" proved only a fair drawing card at the Stanley.

The Rivoli had "Smile, Brother, Smile," one of the best films ever turned out by Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall, with the Criterion Male Quartet on the same bill.

Business was only fair at night and the matinees were poor.

Studio Briefs

Walter Lang's new production for Columbia will be a story of the far east, tentatively titled "Lovers in Damascus," and based on the story by Ewart Adamson.

Barbara Hunter is cutting and editing "His Country," William K. Howard's latest production for Pathe.

Adolphe Menjou's next Paramount vehicle will be "Super of the Gaiety," the stage play by Alfred Savoir. Ernest Vajda will supervise the production and write the continuity. Hobart Henley will direct and Evelyn Brent will be the feminine lead.

Richard Blaydon will assist Edward H. Griffith with the production of the forthcoming De Mille film, "Hold 'Em, Yale." Jerry Mandy has just joined the cast.

Arthur Housman has been cast for the role of "Grogan" in the new Paramount comedy, "Quick Lunch."

Jobyna Ralston has been signed as one of the leads in the Tiffany-Stahl production, "Power." Wade Boeteler, Harvey Clark and Ben Hendricks have also been added to the cast.

Gertrude Clarie has been cast as the grandmother in "Red Hair," which Paramount is making.

Lorraine Rivero, child actress, William von Hardenberg, Blance Craig and Helen Hunt have been added to the cast of "Three Sinners," Pola Negri's new vehicle.

Robert Frazer has just been signed by Tiffany-Stahl for the masculine lead in a new production to be directed by Edgar Lewis. The title of the story has not been announced.

Milton Sills is scheduled to do an underworld drama as his next vehicle for First National, after which he will attempt the starring role in "The Barker."

Another of these director-star teams seems to have sprung into existence at the Paramount studio. Frank Tuttle, director, and Richard Dix, star, are working together regularly. It was two years ago when they first became associated.

Additions to the cast of First National's "Harold Teen" are Mary Brian, Jack Eagen, Jane Keekley, Lincoln Stedman and Ben Hall.

Clarance Badger will direct Bebe Daniels' next picture, untitled. The cast will include William Austin, George Kotsonaros and Johnnie Morris.

"The Boss of Little Arcady," the novel by Harry Leon Wilson, is being prepared by First National for early production. Charlie Murray is to have the featured role. Shooting will start the first week of March.

In the March issue of the National Board of Review Magazine, the two Paramount subjects, "Sporting Goods" and "Koko's Jerm Jam," were selected for the Photoplay Guide of film entertainment.

Philip Bartholomae, a member of the First National scenario department, is doing the adaptation of "Sailor Love," the story by John V. A. Weaver.

"White Hands," the story by Arthur Stringer, has been purchased by Paramount for Esther Ralston. Doris Anderson is doing the adaptation and Gregory LaCava will handle the direction following "Something Always Happens."

John Francis Dillion will direct "The Whip," from the old English melodrama, for First National. Sam E. Rork will be production manager. Bernard McConville is completing the adaptation and filming is to commence in March.

Stanley Blystone is the comic villain in "His Maiden Voyage," a new George Davis comedy for Educational. In a new Monty Collins comedy, "Pretty Baby," Lucille Balart has the role of leading lady.

Mervyn LeRoy, said to be the youngest director of pictures today, will direct Colleen Moore in the new special First National has planned for her, "Oh Kay." She is now working in "Lilac Time," will next do "Tomorrow," and will then tackle "Oh Kay."

"A Simple Sap," the fourth comedy in the series he is making for Educational, has been finished by Larry Semon. Two assisting comedians in this two-reeler are Walter Heirs and Jimmie Aubrey. A new leading lady, Bee Amann, makes her initial screen appearance in this production.

The title, "Palomino," for Ken Maynard's new western for First National, has been dropped in favor of "The Upland Rider.

Dan Crimmins, former vaudevillian, has the principal adult role in "Chilly Days," Educational comedy starring "Big Boy."

"The Heart of a Follies Girl" has been completed by First National and the members of the chorus, 50 girls in all, have gone back to their various stage engagements. Sets are now being constructed for Billie Dove's next picture, "The Yellow Lily."

Art Jacobson will assist Lothar Mendez in the direction of "The Code of Honor," now being filmed by Paramount.

Early in March Corinne Griffith will start work on her first picture under her new contract with First National. This will be a screen version of the Barrington novel, "The Divine Lady." Frank Lloyd will direct.

Charley Bowers is ever on the alert for something new in his ingenious comedies. In "Whoozit," now being filmed at the Educational plant, he will introduce two trained oysters via trick photography. Through the Bowers process they will leave their shells, parade through a kitchen and descend a flight of stairs.

Evelyn Brent will be the feminine lead in Adolphe Menjou's new Paramount picture, "Super of the Gaiety."

With the completion of the script for "The Godless Girl," Jeanie Macpherson, scenarist, has finished her eighteenth scenario for a Cecil Be De Mille production. Viola Louie is the newest player to join the cast.

Final scenes were shot last week for "Crooks Can't Win," a melodrama of the police department produced by FBO.

J. Gordon Cooper, protege of several Hollywood directors, makes his debut as a megaphone wielder with "Sin Town," a De Mille western co-featuring Hugh Allan and Elinor Fair.

Filming on Paramount's "Quick Lunch" got away last week under Chuck Reisner's direction when Chester Conklin arrived from Honolulu, where he spent a vacation. The support will include Mary Alden, Sally Blane and Guy Oliver.

Gloria Lee has been signed to play one of Bessie Love's girl chums in FBO's "Sally of the Scandals."

The newest Van Bibber to go into production at the Fox Studios is "Too Many Cookies," which O. Dull is directing. Tyler Brooke and Lucille Miller are the featured players. Others in the cast are Marjorie Beebe, Donald Stuart, Nira Cecil, Syd Crossley, Jack Ackroyd, Phillip Smalley and Otto Fries.

"Souvenirs," a new Tiffany-Stahl color film, is now being filmed at the Coast studios with a cast made up of Anna May Wong, Esther Garcia, Joyzelle Joyner and Harold Miller. Hans Reinhardt is directing.

Peter Milne has been assigned his second continuity for Columbia, an untitled production for Bessie Love which Frank Capra will direct.

William Austin and Arnold Kent, actors, have signed new long-term contracts with Paramount.

Walter Hagen, the golf champion, who has a reputation for coolness and nerve in tight situations in a golf match, has been signed by Tiffany-Stahl to star in a series of features that will have golf as their predominating theme. The first is to start around this time.

Opinions on Pictures

Rose Marie

Just An Old-Fashioned Mountie Yarn

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THIS picture had a fine background. It once flourished prettily on the stage and made a hit, principally through its excellent score and some capital dance numbers which captivated the audience. Furthermore the Mountie story hadn't been done to death behind the footlights. But transferred to celluloid—well, it is something else again. It just becomes an old-fashioned melodramatic romance of the Northwest, with nothing to intrigue the mind except some gorgeous scenery. Capturing God's vast cathedral is not so difficult these days when a cameraman is given carte blanche to go get those vistas.

The only difference here is that Mr. Mountie doesn't get all of his men. It doesn't carry much suspense, because you know the red-coat isn't in the habit of failing. But its romance is neat and carried out well by the very ornamental Joan Crawford and James Murray. Joan may not be the little spit-fire that was represented on the stage but she is very easy on the eyes. So why worry over that point?

There is one fine dramatic scene when the good characters are grouped in an abandoned shack and placed in the claws of the evil hombre.

Drawing Power: The original play. The fine scenery. The cast. Okay for any type of house. Exploitation Angles: Should do business on long record of musical play. Feature cast, and bill as graphic film of Northwest.

THEME: Melodrama of Northwest Mounted. Yes, he gets his man.

Produced and Distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Length, six reels. Released, February, 1928. The Cast: Joan Crawford, House Peters, James Murray, Gibson Gowland, Creight Hale. Director, Lucien Hubbard.

South Sea Love

Program Fare

(Reviewed by E. G. Johnston)

JUST another yarn of the South Seas with nothing much in it but Patsy Ruth Miller's personality. The story is weak and the action drags all the way through; however, this film will do well enough to run along with a vaudeville bill or as one of a double feature program. It was evidently made with that intent.

Miss Miller is cast in the role of an ambitious chorine but most of her plans fail to materialize due to the fact that her chosen sweetheart lives on a South Sea Island instead of Broadway. Her promoter also throws a few wrenches in the machinery by the way of fake telegrams, eventually sending another jealous admirer on a murderous mission to her lover's island. There the two rivals become friends after indulging in plenty of self pity and still more gin, and by a ruse the heroine is enticed to their island home where she is imprisoned. Bob (the lover) finally relents and instructs his former rival to take the girl back to civilization. The old lure returns to the latter and Bob interrupts a violent scene. The girl remains with Bob to work out the future.

Drawing Power: The film is practical for use with vaudeville and as a double feature. Also for the smaller theatres. Exploitation Angles: South Sea tales are attractive if your audience is not fed up with them. Patsy Ruth Miller's name is an asset.

THEME: Promoter and jealous rival attempt to break up romance between ambitious stage girl and lover who lives on South Sea island and almost succeed. Misunderstanding is ironed out when heroine is enticed to island by ruse.

Produced and distributed by FBO. Released December 10, 1927. Length, 6,388 feet. The Cast: Patsy Ruth Miller, Lee Shumway, Allan Brooks, Harry Crocker and Barney Gilmore. Story by George Surdez. Direction, Ralph Ince.

Four Sons

The Mother Side of the War—Well Done

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

A NEW side of the war is presented here—a picture which carries a theme similar to "The Enemy." Where the latter exploited a wife giving up her man for his country and suffering the privations of warfare, "Four Sons" presents a mother who gives up her boys. The German hearth is the background, the exact location being some small town in Bavaria. We look upon a patient, big-hearted mother at peace in her home. The war robs her of her first born. He is killed. So are the third and the youngest. But the second son goes to America and his life is spared though he fights for the cause of Old Glory.

Into this picture is woven a series of touching scenes, most of which ring with deep pathos and considerable sentiment. As the boys march away to war Mother Bernle grieves but bears up with Spartan courage. It is fine tribute to the acting of Margaret Mann, who has worked in the ranks of the extras despite her sixty-odd years. Now she comes into her own, and creates an excellent portrayal, one marked by its sincerity and feeling.

The Bavarian home is a modest one. And the poignancy of war is brought home when the mother watches and waits and receives the sad tidings. The picture tugs at the emotions until the youth in America sends for her after the armistice. Then it becomes foreign to its theme and the finish looks like an anti-climax. Evidently the director wanted to leave them smiling when they walked out. It is properly staged and rich in its atmosphere. And the acting on the whole is very good, even if there is an imitation of Jannings and another of Stroheim.

Drawing Power: Should do good business everywhere. Good advertising will sell it. Exploitation Angles: Play up the four sons who are sacrificed for war. Tell of the mother-love theme. Play up cast and discovery of fine actress from extra ranks.

THEME: Drama of mother love—with a mother who gives up her four sons to fight in the war, three of them being killed.

Produced and distributed by Fox Films. Length, nine reels. Cast: Margaret Mann, James Hall, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., George Meeker, June Collyer, Albert Gran, Earle Foxe, Frank Reicher, Jack Pennick, Hughie Mack, Ruth Mix, Archduke Leopold. Director, John Ford.

The Cohens and the Kellys in Paris

Good Picture of Its Type

(Reviewed by E. G. Johnston)

AUDIENCES which get a real kick out of pictures such as this one's predecessor, "The Cohens and the Kellys," and all other Irish-Jewish films, will receive the same thrills from this latest attempt to amalgamate the Hebrew and Hibernian races; and others, with a different slant on these kind of pictures, will find humor in the Parisian cabaret sequence if they can manage to sit through several hundred feet of vulgar table manners—and seasick passengers on the ship which is bearing the two families to Paris. There's nothing new in the way of gags; the same old stuff is used—but we repeat that there are a lot of folks who will enjoy this picture to the utmost.

Messrs. Cohen and Kelly are engaged in a partnership which consists of writing bitter notes to each other. They also have, respectively, a son and a daughter studying art in Paris. Unknown to the parents the two youngsters marry and in a mild way break the news to the partners. The latter set sail for Paris where they find some domestic unhappiness due to the extended engagement of a blonde model by young Kelly. Many complications result from the parents' efforts to straighten out the young couple's affairs.

The entire cast does excellent work, of chief interest being that of George Sidney, Farrel McDonald and Gertrude Astor. Vera Gordon, Kate Price and Charles Delaney are also good and Sue Carol certainly is a most attractive little Jewish girl.

Drawing Power: If your audience likes this type of picture by all means book this one. Exploitation Angles: The usual Cohen-Kelly ballyhoo. The excellent cast.

THEME: A quarreling pair of Irish-Jewish partners sail for Paris to forestall a marriage between their son and daughter and find the couple already engaged in housekeeping. A blonde model causes complications which are finally ironed out.

Produced and distributed by Universal. Released January 15, 1928. Length, 7,481 fee. The Cast: George Sidney, J. Farrel McDonald, Vera Gordon, Kate Price, Sue Carol, Gertrude Astor and Charles Delaney. Directed by William Beaudine.

Sporting Goods

Dix Must Get Them Hotter Than This One

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THERE'S no question but what Richard Dix must get them hotter than this picture, which hasn't much to recommend it beyond a certain liveliness of action. It exploits a couple of good incidents, one concerning the expansion of a suit of clothes on a rainy day (which is [illegible] the reverse English on a time-worn [illegible]) and the other featuring a poker game. This bit is well done and becomes quite complicated. Otherwise it hasn't much to offer.

The star is seen in the role of a sporting goods salesman whose line is golf apparel. His selling point is bringing home to the buyers that the suit stretches with the drive. And there you are. It hasn't much of a plot, and when it gives evidence of breaking in two, along comes a gag or some "foolish" business by Dix and the situation is saved.

What has happened that this good trouper must be buried by weak or mediocre stories when he should be clicking high with the best the market affords? "Sporting Goods" won't add to his histrionic stature. It is light, fairly amusing, but it doesn't get the star anywhere. In the cast are Gertrude Olmstead, Ford Sterling and Philip Strange. All work hard to put over their points. It is adequately mounted.

Drawing Power: Suitable for average houses or first runs if surrounded by well-balanced bills. Exploitation Angles: Tie up with sporting goods stores, especially those featuring golf apparel. Play up Dix.

THEME: Romantic comedy of high-pressure salesman who gets his buyer and his girl.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Length, six reels. Released, February, 1928. The Cast: Richard Dix, Ford Sterling, Gertrude Olmstead, Phillip Strange, Myrtle Stedman, Wade Boteler, Claude King, Maude Turner Gordon. Director, Mal St. Clair.

The Apache Raider

Lots of Detail in This Western

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

WHEN Leo Maloney and his estimable story adaptor, Ford I. Beebe, collaborate on a story you can generally rely on them turning out one well constructed and logical. Their latest effort is not in the class of some of the star's previous vehicles, but it is fair enough as westerns go. It would seem that a little cutting down in its footage would be a good move because as it stands now a greater proportion of detail than is necessary retards its progress and swing. The story is somewhat complicated and the cast is a large one, nevertheless eliminating a few of the minor details would not be amiss. Westerns are primarily action dramas and they profit best when told in swift, broad strokes.

One thing about Maloney is that he avoids an interpretation of a hero that makes of him a super man—a man on whom seems to have been bestowed all the gifts that Dame Fortune could muster. Maloney, in impersonating a western hero, does not attempt to clothe him in the peerless guise of athletic supremacy; rather, he tries to make his hero human, a little disgruntled and surly at times. He does not make him the rip snorting, tearing young chap, who can save girls, trounce villains and carry on like an invincible. He deserves credit for being sensible in his characterizations.

Maloney is called "The Apache Raider" because he has the temerity to steal cattle which belong to him. There had been villainy afoot, with the result that a rogue had obtained the cattle and a ranch by illegal evidence. The lies manufactured against Maloney turn the sheriff against him so that he is forced to clear his good name. He discovers several interesting facts about a certain influential rancher, and this chap, realizing Maloney is after him, charges him with a stage holdup, with the result that the towns people attempt to hang the "Apache." Just when this is about to take place, another victim of the rancher's villainy arrives and unmasks the villain, who then shoots it out with Maloney.

Drawing Power: Okay for the double feature and neighborhood houses. Exploitation Angles: Use stock-in-trade stuff.

THEME: Western drama of young westerner who gets his cattle back from unscrupulous rancher, kills him in gun duel, and wins pretty girl.

Distributed by Pathe. Released, February 12, 1928. Length, 5,755 feet. The Cast: Leo Maloney, Eugenia Gilbert, Dan Coleman, Tom London, Jack Ganzhorn, Frederick Dana, Joan Renee, W. M. McCormack, R. C. Smith, Walter Shumway, Murdock MacQuarrie, Allen Watt, Whitehorse, Robin Williamson, Dick La Reno, Robert Burns. Director, Leo Maloney.

"Romany Love"

(Tiffany-Stahl—One Reel)

THIS new release of the Tiffany-Stahl series of Color Classic pictures has a fairly good story and competent portrayals by its cast of four people plus some pretty color work which predominates throughout. The story concerns gypsies, how a gypsy boy and a gypsy girl loved and how the jealous gypsy chieftain did his best to kill the young man when he discovered that he himself was scorned and that the girl loved the boy.

After he had struggled with the boy and apparently left him for dead the gypsy chief flees the scene. The boy has received but a minor injury, however, and soon recovers his good health. The gypsy chief returns to the camp with a strange man with the news that he has found the girl's father and that she is not a gypsy but a white girl. The gypsy boy and the girl do not let this newly revealed fact come between their love. A suitable little novelty.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"Mother Birds"

(Educational—One Reel)

THIS is an unusually attractive single reeler of the Walter Futter's Curiosities series. It was edited and arranged by Beth Brown, and is as pretty a little story of bird life as one would care to see. It shows the tenderness and loveliness of a mother bird to her young, the careful manner in which the baby bird is reared, and how it develops from the time the egg breaks until it is able to take care of itself.

Miss Brown has done a splendid piece of work by combining all these factors and then working into the picture a lovely old lady who tenderly cares for the old nest on her porch. There are many distinct features to the reel, with some wonderful shots of the young birds as they take their first cautious steps and then attempt their first flight. It is a picture that will be appreciated by any type of audience.—CHESTER J. SMITH.

"All Washed Up"

(F B O—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

THE use of double exposure is applied generously to supply most of the humor in this two reeler of the Karnival Komedies series. Al Cooke is the featured player in the role of a salesman who inadvertently steps into a lot of trouble when he agrees to double for Oscar Zilch, a millionaire with a lot of enemies.

Zilch, just previously had been warned that he had less than twenty four hours to live, and when Al steps into the Zilch limousine it looks as though it would be much less than that. Snipers, bomb throwers and others bent on his annihilation get busy immediately and Al escapes death only through a series of miracles.

Finally Al retires to the Zilch home, where he is greeted most affectionately by the beautiful Mrs. Zilch. Then Zilch, himself, arrives and more complications develop with Mrs. Zilch not knowing which is her husband. Heated words follow, with the result that the two men decide upon a duel. Mrs. Zilch withdraws from the room and then Al suggests that they shoot into the air, pretend to be dead and see which one Mr. Zilch rushes to first. They proceed with this arrangement, and Mrs. Zilch returning expresses her thanks for the demise of both and exits with Al's secretary.

There is some fair comedy injected here and there that should bring some laughs. Al has considerable difficulty when he goes to address a women's gathering on the subject "What a Girl of Thirty-Five Should Know." It results in a mass attack upon him and a hurried exit. A series of poorly done wise-cracking titles does not help the picture any.

"Rah! Rah! Rekie"

(F B O—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

THERE are numerous opportunities for some good comedy in this story, which features Al Cooke, and there are bound to be laughs. It is devoted largely to sports with Cooke posing as an expert in the various pastimes, and giving some ludicrous ideas as to how each should be played.

Cooke develops into a hero when his horse runs away, joins in the annual steeplechase, and ultimately wins the race after some humorous antics. He is banqueted by the Hunt Club, and causes the greatest confusion when he interrupts an internationally known sportsman who is called upon at several times to explain different angles of sports.

Al invariably pinch hits for the speaker, and demonstrates how he made a 2,000 yard hole in one in golf. He oversteps himself when he declares his proficiency at polo. The belle of the club has an unmanageable horse which she is looking for some one to ride in the forthcoming polo match. She insists that Cooke be the rider, and though he tries all sorts of ruses to avert the impending disaster it is all useless. He participates in the polo game and is thrown here, there and everywhere as the game progresses. It is a comedy that will probably be well received in the smaller houses.

"Pretty Baby"

(Educational—One Reel)

MONTY COLLINS, Wallace Lupino, Lucille Hutton and an infant carry on in this Cameo directed by Jules White. It's a fair laugh-maker.

Monty and Lucille are newlyweds and they receive a visit from the bride's sister, who walks off with the bride leaving Monty with her squalling infant. The comedy revolves around Monty's efforts to stop the baby's crying. In these endeavors he is aided by Lupino, who takes the part of a drunk lurching through the halls and constantly going into the wrong apartments. They find that the only way to amuse the baby is to slap each other. Though they sing him songs and try other fields of amusement the infant will always cry unless they resume their slapping act.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"Always a Gentleman"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

A PUNY attempt to be funny is made by Lloyd Hamilton in this comedy of the golf links and a sanitarium for the weak minded. It would seem also that the gag men belong in that latter place if the comedy situations that they have given Hamilton in this comedy are the best they can achieve. For an example of how bad a comedy can be, of how it belies its claim of being a comedy, and of how, instead, it is more of a tragedy—this two-reeler is a prize. Do you remember how good a comedian Lloyd Hamilton was at one time? If so, weep when you see him in this one.

The story was written and directed by Norman Taurog, but that gentleman has done much better on previous occasions. In supporting roles are Al Thompson, Jack Miller and Stanley Blystone. The introductory scene is one of the golf links where a foursome of nuts are engaged in the gentle sport of hitting golf balls. Such gags as a golfer hitting an egg with his stick thinking it a ball and a shot of the egg's contents drooling over a character's face will give you an idea of the comedy they have here. The scene then switches to the crazy house. The antics of the inmates may arouse a few laughs at the most.

The entire comedy could have been improved on if a little more time and care had been exercised in the selection of the gags and the building up of the comedy. It's hard for anyone to put their stamp of approval on a comedy effort like this.

"Cutie"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

DOROTHY DEVORE is the versatile girl, all right. In the greater portion of this comedy she impersonates a little girl, restless and full of mischief. She gives overwhelming evidence of her ability as a subtle comedienne and pantomimist in her scenes of the curly-headed juvenile. She deserves compliments—something like the Beatrice Lillie of the screen comedy field; at least, she is entitled to comment of a praiseworthy nature.

Written and directed by Norman Taurog, the story gets under way with shots of Dorothy's wedding to Earl McCarthy. The newlyweds' bliss is harshly disturbed when they are told that the groom's uncle is planning to pay him a visit carrying with him the inheritance which the groom is to receive on the condition that he is still single.

The uncle arrives in the company of Katherine McGuire, McCarthy's childhood sweetheart and the uncle's choice for his wife. This is an embarrassing moment for the newly wedded pair, but Dorothy solves the quandary by dressing as a little girl. She has great sport with the uncle and provides plenty of humor wtih her childish actions. The uncle ultimately discovers the bluff, but does not mind because he has been taken in by the girl's charm and vivacity.

Assisting players are Glen Cavender and Al Thompson.

"Say A-Ah"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

THIS is another of Charley Bowers' trick comedies in which the most absurd things happen and seem real. Through Bowers' mystifying process a hybrid ostrich is made to do all sorts of queer and funny things.

A millionaire has the tantrums; to cure him his doctor sends him to an ostrich farm where ostrich eggs will be the only food allowed him. Bowers is an assistant handy man on the farm and it is his duty to care for the eggs. He has a good heart but clumsy fingers and it is not long before he has broken practically all the precious eggs. The angry millionaire flies into a rage and demands his egg, but there is none to give him.

Charley finally succeeds in getting one of the birds to lay an egg after giving her a bag of feed consisting of scraps of metal, rags and other material that Bowers had picked up and pulverized in the feed machine. The egg hatched, the queerest sort of bird imaginable steps forth; its appearance is peculiar, ungainly and funny; Bowers sure does provoke wonder because of the antics he has made it go through. When the irate millionaire sees this queer bird he bursts into roars of laughter. It is the first time he has laughed in years. In his happy frame of mind the doctor pronounces him cured of his violent temper.

"Say A-Ah," while not as good a piece of comedy work as "There It Is," is still an excellent example of how novelty and comedy can be advantageously mixed. This trick ostrich is one of the best things Bowers has ever done. H. L. Muller directed and was the cameraman. In support are J. Gordon Russell, Kewpie Morgan, Ray Turner, Jean Douglas, Eddie Dunn, Buster Brodie.

"His In-Laws"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

WITH the story by Octavus Roy Cohen, and the starring role in the hands of Charles Puffy, it would seem that a better comedy should have been the result. There is nothing wrong with the story, and Puffy does well enough what he has to do, but it is likely Cohen would hardly recognize his original creation when he saw it on the screen.

It is just a jumble of horseplay and knockabout comedy that is stretched out of all proportion to what was probably originally called for. Relatives of Puffy's wife visit with them, and become so obnoxious that he determines to get rid of them in one way or another.

He gets his idea when he reads in the paper that five lunatics have escaped. Puffy decides to hire five disreputable characters to come to his house that night and scare the relatives so they will be glad to leave. Unknowingly he hires the five lunatics.

On their arrival the hirelings first decide to dissect Puffy, who makes his escape after some harrowing experiences. The relatives are next given attention, and the house is a bedlam as the asylum keepers arrive. Puffy convinces them that his relatives are also insane, and the whole bunch are trundled off in lockstep fashion. There are some situations that are bound to provoke laughs, but it looks as though it could have been made a much more attractive comedy than it is.

"His Maiden Voyage"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

EVER since "Roaring Lions" years ago showed that escaped lions, terrified negroes and other nervous folk in ticklish circumstances could be relied on to arouse laughter, comedy producers have seldom missed an opportunity to prop up a comedy with the didoes cut up by the lions and their prospective victims. In this one also they have George Davis fooling around in feminine garb. There's little originality in its contents but it is a reliable type of humor which should give the fans some hearty laughs.

Davis is a tourist smitten by the good looks of a professor's daughter. He follows her on board ship by getting a position as stewardess. To add to the confusion created by his impersonation an ape escapes and frees a menagerie of lions from their cages, with the result that general chaos and disorder result on board the ship when the break of the lions becomes known. The comedy consists of the efforts of the negro steward, the professor, his daughter and Davis to dodge the hungry cats. To repeat, it is old stuff but always good for quite a few laughs.

Stephen Roberts directed this two-reeler, which has in supporting roles Estelle Bradley, as the professor's daughter, Stanley Blystone, Robert Graves, Eva Thatcher and Ray Turner.

"The Flag"

(M-G-M-Technicolor—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

THIS production is pretentious and pretty as it is done in Technicolor throughout. Its theme is an important one for Americans as it concerns the story of Betsy Ross and the birth of the flag of the colonies. There has been another story superimposed on the historical portion of the tale and this touches on the theme of friendship between the armies of warring nations.

Practically all of the action takes place in the home of Bessy Ross. The newly made flag hangs on the mantelpiece of the Ross home. Washington is present and his suspicions are aroused when he sees the flag move. Behind the emblem of liberty was an English officer who had crossed the lines to the Ross home in order to see his wife. Instead of taking the officer captive or having him shot as a spy, Washington orders his release and safe conduct back to the English embankments. It ends on this motif of peace in war. It will cause patriotic flutterings of the heart with its scenes of the spangled emblem, its stripes red and white and its circle of stars on a field of blue.

The picture, as a whole, has not grasped or made proper use of its opportunities, in our opinion. The acting on the part of Francis X. Bushman in the important role of Washington is old fashioned and stiff, but Johnnie Walker is suitable as the young enemy officer. Enid Bennett, as the immortal Betsy Ross, and Alice Calhoun, as the English officer's wife, are both competent. The color enhances their good looks considerably.

"A Social Error"

(F B O—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

AL COOKE is the featured player in this Karnival Komedie produced by Larry Darmour for Standard Cinema Corporation. It has its comedy points of the rough and tumble variety, but the real laughs are few and far between. Cooke tries hard to make the action humorous, but his material is not all that could be desired.

Al and his pal, Barney, are westward bound from Broadway on the same train with Lord Salisbury and his secretary. The former pair lose their railway tickets, so promptly purloin those of the lord and his secretary, who are ejected from the train by the conductor. Al and Barney arrive at their destination and pose as the Britishers. They are received in the best of society and are the center of attraction at a house party until the arrival of the lord.

Apparently in a jam, Al and Barney look for a getaway, but, just as they seem to be sunk, in steps a detective and exposes the real Lord Salisbury as an international crook. There are plenty of gags interspersed throughout the story, but most of them have been used many times before. The production is more elaborate than is usually applied to these short comedies.

"The Spider's Lair"

(Pathe—One Reel)

PAUL TERRY'S cartoon characters take in the whole field of animal and insect life. Therefore, he is never hard up for some central figure to perform as his cartoon heroes, heroines and heavies. In this one the old fable of the spider and the fly is taken to heart and transformed into a tale of villainy that almost culminated into tragedy for the flies.

The flies are at their sport of swimming when the old spider appears on the scene and tries to catch them, but they are too agile for him. He, therefore, takes the place of a frankfurter vendor and when an innocent fly comes up to him to make a purchase of one of the succulent dogs he makes a grab for her and carries her off to his den. The fly's sweetie heroically follows, batters down the walls of the spider's "parlor" and saves the helpless fly.

The action is fast and snappy and the reel provides a pleasing novelty.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"Chilly Days

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

HERE'S a "Big Boy" comedy that can compare with the best of the youngster's vehicles. It is crammed full of nice little incidents in which the appealing star has much to do. Its an example of what a little kid actor can do all by his lonesome, of how he can put across pathos, childish glee or frivolity. "Big Boy," in the writer's opinion, is still the best kid actor in the field although there be plenty of rivals in the form of comedy gangs and the like. This little man can support an entire comedy on his small frame. Just as he is increasing in stature so is he growing more and more adept in the art of mimicry, of the art of putting across emotion and comedy.

"Big Boy" is an unwelcome addition to the family of an stony-hearted woman, whose heart is wrapped up in her own boy's future and who only tolerates "Big Boy" because his grandfather sends a nice, fat check in his behalf every so often. "Big Boy's" step-brother torments the life out of the unoffensive little chap with the result that he is ejected from the house into the cold and snow. He has a hide and seek adventure with a policeman and falls in with an old gentleman, who unknown to him, is his wealthy grandfather. The stepmother's deceitfulness in dealing with the old man is revealed when he discovers the boy's identity.

As usual, Charles Lamont directed "Big Boy." The other players are Dan Crimmins, Eva Thatcher and Jackie Levine. The latter takes the part of the step-brother and is an excellent juvenile heavy.

"The Family Group"

(M-G-M-Roach—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

PERHAPS there is no other comedian in the short subject field who has such consistently good comedies to work with as Charley Chase. While this one is not as funny as some of his others it is nevertheless a pretty humorous account of the plight of a young couple and their attempts to pose successfully for a family picture. Charley has that light, debonair touch. He doesn't have to hurl a pie or do a fall to get a laugh. His is the more artistic and subtle method.

Gertrude Astor is Charley's wife in this one —a good team, don't you think? They are aided and abetted in the comedy situations by a clever baby boy. The scenes of Charley in a street car disturbing the peace of his fellow passengers by his constant sneezing is the best portion of the comedy except, perhaps, for some of the scenes in the photographers which suffer, by the way, because of constant repetition. There is some fun in a situation that arises when the balloons Charley is constantly buying for the baby to keep him amused while in the photographers are destroyed by a mischievous lad.

"Social Lions"

(Universal—One Reel)

THIS is a pretentious production for a one reel comedy, and it is better than the usual run of this Harold Highbrow series which features Bennie Hall and Lydia Yeamans Titus. It has a bevy of bathing beauties and much surrounding atmosphere. The comedy too, is fairly good.

Harold is the star reporter of Sap Center's Clarion, and he is in love with the proprietor's daughter, who is throwing a lawn party for the wealthy oil king who has rented the Van Blank mansion. The lawn fete brings a large delegation of guests, including the bathing girls and two eccentric and persistent unknowns.

The crowning moment of the single reel arrives when the girl's father gets up to announce the engagement of his daughter to the millionaire. Just at that time the keepers from a nearby asylum arrive and pick up the millionaire and the eccentric unknowns and take them back to the daffy house.—CHESTER J. SMITH.

Newsreel Resume

The Fox Movietone news-reel is still the novelty of the field. This reel does not go in so much for the live news events, though it always has a fairly good share of them, but leans more towards unusual events—happenings whose sound can be caught by the camera's "ears" as well as its "eye." For the fact remains, because the Movietone reel can capture the actual sound of things the events it records have an added importance and are more thrilling to the spectator. The latest development in the Movietone news is the inclusion of snatches of music while the titles are flashed on the screen. This improvement adds to the efficiency of the reel.

Vol. 1, No. 11 of the Movietone news reel had the recent conflagration at Fall River, with its falling walls and scenes of destruction; Chamberlain's attempted take-off which almost ended in disaster; the two French airmen landing at Washington, D. C.; one of the winter industries on the lakes—the systematic cutting and floating of huge blocks of ice; views of a lion tamer, his huge cats and a lion cub; and scenes of horses boarding an airplane to be taken to a destination many hundred miles away. These last two shots also have plenty of humor in them as they show the lion cub trying desperately to stave off interruptions while he eats his first meal of meat and also record one of the horses getting caught in the plane's doorway so that several humans have to lend a hand in pushing him into the ship.

In Paramount News, No. 57, Lindbergh is again to the fore, his landing in Havana being the first subject of the reel. Others deal with holiday festivities of an Algerian tribe, Costes and Le Brix reaching Washington, herds of Wyoming elk seeking food, Mrs. Mussolini and her daughter, tests of explosive coal dust, a conference in Berlin over Polish troubles, native dances at Havana carnival, sled racing in Germany and U. S. ships in battle practice on the Pacific.

No. 58 showed the Royal Camel Corps at Cairo, sleighing activities in the Canadian Rockies, demonstration of 16-year old seaplane, Sec'y Hoover, Costes and LeBrix greeted by Chamberlain, the new-type fireboat, Rockefeller testifying before Senate committee, a juvenile swimming star showing his wares, memorial services at Lincoln shrine, Lindy in Cuba, Marine pilots flying over Nicaraguan volcano, and Lindy in St. Louis.

Issues No. 15 of Pathe News also had views of Havana's fiesta, Lindbergh acclaimed by Cuba and the arrival of the French airmen at the capital. Additional scenes related Ohio militiamen aiding inhabitants of stricken mining region, Chinese army chiefs in San Francisco, a clever dog, Japanese youngsters engaging in athletic games, and young Tennesseean who made her opera debut recently.

No. 16 carried the story of the 16-year old seaplane, too, as well as those concerning Hoover, Rockefeller on the witness stand, and Lindbergh in Havana. The rest of the reel dealt with sport scenes at Alberta, Louvre roofs inspected to guard against fire, the New York dog show, Edison at 81 years, and rushing aid to miners trapped in gold mine.

The highlights of M-G-M News, Vol. 1, No. 52, were President Coolidge welcoming the French fliers, Mussolini's forces mobilizing in Northern Africa, Olympic stars in skating contest, and Lindbergh's triumph as Havana acclaims him. The remainder of the scenes were those of the fete in Havana, sightseeing over the Alps, girl who made her grand opera debut, Captain Campbell, British speed king, star police athlete, and spring timber drive in California.

No. 53: More views of the French fliers, Lindberg's reception in his home town, the dog show, subduing a Texas oil well fire by means of nitro-glycerine, procession behind bier of the late Marshall Haig, Rockefeller, Edison, Hoover, other Republican candidates, and a trick Shetland pony.

Winter sports at a German winter resort are shown in International News, Vol. 10, No. 12, which goes on to visualize a reception in Spain, H. L. Stimson sailing for the Philippines, young girl who recently sang in grand opera, Captain Campbell, Lithuanian minister in Berlin, France's long-distance fliers welcomed in Washington, a new plane invention, a new beauty treatment for girls, one of Cuba's ports, and Cubans cheering Lindbergh as he finished his tour.

Fireboats in a spectacular demonstration open No. 13. People and events recorded include Hoover, Miss Voneeil Viking, Universal's new leading lady, the late Earl Haig's funeral, De Valera, Tilden, Rockefeller, Edison, dog show, gas well fire in Louisiana and Lindbergh feted by St. Louis.

No. 5369 of Kinograms was introduced with shots of Costes and Le Brix at the capital, Harvard track men in training, the unique job of two men who will spend their time in razing a huge flue that cannot be pulled down. H. L. Stimson sailing for his post in the Philippines, Captain Campbell, choir singer who made her opera debut, a huge sea lion in captivity, and a $200,000 Chinese funeral were other scenes.

In No. 5370 were scenes of Hindenburg, Costes and Le Brix, Rockefeller, the dog show, Hoover, fireboat demonstration, Edison, some golf stunts, and ski champion successfully defending his title.

"Felix the Cat in the Smoke Scream"

(Educational—One Reel)

Felix plays the role of the doting feline who aids his master, a devotee of Lady Nicotine, in this cartoon comedy. The cat's master is an avaricious smoker, all the more so because of the fact that his wife will not let him smoke in the house. The ingenuity of Felix is constantly called upon to help the man satisfy his craving for tobacco and to fool the tempestuous spouse.

The situations in which the Sullivan cat finds himself in this one do not display as much ingenuity as was found in some of Felix's other vehicles, but there is enough and the whole will not lower or serve to decrease in any way the standard that the series boasts. In one scene Felix rescues the dwellers of a huge apartment house, and is the hero to the tip of his whiskers.—RAYMOND GANLY.

Three selling features are being stressed in theatre advertising for "Love," the title and the co-starring team of Gilbert and Garbo. Shown above are some of the typical displays which have exploited first run showings of the picture in various parts of the country. The ads illustrated were used by the following theatres; Leland, Albany; Bijou, New Haven; Loew's, Dayton; Loew's Valentine, Toledo, and Loew's Buffalo.

Regional News from Correspondents

Des Moines

THE Pathe office has the bride of Film Row now since Miss Frances Johnson announced that she has become Mrs. Dick Capps. She is the biller at the Pathe office. Mr. Capps is a member of the Capitol theatre stage band. Mrs. Capps will retain her position at the office of Pathe.

H. A. Kirkman, formerly of Los Angeles, Calif., has leased the Toledo theatre at Toledo, Iowa. The theatre is owned by H. C. Reagan of Trinidad, Colo., who has had the theatre under lease to various managers during several years. Mr. Kirkman, the new manager of the Toledo, was formerly doing publicity for the West Coast Theatres.

A new show house is being planned for Cedar Falls is the report of rumor.

A theatre change which took place last week was of the theatre at Holstein, Iowa, which was bought by E. E. Seff, formerly of Correctionville, Iowa. Mr. Seff bought the theatre, the State theatre, which was a new house opened in September and which was built and managed by J. H. Ebersole who has been an exhibitor at Avoca for the past eight years. The State theatre is a 490 seat house and a fine little house. It is possible that Mr. Seff may also secure control of another house at Holstein, the Scenic theatre, owned by E. Recknagle.

Jimmy Ellard, personality man who was at the Capitol theatre, Des Moines, with the opening of the New Idea Show of the Publix Shows, has returned to Des Moines after several months at Denver, Colo.

Paul Spor, who has been in Des Moines since before Christmas, is now to be at the Riviera at Omaha. It is the new policy to alternate the personality men every twelve weeks.

Visitors at the Pathe office were district Representative R. L. McLean and District Manager C. D. Hill.

The Strand theatre at Mingo is opening up. There has not been a show there for some time. C. A. R. Trumbull is opening the Mingo house.

The Lyric theatre at Fort Dodge came into new management this week when J. E. Alstatt sold the house to F. F. Weiss. Mr. Weiss was owner of the theatre quite a number of years ago.

G. A. DeHoet, who hasn't been in to visit the film exchanges for a long, long time, was here last week.

Paramount won two games against Pathe last week and now claim a lead, while First National, winning two out of three against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, also claim the strongest place. The averages last week showed out of 45 games played that Honorable mention was given to several Iowa exhibitors in the Harold Lloyd exploitation contest. D. Barnes of the Rialto at Newton and E. M. Rulon of the Rialto at Mechanicsville were the ones whose campaigns were adjudged of high place.

H. H. Russell, owner of the hotel building which housed the Strand theatre at Humboldt which was completely destroyed by fire on January 27, is not planning to rebuild the house.

Arthur Stolte, manager of the Riviera in Omaha since its opening a year ago, is taking a rest after the strenuous labors which were required with the opening of this new theatre. He will take a trip to California with Mrs. Stolte, while Harry Watts, who has been manager of the Capitol in Des Moines, will take the management of the Riviera. The Capitol in Des Moines is placed in charge of Nate Frudenfeld, who has been doing publicity for the Riviera. Mr. Frudenfeld will have as his assistant Lionel Wassen, who has been acting as manager of the Strand in Des Moines, another of the A. H. Blank-Publix houses.

Mr. Chatkin who has been assistant manager of the Capitol here will go to Council Bluffs to take the management of the Broadway theatre there while August Hermann, the former manager there, is transferred to another of the Publix houses.

The Old Lyric theatre at Mondamin, Iowa, was completely destroyed by fire on January 19.

C. H. Kale has bought the Dreamland theatre at Merrill, Iowa. The former owner was N. J. Mertes of LeMars. The theatre has been closed while repairs were being made. It opened on February 1.

Mike Hazuka, operator of the Empire theatre at Storm Lake, was badly burned in the fire caused by the explosion of film at the theatre on a show night. The damage to the theatre caused by the fire was placed at $7,000.

Harry Mitznick, who has been managing the theatre at Chariton, Iowa, for A. H. Blank, is to be at one of the Publix houses in New Orleans.

The Gem theatre at Lohrville, which is under the management of Mr. Robertson, is to be removed to a larger house. The new home of the theatre is also a newer and more modern construction and Manager Robertson will also install new equipment and make such changes in the theatre building as to make it thoroughly up-to-date.

The West Coast Amusement Company, which is under the Wesco organization, have sold their two houses at Cedar Rapids, the Isis and the Majestic, and have closed three of their other houses at Waterloo, Iowa, the Plaza the Rialto and the Orpheum. The Cedar Rapids houses were taken over by the former owners of the houses, Blumenthal and Lannon. These houses were formerly of the Frank Amusement Company chain but were turned over to the West Coast people, the largest stockholders, some time back. Alexander Frank is now in Omaha, where he is in charge of Universal theatres in Iowa and Nebraska as district manager. A receiver has been appointed for the closed houses.

Ed Recknagle, who has theatres at Fonda and Holstein, and Pace and Bouma, who have theatres at Pocohontas, Lake City, Traer and West Union, last week closed a deal which merged these six Iowa houses into a small chain. The houses will be under the same management as before and few changes will be made but the houses will be operated on a unit plan.

Sunday shows are now permitted at Nevada, Iowa, where the vote was 640 to 460 for the repeal of the ordinance prohibiting the Sunday shows. The biggest vote in the history of the town was brought out by this election and interest was intense. W. P. Grossman is owner of the Palace theatre at Nevada. He has the only theatre there.

Latta and Youngclass, who have two theatres at Perry, the Grand and the Foxy, and the Opera House at Woodward, were in Des Moines on film business last week.

Visitors in Film Row were Frances Belle Watson of the Grand theatre at Knoxville, and E. H. Parrish of the Playhouse theatre at Cambridge.

Neal Huntzinger, who recently took over the Alamo theatre at Pella, Iowa, from Chris Nelson, was in Des Moines arranging for pictures.

Philadelphia

SEVERAL new theatres are planned for construction in the Southern New Jersey territory. Architects are preparing plans for a $150,000 theatre and store development to be erected in Mt. Ephraim, N. J., for Theodore Laziric. It will be of brick, terra cotta and steel on a site 80 x 150. The contract has been awarded to the National Engineering & Contracting Co. A motion picture house to be known as the Hanover Street theatre will be erected in Trenton, N. J. The proposed building will be reinforced concrete, brick and limestone construction on a site 140 x 64. Bids were called for February 8th.

The Seville theatre, Bryn Mawr, Pa., recently gave a benefit, the proceeds of which were given to the fund to rebuild Villa Nova College, which was destroyed by fire with a loss of $2,000,000. Harry Fried, who has operated the theatre for some time, arranged for the benefit performance.

Joseph M. Graver, who has been manager of the Liberty theatre, 15th and Columbia avenues., Philadelphia, for the past twenty years, is recovering from a major operation to which he recently submitted at the Samaritan Hospital. Mr. Graver is perhaps one of the most widely known theatrical managers in Philadelphia.

Three theatres involving expenditures of $1,100,000 are planned for erection in the district immediately north of Philadelphia, in Montgomey county, during 1928, according to announcements made within the last few days. The largest of the three houses will be in Norristown, where the Sablosky interests plan to erect a $1,000,000 building on West Main street in the center of the business section. Plans are now being drawn for the new building, which will have a seating capacity of 2,500. In Ambler it is announced that a theatre to cost $150.000 will be erected on Butler avenue, near the post office building. At Willow Grove, Philadelphia interests, it is stated, will erect a $150,000 theatre building on Old York Road.

At the annual meeting of the Beneficial Association of the Stanley Company of America, held in the Arcadia theatre, the following officers were elected: President, William Goldenberg; vice-president, George Battersby; treasurer, Joseph Mastbaum; secretary, Miss Helen V. Maloney. The following were elected to the board of directors: Frank W. Beuhler, James Branden, Harry Knobloch, Littleton Moore, Charles Thompson, Charles Shissler, Lester Stallman and Walter Steel.

Portland, Ore.

HERSCHEL STUART, the big chief for West Coast Theatres, in this territory, is again with us. He is here with Louis Cohen, head of the real estate division for W. C., looking over their theatres in this territory. It is said that importaint announcements will soon be made public, as concerns the personnel and policies of the local West Coast houses.

Rumor has it that the Orpheum Circuit will take over the Broadway, instead of United Artists, who originally intended to do so.

A. E. Gangle, of the Advance Trailer Service Corporation, New York, is in the city, signing up local and out-of-town theatre men for the company's new trailer service.

Harry Lustig, western division manager for Warner Bros., arrived recently from San Francisco, to confer with his local organization. Lustig expects to leave within the next week.

Tillie Withers, the high-powered F. B. O. branch manager, has returned from a trip through the territory and reports much progress. During his trip, A. E. Durness, booker, was in charge.

Universal's Columbia, under the management of Bert Levy, has bought some great pictures for future showings.

It is announced that Ollie Wallace, who is master of ceremonies at the Broadway, will soon start a Sunday noon organ concert at this house. Wallace is considered as one of the five best organists in the country, having recently dropped organ work for the job of band leader and master of ceremonies.

Bert Levy, manager of the Columbia, has just returned from a trip to Seattle, where he conferred with Ray Felkner and Bob Bender, of the Universal theatre staff in Seattle.

Word was received here that L. J. Schlaiffer, formerly in charge of Universal theatres in this territory, has been appointed eastern division manager for United Artists, with headquarters in New York.

A few changes were recently made concerning those West Coast officials under Herschel Stuart, general manager of the North West. Under the new arrangement, S. T. McDonald, who has been city manager, will be sent to Seattle, where he will act as assistant to Stuart. Irvin Wauterstreet, formerly with Publix houses in the East, comes to Portland as McDonald's successor. Sam Maurice remains in Portland as Oregon Division chief.

Jimmy Beale, branch manager for Tiffany-Stahl, has left for a swing around the territory, and hopes to return with a pocketful of signed contracts.

Again the rumor of United Artists opening a local exchange has popped. U. A. has been anxious to open an office in Portland for some time, but necessary arrangements for an exchange could not be completed. Dave Bershon, new U. A. division manager, is expected in the city soon, and an announcement concerning an office is expected.

Owing to the congestion of bookings at Tebbets' Oriental, some F B O and De Mille pictures, which were originally bought by Tebbetts for his new house, has been sold to the Orpheum.

Local showmen and exchange managers are all wondering what the outcome will be of the recent William Fox-West Coast deal. The local houses included in the deal, are the Broadway, Liberty, Hollywood, State, Highway and Roseway. The new Publix house, scheduled for March opening, is also expected to come under the Fox banner, as it was originally expected that West Coast would operate the house for Publix.

Pittsburgh

SAMUEL H. BLAIR, for many years head of the Universal inspection department, has the sympathy of all the film and theatre folk in the loss of his mother, whose death occurred on January 15th. Mrs. Mary Ellen Blair died at her home in Crafton after a short illness of pneumonia at the age of 65. She left two sons and a daughter.

"Eddie" Morells, who dispenses slides, photos, etc., at the Warner exchange, was the victim of tough luck when his Hupmobile was stolen. Police recovered the car but it was damaged to the extent of $300.

Paramount in announcing the winners to the "Speedy" campaign for the trade picked three local men among the 32 winners. E. F. Nutter, who won fourth prize of $50, is of the American theatre, Rowlesburg, W. Va., and the two $10 prizes went to Wallace Allen of the Penn theatre, Pittsburgh, and Alvin Hostler at Altoona.

Cleve Adams, F. B. O. division manager, is now making a swing around the company's southern branches and is expected back shortly.

"Hank" Kaufman, district representative for Pathe, is spending the week at the local exchange.

H. P. Underwood, West Virginia salesman for First National, leaves Saturday night for Andover, Ohio, where he expects to take a month's rest in quest of his health. He was disabled during the war and a recurrence of old troubles suffered as a result, is forcing him to take a rest at this time.

Jack Zipp, Warner salesman, is now on the high seas in the first stages of his six months' trip to the old home town in Hungary.

Recent visitors to film row were James Retter, California; Harry Petz, Youngwood; George Magowan, Blairsville and Vandergrift; Edward Beedle, Cannonsburg; Ben Walkern and A. L. Carp, Beaver Falls; John Newman, New Castle; Michael Winongrad, Rochester; Ben Nadker, Ambridge; M. Schaffel, New Brighton; B. E. Cupler, Washington; Samuel Haimovitz and Nart Dattola, New Kensington, and Louis Stoll, Monca and Beaver.

A. Notopoulos, well known Altoona exhibitor, is again on the job after a severe cold, confining him to his home.

A. H. Schnitzer, manager of F. B. O. locally, just came back from West Virginia.

"Dad" Reukaff, well known to exchange men and theatre owners as former operator of the elevator in the film building at 1018 Forbes, is anxious to secure a new position.

Miss Sarah Womer, of the Independent Display Co., is in Johnstown this week owing to the death of her sister.

Saul Fineburg, formerly of F. B. O. accessory department, is now assistant to M. A. Rosenberg at the Rialto theatre, Fifth avenue, with Merle Boyle succeeding Saul at the exchange.

Wallace Allen had "Chuck" Danver, writer of the Pittsburghesque column, run in the Post Gazette daily and read by most everyone in town, took Danver through the Penn theatre, getting a fine break in his column on the inside running of the de luxe picture house.

C. C. Manning, musical supervisor for Publix, was in this week, helping the rehearsals for the new unit shows to play the Penn.

Milwaukee

DAN KELLIHER'S string of theatres in the southern part of the state, which includes the Plaza at Burlington, which has not yet been opened, the Majestic at Lake Geneva and the Grand at East Troy, has been taken over by the Community Theatre circuit of this city. Mr. Kelliher retains the Princess at Elkhorn. He is planning at present to build a new house at Delavan.

The Kenosha theatre at Kenosha has installed a Vitaphone which will open on February 27th. Lloyd's theatre at Menominee, Michigan, is also installing Vitaphone. The Vitaphone at the Parkway in Madison will be presented on Feb. 15th.

Out of town exhibitors visiting in the city last week included W. L. Ainsworth of the Orpheum theatre at Fond du Lac; Neil Duffy of the Elite theatre at Appleton; Mrs. August Gloe of the Rivoli theatre at Two Rivers; Neil Thompson of the Crystal theatre at Ft. Atkinson; R. F. Leach of the Opera House at Hartford; C. A. Olson of the Park Opera House at Cambridge; L. A. Turner of the Vogue at Kenosha; Mr. Hayden of the Gump theatre at Lake Geneva; Ralph Mosiman of the Rex theatre at Oshkosh; and Walter Rourke of the Pastime at Antigo.

S. A. Shurman, manager of M-G-M exchange, recently underwent an operation for removal of tonsils a nd is now back on the job.

Ray Kempen, manager of the Vaudette at Kaukauna, was in the city on Wednesday on business.

John Ludwig is reported to have taken a thirty-day option on the Grand Opera House at Antigo. He is also said to have purchased real estate in Shawano for the purposes of building a theatre.

Frank Cambreno, president of Progress exchange, was in the city for a short visit. This was Mr. Cambreno's first visit to the city in three years.

"Eddie" Casenave has been added to the Pathe salesforce and his been assigned to southern Wisconsin territory. Mr. Casenave comes here from the Chicago Pathe branch.

The Ludwig Film Exchange will occupy the Fox offices on Well St. when Fox exchange moves into its new offices on 8th and State.

Seattle

A. I. HUOT, F. B. O.'s chief executive in the Pacific northwest territory, returned to his office last week after a business jaunt to Spokane that was not without its unpleasant moments. When he reached the Eastern Washington city, Mr. Huot was suffering so much from throat trouble that he was forced to spend a few days in the hospital having some minor repair work done. After that came the sales efforts, and a victorious trip home.

Chris Lykke, a former newspaper man of this city, and for a short time associated with Manager Robert Bender as assistant at the Columbia theatre, last week joined the "Attractions Company" as a sales representative, and will travel out of this city into the Alaskan territory with a series of state right social hygiene films.

Herschel Stuart, general manager of the West Coast Theatres, Inc., in Washington, Oregon and Montana, last week announced the appointment of Dave Good as musical director of Wesco's key Broadway theatre in Tacoma. Mr. Good was former master of ceremonies at Wesco's Uptown and Loew's State theatres in Los Angeles. He succeeds "Ollie" Wallace, who went to the Broadway in Portland several weeks ago.

Reports received on the row last week indicate that the Bluebird theatre in Benton City, Washington, has been taken over by Mack Carter, who is now operating the house. It was formerly owned by P. H. Martina.

B. Wallace Rucker, speedy executive of the Educational Film exchange, rpeorted last week exceptional interest on the part of large and small exhibitors alike throughout this entire territory in Educational's new "Vocafilm." The announcement in the trade press has brought many inquiries from scores of exhibitors, Mr. Rucker said.

Interest has been keen among theatre operators and general public alike recently over the fact that the new Seattle theatre, 3500-seat Publix-Wesco house to be opened this month, will be manned by a staff composed entirely of men. This announcement was made by Bernard J. Hynes, assistant manager in charge of personnel, and was looked upon with interest because Seattle has had no men ushers since the beginning of the war period. Its success is the subject of keen watching.

Earl Fountain, traveling auditor for Paramount-Famous-Lasky, left this city last week after a brief sojourn at the local branch office, and was scheduled to stop off next at Manager Neal East's exchange in Portland. At the same time, Jack Curry, advertising sales manager, left the Oregon branch en route for a few days' stay here with Manager George P. Endert and his staff.

Ray Felker, newly appointed general manager of the Universal Chain Theatres in the Pacific Northwest, left his local office in the Winter Garden theatre last week for a brief trip to Portland. From there he was scheduled to visit the "U" houses in Corvallis, Oregon, and then return to Portland for the week-end on his return trip to this city.

The Orpheum theatre at Chinook, Montana, has been temporarily closed, according to information received on film row last week. John Griffiths is the manager. Severe cold spells have been responsible.

D. C. Millward, head of Tiffany-Stahl exchanges in the Pacific Northwest, last week blossomed out in a brand new Chrysler "72" closed job, having traded in his Willys-Knight. With the Chrysler and his sturdy Chandler 8, Mr. Millward does very little worrying about the problem of transportation.

Bob Monohan, popular booker at the local Fox Film exchange, last week was receiving the congratulations of his many friends upon the arrival of Dorothy Ellen Monohan, the latter part of January. Both mother and daughter are progressing nicely.

Bert Levy, general manager of the Columbia theatre in Portland for Universal, spent a short time in this city last week on a combined business and pleasure trip. It was his first visit to Seattle in more than a year, despite the proximity between the two cities.

Charles W. Harden, former manager of the United Artists exchange in Seattle, announced last week that he will open a new Northwest independent film exchange early in the spring. It will probably be known as the Exhibitors Mutual Film Exchange, and will distribute Harry Garson productions. No location has been selected by Mr. Harden as yet.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde A. Walker, editor and assistant editor, respectively, of the "Motion Picture Record," Northwest trade weekly, left last week for a three-week pleasure jaunt to Los Angeles. They were accompanied by Miss Jacqueline Walker, infant daughter. During the absence of the Walkers, the Record is being edited by W. K. Beckwith, former Warner Bros. exchange executive, and now head of a local state right distributing firm.

Another theatre closing announced here last week was that of S. I. Sicilia's Empire theatre, a neighborhood house in Portland. The Jefferson theatre, in that city also, has been taken over from Sam Pallay by Leo Pallay and an associate, it was reported to the local film exchanges.

Cleveland

MAURICE SAFIER, sales manager for "The Jazz Singer," spent a pleasant day in town last week. It was a pleasant day because he learned that "The Jazz Singer" did the biggest Mid-West business at the Stillman in the history of the house. The Stillman ran an added 9:20 morning show to its regular program, makfive performances daily.

Frank Harris, representative for Harold Lloyd, was here the best part of last week. He was lining up the sales program for "Speedy," which starts in the immediate future.

Found: Robert Cotton. In 640 Union Trust Building, Cleveland. As vice-president and secretary of the Playgolf Company, manufacturers of golf equipment, including golf sticks, golf balls, golf bags, and a game called Playgolf for home consumption. Cotton's last public appearance in local film circles was as division manager for Pathe-P.D.C.

George Shenker has disposed of his last remaining theatre with the sale of the Cozy Theatre, Lorain to the Interstate Theatres, Inc. In the autumn he sold his other Lorain houses to J. V. Wolcott and his associates.

Richard Deutsch has opened his own independent exchange called the Import Film Company, in 203 Film Exchange Bldg. He is handling foreign-made films.

Mark Goldman, Tiffany-Stahl exchange manager, went to Boston last week. The special occasion was his mother's seventieth birthday. Many happy returns of the day, Mrs. Goldman.

Harold Dunn, formerly of Cleveland, and now manager of the Pittsburgh exchange for Warner Bros., parted company with his appendix last week. The pleasure was mutual and Harold is reported to be recovering according to schedule.

W. Ray Johnston, of Rayart Pictures, will be on the West Coast even while we are recording that he stopped off here last Wednesday on his way to the film manufacturing center. He is putting in motion the wheels to start next year's production.

The rejuvenated First National exchange is a thing apart in local film history. A beautiful grey carpet, blue and grey window drapes, new shades, newly painted walls, and refinished woodwork—all this has transformed the exchange from just an exchange to something akin to the private office of a bank president. Gradwell L. Sears is in command of all this grandeur. He states that the price of the decorations will positively NOT be tacked on the price of film.

Dallas

COL. CHAS. E. KESSNICH, district manager for Metro-Goldwyn, from the home office, arrived in Dallas last Monday for a 10-day visit with Leroy Bickel at the Dallas exchange.

Out-of-town exhibitors who dropped in for a visit at the First National exchange, included Lance Davis, from the Majestic theatre at Rotan, Texas; Mr. Cardwell, from Post, Texas, and Abe Levy, of the Strand theatre at Waco, Tex.

O. O. Flake, formerly with F. B. O. at Little Rock, Ark., and Memphis, Tenn., is now with the Home State at Dallas.

John L. Franconi, who opened and managed the Memphis exchange for F. B. O., has accepted a position with Fox and will be the key man for Fox's Kansas City exchange. Mr. Franconi has just been out of the Santa Rosa Hospital at San Antonio two weeks, where he spent three weeks undergoing operations.

Louis E. Schneider, western divisional manager for Publix, who has been in Dallas attending the opening of the Melba as a Publix theatre, has returned to the home office.

W. A. Taylor, formerly with Famous Players and Fox, is now in charge of publicity and exploitation in Dallas territory for United Artists. Mr. Taylor took over his new duties Jan. 28, coming here from Oklahoma City.

Dick Rosenbaum, former district manager for the Dallas branch of Famous Players, spent four days in Dallas. Mr. Rosenbaum is now promoting a business men's club in Detroit.

Harry N. Paul of the National Theatre Supply Co., who suffered a broken knee cap about a month ago, is doing nicely, although he still gets about on crutches.

The National Theatre Supply Co. has received the order for equipment for the new Polytechnic theatre being erected at Fort Worth.

Art Landry, personality leader at the Palace theatre, wil be succeeded on Feb. 18th by Klen Whitmer. Mr. Landry will return east to make a series of phonograph recordings with his own orchestra.

LeRoy Bickel, manager of the Dallas branch office of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corp., was highly honored by the organization when March was decreed as "LeRoy Bickel Month." Mr. Bickel has been connected with the Dallas office of Metro for eleven years, and was branch manager for Paramount in Dallas for two years. This gives Mr. Bickel seniority of the Dallas film row. Manager H. H. Milstein of the Universal exchange here, states that salesman Tony Hartford is now an honor member of the Carl Laemmle Club, and that only four men in the entire United States have attained this signal honor.

Miss Merle Stubbs, of the local Universal office personnel, is to become Mrs. Harry Nelson during March, it is announced.

Salesman Ed. C. Mix of the Warner Brothers sales force here, is now making Utah. Milton Cohn is in Montana and W. A. Mead has recently resigned. Mrs. A. G. Hunter, former stenographer at this office, is back again after having been in Ruth, Nevada, managing the Ruth Theatre there fore some time.

Vete Stewart, salesman here for Associated First National, has received notification that he has been elected to the K. O. Club, an honor club for the salesmen of First National.

Florida

THE South Florida Fair and Gasparilla Carnival, now in its second and final week, is breaking all attendance records. They have a wonderful array of exhibits, at least a dozen of which feature motion pictures in their display. The Tampa Electric Company have the regulation street car seats in their section, with a screen in the front end of the "car." Motion pictures are shown continually each afternoon and evening.

West Tampa staged a Spanish fiesta last week that pulled quite a lot of fair visitors as well as the home folks. Spanish dances and a burlesque bull fight were the features. Leon Cazin, manager of the Cazin theatre, was one of the promoters of the stunt and put in some hard work to make it the big success it was.

A. Sarlo, who operates the Grand at Fort Myers, visited in Tampa last week, looking over the fair and our theatres.

This writer has just received a summons to appear in the United States District Court, in Miami, for jury duty and sincerely hopes the said duty will not interfere with giving the show shops of this East Coast metropolis the once over.

H. G. Ballance, southern division manager for Paramount, paid a visit to the Jacksonville exchange here last week.

Richmond Dorman, who has been on an extended vacation at Hot Springs, has returned to Miami to take up his duties as advertising manager for Paramount Enterprises, Jacksonville.

Barney Wilkinson is on an extended leave because of ill health and has been succeeded by J. Perry Clare at the Fotosho, Miami.

J. Winkelman is the manager of Coral Gables theatre, Publix house.

The Paramount, "millionaires' theatre" at West Palm Beach, is booking, through the Palm Beach Artists' Club, every Monday night, some of the leading attractions of the musical season.

Following the closing of vaudeville on the Florida time, the Fairfax, Miami, has gone on a long run picture policy.

Manager Baker of the Capitol theatre, Miami, has resigned to take a position as managing director of a 6,000-seat house at Richmond, Va., to be operated by the Shriners there. Harold Kopplan has succeeded Mr. Baker at the Capitol, with Victor Gerstel as house manager.

Publix and E. J. Sparks Enterprises have pooled their operations at Fort Lauderdale. The Sunset and Queen are affected, with William Mahoney as manager of both houses. George Denton, former Publix manager, will be placed elsewhere. The Garden Circle has been closed for repairs.

Closing of four banks in Miami last week, on orders from the State Comptroller, will seriously affect the theatrical business in that area, it is feared.

Cincinnati

THE Forest theatre, a suburban house, located at Avondale, Cincinnati, and presided over by Miss Doris Stecker, is attracting additional following by "bargain nights" on Wednesday of each week, when admission prices are appreciably reduced, without, however, any change in the program. The Forest is featuring J. Walter De Vaux, a popular musician, as guest organist for a part of February, and is staging a singing and dancing act, composed of talent from a local school, for later in the month.

Andy Anderson, who has been managerial head of Loew's theatres, Dayton, Ohio, for a number of years, has severed his connection with that house and gone to the big lights of Broadway, although for what purpose the deponent sayeth not. James McManus, who hails from Toronto, Canada, has been named manager.

Sympathies are being extended Mr. and Mrs. Griff Granger, Mt. Gilead, Ohio, over the recent passing of Mrs. Granger's mother. The Grangers operate the Kaypee theatre at Mt. Gilead.

James S. Back has opened his new 650-seat Bexley theatre at Dover, Ohio, the present hotbed of the blue law agitation.

The Lyric theatre, Scott, Ohio, has passed into possession of Henry Moore, Grover Hills, Ohio, who owns and operates the Royal theatre in his home town.

The new Salem theatre, Dayton, Ohio, a 1,100-seat house, located at Salem and Grand avenues, was formally opened with appropriate ceremonies. It is owned and operated by Wells and Keister, both local men.

Chicago

PRESIDENT JACK MILLER of the Exhibitors Association of Chicago, has returned from his month's trip, which took him to Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico ports, including the Panama Canal, and reports having had a splendid time. His comments on the popularity of President Coolidge in Cuba and of Lindbergh in various countries the "flying ambassador" touched, are most interesting. Mr. Miller's return was welcomed not only by the members of his organization but by the national exhibitors committee which is negotiating the new uniform contract with the distributors.

Postal cards from Maurice A. Choynski and Max Hyman report the pair enjoying themselves at Monte Carlo and also show that the travelers had viewed Gibraltar.

Dick Anderson, sales manager of International News, has been in the city for several days.

Pat Garyn, who has been making his headquarters at the Chicago office for the last two weeks, has returned to New York City.

Charles Sonin, head of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's purchasing department, is in Minneapolis after a stay of several days in Chicago. He probably will visit here again before returning to the east.

Paul Ash, who collapsed on the stage of the Oriental theatre last week, is back on the job and it is reported, is none the worse for his illness.

Ben Cooney of National Playhouses, Inc., is in Los Angeles on a vacation trip, although it is rumored that business had something to do with the journey. He accompanied Jimmy Coston to the coast, leaving last Wednesday.

The Monroe theater set a precedent last week when it brought back "Seventh Heaven," which was previously shown there for five weeks and has recently been on view in many of the neighborhood theatres throughout the city. It is understood that the two opening days were very satisfactory and the week's run of the picture will be watched with interest.

First National's exchange presents a handsome appearance, having been completely redecorated and refurnished, new carpets, desks, etc., having been installed.

Immediately following the taking over of the Paradise theatre from Cooney Brothers by Lubliner & Trinz, a swarm of workmen went on the job and the structure is being pushed to completion with all possible speed. Steel was already up at the time of the transfer.

Louis L. and Meyer S. Marks have returned after a short business trip to New York City.

Henry O'Brien, popular Fox salesman, reports the arrival of a new baby at his home. Mr. O'Brien claims publicity and it is said his name has not appeared before in a trade paper in ten years.

Ben Berve, it is rumored, is planning ot build a large new house in Rochelle, Illinois, where he has operated houses for several years.

The Little theatre at La Grange was seriously damaged by fire on Sunday night after the performance. It is understood the flames were confined to the organ loft. The house is operated by Earle Johnson.

Simon Simansky took his wife and daughter to Los Angeles, leaving Chicago on Tuesday. After spending about a week on the west coast, Mr. Simansky will go to Hot Springs, Arkansas, where he will remain for several weeks.

District Manager Stanley Brown in charge of Wesco's Milwaukee houses was visiting on film row last week.

Kansas City

CONSTRUCTION of a new $150,000 theatre in Wichita, Kas., to be built for the Hartman Investment Company by the George Siedholl Construction Co., will start soon. The house, which will be at Hillsdale and Douglas Streets, will be of brick and terra cotta, being 103 x 160 feet and two stories in height.

The Garden theatre, Colony, Kas., has been purchased by L. O. Nickels from W. J. Dehler.

The Hubbell Theatre, Trenton, Mo., which was damaged by fire last week, will be repaired and opened in a few weeks, it was announced.

The Benton and Vista theatres, suburban houses of Kansas City, have been taken over by Midwest Theatres, Inc.

The Photoplay theatre, Rossville, Kas., has been purchased by H. F. Higgins from C. E. Graff.

A motion picture theatre is to be included in the Swenson building, Clay Center, Kas., which is being remodeled.

The Sherman theatre, Goodland, Kas., was damaged by fire last week.

Samuel Knight, Coffeyville, Kas., and Charles Hedges, Kansas City, have purchased the Gem theatre, Dewey, Okla.

The Palace theatre, Anthony, Kas., has re-opened, following repairs made necessary by a recent fire.

After so long a fight Warrensburg, Mo., has won out on the Sunday closing issue. The city council, at a recent meeting, rescinded an ordinance prohibiting Sunday shows and exhibitors now are doing a good business on Sundays without any molestation. Warrensburg is a town of about 6,500 population.

Thus far the contest among film salesmen in the Kansas City territory to obtain the largest number of new members for the M. P. T. O. Kansas-Missouri is a neck-and-neck affair with Joe Rosenberg of Universal leading and William Bradford of M-G-M a close second. An expensive Gladstone traveling bag and $50 cash is the first prize and a dressing gown and $25 cash is second prize in the contest which ends in June. The cash awards will be made by "Doc" Miller of the Miller theatre, Wichita, Kas. The contest is the result of a recent tie-up between film salesmen and the M. P. T. O. K-M in a membership campaign.

Bill Warner, First National; Bob Withers, Enterprise; M. C. Sinift, Warner Bros.; C. A. Jones, Tiffany; Russell Borg, Educational, and Harry Taylor, Universal, were among the branch managers of Kansas City to be hustling in the territory last week.

E. N. O'Shell, formerly with Warner Bros. in Omaha, Neb., has joined the Kansas City Educational sales force.

Miss Edna Beal of the Pathe office force, is back at work again after having been ill one week.

C. H. Hilgers, Fox branch manager, returned with his family from Memphis, Tenn., where he went to get them following his appointment in Kansas City. He formerly was Paramount branch manager in Memphis.

Bill Zalken of St. Joseph, Mo., has accepted a position as publicity representative for Fox in St. Louis.

The office of the Midwest Film Distributors, Inc., is undergoing remodeling, additional space having been added for a theatre department.

Edward Safier, Warner Bros., representative on extended run productions, was a Kansas City visitor.

This and That About Mazda

J. C. KROESEN of the Edison Lamp Works, Harrison, N. J., has written us at some length objecting to our views on the proper kind of shutter to use in connection with Mazda projection equipment..

He specifically refers to our statements in the January 14th issue and makes an earnest effort to correct any false impressions we may have concerning the usefulness of this type of equipment.

After reading over the article in question, however, we feel that we have given Mazda a very fair break and have pointed out where it can serve the exhibitor to best advantage.

However, here are Mr. Kroesen's comments. Judge for yourself:

"My Dear Mr. Abbott:

I was very much surprised to note your projection column of the above subject issue under the heading of "Incandescent Lamp Projection," in the third column, second paragraph, that it was stated that the "three wing shutter is in preference to the two blade type." This statement is incorrect. We advise always the use of two wing shutters only—with blades of sufficient size to meet the requirements of the projector intermittent during the change with only the proper size of balancing blade to correspond.

I am enclosing herewith our booklet B-3930, and on page 6 you will notice specific suggestions as to the use of the two wing shutter.

Referring to the last paragraph, column 1, would say that we are not interested in the initial light, but are mainly interested in the result on the screen as viewed from the audience. The result that should be obtained is a desirable picture, and it would be produced if proper material and equipment are used and the same maintained.

As to the simplicity of handling, it is true that the incandescent equipment after proper adjustment is made requires less attention during the period of projecting the picture, this being one of the points that the manufacturers of incandescent equipment realized was necessary during the projection period to provide the necessary-all-attention-to-the-screen. This is also proven by the fact that other manufacturers of light sources found the same move advisable at a later date by providing automatic control, and feeding apparatus. Furthermore, the mirror and optical elements of the incandescent equipment do not fog up from the smoke or dust in the lamp house, and require only a cleaning each day.

In the sixth paragraph of the second column I might suggest that we base all future discussions on over all wattage consumption basis, and not on amperes because it is wattage that the exhibitor pays for. I have on several occasions found that comparisons had been made on the amperage basis to the exhibitor, whereas, if the figures were compared on an over all wattage basis, the story would have been entirely different.

A satisfactory picture may be had with incandescent projection, in the average size theatre provided suggestion as to installations are carried out, and I firmly believe that Charles Howe, the Projectionist, at the Everett Theatre in Middletown, Delaware, has done an excellent job. Numerous installations throughout the country are using incandescent lamps in their Motion Picture Projectors with good results.

I very much desire that you correct this error which is made in the issue above referred to.

With kindest personal regards, I remain,
Yours very truly,
(Signed) J. C. Kroesen.

Should Use Two-Wing Shutter

We were wrong when we said that the lamp manufacturers recommended the three-wing shutter for Mazda, for, as Mr. Kroesen has pointed out, the instruction books published by the incandescent lamp manufacturers clearly state that a two-wing shutter can be used without encountering flicker on the screen, and with consequent increased screen illumination.

A two-wing shutter will pass from 50 to 55 per cent of the light in the projector beam (as it issues from the projection lens) whereas a three-wing shutter will pass only from 40 to 45 per cent. It is for this reason that the two-wing shutter is recommended.

For screens which are not brightly illuminated, the two-wing shutter with its single flicker blade in addition to the working blade, will suffice to prevent flicker on the screen. For more brightly illuminated screens, however, the use of the three-wing shutter becomes necessary if flicker is to be prevented.

Those of you who are using Mazda equipment will please remember, therefore, that the two-wing shutter is the proper thing to use under ordinary conditions.

Excellent Projection Results Possible

As for the second criticism of Mr. Kroesen's, which has to do with the last paragraph in column one of the January 14th issue, we can see nothing which detracts from the value of Mazda equipment in its logical field.

The statement we made reads as follows:

"If, however, you hold that the incandescent lamp outfit can project pictures which, from an all around standpoint, are fully equal to those projected with an arc outfit, then you are wrong, as this is not possible.

We still believe the above to be true and can see no reason for altering our view on this point. It is simply a statement on the comparative results obtained with arc and Mazda equipments and the reflector arc has clearly demonstrated that where no handicaps are imposed upon the arc system, the Mazda outfit cannot possibly compete with it. We were under the impression that this was generally conceded.

We qualified this statement, however, in the next paragraph by saying, "it is the writer's opinion that the choice of Mazda equipment should rest solely on the merits of that equipment alone and should not be influenced by the results which can be obtained from arc system."

By this, we meant that the choice of projection equipment should not be governed by competitive tests between arc and Mazda systems but that the qualities of each should be judged separately and if it was held that Mazda could do a creditable job of projection in that particular theatre, then it should, by all means be installed.

Exhibitors are only too willing to lean over backward in their efforts to obtain the maximum amount of screen illumination without stopping to consider whether their particular house requires such a high degree of screen illumination. A considerable amount of money could be saved, both in cost of equipment and in operating expense, by choosing the right equipment to do the work which must be done.

There is no sense in over-illuminating screens at the risk of rendering the picture unsatisfactory for comfortable viewing. The argument that the reflector arc systems can be operated economically on currents as low as 10-15 amperes also applies, with equal force, to the incandescent lamp outfit. Then, too, it is better to operate a low-power unit at its highest efficiency than to operate a high-power unit far below its normal operating efficiency.

Money will be saved, therefore, and the results will be all that can be desired, if Mazda equipment is chosen for the small theatre where the moderate projection requirements call for the installation of a low-powered, high-efficiency, outfit.

Mr. Kroesen's last point, which has to do with comparing arc and incandescent systems on a current basis, or, "on an ampere for ampere" basis, is also well taken since any such comparison would be highly misleading and would lead to false conclusions.

Generally speaking, the cost of operating an electrical device depends upon its wattage consumption. Electrical power, expressed in watts, is the product of the volt-

Costly Organ Installed at Harrisburg, Pa.

A costly new pipe organ of the Marr & Colton type is being installed in the Victoria, one of the leading downtown first run picture theatres maintained by the Wilmer & Vincent Theatre Company, in Harrisburg, Pa. It is expected the installation will be completed about March 1. The instrument, which has more than 100 control stops, is being set up in three areas, and replaces a less modern pipe organ. The foundation, together with the percussion instruments, is to the right of the screen. The strings, wood and wind stops, vox humana, bass section and special parts are being put to the left of the screen. The xylophone and harp stops, and the relay mechanism are to go under the stage. The organ is of the modern orchestral type, which includes several huge pedal stops.

Manager Lee Levy, of the Victoria, announced that the work of installation will be done without halting the performances, although it will be necessary for two or three days to substitute piano music for the organ.

Contracts Received on Two New England Houses

Kenmore Realty Co., of which Bennett Rockman is the head, of Fitchburg, Mass., has received bids for the erection of a theatre on Main Street, Fitchburg. An office building is included in the construction and the estimated cost of the project is $300,000 outside of furnishings. Contracts will probably be awarded within a week.

Raffaelo Vozella of City Mills, Mass., has awarded contracts for a theatre to be erected in Franklin, Mass., from plans by Frank A. Romano. Work will start immediately.

Prickett Gets Lease On West Coast House

Oliver B. Prickett, manager of the Carpinteria theatre, Carpinteria, Cal., announces that he will be the lessee of a new theatre and store building now under way in Carpinteria. The owners are F. E. Dow and H. J. Muller. In addition to housing an auditorium with a seating capacity of 450, the building will also include six shops, a ballroom and offices. The estimated cost is $65,000. J. W. Young is the architect.

Will Start Work Soon On Louisiana Theatre

John Ben Kendall of the Kidd-Astor Amusement Company authorized the announcement that construction work on the company's new $85,000 theatre at Ruston, La., would begin within the next 30 days. The new playhouse will be 140 feet long by 75 feet wide, and will have a seating capacity of 1,200. The theatre will be built on a lot on North Trenton street.

Inquiries and Comments

age and the current so that it means nothing to make a comparison of two devices on either a voltage basis or, yet, on a current basis. The total wattage consumed by each device is the proper basis of comparison since energy costs are governed by this.

As an example, the 30 volt-30 ampere Mazda lamp for projection requires an overall wattage of roughly 1,000. A twenty ampere reflector arc system, on the other hand, while requiring less current, has an overall wattage consumption of roughly 1,800 when operated from a 70 volt motor-generator set.

The Mazda system can be operated direct from a line voltage A. C. power circuit but the reflector arc, for most efficient results, requires an expensive motor-generator set in addition to the projection apparatus and rheostats. Wiring costs, too, will be proportionately higher.

It is for these reasons that small exhibitors should choose carefully in the matter of projector illuminating systems.

Write for New Mazda Projection Book

Incidentally, the Edison Lamp Works are distributing (free of charge) their latest Lighting Data Booklet which is devoted entirely to a complete analysis of picture projection equipment using incandescent lamps.

All kinds of equipment, including small projectors, amateur outfits, and stereopticon lanterns are illustrated and described, both from a practical as well as from a theoretical standpoint. In fact, this new book is just chock-full of valuable information and it would well pay any person to obtain a copy of it for no other reason than to have it on hand for reference purposes.

This book can be obtained for the asking by writing direct to Mr. J. C. Kroesen, Edison Lamp Works, Harrison, N. J. Ask for the new book on Projection with Mazda Lamps.

That these books are of considerable value is evidenced by the fact that the last time such an announcement was made in this department, several hundred requests for the particular book were received by the Edison Lamp Works.

So, write early.

BOWERS COMEDIES

"The answer to the exhibitors' prayer"

"Say Ah-h!"

Looks as if Charley Bowers has discovered the answer to the exhibitors' prayer for something special in short comedies. The mechanical ostrich in this number is a prize wow for laughs. Don't ask us how the darn thing works. That's Bowers' secret process idea. At any rate, this mechanical ostrich is a natural screen scream. It's one of those things that must be seen to be appreciated. Charley Bowers himself plays the role of the goofy assistant on an ostrich farm. The owner is on the farm taking a diet of ostrich eggs to cure an ingrowing grouch. The regular ostriches refuse to lay the eggs, till Charley feeds one of them an assortment of clothes and hardware. The result is the hatching of the mechanical ostrich. From then on it's a scream. At last — a new novelty angle in comedies. And it's as clever as it is funny. H. L. Muller directed.

The Only Remedy

A Wise and Forceful Declaration By An Independent Exhibitor

By William A. Johnston

WE are again privileged to print an unsolicited letter from an independent exhibitor in condemnation of the Brookhart Bill.

The writer is L. O. Davis, general manager of the Virginia Amusement Co., Hazard, Kentucky. He says:

"There appeared in The News a couple of weeks ago an editorial expressing the most concrete and constructive idea yet brought forth in all the editorials and discussions pertaining to the much talked of Brookhart Bill. An idea that the most humble or the wisest man in the business might express: the simple pleading of a great magazine devoted to the interest of the entire industry—for the men responsible for unethical and unfair practices in the moving picture business to begin at home and clean their own houses, thereby eliminating the necessity of Congressional commissions having to do it for them.

A Personal Word to the Editor of The News

Dear Mr. Johnston:

Your last two or three editorials have so impressed me that I have written down my conclusion after a careful study of the Brookhart Bill and what it proposes. Your idea, of a couple of weeks ago, expresses such a great spirit that it should soak into the heads of every one in the industry.

It is the only remedy. The putting in order of our own house is the only solution that will eliminate the interference of outsiders and politicians.

I have been a reader of The News for the eight years I have been in the business and enjoy it very much, as it serves a purpose none of the others quite do.

If at any time I can ever be of service to you or your publication in my capacity as an exhibitor, don't fail to call on me. I am

Very truly yours,
(Signed) L. O. DAVIS,
General Manager,
Virginia Amusement Co.,
Hazard, Kentucky.

"The Brookhart Bill offers no solution to these perplexing problems, but, on the contrary, throws more fuel on the now existing fire of ill feeling between the major branches of the industry—producer and exhibitor. The solution must come from within. The cause must be removed, not the effect. In fact, the whole spirit of relationship between these branches must be changed before the ills the Brookhart Bill proposes to remedy will have been corrected.

"Block booking is not altogether bad, for it has many redeeming features and there is no need to force a discontinuance of this method of selling pictures, by law.

"There is simply need of the men responsible for this form of selling policy to revise the block booking system to fit the different situations and conditions. The spirit of block booking is all right and in line with the wholesaling of merchandise, which is the basis of all other great business. It is the arbitrary and forced selling of all the product of a concern, irrespective of situation, that robs it of its fairness as a method of marketing moving pictures.

"Sell in blocks or groups, or any way you like, but give the exhibitor the privilege of buying his needs and the product his public demands. Adopt a fair and co-operative spirit of selling and these ills will automatically cease, the relationship between the producer and exhibitor will be smoother and a greater degree of efficiency will result in the proper functioning of every branch of the industry, bringing greater patronage

New Lighting Cuts Cost

Samuel Goldwyn Reduces Production Expenses by Use of Incandescent Lights

SAMUEL GOLDWYN has made a radical move in the matter of cutting down production costs, and at the same time contends that he has improved his photography by the use of the yellow incandescent lights in place of the more cumbersome arc lights. In the past the picture lighting was all done by the arc lights, but the development today of the 1,000, 2,000, 5,000, 10,000 and 30,000 "monster" incandescent globes has reduced by 70 per cent the cost of energy used, the number of electricians required, and has cut the weight of equipment by 75 per cent.

These changes have gained momentum for the past several months, but it remained for Goldwyn to abandon the old system and apply the new entirely, and now it is likely the incandescents will entirely obliterate the old arcs. The changes involve hundreds of thousands of dollars of equipment, affect the omployment of hundreds and have revolutionized makeup. They have made vast monetary savings at a time when further economy in picture production is the most important problem of the hour.

Goldwyn has junked all of his old lighting equipment and announced that all of his future pictures would be made by incandescent illumination. The effect of his first effort will be seen on his forthcoming production for United Artists with Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky, "Two Lovers," which is scheduled for the Embassy theatre in New York, March 22nd.

George Barnes, who has been Goldwyn's camera man for many years, had this to say regarding the new lighting:

"The yellow incandescent light makes it necessary for a cinematographer to readjust his values as to quality of light. Outside of these adjustments, however, there is no difficult problem. The increasing popularity of panchromatic film fits in with the move to incandescent illumination. There are no disadvantages to the new form and there many advantages. The main one of these is the speeding up of your light arrangement. When I get an idea for my lighting, I can be sure it will be ready to shoot while my enthusiasm is at its height. The doing away with the long waits forced by heavy equipment, is a matter of deep satisfaction."

With regard to the lighting of a certain scene for "Two Lovers," William Meller, head electrician said:

"To light with arc lights would have required 50 men and 6 sunlight arcs (600 pounds each), 40 rotary spotlights (60 pounds each), 20 overhead banks (500 pounds each) and 60 side arcs (50 pounds each). The total weight would be 9½ tons.

"Lighting this set with incandescent light required 22 men, 8 24-inch sun arcs (15 pounds each), 40 18-inch sun spots (40 pounds each), 60 side lamps (30 pounds each) and 20 overhead banks (25 pounds each). The total poundage is 2½ tons, a difference of 7 tons, or nearly 3 to 1."

Mr. Goldwyn saved a large part of the cost of his new equipment during this one picture. The saving came in reduced manpower and time. The arc equipment would have cost $35,000. The incandescent lamps cost $15,000.

Associated Is Expanding

Chicago Company Now Purchasing Pictures for 18 Houses in N. Indiana and Ohio

ASSOCIATED THEATRES, INC., of which Charles L. Casanave is general manager, continues to expand and is now purchasing pictures for eighteen theatres in northern Indiana and Ohio. Casanave has opened offices at 426 Congress Bank Building, corner of Wabash and Congress Streets, and reports that a number of additional houses will be affiliated with his buying circuit within a short time and that negotiations have been practically closed with several of them.

President Charles Metzger of the Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana has officially endorsed Mr. Casanave's plan for a constructive buying organization and has tendered him the full co-operation of the Association. This was done following an address delivered by Mr. Casanave before the members of the Association at Indianapolis, last week.

The theatres now affiliated with Associated Theatres, Inc., include the Palace, New Gary, Broadway, and Orpheum of Gary, Indiana; the Seipe, Indiana and Colonial at Kokomo, Indiana; the Columbia and Wysor Grand, Muncie, Indiana; the Murry, Murrette, Ritz and Washington at Richmond, Indiana; the Palace at Anderson, Indiana; and the Palace, Valentine, and Lyceum at Canton, Ohio. Also the Palace at Marion, Ohio, which is now under construction.

"Vamping Venus" Title of First National Comedy

"Vamping Venus" is the title chosen by First National for a comedy special with Charlie Murray, Louise Fazenda, Thelma Todd and others. Edward Cline is now making the comedy at the First National studio on the coast. Thelma Todd has the role of the Venus.

Warners Moving to New Quarters in New York

Warner Bros. will move their office headquarters on February 24 from 1600 Broadway to the Film Building, 321 West 44 Street, where the firm will occupy three floors, giving the company more commodious and modern quarters than they have previously enjoyed. In the Film Building, a new edifice, space has been laid out to accommodate the executive departments, the home office staff, the Vitaphone Corporation and the New York exchange.

The Warner Bros. telephone number, as well as that for Vitaphone Corporation and Vitagraph, Inc., will remain as heretofore, Chickering 2200. The number for the Warner and Vitaphone exchanges will be Chickering 6933.

Zanuck Denies Report He Is Leaving Warners

Before leaving New York for California this week, Darryl Francis Zanuck, Warner Bros. studio executive, emphatically denied that he is about to sever his connections with the Warner Brothers. The rumor of Mr. Zanuck's resignation from his post in the Warner studio was occasioned by his recent trip to Europe. Mr. Zanuck stated that his trip was made strictly in the interests of the company and any reports to the contrary he branded as ridiculous.

Lillian Gilmore Feminine Lead in Rex King Vehicle

Another face, new to Fox Films westerns, will be Lillian Gilmore's, recently signed by Fox to play the feminine lead in "Wild West Romance," the initial vehicle of Rex King, a new western player. They are now being directed by R. L. Hough, assisted by Dave Todd. Others in the cast are George Beldon, Bilgy Butts and Fred Parke.

In and Out of Town

JERRY MARKS, states rights salesman, has joined the William F. Pizor distributing organization. He is now on a sales trip that will take him through the principal cities of the Middle West.

LUCILLA MENDEZ (Mrs. Ralph Ince), arrived in New York last week and made an unexpected and personal appearance at the Hippodrome, where "Coney Island," in which she has a featured role, was playing. She did a jazz specialty dance on the stage of the theatre.

E. T. LOWE, JR., Warner Bros.' scenarist, last week left for California after having spent a vacation in New York. His latest work for Warners was the script for "Tenderloin."

ARVID GILSTROM, who directed 10 of this season's schedule of Paramount-Christie comedies, will sail from New York Feburary 25 on the S.S. Paris for a vacation of two months in the cities of the Continent.

GLORIA SWANSON, whose latest United Artists vehicle is "Sadie Thompson," is now in New York City, where she is residing at the Plaza Hotel.

IRVING THALBERG, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and his wife, Norma Shearer, sailed for Europe last Tuesday, February 21, on the S.S. Mauretania. They plan a vacation tour through France that may include the Mediterranean provinces.

CYRIL CHADWICK, English actor, has left Los Angeles for London, where he will spend a few weeks with his wife and family. He has a prominent role in M-G-M's "The Actress."

Inside Slants on the Industry

PICTURES AND PEOPLE

The Mirrors of Filmdom

AARON SAPIRO is to head a co-operative association of the leading independent circuits of New York with a combined buying power of $4,000,000, out of the $7,000,000 which the metropolitan district spends annually for its film.

Mr. Sapiro is impressive. A brief interview with him indicates a man of unusual mental spirit and equipment, reserve strength and rounded experience. We hazard the opinion that a good deal will be heard from him in this business.

Not long ago we spoke editorially of the Woolworth stores and how they buy for the public; and we compared the situation with that of the exhibitors and producers of motion pictures. Knowing that the public will buy and at what price, they invite the manufacturers to produce said quality of goods at said price.

The stores, in other words, set the style, quality and price—and not the manufacturer. Which is a reversal of the picture situation, where the producer has always determined for the public what the public wants and will pay for. And we gave an opinion that the Woolworth system is sound economics while the picture situation is an unusual attempt to regulate and supply demand from the wrong end.

That is just what Sapiro says.

And he makes the exceedingly wise statement that the prime and basic object of his co-operative organization will be to give the public better picture satisfaction than independent theatres are now able to give.

With such a platform, we look forward to interesting developments.

THE latest organization in the industry has adopted a label which would seem to indicate that its members are spoofing, but the list of the organizers is comprised of names so prominent among the studios that their association will command a great deal of attention.

"The Titular Bishops," formed at a meeting in the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles, is a group of the leaders among production and title editors. The nine charter members are:

Julian Johnson, production editor of Paramount Pictures; Malcolm Stuart Boylan, production editor for Fox; Joseph Farnham, production editor for M-G-M; Randolph Bartlett, production editor for F B O; Herman J. Mankiewicz, Paramount; George Marion, Jr., Paramount; Ralph Spence, free lance; Garrett Graham, free lance; Walter Anthony, production editor for Universal. Mr. Johnson was elected Archbishop, Mr. Spence, senior bishop, and Mr. Boylan, recording and tithe-collecting bishop.

This is the world's first organization of title writers, and it is unique among moving picture bodies in other respects besides its name. Following is a brief announcement of the motives and aims of the Bishops, issued by the organizers themselves:

"In the last few years the position of title writer has grown into something entirely different from his former lowly estate. He is no longer looked upon as a sort of superior proofreader, engaged merely to put into grammatical English the ideas already determined upon for the picture's subtitles, but in many instances it is his constructive ideas which interpret the celluloid delivered by the director to the producer. From his humble beginnings, the title writer has gone forward by the force of his own value, until now almost every studio has among its principal executives an editor-in-chief, who next to the producer himself, has the last word in the finishing up of every production. He is the one man in the entire studio who has no backstop, and only men who have a sense of finality can qualify for such a position.

"It was with such a condition in mind that the name, The Titular Bishops, was chosen—not too seriously, and yet with a certain appositeness. It does not appear, after several informal gatherings which culminated in the organization, that any of the members have any serious grievances against the world in general or their employers in particular. No knives are being sharpened, and no clubs cut from the Hollywood eucalyptus groves—no minimum or maximum wage has been discussed and no desire for a standard contract voiced.

"It is the desire of The Titular Bishops simply to keep those within and without the studios reminded of the high importance of the functions they exercise in the making of pictures. While deploring the often unseemly scrambles for publicity by members of other branches of the profession, they believe that the policy of the modest violet gets no one anywhere, and propose to use all means at their disposal to maintain the dignity and importance of the profession of title editor."

FROM Los Angeles we hear interesting news about James Cruze and his future plans. The director of "The Covered Wagon," and other successes, is to produce for the independent market.

He is announcing the signing of a five year contract with Liberty Pictures Corporation, of which Harry Sherman is president and Mr. Cruze vice-president. Twenty pictures a year will be released, of which Cruze will personally direct four.

The production concern will be known as James Cruze, Inc., with the producer as the president.

Mr. Sherman announces that he is starting a trip to sign up territory, New York already having been sold. Exchanges will be established only in those districts where deals with established independent exchanges cannot be effected.

FOR a country like Germany, with as large, progressive and as thoughtful a population as she has, a total of 3,000 motion picture theatres seems quite inadequate. On a pro rata basis, almost every other great nation has many more theatres: and we learn that such would actually be the case with Germany were it not for an annoying and provoking theatre tax.

This tax not only aggravates the theatre owners and managers, but wreaks a more desperate harm in actually discouraging bankers and promoters from engaging in theatre building and further discourages them from financing the actual making of pictures. Thus the harm is done not only in Germany, but is a prejudicial barrier to the spread of Germany's film industry abroad.

Insofar as the building of theatres is concerned, Germany can well take heed of some of the happenings which have taken place in the United States, Australia, Japan and many other countries. In these parts of the world the advent of a new and finely-equipped motion picture theatre has meant a tremendous stimulus to trade wherever built. Thousands of towns and cities have had their civic layouts completely altered by palatial motion picture theatres, for the theatre has meant new stores, new and finer roads leading to it, a new

Sydney Franklin and Norma Shearer between scenes of "The Actress." After having screened Barrie's "Quality Street" Franklin is now trying his hand at another great playwright, Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, whose "Trelawney" is the source of M-G-M's "The Actress"

Lya de Putti, star of "Variety," whose latest roles are in "Buck Privates" and "Midnight Rose," both current releases from Universal

Adolphe Menjou, one of the screen's suavest actors, listens to Raoul Paoli, champion discus and shotputter, who is playing a part in "The Code of Honor," the latest Menjou vehicle for Paramount. Adolphe is not a waiter or a musician in this one, but a soldier

Robert C. Bruce, who produces the Outdoor Sketches for Educational. He is planning a trip to Death Valley to add to his unique portfolio of nature shots

In his new picture, "The Godless Girl," Cecil B. De Mille preaches a powerful sermon against the evils of juvenile reformatories. He and Will Hays are shown with a group of women who are endeavoring to establish a model California institution

W. C. Boothby, financial comptroller of First National Pictures, who returned recently from a trip of four weeks throughout the countries of Europe

With the introduction of some of the German films several movie critics developed a penchant for "camera angles." To judge by this shot, then Pathe's "Skyscrapers" is just the thing they're looking for

Another newcomer in the First National ranks who seems to have a world of personality is Frances Hamilton

The influence of Lindbergh, Pinedo, Costes and Lebrix and other conquerors of the sea and air is noticeable in Monte Blue's latest for Warners, "Across the Atlantic," in which he emulates them viewpoint of progress and prosperity in the minds of the townsfolk, and a new vista of finer and more genuine entertainment through the medium of the theatre's screen and through its new standards of comfort and elegance.

It must be plain to Germany, then, that a tax which is stifling such progress as this cannot be a good tax. It is, in the first place, being extracted from a smaller number of theatres than the nation should normally support; it is keeping those theatres small and unprogressive; and it is the prime barrier which is keeping capital from being invested in newer, larger and finer theatres. Also, these factors are themselves the barriers to the production of German motion pictures that can, and should, carry the stamp of German film genius around the world.

The German theatre tax thus stands as such a little barrier, holding back the great waters of progress. Blast it away and Germany will have more and better theatres, an immeasurably greater interest in the production and exhibition of motion pictures by the great financial forces of the nation, a still finer sense of civic duty, and a far wider distribution of German motion pictures throughout the world.

ASHTON STEVENS, dramatic critic of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, went out the other day to a brand new neighborhood picture theatre in Chicago and this is his report and comment, in part:

"I heard Mistah Fess Williams play his jazz band . . . and I confess that Fess is good. So are his bandsmen.

"In fact, I don't think we have anywhere in the Loop a set of syncopators quite so razor-edged and rapturous as these colored boys. When they let go a brazen blare, something seems to happen to the marrow of the spine. And when they play pianissimo you can almost hear your hair curl above the soft sigh of the saxophone, the slur of the gumshod trombone and the faint sparking of the banjo.

"Vaudeville trimmings are as thick as Christmas cards in December and weave in and out of the flexible symphony of the Williams band. The dancing acts and the singing acts are, of course, better than the talking acts, and there are some ten or a dozen lithe, brown, rhythmic chorus girls, barbaric and beautiful.

"Although I did not see it with my own eyes, I am reliably informed that there is even a motion picture at this newest and most melodious of the picture palaces."* (The italics are ours.)

AND while we are on the subject of presentations, we quote from an article by Harold Heffernan, photoplay editor of The Detroit News:

"The problem of presentations vs. straight picture programs, which has been tearing the interior of the movie industry wide open in recent months, has been grasped by the public, it now appears, and some interesting viewpoints are being heard.

"Not the least of these came from a recent meeting of the Adcraft Club, when M. J. Caplan, president of the Metropolitan Motion Picture Company, put the question to a ballot of the members in attendance. The tabulation showed that 90 per cent of those who voted favored pictures straight without the stage vaudeville trimmings.

and increased prosperity.

"There is no limit to the troubles, ills and evils that might come from our business being thrown under Government control. Prohibition is but a poor example of what rottenness and graft would exist in the moving picture industry, with all its big salaries and tremendous investments being opened to the long fingers of political graft.

"Our ills can best be worked out by the men inside who understand our own troubles, rather than by the itching hand of grafting committees. And, unless these problems are worked out on an equitable basis of complete co-operation, there is sure to come in our midst the undesirable grafters of politics.

"In a great industry devoted to the high ideals of educating, inspiring and entertaining the world, there should be men of the highest calibre at its helm; men who are devoting their lives to this great threefold purpose; men who are thoroughly capable of setting up a code of ethics that might become the envy of the entire business world.

"And if we were to scratch beneath the silver crust that has temporarily formed over the character of some of our leaders, we would find just such men. I believe that, in time, these men will take heed of Mr. Johnston's idea—righting these evils before it is too late.

"Mr. Johnston, your idea has always been, is now and always will be the pivot upon which successful business is conducted; upon which the nations of the world solve their problems; upon which the Great Teacher founded his brotherhood of man; upon which the basis of civilization turns; and upon which the child divides the apple with his playmate—half and half".

To this inspiring letter we need add nothing, save to point out that the position taken by Mr. Davis in championing the cause of simple justice in this industry is eternally right, and must prevail.

Publix-Saenger Acquires Five More Houses in N. Carolina

PUBLIX-SAENGER THEATRES of North Carolina acquired full control of five theatres in High Point, N. C., by a deal closed late last week. The houses involved in the transaction are Broadhurst, American, Rialto, Broadway and Orpheum. This acquisition in High Point marks the first development in the expansion program announced by Publix-Saenger Theatres of North Carolina two weeks ago.

The new holdings passed into the control of Publix-Saenger February 13th, with R. C. (Jack) Frost, formerly manager of Universal's theatre in Danville, Virginia, at the managerial reins. While no radical changes in the operation of the houses are planned for the present, it is probable that remodeling and general improvements in some of them will be made during the next several months.

Of the five theatres in the group the American is the most imposing. It is considered the most popular and successful house in High Point. The Orpheum is also unusually well arranged theatre.

With the new holdings in High Point the Publix-Saenger chain of North Carolina now numbers twenty-two theatres, including properties in Greensboro, Durham, Raleigh, Chapel Hill, Fayetteville, Salisbury, Hendersonville and a new house under construction in Winston-Salem.

M-G-M Convention Ends

Delegates from All Parts of World Discuss Company Policies for Full Week

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER film representatives from all parts of the world concluded a week's Congress at the Hotel Astor in New York City last Tuesday with a farewell banquet to the delegates. The convention was the first of the kind to be held specifically in the interest of foreign film workers and they came from practically every country where American pictures are being released.

Among the prominent foreign sales chiefs who were on hand for an exchange of ideas on sales and distribution methods were the following: David Lake, Australia; Benjamin Fineberg, Brazil; George Forman, Chile; P. M. Gonzales, Porto Rico, Raoul Le Mat, Sweden; Allen Byre, France; J. C. Squier, England; George Fatt, Guatemala; T. Neilson, Denmark; P. N. Brinch, Germany and Central Europe; F. L. D. Strongholt, Holland; J. J. Letsch, Belgium and Switzerland; F. Curioni, Italy; David Lewis, Spain; Louis Goldstein, Cuba; A. L. Kalb, Mexico, and H. Gunderloch, France.

The sessions of the congress got under way Wednesday, February 15th, with Arthur Loew acting as chairman of the convention and Nicholas M. Schenck making the address of welcome. Reports of film conditions in the various countries represented were presented at the first two days' sessions.

Will H. Hays was to have been present and addressed the convention, but his stay in California was prolonged and his place was taken by ex-Governor C. E. Milliken, who described the motion picture as the greatest existing force for world betterment and a dominant factor in creating a better understanding between nations.

The consensus of opinion of the foreign delegates who addressed the business sessions of the convention was that, while sales are steadily on the increase throughout all of Europe, the film business abroad is handicapped by the fact that there has been very little theatre construction, especially in the rural districts.

Amang the other executives of the M-G-M home office who addressed the convention were Howard Dietz, director of Publicity, Advertising and Exploitation in New York; W. F. Rodgers, of the M-G-M sales department, and David Blum of the Foreign Department. J. Robert Rubin, vice-president and counsel of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer summarized next year's product of the company and its pertinence to the foreign market. His remarks were wildly cheered by the delegates. David Loew of Loew's Inc., was then introduced and spoke of his appreciation of the work done by the foreign delegates.

F. C. Quimby, sales manager of the M-G-M short subjects department, dismussed the matter of short subject sales in foreign markets, and William Orr, another company executive, read a paper on the cooperation that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has secured from the government in the making of several big pictures. Latest theatre methods were discussd by Major Edward Bowes, director general of the Capitol theatre, New York.

During the week of the convention the various picture palaces along Broadway were inspected by the delegates. They were also entertained with various other forms of amusement.

T. O. of W. Pa. and W. Va. Meeting April 15

THE Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia will hold their eighth annual convention at the William Penn Hotel in Pittsburgh, Pa., on April 15, 16 and 17. The topic to be discussed will deal with the Brookhart Bill introduced in the Senate and the two bills in Congress. "There is a lot of work ahead prior to and during the convention as the organization of Western Pennsylvania is making every effort for the success of the Brookhart Bill," says Fred Harrington, secretary of the M. P. T. O. of Western Pa.

Sunday afternoon and evening will be devoted to entertainment in the form of trade showings and pre-views for the delegates and their friends.

Lane's Educational Comedy Octet Shows Diversity

With the completion of a comedy satirizing the ancient days of the Caesars, Lupino Lane, Educational comedian, has rounded out a comedy series that shows wide diversity and variety in its content. There are eight two-reelers in this Lane group and each is laid in a different locale from its fellow and each presents the star in a different comedy characterization.

The English comic began his series for 1927-28 with "A Half-Pint Hero," in which he portrayed a fireman. He then followed with "Some Scent," a satire on the early frontier days, "Hello, Sailor," built around a sailor on shore leave, and then came through with a comedy that went back to the days of Dumas' D'Artagnan for it humor. "What a Girl," in which he impersonated a feminine character, a sixth picture with a South American locale as yet without a title, and his subsequent comedy, "Hectic Days," which will take him to a cow town, are some of his latest comedy efforts. His final comedy of the series is the one in the Roman vein which has been tentatively titled, "Roamin' Romeo."

Quebec Exhibitors in Arms Against New Bill

In the Province of Quebec the exhibitors are having a merry battle with the Legislature over a Government bill which provides that no children under 16 years of age can attend any performance at a moving picture theatre.

Ald. Schubert of Montreal has taken up the fight in behalf of the exhibitors. He has said that the bill will provide a strong source of opposition to the Quebec Government. He declared that the measure would have the effect of keeping parents as well as children away from the shows because, in many instances, the adults could not go to a theatre and leave their children at home alone. Ald. Schubert also pointed out that children 14 years of age are legally permitted to go to work but that they are prevented from attending theatres, under the proposal, until they are 16 years of age.

Operators Suing Manager of Milwaukee Theatre

The local Motion Picture Operators' union is bringing suit against H. E. Welsh, manager of the Irish theatre of Milwaukee to enforce a contract between the theatre and the union. Welsh entered into a contract last September, it is said, with the union to hire a union operator for a period of one year and agreed to pay $42.90 a week as wages.

Since January Welsh has been said to have hired non-union labor and the union is suing for the wages due their operator on the balance of the contract. This is the first suit of its kind on record in Milwaukee.

No Actual Slump in Production Activities on Coast

Slow Season Is On in Hollywood; Spring May Bring Speeding-Up; Working Out Economic Adjustments

By EDWIN SCHALLERT

Editor of the Los Angeles Times, Pre-View and Special Correspondent of Motion Picture News

LOS ANGELES, February 19—The present status of the studios in Hollywood is the same approximately as it was three months ago. There is a better spirit; there is in spots more activity in production; but the films have not yet struck their full-speed, go-ahead stride, and they won't until late spring, in any event.

A survey of the studios does not present an entirely abnormal condition for this time of the year. There is no actual slump, but there is perhaps a little more than the seasonal dullness.

Companies reporting normal activity include Paramount, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, First National and Fox. De Mille reports no diminution of production, as compared with last year at this time. In fact, they had one more company working. The Cecil de Mille special, "The Godless Girl," is under way, with early opinion expressed that it will be one of the best De Mille films. It will have a more timely and up-to-the-minute theme than anything he has done since "Manslaughter."

Following are the showings for the principal organizations; feature films actually shooting at this writing:

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer	4
Paramount-Famous-Lasky	5
Fox	5
First National	4
United Artists	1
De Mille	3
F. B. O.	2
Warner Brothers	1
Universal	3
Columbia	2

There is only relative significance to these figures. For example, M-G-M and Paramount were preparing three pictures for early production at the time I made the check-up. De Mille expected to have two in work in a week or so. First National was preparing to start another. The only studios that were definitely quiet were Universal and Warner Brothers, and in neither had production nor plans for the continuance of at least one or two productions been eliminated.

These facts clearly indicate that it is not a period of unusual depression. The barometer of sentiment only has fallen perhaps lower, owing to changes and readjustments economically.

Economic Adjustments

How much has Hollywood accomplished in this direction? A size-up of developments since last spring would indicate three things definitely:

First—A more genuine interest on the part of everybody in the motion picture industry itself in the business of picture-making. I have heard this referred to as the "new esprit de corps," and it does exist very actively among all people who are under contract. They are more vitally concerned with their work, and the character of this work. A certain common understanding that grew out of the meetings sponsored by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences last summer has made itself felt throughout the industry. Talk is again centering around this organization, which has succeeded in settling occasional difficulties arising between individuals of various branches of the business and also now is actively engaged in furthering changes in contracts.

Montagne Will Remain With Universal

DESPITE the fact that it was recently admitted that Edward J. Montagne had tendered his resignation to Carl Laemmle, the scenario editor-in-chief of Universal will probably remain with that organization in the same capacity.

Recognized as one of the most capable executives in the film industry, the news that Montagne had xpressed a desire to be released from his contract caused no little amount of discussion in film circles. Moreover, this executive is known to have received four tempting offers from prominent producers asking that he become associated with them.

Carl Laemmle, however, stepped into the breach between his head of the scenario department and the various factions purported to exist on the lot, and from present indications Montagne will likely reconsider his resignation and place his signature to a new long-term contract.

Second—Some reduction of costs. Not as much as there should be. But a tightening of schedules has helped. A week or two has been lopped off the shooting time on the ordinary run of pictures. The special can't always be made with speed, but it is taken with less profound seriousness.

Robert Kane did an interesting feat with First National not long ago in making five films in from 12 to 24 days' shooting time, only one of which ran over $175,000. This is probably the highest average outside of the independent organizations themselves.

The third point that may be noted as regards changes is the rooting out of deadwood. Companies are not carrying as many players in stock as they did a year ago. Nor are production executives, nor regular contract directors, as numerous. I observed not long ago that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer had only twenty-seven players listed as compared with forty at the same time a year ago, while the number at Paramount had been reduced to twenty-seven from forty-five. This number may have been added to a little lately. A majority eliminated were minor players.

Abie's Irish Rose

What interests many observers is the new line that entertainment will take and there seems to be no general agreement. That's one of the drawbacks. The picture that is drawing the most attention right at the moment is "Abie's Irish Rose." It had its initial preview a few nights ago at the Criterion Theatre in Santa Monica, and is unquestionably destined for immense popularity. Jesse L. Lasky is more than optimistic regarding the success of this film. He predicts that it will be a far bigger money-maker than "The Covered Wagon." Lasky told me that this type of picture would have been relegated to six-reel obscurity a few years ago, but that he believed it would be a style-setting film for the future. He declared it proves that a good human story, without spectacular adornments, can be made just as consequential, and more so, than one of the typical portentous importance. The Lasky company is probably going to roadshow this film. What struck me about "Abie's Irish Rose" was its sincerity and simplicity—freedom from slapstick. The major performance is that of Jean Hersholt, though he shares the honors to some extent with J. Farrell McDonald in the best scenes in the production.

If one were to name the thing most prominently under consideration for the future, it would be sound devices. Vitaphone experiments have been carried on consistently, and a number of film players have taken part in both the acts and feature pictures that have been made with sound effects. Those players who have taken part in this "new form of expression" are amazingly enthusiastic about it.

Starting of the new Movietone stages at the Fox Westwood property will be only a matter of a few weeks or a month now. This will probably begin shortly after the return of Winfield Sheehan around March 1.

F. B. O. has announced the immediate start of experiments with talking pictures under their new tie-up with the General Electric Company. Paramount-Famous-Lasky is reported well advanced with their device, which is being used in conjunction with the showings of "Wings" for effects. In this case the sound is photographed on a separate piece of film. It differs from both Vitaphone and Movietone.

Standardization of mechanical equipment will have to be one of the things early achieved in the sound field.

Skouras-Publix Add Three to Chain in Indianapolis

SKOURAS BROTHERS of St. Louis, in conjunction with the Publix Theatre Corporation, subsidiary of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, have added three of the largest motion picture theatres in Indianapolis, Ind., to their growing chain of houses in the Central West.

Control of the Indianapolis, 4600 seats; the Circle, 2500 seats, and the Ohio, 1600 seats, was acquired by the Skouras Super Theatres Corporation, which is owned jointly by Skouras Brothers Enterprises and Famous Players-Lasky, through the purchase of the long-term leases.

The three Indianapolis houses are owned by Robert Lieber, former president of the First National Pictures Corporation. He still retains title to the theatre properties, having disposed of the leases only. Official advices of the price paid for the leases have not been issued in St. Louis. The management of the three theatres will be under the control of Skouras Brothers, who will set up their own organization in Indianapolis.

It is understood that the arrangement between Skoruas Brothers and Publix is similar to that which prevails in relationship to the Ambassador and Missouri theatres in St. Louis. After the rentals of the properties are paid the net proceeds are split 50-50 between the joint owners.

West Coast to Open Two

Seattle and Portland Theatres Are Scheduled for First Showings March 1st and 8th

FOLLOWING several weeks of indecision as to policy, operation, openings, etc., of the magnificent new Seattle theatre in Seattle and Portland theatre in Portland, definite announcement was made last week from West Coast Theatres, Inc., general Northwest offices in Seattle, Washington, relative to these details. The advice comes directly from Herschel Stuart, general managing director of West Coast interests in the entire Pacific Northwest territory.

The 3,500-seat Seattle theatre at Ninth Avenue and Pine Street will open on Thursday, March 1, and the 3,000-seat Portland theatre, in Portland, will open just a week later, on March 8. The houses will be operated by West Coast Theatres, under direction of Harold B. Franklin, jointly for Publix Theatres and Loew's, Inc.

Within the last week, it has definitely been assured that the stage fare for these houses will be the regular Publix Units, similar to the presentatinos from the large Eastern houses. The Publix shows, covering the entire Publix circuit, will jump to Seattle from Denver, and after a week in Seattle will then proceed to the Portland theatre. After that, the cicuit is being enlarged to cover the Granada theatre in San Francisco and the Metropolitan theatre in Los Angeles. This gives the Publix units a full additional month on the Coast, after a cross-country tour.

At the present time, Ralph E. Crabill, in charge of de luxe presentations for Publix, is located in Seattle, planning the routing, bookings, etc., for the Publix shows on the West Coast Chain. Jeff Lazarus, head of publicity for the entire West Coast circuit, is also in Seattle planning the opening campaigns for both Pacific Northwest houses.

Workmen are at present adding the final touches to the Seattle house, and the "flying stages" similar to those at the Capitol theatre and Paramount theatre in New York are being installed. A giant white and gold Wurlitzer similar to that used by Jesse Crawford at the Paramount theatre is ready for installation, and house staffs are being trained by Bernard J. Hynes, assistant manager, assisted by Mr. McKale of the Publix service department of Los Angeles.

$2,500,000 Interstate Theatre for Houston

THE theatre situation in Houston, Texas, has taken on added interest with the announcement by Karl Hoblitzelle that a new $2,500,000 house is to be built by the Interstate Amusement Company. No definite site has been chosen, but it is said that the new theatre will extend the present theatre district several blocks south.

With the prediction of overcrowded theatres dwindling, local theatre people are wondering just what the effect of the new theatre will be. Work will start on it next summer and a year will be needed for completion, it is estimated.

The battle for business seems to be between the Publix de luxe house (Metropolitan) and Loew's theatre, rather than between the Majestic (Interstate) and Loew's, as was predicted. On the other hand, Interstate is so firmly established here that the Majestic continues to be packed at nearly every performance, despite big business at other houses.

Fire Destroys Three New England Theatres

Three New England theatres were destroyed by fire during the week.

The Morse Opera House at Frankoin, Mass., was burned to the ground. Another hall in the town has been secured temporarily and is being used as a theatre until a new theatre can be erected. The Jackman Theatre at Guilford, Me., was destroyed by fire during the week.

The Opera House at Farmington, N. H., was also badly damaged by fire. It is understood that the theatre will be rebuilt at an early date.

Ontario Finally Raises Ban Against German Films

After three years of waiting, Toronto, Ontario, has now seen "The Last Laugh" at last, this production being presented at Shea's Hippodrome during the week of February 20.

For some 10 years it had been the policy of the Ontario Provincial Government to prohibit the screening of any German-made picture on Ontario soil, although other Provinces of Canada had long since raised the ban.

In 1925 "The Last Laugh" was brought into Ontario, given a private screening for newspapermen and others but its presentation was denied by the Provincial authorities. It remained on the shelf for months until the Government decided to relent without official notification. "Variety," "Metropolis" and other German features have already been seen in Ontario in recent months but it was not until February, 1928, that "The Last Laugh" could be shown in the Ontario Capital.

Universal Opens Theatre at Sheboygan

Universal's new $750,000 Spanish atmospheric theatre at Sheboygan, Wisconsin, was opened last Saturday with special ceremonies. It is the newest and most modern theatre of the Universal Chain Theatrical Enterprises, Inc. The house seats 1,800. Jack Gross is manager.

Sheboygan newspapers put out illustrated special souvenir editions to commemorate the opening of the new theatre. The Association of Commerce of that city arranged for street decorations in honor of the event. Merchants also co-operated by holding special sales that attracted out-of-town customers.

Among the messages of congratulation received at the time of the opening was a wire to Carl Laemmle from Ambassador von Prittwitz of Germany.

Stanley Acquires Roxy in Maple Shade, N. J.

The Roxy Theatre in Maple Shade, New Jersey, is the latest theatre to become a part of the circuit of houses controlled by the Stanley Company of America, having been taken over last week from Jacob Fox, who has been operating it since October. The seating capacity of the house is 800. The straight motion picture policy will continue as heretofore with a vaudeville show every Saturday. Maple Shade is a community of 5,000 people.

Irving D. Rossheim, president of the Stanley Company, announced the acquisition of the Maple Shade theatre just before leaving last week for Pittsburgh, where he is now perfecting details for the opening of the new $7,000,000 Stanley theatre building there.

Pettijohn Attacks Legality of Brookhart Measure

Hays Organization Counsel Declares It Would Deprive Producers and Distributors of "Absolute Right to Choose Own Customers"

C. C. PETTIJOHN, general counsel of the Hays organization, has prepared a memorandum, attacking the legality of the Brookhart Bill.

The chief legal objection to the measure, the Pettijohn brief declares, is that it would deprive producers and distributors "of their absolute right to choose their own customers."

This right, Mr. Pettojohn urges, has been upheld by the courts, and he cites a number of legal decisions to back up his argument.

On the allegations in the Bill that blind booking, block booking and unfair discrimination threaten to create a monopoly in the industry the Pettijohn brief says:

"They [the allegations] are nothing more than self-serving declarations and assumptions made by the author of the bill without any foundation or justification in fact. If these assertions, allegations and assumptions be true in fact, they are matters which should be brought to the attention of the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission for prosecution under the anti-trust laws, the provisions of which are ample to correct any such evil."

Following is the complete text of the Pettijohn brief, the paragraphs in italics being inserted by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, in order that the reader may compare Mr. Pettijohn's comment with the original provisions of the bill:

The chief legal objection to this proposed legislation is that its effect would be to deprive producers and distributors of their absolute right to choose their own customers. It has been repeatedly decided by the Circuit Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court of the United States that a manufacturer and/or wholesaler may select his customers at will; and in the absence of a conspiracy or concerted action to coerce, intimidate or boycott, may refuse for any reason he onsiders fit, to sell his product to a retailer. The leading decisions on this point are to be found in the cases against manufacturers and/or wholesalers of various commodities who refused to sell their products to retailers who did not keep and maintain certain resale prices and are commonly known as the Resale Price Maintenance Cases.

One of the leading cases is that of the Federal Trade Commission vs. Beechnut Packing Co. in the U. S. Supreme Court, wherein the right of a seller to choose his own customer at will is affirmed. Illustrative of the extent of this rule was the assertion from the bench by Justice McReynolds, during the argument of this case, that a trader had the right to refuse to sell to a man because his hair was red.

This statement of the law was not challenged. One of the latest decisions is that of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Second Circuit (New York) in the case of Harriet Hubbard Ayer, Inc. vs Federal Trade Commission, decided Nov. 1, 1926. After reviewing the acts of the respondent, the court held "In doing this we think the petitioner did no more than it might lawfully do in selecting its customers whom it considered desirable"—petition for certiorari denied by the Supreme Court, March 14, 1927. This rule of freedom of choice is well established in numerous decisions and there can be no denial of its importance in the motion picture industry.

Every producer, necessarily from the very nature of the industry, desires to have his pictures exhibited in the best theatres. This is especially true with respect to the first-run exhibition which, in effect, is the show-window of the territory and often determines whether the picture is to be a success or a failure. The character of the theatre, its location, policy, prices of admission, seating capacity, manner of presentation, class of patrons, general reputation, etc., are all matters of vital importance to the producer and distributor, and often they are equally as important, if not more so, than the rental paid by the theatre.

The effect of the Brookhart bill would be to ignore all these important considerations and make the price of the picture the one controlling feature in the industry and deny to the producers and distributors in this industry the same right of contract granted to manufacturers and wholesalers in other industries, to wit, the freedom to choose their own customers. The author of the bill probably had in mind the rulings of the court on this question of freedom of choice of a customer, so in drawing the proposed bill sought to avoid this rule by emphasizing the fact that the films are copyrighted. Almost without exception they are described as "copyrighted motion picture films." This was done probably for the purpose of making the motion picture industry an exception to the law governing all other industries and to bring the proposed law under the decision of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania in the case of the United States vs. M. P. Patents Co. et al., which was a proceeding brought by the government under the Sherman law. In that case the defendants owned a patented device used in projecting a picture on the screen. It was necessary for exhibitors to have licenses to use this device and the defendants would only grant such licenses on the condition that it be used to project pictures distributed by them, thus compelling the exhibitors to buy their pictures. This was, of course, held illegal and the court entered an order of dissolution. This state of facts, however, presents an entirely different question from that of a producer offering his product as a whole at a lower price than that fixed for one or two pictures, or from that of a producer who chooses as his customers such exhibitors as he thinks are desirable. The mere fact that these films are copyrighted does not make them an exception. There is no analogy between a copyrighted film and a patented mechanical device. Every picture is different and no two can possibly be exactly alike. Their value and worth is to be found, not in the fact that they are protected by a copyright, but in their drawing power at the box-office. In every show year several hundred desirable pictures are on the market. Some are better suited for certain audiences and theatres than others and some are more popular generally over the country than others. All of which goes to make an open market and keep intensive competition. Entirely different from the situation presented by one and only one necessary mechanical device, which is patented and for which there can be no substitute or alternative.

An anlysis of this proposed law brings out other objectionable effects.

This follows the title of the bill (page 1) and is devoted entirely to definitions.

Section 2—Page 4—Line 9

Section 2. In the course and conduct of the motion-picture industry the producers own or operate studios in the States of California, New York, New Jersey, and other States where they make or produce motion-picture films. In the production of motion-picture films large quantities of unexposed negative and positive films are shipped from other States to the studios. At the studios and on suitable sites called "locations" scenes are photographed upon reels of negative film, and the negative film is developed and edited, and at least one positive film is made. The negative film is then shipped from the studios to laboratories located sometimes in the same States and sometimes in a different State, where as many positive prints are made as may be necessary to meet the demand for the films. The positive films being then covered by copyright are distributed by distributors to exhibitors in the several States. When the films are projected by an exhibitor upon a screen the final stage of the photographic process takes place and there is then depicted what is commonly known as motion pictures. To facilitate the delivery of motion-picture films to the exhibitors most distributors have established branch offices throughout the United States known as "exchanges," where negotiations for the booking of, films are conducted with exhibitors. From these exchanges, located in the principal cities in the various sales districts throughout the United States, service is given to smaller cities and towns in contiguous territory, the films in passing between the exchange and the exhibitor frequently crossing State lines.

Saturday Midnight Show Called Off, Brings Rochester Dispute

BECAUSE a Saturday showing starting a little before midnight would run into Sunday and violate the Sunday closing law, A. A. Fenyvessy, manager of the Rochester theatre, called the show off last Saturday night and immediately announced he would resign from the Rochester Theatrical Managers' Association, of which he was a charter member.

The calling off of the midnight showing of Douglas Fairbanks in "The Gaucho" followed the complaint to Director of Police Barker by William A. Calihan, manager of the Rochester Theatrical Managers' Association.

Fonyvessy said the showing would hardly be a violation of the law as the prologue was to have been eliminated and the show started at 11:30 P. M. The Rochester closing law provides that no showing of pictures can be held before 2 P. M. The manager said that powerful interests were opposed to the Rochester theatre and he did not propose to fight them by holding midnight shows.

Toledo Gets New House

Publix to Build Modern Theatre Which It Is Said Will Be Most Outstanding in Ohio

PUBLIX THEATRES is to provide Toledo, Ohio, with its first strictly modern motion picture palace. The new house is to be located at the corner of Huron and Adams streets opposite the largest department store in the city. Work of razing the present structures on the site will commence within the next few days and excavation will start immediately following.

The new theatre will assure Toledo a quality of entertainment on a par with the best offered anywhere. The theatre, it is said, will be a show place for the whole state and will be the most outstanding Publix theatre in Ohio.

C. W. and George Rapp, architects, who designed the Paramount in New York, the Michigan in Detroit, and the Chicago, Tivoli, Oriental and Uptown Theatres in Chicago, will be the architects for the new Toledo Theatre. Tentative plans call for the house to be named The Toledo, though another name may later be chosen.

The new theatre will represent an investment of approximately $4,000,000, much of which will be represented in the modern construction, luxuries, conveniences, scientific lighting and stage devices, as well as giant ventilating, freezing and heating plants, which will completely change the air in the theatre auditorium every 87 seconds.

The structure proper will be a four story commercial building, erected from the architects' plans by Lundoff-Dicknell, contractors. The only decorative exterior features will be on the Adams street side, where the main entrance will admit into a lobby nearly a whole block long. Stores for commercial purposes will be on the corner only.

The theatre, an atmospheric one, will accommodate about 4,000 patrons, 2,000 on the main floor, 500 on the mezzanine loge floor and 1,500 in the balcony. All seats will be the same price with the Publix policy of first come, first served.

December Film Exports Show Large Increase

EXPORTS of motion picture film in December showed a decided increase over the prceding month, according to figures just made public by the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C., shipments totalling 26,566,649 feet with a value of $719,710, against 21,004,590 feet valued at $662,344.

Exports of positives for the month reached a total of 19,011,897 feet valued at $479,833, against 16,361,979 feet valued at $422,759 in November. Negative shipments amounted to 967,807 feet valued at $141,557, and raw stock exports were 4,810,525 feet valued at $100,338, again 2,337,737 feet valued at $73,111. Shipments to noncontiguous territories for the month totaled 1,766,420 feet valued at $20,825, against 1,577,853 feet valued at $25,415 in the preceding month.

Minneapolis Union and Publix Break Negotiations

It has been reported that negotiations have been broken off between the Minneapolis Musicians' union and officials of Publix, relative to the wage scale to be in effect at the new Minneapolis theatre when it opens late in March. Nathan Finston, musical director for the entire Publix circuit, has already left the city and Harry Sherman, director of public relations, is said to be ready to leave negotiations in the hands of Finkelstein and Ruben. Possibly Harold Finkelstein and Theodore Hays will handle the deliberations. As Mr. Hays is known throughout the country for his fairness and ability to cope with such affairs he will undoubtedly be acceptable to the union members of the wage committee. According to one of the New York officials the wage asked by the Minneapolis musicians exceeds that of New York City.

Sunday Show Battle on Birmingham's Horizon

Considerable interest is now being manifested in the local fight for Sunday amusements in Birmingham, Ala. A committee, headed by Charles Greer, attorney, has circulated petitions and state that it is anticipated they will secure several thousand voters' signatures necessary to bring about an election to decide the issue.

Birmingham ministers strongly oppose Sunday movies and sermons against them were delivered from pulpits last Sunday. However, local sentiment, while naturally divided, seems favorable to exhibiting motion pictures here on Sunday.

The Post, local Scripps-Howard newspaper, has come out editorially in favor of the move and has championed the cause of those who desire to afford working people and others an opportunity to enjoy the recreation and relaxation possible with Sunday movies.

Protest Proposed Abolition of Examining Board

A delegation of exhibitors, owners and operators, headed by a prominent Cleveland attorney, recently appeared before the Law committee of the City council, Cincinnati, to register a protest against the proposed abolition of the Motion Picture Examining Board, which consists of exhibitors, operators, electricians and representatives of the city building director, appointed by the city manager, to examine applicants for the operation of motion picture projectors. The city manager, at a previous meeting, transmitted an order to abolish the board on the ground that the duties could be performed by the civil service commission. The delegation, however, contended that there was no valid reason why the board should not operate. They pointed out that since 1922 there have been no fires in any motion picture houses in Greater Cincinnati, which represent an aggregate seating capacity of 66,000. The result of the meeting has not yet been made public.

Motion Picture Cameramen Hold Annual Banquet

The cameramen of the motion picture industry, who have banded together in an organization called The International Photographers of the Motion Picture Industry, held their first annual banquet last week at the Army and Navy Club in New York City. The dinner was a very successful affair.

The guest of honor was Hugh Frayne, general organizer for the American Federation of Labor. Speakers were Carl Lessing, president of the Scenic Artists Arthur Gerson, president of Local 52, which embraces the electricians of the studios, H. H. Van Loan, author and scenarist, and Henry Briggs, of the DuPont Film Manufacturing Company.

Frank Kirby acted as toastmaster, Ray Foster, was chairman and master of ceremonies.

Warners Refute Rumor of Myrna Loy Leaving Them

Newspaper reports to the effect that Myrna Loy had signed a starring contract with another company were termed fictitious this week by the Warner Brothers, who definitely asserted that there is no foundation for such rumors. They hold a long-term contract on the actress' services and they have no intention of letting her drift to other studios, it was said.

New Uniform Contract Drafted

Concession on Block Booking Believed To Be Included; Text of Document Will Be Available Shortly

THE new uniform contract has been drafted. Complete agreement on all points was reached this week at Chicago by the distributor and exhibitor conferees, according to an announcement by the Joint Committee on February 21.

The contract, says the announcement, is patterned along the lines agreed upon in the Trade Practice Conference held in New York last Fall. This means that it contains, evidently, the ten percent cancellation concession on block booking. The contract goes into effect in May.

The text of the new contract had not been made public, when this issue went to press, but it was said it would be available within a few days.

The anouncement made by the joint committee follows:

Committee's Announcement

"The National Contract Committee of the Motion Picture Industry, which has been working out the details of a new contract under which practically all of the motion pictures shown in the United States will be leased by theatre owners, concluded its three week session last night at midnight.

"The committee, which is composed of motion picture exhibitors and distributors, was gratified because certain difficulties which seemed at times insurmountable were finally overcome. A complete agreement was reached on all points, including the rules of arbitration. The only matter which had to be put over to the next meeting of the committee, which is scheduled for June, was a new problem relating to a plan of devising ways and means of enabling state exhibitor organizations, from which are drawn the exhibitor arbitrators, to function properly in their various endeavors in the general interests of the industry. Last year by the cooperation of exhibitor and distributor arbitrators almost twelve thousand cases were disposed of by arbitration.

"The new contract is believed to be a vast improvement over its predecessor, giving promise of doing away with many sources of discontent in the moving picture business. It is patterned along the lines agreed upon at the Motion Picture Trade Practice conference held last fall in New York City, and will be put into use next May.

"So many complicated matters are to be handled under the terms of the new contract that the negotiators have arranged at an early date to publish the document with complete explanations of its various clauses and broadcast it in booklet form to the entire industry that there may be a clear understanding of its provisions."

Statement by Woodhull

In discussing the new Exhibitor Contract just agreed upon at Chicago, National President R. F. Woodhull of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, made the following statement:

"In my capacity as Chairman without voice or vote on the meetings of the Contract Committee which concluded its present work at Chicago last night, I had a splendid opportunity to observe the earnestness with which the Exhibitor Group approached its task of conserving the interest of the theatre owners.

"Some years ago when the tariff was a much mooted question a statesman observed, much to the amusement of the press and the public at that time, that in his opinion the tariff was a local issue, meaning that the representatives from the lumber districts desired a high tariff placed on lumber and were not much interested in copper, while the representatives from the copper sections were particularly desirous of having copper protected by tariff and were not much concerned regarding lumber. This illustration is offered because it was apparent to me after the Contract Conference was well under way that this was a subject that in many of its relations might well be called a local issue. It was discovered that the wording of a clause that would suit one section of the country would not suit conditions in another and that in many instances a provision in the contract that solved the difficulties of a large metropolitan center did not fit the situations of a smaller community. This of course made it most difficult to provide a definite set of rules for contractual relations that would be nation-wide in scope.

Deliberated 14 Days

"Fourteen long-houred days were devoted by the members of the Committee, earnestly and sincerely deliberating with this objective in view. The result will be made public shortly and it is to be hoped that the elements of both sides of the question will appreciate the endeavors of those representing them and view the new contract as a result of a conscientious desire to meet all conditions.

"The Contract Committee as provided by the Resolution which gave it birth is a continuing Committee and will meet at such future times as it is discovered is necessary. It was a long and difficult task and I believe it is deserving of appreciation and fair consideration."

Warners Are Releasing Many Films in Spring

DURING the spring months Warner Bros. are planning to release some of their best product. As announced by Albert Warner, vice-president, the Warner 1927-28 program was finished in December, and the company has reserved some of its important attractions for release during March, April and May.

Features that will be delivered during that time include "Powder My Back," an Irene Rich vehicle; "Domestic Troubles," a Clyde Cooke-Louise Fazenda co-starring film; and "Rinty of the Desert," a Rin-Tin-Tin picture. Other stories that will make their appearance during the spring are "Five-and-Tent-Cent Annie" and "Pay as You Enter," two more Cooke-Fazenda vehicles, and "The Crimson City," which has Myrna Loy and John Miljan as the leads.

The foregoing pictures have all been cut, edited and synchronized with Vitaphone orchestrations.

"Dove" Liberally Cut by Ontario Censors

WHAT the Ontario Board of Moving Picture Censors did to "The Dove" was plentiful. It had been intended to present this production in the Regent theatre, Toronto, as a road show starting February 20, but after the film came back from the consors' office "The Dove" was so thoroughly plucked, it is stated, that it could not be offered to the public.

The Canadian premiere of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was therefore advanced to the February date at the Regent and is being presented twice daily at prices up to $1.50 for an unlimited period.

Buffalo Employees Form Association

The Motion Picture Association of Buffalo was organized last week at a meeting of salesmen, office managers and bookers. The purpose of the body is for the promotion of true co-operative spirit and understanding in the industry. In addition to the benefits which accrue to members during disability from sickness or other causes, there will be introduced and developed such projects as may from time to time be desirable for the mutual benefit of the members.

At the opening meeting the following were elected: President G. Emerson Dickman, Fox; Vice-president, Otto Siegel, Universl; Secretary-treasurer, F. Ray Powers, First National. The election of twelve directors will be held March 5th. Any regular employee of a motion picture company who is actively at work will be elegible to membership in the organization.

New Theatre Project in Philadelphia

DETAILED plans for the construction of a municipal theatre in Philadelphia, which it is said have rceived assurance of cooperation of the Stanley Company of America and the Theatre Managers Association of Philadelphia, have been presented to Mayor Mackey and City Councils. The project calls for the construction of an $800,000 theatre on the city-owned plot on Pennsylvania Boulevard at Market and 23d streets, now occupied by gas tanks, which the United Gas Improvement Co. has agreed to remove provided the city consents to the theatre venture. The top price undr the proposed plan would be $1.00, with no free seats or privileged seat holders.

Soviet Interest Brings Russian Film Boom

Will Drop Propaganda Pictures and Devote Production Activities to Straight Features

By HEINRICH FRAENKEL

Berlin Correspondent, Motion Picture News

THE Soviet authorities have just decided to hold an important all-Russian film conference in Moscow the middle of March. I understand from reliable sources that this conference will mark the beginning of a considerable boom in Russian film production.

It is a well known fact that, as far as the Russian film industry is concerned, no scope has been or will be left to private initiative, the whole matter having been strongly taken in hand by the Soviet authorities.

While in recent years most Russian productions—some of them showing considerable artistic and technical standard—were obviously meant to promote political ends rather than entertainment, the authorities now seem to have changed their moving picture policy altogether. I have just had an opportunity of seeing a rather complete line-up of recent Russian productions, hardly any of which shows political tendencies, such as the famous "Potemkin" picture and several other earlier Russian productions. The new pictures are almost all of them of the comedy feature type, with very simple and straight stories from the everyday life of modern Russia.

The most outstanding personality in Russian films is doubtless the Soviet executive Lunatscharskij, who has been responsible for almost every Soviet initiative in the film business as well as for the decision to increase Russian film activity to a considerable extent in the course of this year.

By the way, Lunatscharskij's wife is just going in for film work, being starred in one of the many German-Russian production tie-ups started of late.

One of the most important of these tie-ups is the recently founded Derufa, a German company with considerable production interests in Russia, and with a big American distributing program of Russian productions.

The most recent German-Russian deal was only being completed last week between National Film A. G., a well known German concern, and "Wufku," the film organization of the Ukrainian Soviet authorities. This deal also provides for joined productions as well as for the handling in Germany of a considerable number of Russian features.

As a matter of fact, the German trade is quite right to take a very considerable interest in the development of the Russian film business. For the time being, of course, Russia is more interesting as a producer than as a market. There will, however, most decidedly be a time not very far distant when the Russian market, with more cinemas and better exploitation possibilities, will be a highly important factor in amortizing European as well as American film productions. It is only a question of time when European and American film producers will be in a position to do a considerable volume of business on the Russian market.

Albany Strand Premier to be Important Event

COL. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH will be the guest of honor at the Mark Strand in Albany, N. Y. on February 29, at a showing of the aviation picture, "Twenty-five Years in the Air." The screening will take place at 11:30 A. M., February 29, before what will probably be the largest assemblage of federal and state officers in the history of the state. It will be the premiere presentation of the picture, and after its initial showing in Albany, it will be returned to the archives of the War Repartment at Washington, Credit for the showing of the picture at the Mark Strand in connection with Colonel Lindbergh's visit in Albany, where he is scheduled to speak before the aviation committee of the New York State Legislature, belongs to Uly S. Hill, managing director of the theatre, and who has been working for over two months on the proposition.

The audience that will view the picture will consists not only of "Lindy" but also Trubee Division, Assistant Secretary of War; Governor Alfred E. Smith, state officers and members of the Legislature, and government officials from the War Department.

Carolina Houses to Open Under Receiver's Control

On Monday, February 13, the Continental Trust Company of Charlotte, N. C., was appointed as receiver for the Carolina Theatres, Inc. However, Phelps Saseen, booking manager for the receiver, has announced that the Concord Theatre at Concord, the Lexington Theatre at Lexington and the Rivoli Theatre at Lincolnton, would open on February 14 under the control of the receiver.

The Carolina Theatre at West Asheville, will open Saturday, February 18.

Paramount to Film Tully's "Beggars of Life"

The screen rights to his story, "Beggars of Life," and to his play, "Outside Looking In," have been sold to Paramount by Jim Tully, ex-hobo and now a famous author. The book and the play will be combined into a picture which William Wellman will direct and for which Richard Arlen and Louise Brooks have tentatively been chosen for the leading roles.

Benjamin Glazer has been assigned the adaptation and Tully's contract provides that he assist in an advisory capacity in the filming of the work is expected to start within a month.

Leo, M-G-M Lion, to Tour United States

Leo, the trade-mark of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company, will leave California in the near future and make a tour of the theatres of the country. Then, if present plans are carried out, he will be shipped to Europe to visit theatres there. He will make his tour in a motor-driven circus cage, and will be accompanied by a trainer.

Directors of Paramount Declare Dividend

At a meeting held last Tuesday, February 14, the Board of Directors of Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2.00 per share on the common stock, payable April 2nd, 1928, to stockholders of record at the close of business on March 15th, 1928. The books will not close.

Sax Announces First of New Gotham Films

THE first six pictures of the 1928-29 Gotham production schedule of 26 features and four specials upon which Sam Sax, Gotham president, has been at work for some time, have been made public by Mr. Sax.

The first special, George Jessel in "Abie of the U. S. A.," has already been announced. The other five future offerings will be "The Woman Between," a story by John Paul Dagget; "The Bright Aisle," a Broadway romance by Kenneth James; "Gypsy Love," an original by Ivor Buckani, the tile of which is tentative; "The Uncensored Woman," the work of Laura K. Breckweth, and "Island Madness," a tale of a tropical isle by Wadsworth Bale.

Mr. Sax plans to place several units in work at once.

6 Indictments Against Movie Case Defendants

IN the six indictments returned by the grand jury against John G. Callan, Charles F. Mules and Walter Stierhoff in the Sunday movie test case which will soon come up before the Baltimore court, 21 counts are included. Callan, president of the Liberty Defense League, is accused in three; Mules, vicepresident of the League, is accused in two; and Stierhoff, projection machine operator, is accused in one.

Paul Boyd Mules, attorney for the defendants, filed a demurrer to one of the indictments against Callan in the Criminal Court last Wednesday in which it was claimed that the first count of the indictment and the second count of the indictment are not sufficient in law. This related to the wording reading that Callan violated the law by keeping open on Sunday a certain opera house, and that it was not applicable to a picture house in view of the legality of strictly controlling criminal statutes. Mr. Mules argued that a motion picture parlor is not an opera house within the meaning of the statute. The demurrer was overruled.

Vonceil Viking Given Big Reception at "U" City

Vonceil Viking, the girl rider who left New York City, October 13, to traverse the continent on horseback exploiting Universal westerns starring Ted Wells, arrived in Los Angeles last Friday, February 10, after having completed her record trip inside of 120 days, just as she said she would. The following day she received what is said to be the greatest ovation ever extended anyone at Universal City when she was met by Carl Laemmle and the entire personnel of the Universal studio.

Miss Viking encountered all sorts of obstacles during her journey over 16 states; she had several accidents and at times was seriously ill. She has been signed to a Universal contract to be the female lead in the Wells westerns. She will rest for several weeks, however, before beginning her picture career.

Lloyd's "Speedy" Reaches Titling Stage

After establishing what is believed to be a new record for production, Harold Lloyd has placed the celluloid strip of his latest Paramount production, "Speedy," into the hands of his cutters and editors. To fulfill his promise that he would have the production ready by Easter, the comedian put in an unprecedented stretch of work, both day and night being occupied in applying the finishing touches to the new comedy. In all, Lloyd has put in seven months of hard work in his latest work.

G. H. Earle, Jr., Stanley Stockholder, Dead

George H. Earle, Jr., nationally known financier and lawyer, one of the largest stockholders in the Stanley Company of America and a member of the board of directors, died at 8 o'clock on Sunday morning, February 19th, after an illness of several months. He was 71 years old.

Exhibitor Co-Operation Under Way in N. Y.

Aaron Sapiro Holds Enthusiastic Meeting With Independent Owners on Buying Plan

THE Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, Inc., now in the final stages of organization by Aaron Sapiro, will be ready to start functioning in earnest within the next ten days, according to information at hand. Sapiro organized the group with the idea of bringing together a minimum of $2,500,000 of buying power among independent circuits in New York. Instead of that he assembled an exhibitor co-operative movement with $4,000,000 buying power a year.

A number of independent companies have already signed contracts to enter into the cooperative association and others are said to be ready to affix their signatures. Sapiro has not yet signed any contracts but is expected to place his name shortly to an agreement to head the new Motion Picture Exhibitors Association, Inc., of New York. This is the result of a meeting held at the Plaza last Saturday, at which time Siparo addressed the members of the new organization and those who expressed a desire to become members but have not yet done so.

At this meeting Saturday there were present the organizing committee of 11 representing as many affiliated theatre circuits which control 150 of the Greater New York movie houses. In addition there were present representatives of almost every independent theatre circuit in the state. Sapiro explained his conception of the benefits that would result to the independent chains from a properly functioning exhibitor organization.

The meeting was a most enthusiastic one and the plans as outlined by Sapiro were unanimously approved by those in attendance. Keynote speeches were also made by Harry Suchman, Leo Brecher, Bill Brandt and J. Arthur Hirsch, each going at length into a different phase of the plan.

While Sapiro first insisted that there must be assembled in the organization buying power to the amount of $2,500,000 annually, there was enough enthusiasm over the project at the Saturday meeting to assure well over that figure, and it is said that contracts will be signed shortly that will bring the total well over $4,000,000. The matter of the actual signing of the contracts is under way this week.

Herbert R. Ebenstein, long identified with theatre insurance in Greater New York, is now revealed as the sponsor of the new organization. He conceived the idea and approached a number of leading exhibitors regarding it. He then enlisted the interest of Sapiro, who plunged into the matter of organization most enthusiastically. Ebenstein then devoted his time between the exhibitor organization committee and Sapiro. The plan has been progressing at a rapid pace for the last few weeks and promises some more decisive action in the immediate future.

New Zealand Bill Aims to Establish Quota

A BILL has been introduced in the New Zealand Parliament for regulating the renting and exhibiting of cinematograph films, fixing a quota of British and foreign films, and imposing a tax on rental charges, according to a report from Consul General W. L. Lowrie, Wellington, to the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C.

Under this bill film renters are to be licensed from January 1, 1929. In 1929 renters must acquire at least 7½ per cent of New Zealand and British films and this quota will be increased annually until 1936. Beginning January 1, 1929, exhibitors are to show at least five per cent of New Zealand and British films and this quota will be increased annually until 1937. Provision is made for a tax on gross rental receipts of five per cent in the case of New Zealand films, 7½ per cent for British films, and 12½ per cent for foreign films. It is not expected that this will pass at the present session of Parliament but will be actively pushed at the session next year.

First National Sales Meets Will Prepare for Drive

Sales meetings at all 39 exchanges of First National have been called for Saturday, Feb. 25th, by Ned E. Depinet, the company's general sales manager. At these meetings plans will be formulated for the successful carrying out of the First National annual clean-up drive. This is a two-months' campaign to close all unsold spots on past and current releases.

The drive will come to a close on April 20th and a list of suitable prizes for the winning branch managers and salesmen is now being worked out.

Branch quotas are being worked out and will be in the hands of the branch managers in advance of the sales meetings.

Universal's Philbin-Kerry Special Set for March

"Love Me and the World Is Mine," the special production made by E. A. Dupont for Universal with Mary Philbin and Norman Kerry in the leads, is to be released on March 4. The picture is an adaptation from an original story by Rudolph Hans Barsch. Supporting roles are contributed by Betty Compson, H. B. Walthall, George Siegmann and others.

Bebe Daniels Recovering From Injuries

Bebe Daniels is recovering from the effects of her recent accident and is now reported as being safely on the road to good health. For the past few days she has been confined to the Hollywood hospital suffering from injuries while filming her new picture.

Text of the Pettijohn Brief

This section is devoted entirely to a description of the interstate commerce and as this question has been definitely decided by the decisions of the Binderup case, the Connecticut tax law case and Fox vs. Federal Trade Commission, it is of little importance except for its phraseology. A comparison shows that this section has been copied almost verbatim from paragraphs 2 and 3 of the findings as to the facts filed by the Federal Trade Commissino in its recent case against Famous Players-Lasky Corp., et al., Docket 835, except that there has been added the statement that films are copyrighted.

Page 4, Line 23. The positive films being then covered by copyright are distributed by distributors to exhibitors in the several States.

There was no such allegation in either the commission's original complaint or findings, otherwise they are practically identical.

Section 3. A continuous supply of attractive motion-picture subjects is essential to the successful conduct of a film exchange or motion-picture theatre. Certain producers and distributors who by means of direct ownership or through total or partial stock control, leases, operating agreements, or otherwise are also exhibitors enjoy a controlling advantage over distributors and exhibitors who are not so affiliated. Such controlling advantage is theirs by virtue of controlling the production as well as the distribution and exhibition of films. Their control of production and distribution has resulted in conditions that have made it necessary for many exhibitors to affiliate with the producers and distributors in order to obtain an adequate supply of suitable motion-picture subjects, such affiliations being established by means of giving to a producer or distributor control of such exhibitor's theatre or theatres through total or partial stock control, leases, operating agreements, or otherwise, or by former exhibitors acquiring a substantial interest or control in a producer or distributor. As a result of this condition, theatres controlled by or affiliated with one distributor are in many cases operated by another distributor. There is an increasing number of cases of control of a theatre or group of theatres by two or more distributors. Such common, interlocking interest and control by one distributor in the theatres of another distributor results in restricting the supply of suitable copyrighted motion-picture films obtainable by exhibitors who are not so affiliated with a producer or distributor. The continually increasing control of motion picture theatres by producers and distributors results in restricting the number of motion-picture theatres in which may be exhibited the film productions of producers and distributors not affiliated with motion-picture theatres.

Certain practices have grown up in the the distribution of films the continuance of which tends to increase the restrictions above described and threatens to create a monopoly in the business of production, distributing, and exhibiting copyrighted motion pictures. These pictures consist of (a) blind booking and block booking (b) unfair discrimination in the allocation of product in favor of exhibitors affiliated with producers and distributors and to the prejudice of exhibitors not affiliated.

Blind booking and block booking is the system of booking films whereby the exhibitor is denied the right to view the product he is to lease and to select such part thereof as he deems suitable to the tastes of his public, but is required to lease all of the product of a given distributor offered for release during a given period long in advance of the time when the product is to be delivered and often before the making of such product has been commenced. The system of "blind booking" and "block booking" makes it incumbent upon an exhibitor to lease films which are not suitable for his needs and which he does not want in order to obtain films which from the descriptive matter he concludes his patrons will demand and which he must have in the successful conduct of his business. This system of blind and block booking of films requires the exhibitor to show films of poor quality or to suffer the loss of the rental on such films, and precludes the small producer having only a few films a year or any other producer or distributor having no theatre affiliations, from competing with the producers and distributors because the latter by block booking successfully monopolizes the playing dates of the exhibitors.

This practice of blind and block booking is frequently waived for the benefit of theatres affiliated with producers and distributors.

By the practice of arbitrary allocation of produce theatres affiliated with producers and distributors are arbitrarily given the hoice of product without affording the unaffiliated exhibitor competing with such controlled or affiliated theatre the opportunity to bid or compete for such choice product.

This section describes certain alleged conditions and practices in the industry and declares that the practices of blind booking, block booking and unfair discrimination in selling affiliated and chain theatres, in preference to independent theatres, threatens to create a monopoly in the industry. These allegations form the base on which the bill is constructed as the following sections are intended to correct these alleged evils. They are nothing more than self-serving declarations and assumptions made by the author of the bill, without any foundation or justification in fact. If these assertions, allegations and assumptions be true in fact, they are matters which should be brought to the attention of the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission for prosecution under the anti-trust laws, the provisions of which are ample to correct any such evil.

The Federal Trade Commission, after an extensive investigation, issued an order against block booking but before attempting to enforce such order, very properly endeavored in co-operation with representatives of the whole industry, at a Trade Practice Conference, to find a sales system to substitute for block booking and at such conference, members of the industry agreed on certain modifications which, when put into effect, will entirely eliminate any possibility of evil in any of the practices heretofore indulged in. The Department of Justice, as is well known, is making a comprehensive investigation of the industry, so there seems to be little or no need of this legislation. The real reason why these declarations and assumptions have been injected here into this bill is that its author seeks thereby to justify the radical and drastic provisions of the sections which follow. These provisions, as will be seen later, discriminate illegally against members of this industry, by deproiving them of the rights enjoyed by all other manufacturing and distributing concerns in the country. In order to do this and thereby circumvent the well settled economic laws and court decisions, it is sought to make an exception of this industry by these allegations and declarations of theatened monopoly.

Section 4. Six months after the date of this Act it shall be unlawful for any producer or distributor of copyrighted motion-picture films in the current or interstate commerce to lease or offer for lease for exhibition in any theatre or threatres copyrighted motion picture films in a block or group of two or more films at a designated lump-sum price for the entire block or group only and to require the exhibitor to lease all such films or permit him to lease none; or to lease or offer for lease for exhibition such motion picture films in a block or group of two or more at a designated lump-sum price for the entire block or group and at separate and several prices for separate and several films, or for a number or numbers thereof less than the total number, which total or lump-sum price and separate and several prices shall bear to each other such relation as to operate as an unreasonable restraint upon the freedam of an exhibitor to select and lease for use and exhibition only such film or films of such block or group as he may desire and prefer to procure for exhibition, or shall bear such relation to each other as to tend to require an exhibitor to lease such an entire block or group or forego the lease of any portion or portions thereof, or shall bear such relation to each other that the effect of such proposed contract for the lease of such films may be substantially to lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in any part of the certain line of commerce among the several States, to wit, the business of production, distribution and exhibition of motion-picture films.

This section is an identical copy of paragraph 2 of the Order To Cease and Desist entered July 9, 1927, by the Federal Trade Commission in its proceedings against Famous Players-Lasky Corp. et al., Docket 835, except that the word "copyrighted" has been inserted before the words "motion pictur efilms" (line 8).

The effect of this section, the enforcement of which is vested in the Federal Trade Commission by the provisions of Section 7 would be to deprive exhibitors and distributors of the right to freely bargain and trade together and would eliminate all competition as to prices, as it gives the commission the power to fix the prices at which the pictures are to be sold. If this bill becomes a law, any one who is not satisfied with the prices being asked for pictures by any distributor may complain to the commission and it will then be incumbent upon it to investigate the matter, hold a full hearing and try out the question as to whether the prices complained of are reasonable or not, and as to whether or not such prices may substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monoply. Also these provisions (Sections 4 and 7):

Sec. 4. Six months after the date of this Act it shall be unlawful for any producer or distributor of copyrighted motion-picture films in the current of interstate commerce to lease or offer for lease for exhibition in any theatre or theatres copyrighted motion-picture films in a block or group of two or more films at a designated lump-sum price for the entire block or group only and to require the exhibitor to lease all such films or permit him to lease none; or to lease or offer for lease for exhibition such motion-picture films in a block or group of two or more at a designated lump-sum price for the entire block or group and at separate and several prices for separate and several films, or for a number or numbers thereof less than the total number, which total or lump sum price and separate and several prices shall bear to each other such relation as to operate as an unreasonable restraint upon the freedom of an exhibitor to select and lease for use and exhibition only such film or films of such block or group as he may desire and prefer to procure for exhibition, or shall bear such relation to each other as to tend to require an require an exhibitor to lease such an entire block or group or forego the lease of any portion or portions thereof, or shall bear such relation to each other that the effect of such proposed contract for the lease of such films may be to substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in any part of the certain line of commerce among the several States, to wit, the business of production, distribution and exhibition of motion-picture films.

Sec. 7. Administration of this Act is vested in the Federal Trade Commission, which is hereby authorized and empowered to make suitable rules and regulations for giving effect to the provisions hereof, including the power, after full hearing, to fix the differentials which may be observed between the price of a block or group of films and the price of a separate and several film or films less than such block or group as mentioned in Section 4 of this Act.

Also these provisions (Sections 4 and 7) give the commission "the power to fix the differentials which may be observed between the price of a block or group of films and the price of a separate or several film or films less than such block or group."

Section 7—Page 10—Lines 5-8

Section 7, Page 10, Lines 5—8—"to fix the differentials which may be observed between the price of a block or group of films and the price of a separate and several film or films less than such a block or group as mentioned in Section 4 of this Act.

This is price fixing pure and simple, and that it is impracticable and unworkable is self-evident to any one with knowledge of the industry. No two pictures are exactly alike. They are not comparable to other products, like, for example, shoes, hardware, lumber, iron, steel or coal. The value of pictures is not constant or static; but, on the contrary, is extremely variable and no commission can fix a fair and reasonable price for a picture which will apply to all exhibitors generally. A picture is worth more to one exhibitor than to another, and vice versa, according to the type and character of both the picture and the theatre. To illustrate: "Wings" is having a successful run on Broadway, but who can say what demand there will be for it in other sections of the country? Could any commission fix a "differential" for this picture? Other outstanding examples are to be found in the pictures formerly made featuring certain stars which at one time were in great demand and commanded large prices, but on account of unforeseen accident in the shore space of a few hours they became almost worthless in this country. Pictures by different stars, directors and authors vary according to their individual popularity. Also the theatres vary as to type, location, seating capacity, clientele, policy, presentation and desirability. No set rules, standards, or "differentials" can be made to apply to all pictures and all theatres. No quantity discounts for buying in large quantities can be formulated as may be done in the case of such products as iron, steel, coal, shoes, etc. You can safely contract to give buyers of shoes by carload lots a discount varying on the number of carloads bought. A pair of shoes is worth as much in Boston as in Dallas, Texas, but this cannot be said of such a picture as "Wings." A picture is shown in the Roxy theatre in New York, and also in the Circle theatre in Indianapolis. Both are first-run showings, in first-class, first-run downtown theatres; but the picture is worth more in New York than in Indianapolis. Inasmuch as no such fixed "differentials" could be fixed by the commission, it would necessarily follow that each case would have to be considered separately and decided according to the facts peculiar to each transaction. The effect of this would be ruinous to the industry. There are hundreds of thousands of picture contracts made each year, any of which, under the provisions of this bill, could be brought before the commission for review and determination. Such a procedure would require months of time and litigation, as will be developed later herein. Such delays would be fatal to the business. Pictures must move quickly as their advertising exploitation begin long before their release and their publicity value does not last long. They must be sold and exhibited quickly or there is a resulting loss. They cannot be carried on the shelf. Newness, novelty and publicity are the very essence of their value and such a procedure as is contemplated by this legislation would operate unfairly not only to the producers and distributors but to the exhibitors as well.

A further effect of these price fixing provisions would be to put the producer and/or distributor in the same category as public service corporation, while the Federal Trade Commission would occupy a position comparable to that of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the various state public utility commissions.

The legislative regulation through commission of public utilities finds its justification in the fact that they are quasi public corporations which enjoy the benefit of the exercise of the right of eminent domain and are, therefore, held properly subject to public regulation in the theory that they enjoy the benefits of quasi public status and should, therefore, bear the burdens of such status.

Producers and/or distributors of films, even though they be copyrighted, cannot be classed as public service corporations. There can be no distinction made between them and other manufacturers and wholesalers. The producer is a manufacturer; the distributor a wholesaler; the exhibitor a retailer, and the public, of course, is the consumer. Congress should not undertake to discriminate against this industry and seek to exercise control over it in this manner. There is no difference in the essentials and/or functions of this industry and other manufacturing industries. The only distinction that can be made is in the nature of the product and the necessary effect of this section would be to deprive the producers and distributors of their rights to choose their own customers as has been fully discussed heretofore.

If this industry be singled out for governmental regulation and reconstruction as is proposed in this bill, the next session of the Congress will find factionalists from many other industries asking for similar regulation. In effect, this would be the first step or entering wedge of regulation and reconstruction by the Government of all manufacturing industries.

The exhibitors who are opposed to block booking in buying pictures seem to desire to pick and choose where they please at their own price.

There is absolutely no mechanical differential price system under which this industry can live. The minute you fix the maximum that a picture can take in,—and that is exactly what this system would result in—you retard for all time the ambition and the reward that come with trying the unusual. You discourage the greatest thing back of the production end of this industry, and that is the incentive for larger grosses and larger returns which are necessary to bring to the screen such pictures as "The King of Kings," "Ben-Hur," "The Covered Wagon," "What Price Glory," "Robin Hood," "The Sea Beast," "The Patent Leather Kid," "Keeper of the Bees," "Hunchback of Notre Dame," etc. Right here is where the public becomes an interested party. Not only would the members of the industry lose all of the savings that they should be able to get from chain operation, but they would have a situation more chaotic and more costly than ever before presented in this business, and these fundamental facts certain people abosolutely refuse to see.

It must not be forgotten that in the past, when there were two or more theatres in competition, it often resulted in the exhibitors getting together and doing the price fixing themselves. The producer-distributor exhibitor corporations can cite many concrete examples where this has been done; that not only the maximum price was fixed, but the service was absolutely allocated, and an understanding existed as to which pictures a certain exhibitor would bid on and which he would leave alone. Such an unstable market as is proposed could not and would not last, and it would not be long before these unaffiliated exhibitors would want to tie-in competition with the circuit. Individual houses would turn right around and make agreements with a circuit house, with which they were in competition, in order to control the price of their film.

Not everybody who desires to be in the automobile business can have an agency for Rolls Royce not all of them can sell Packard cars or Cadillacs. After these agencies are sold the manufacturer has secured his outlet. It may be possible for them to buy a Chevrolet or Ford or some other agency.

By this token not every exhibitor can have United Artists, First National, Fox, etcetera, and just the same as there are varying degrees of quality in merchandise in other lines, so does the same thing exist in the selling of motion pictures. But on top of that, even if this condition was established and the better pictures were to be distributed among everybody who desires them, they still will want to pick and choose from these better pictures with a fixed differential in their own favor.

When a producer offers a block of pictures to an exhibitor and states that he wants a complete sale or none at all, the exhibitors can refuse to buy that way, if he does not desire to do so. Nobody argues sensibly any more that any one brand of pictures in this industry is necessary to an exhibitor. If he does not like the selling plan of, for example, Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corp., at the price quoted, he can buy some other brand of merchandise, and there are too many successful brands on the market today to any longer dispute the old idea that an exhibitor had to have certain pictures in order to live.

The industry has at the present time a serious over-production situation. There are many more pictures being made than the country can consume. This is the situation that the exhibitor knows exists and is at the present time taking advantage of. When the prices get too high, he changes his source of supply; when the quality is not right, he does the same thing.

All of these considerations are very pertinent to the man who is making and selling motion pictures. There are many exhibitors that producers purposely lose as customers because of the type of exploitation management they represent. It is not true that the producers always sell to the highest bidder. It would not be healthy if they did.

This industry has prospered and grows as rapidly as that of any other industry that has come to our attention. Up to only five years ago, practically no money from the public was taken in by producers from the theatre end of the business. The industry had expanded and it had been built out of profits. The entire basis of this prosperity and this growth was the same block-booking or wholesaling plan by which exhibitors purchased their pictures, the same as they would buy one thousand suits of clothes from Hart, Schafner & Max, with confidence in the manufacturer as a great asset.

There are many exhibitors who have "picked pictures and gone broke." The man who asserts he can always tell what his audience wants is nothing short of foolish.

The wisest men in this country, with years of experience and millions involved, have gone wrong and repeatedly gone wrong in trying to guess what the public requires. The individual who sets himself up as such a judge is automatically making the claim that he personally possesses a greater knowledge or insight into the public taste than all the combined brains of the industry, who are constantly striving to figure out what the public wants.

Unlawful Restrictions Charged

True, some have guessed where, for instance, western pictures are not going at all—and made other guesses where certain types of pictures do not go over, but in the main, no exhibitor has been able to successfully guess the tastes of the audience, and do it consistently.

Big exhibitor ventures have been made on the basis of tying up with the output of reputable manufacturers, who made quality productions on the one hand, as against those exhibitors who have made just as much money by running an entirely different kind of business, who use a cheaper grade of pictures, under a different policy, and who have progressed just as satisfactorily.

Section 5—Page 9—Lines 9-18

Section 5. After eighteen months from the date of this Act it shall be unlawful for any producer or distributor of motion-picture films, in the current of interstate commerce, to make or enter into any contract, agreement, or arrangement for the leasing of any film or films for exhibition to the public, unless such copyrighted film or films have been completed and are available for immediate release and without first affording the exhibitor desiring to lease such film or films an opportunity to view a projection of such film or films upon a screen if he so desires.

The provisions of this section would make it unlawful for a producer and/or distributor to make and/or contract for the sale of copyrighted films unless the same have been completed and are available for immediate release and to refuse exhibitors a preview. Here again is an extraordinary discrimination against this industry. In no other line of commerce is the manufacturer prohibited from making sales for the future delivery of his product. The United States Steel Co. conducts its business almost entirely on orders for future delivery. Henry Ford is now and has been for years doing business on contracts for future deliveries. Such a prohibition would work an unreasonable hardship on the producer, distributor and exhibitor. Practically all producers, to some extent, finance their operations on the credit derived from future contracts and to many of the smaller ones this is the only means of obtaining credit available to them and it would be an unfair discrimination against them, unjustified by any precedent of either law or fact. As has been heretofore pointed out pictures must move rapidly as the advertising campaigns have to start long before the completion of the pictures and reach their climax on the release dates. The effect of this section would be to slow down the whole course of the business and compel the producers and distributors to carry films, representing investments of millions of dollars (frozen capiatl), idle on their shelves for months. This would be ruinous to the smaller concerns as they have neither the capital nor credit to carry such a load. The effect upon the exhibitor would be equally as unfair, because he would have no means of contracting for his supply of pictures in advance. Exhibitors want to be assured long in advance of their supply, so they can arrange their programs and publicity matter accordingly. In the fall of 1923, Paramount tried to initiate such a sales system as is required by this section, but found the trade unwilling to accept it. The exhibitors wanted to book wholesale and in blocks. After a few weeks' trial, with a resulting loss of over a million dollars, Paramount was forced to abandon it and returned to the present system.

The provisions of this section would absolutely abolish the news reels. They constitute a prompt news service, similar in function to the daily newspapers. From their very nature they cannot be exhibited in advance of their sale any more than could a newspaper be similarly previewed.

News reels service is sold by the year 104 issues for release—two each week. The prices run from $2 to $10 per theatre per issue. To attempt to sell each issue separately would be impossible. To prohibit the sale of this news service by the year would make it mechanically and physically impossible for any of the six news reels to exist.

Section 6. After six months from the date of this Act it shall be unlawful for any producer or distributor to allocate, lease, or rent copyrighted films to theatres which are affiliated directly or indirectly with such producer or distributor or with any other producer or distributor without affording all competing exhibitors an equal opportunity to bid for such films in free and open competition.

This is the most extraordinary section of this extraordinary bill. It would make it unlawful for any producer and/or distributor to sell copyrighted film to theatres affiliated with any producer or distributor without affording all competing exhibitors an equal opportunity to bid for such film. Such a law would deprive producers and distributors of their right to choose their own customers. Today there are affiliated theartes in all the key cities of the country and also in most of the other large cities and towns, and a producer desiring to sell to affiliated houses would have to put his pictures up at auction in the most important cities and stand by and see them knocked down to the highest bidder without regard to the character of the theatre operated by him. The producer would have no assurance of a first class, first-run showing of his pictures in the key cities, which is a matter of the first importance. The producer would lose all control of his product and would be deprived of the right to retail his own pictures. There is and can be no law making it illegal for a manufacturer to market his own product. The whole economic trend of the day is toward the sales system, as evidenced by the rapid growth of the chain store movement. If this proposed sales system was to be enforced in other industries it would, for example, compel the United Cigar Co. to offer its product at auction and would prevent it from operating its retail stores. A further effect on producers would be to require them to offer their own pictures to their competitors. No court would sustain such a law.

First National Pictures, Inc., has something in the neighborhood of 1,000 contracts with exhibitors over the country which are of indefinite duration and by the terms of which the rentals are fixed and determined by the agreements and provisions of such contracts. These contracts constitute a valuable property right, both to the producer and the exhibitor. If enacted this section would abrogate these contracts and deprive these exhibitors of this valuable right. Other producers have also made long-term contracts with exhibitors which would be similarly effected.

It is a common practice to rent motion pictures for exhibition on a percentage basis with the receipts of the theater divided between distributor and exhibitor on an agreed percentage basis. This is recognized as a fair and equitable sales system. The enactment of this bill would abolish the renting of picture on such basis.

The strongest argument against the blind booking-auction block feature of the Brookhart bill is that although it is seriously embarrassing to the producer, distributor, exhibitor corporation, it works worse hardships on the very exhibitors supporting this bill. If the provision for sale to the highest bidder is efficacious, then the producer-distributor who has invested enormous sums in the highest class motion pictures has no assurance for the supply of his theatre. If it is not efficacious (and it is difficult to see how it can be since the affiliated theatre could bid exaggerated sums for pictures as long as it was paying them to its subsidiary or to the company which owns it), then the unaffiliated theatre would be the one hit since it would have no assurance whatever of product.

This feature would also destroy the present system under which a theatre builds up its patronage in establishing good will in the minds of its customers between a certain line of pictures or certain stars. If Colleen Moore's, for instance, should be offered separately at auction, no theatre would care to build up a Colleen Moore following. A box-office in a particular theatre sometimes thrives in proportion to the fan following which has been built up for the stars exhibited in that theatre. It would be difficult for a star to capitalize on his or her popularity, if the pictures featuring that star are to be shunted from one theatre to another.

The selling by a producer to chain theatres in preference to an unaffiliated theatre in many cases, is merely the reflection of the economical factor both as to safety and outlet, and the lesser cost of selling that goes with a chain sale. It is much cheaper to sell 100 houses of a circuit, or 50, than to negotiate for that number of separate contracts. Furthermore, each circuit, having a tremendous investment, has a greater appreciation of a tie-in with a quality producer than an individual that uses one brand of pictures this year and may go elsewhere next year.

There is an imperative need for distribution costs in this industry to come down and as chain operation becomes more and more in vogue (as it has in every other line of business), reduction of sales costs must go hand in hand with it. For producers to be deprived of the right to sell the chain and offer in each separate locality the pictures to the highest bidder, as against the chain-owner would mean that it would be impossible to sell to a chain of theatres with any degree of safety, and even the producer who desires to own his own theatres, would find himself in a position where he would not be sure of his own product for his own houses.

The intent and purpose of this section is to prevent the producers and distributors from selling to chain theatres on better terms than they do to the unaffiliated theatres. This question has also been litigated in the Federal Courts in other industries, and it has been definitely decided that a manufacturer may sell to chain stores on better terms than independent stores and having the right to choose the customer, may refuse to sell independent stores who are competitors of the chain stores. These cases arose from attempts by the Federal Trade Commission to compel manufacturers to recognize independent stores as against their customer, the chain stores; but the courts refused to sustain the Commission's orders. One of the leading cases is National Biscuit Co. vs. Federal Trade Commission.

Section 7. Administration of this Act is vested in the Federal Trade Commission, which is hereby authorized and empowered to make suitable rules and regulations for giving effect to the provisions hereof, including the power, after full hearing, to fix the differentials which may be observed between the price of a block or group of films and the price of a separate and several film or films less than such block or group as mentioned in Section 4 of this Act.

This section gives to the Federal Trade Commission the power to enforce the bill and to make rules and regulations for giving effect to its provisions including the power, after full hearing, to fix the price differentials. The most remarkable feature of this section is that it makes no provision for an appeal from any decision, rule, regulation or order entered by the Commission. The broad and unlimited powers granted by this proposed act would put the motion picture industry absolutely under the control of this Commission with no right of appeal

Trade Commission Action Soon

Will Either Decide To Go Ahead With Paramount Case in Courts or Accept Concessions, Says Myers

ACTION by the Federal Trade Commission on block booking may be expected within two weeks, according to a statement made in Washington February 18 by Abram F. Myers, Commissioner, who conducted the Trade Practice Conference in New York in October.

The Trade Commission will either decide to go ahead with the case, seeking an order to require Paramount to cease block booking as "unfair practice," or it will decide the concessions offered in New York by the producers are sufficient, and the requirements of the law satisfied, Commissioner Myers indicated.

Mr. Myers is preparing to submit a report on the Trade Practice Conference.

Meanwhile, the definite date for the hearing on the Brookhart Bill before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee is still uncertain. Senator Brookhart indicated this week that the sessions would start after the completion of hearings in the case of Interstate Commerce Commissioner John J. Esch, which began February 18.

The Parent-Teachers Association of Cleveland has endorsed the Brookhart Bill. This endorsement followed a campaign planned and executed by Mrs. Percy Essick, chairman of the motion picture committee of the association. Mrs. Essick is the wife of Percy Essick of the Scoville, Essick and Reiff Circuit.

The Cleveland Exhibitors Association, which is conducting an aggressive campaign in favor of the Bill, has appointed George W. Erdmann, secretary of the organization, and M. B. Horwitz, general manager of the Washington circuit, as delegates to attend the Brookhart hearing in Washington. Both Erdmann and Horwitz will speak in behalf of the measure before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, urging adoption of the measure.

The Northwest Theatre Owners Association, with headquarters in Minneapolis, is distributing trailers and block one-sheets urging the public to write their senators to work for the passage of the Brookhart Bill. The material gives the exhibitors' reasons for wishing the bill to become law and tells the public that it would mean better pictures. President W. A. Steffes, of the association, says that excellent results are being obtained through use of this material.

In an editorial printed in all the Hearst newspapers, the Brookhart Bill is opposed as an "ill considered proposal based on ignorance of the motion picture industry." The editorial says:

"The motion picture industry is not ripe for government regulation, as provided in the Brookhart Bill before the Senate.

"There is no monopoly and no danger of monopoly in the production, distribution or exhibition of pictures. It is throughout a highly competitive business, which threatens the public with no extortions.

"Moreover, it is a fast developing business, which needs to be free of the shackles of government supervision.

"The Brookhart Bill, to meet alleged abuses in the trade, prohibits 'block booking' and 'blind booking.'

"It forbids producers showing pictures first in their own theatres. Each picture in each town must be auctioned off to the highest bidder.

"The bill directs the Federal Trade Commission to decide disputes as to prices, etc., and (Section eight) it forbids anybody in the industry to violate any regulation made by the Federal Trade Commission.

"No competitive industry in the United States is subject to any such drastic regulation by the Federal power. The American theory of government is for government to keep its hands off except in cases where competition fails to protect the public.

"In this case complaint is not made on behalf of the public, but on behalf of certain 'independent' exhibitors.

"It is claimed that 'block booking,' whole sale purchase of a run of pictures, binds the exhibitor to buy inferior stuff in order to get the big hit. Any abuse in this direction is being eliminated by the industry itself. 'Block booking' enables the theatre to a court for a review. This Commission is not a judicial body, but an administrative body, and the enactment of this bill would deprive this industry of the right to have these important questions of law and equity determined by a court. The Federal Trade Commission Act has an express provision for an appeal as of right to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals from any order of the Commission and similarly orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission may be reviewed by the Federal court. This legislation is the most drastic of any of the so-called commission laws yet proposed.

As has been pointed out heretofore, the effect of this Bill would be to bring thousands of price disputes before this commission for determination. This would involve an enormous amount of litigation at a cost of much time and money. Each case would have to be investigated, a complaint prepared and a copy served upon the respondent who, under the present rules of the Commission, would have thirty days to answer. The issues being thus joined, the matter would be referred to a trial examiner before whom the testimony would be taken. This would necessitate much traveling over the country and the subpoenaing of many witnesses from distant localities. At the conclusion of the evidence the examiner would have thirty days in which to prepare and file his report, after which counsel for the Commission and the respondent, would file their exceptions to the same and their briefs and then the matter would come on for argument before the Commission and final determination. The length of time taken by the Commission in determining the cases before it, is notorious. The important cases take years and even the smallest cases take months. An examination of the records would show that in the last five years seldom, if ever, has a contested case been finally disposed of in less than a year from the time it was first brought to the attention of the Commission. Such a procedure would be fatal to both exhibitors and producers. In order to speed up the procedure, it would be necessary for the Congress to make a very substantial increase in the Commission's annual appropriation as the personnel of the Commission and staff would have to be greatly increased. In order to handle the large volume of new cases which would accrue from the passage of this bill, the number of Commissioners would have to be increased, also more investigators, trial examiners and trial counsellors, would have to be employed and provision made for increased expenses, such as travel, mileage and fees for witnesses, stenographic expenses, etc. That this increased personnel would be necessary, is readily seen from an examination of the Commission's Annual Report for the Fiscal Year ended June 30, 1927, which was filed with the Congress last December. On page 104 of this report are found tables summarizing the work of the Commission. Table 3 shows that during the last five years the Commission, after investigations, docketed a total of 568 complaints or contested cases. This is an average of 113 a year. During the same period 686 cases were finally determined and disposed of, being an average of 138 a year. It will thus be seen that an increase of only several thousand cases a year would overwhelm the organization as now constituted. There are arbitrated or conciliated in the motion picture business approximately 10,000 disputes each year between buyers and sellers of film and between 4,000 and 5,000 of these disputes are actually heard and determined each year by the 32 arbitration boards in the United States. There can be no question but that this bill would result in thousands of new cases every year, because it is utterly impossible to fix any standards or "differentials" that will apply fairly to every picture and every theatre throughout the country. There is probably no question in the industry upon which there is such a wide difference of opinion as that of film rentals. On questions of price all authorities disagree and each case would be different and would require a full hearing on the merits. The delays and red tape incident to the procedure would afford no relief to the industry, but on the contrary would impose untold extra burden and expense. By the time the question of price was litigated, the picture would be so old as to have no exhibition value.

Section 8. Any person who shall knowingly and wilfully ciolate any provisions of this Act or any order, rule or regulation made by the Federal Trial Commission,shall, upon conviction in any district court of the United States, be setenced to a fine of not more than $10,000 and not less than $1,000, or to imprisonment for more than one year or to both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

This is the penal clause provided fine and/or imprisonment for any violation of the act or any order, rule or regulation of the Federal Trade Commission, making it a crime and branding producers, distributors and exhibitors who violate it as criminals.

Principal Theatres Hopes for 1,000 Small Town Houses in 5 Years

PRINCIPAL THEATRES, of which Sol Lesser is president, is planning extensive operations over the period of the next five years. It is hoped by the circuit at the conclusion of that time to have at least 1,000 small town houses extending clear across the United States. At present Principal has approximately 37 theatres in towns of 15,000 population or less.

Joseph N. Skirboll, general manager of the company, has been authorized by the executive board to establish territorial offices in San Francisco, Portland. Seattle, Denver, Kansas City, St. Louis, Memphis, Louisville, Cleveland and Philadelphia. He has already started on his mission.

Lesser said that the success achieved with the theatres already acquired in the chain convinces him and his associates of the economical need for a national circuit of small town houses.

Shift Pathe Sales Heads

Phil Reisman, General Sales Manager, Changes Chiefs in Many of Company Branches

PHIL REISMAN, general sales manager for Pathe has realigned his sales force, effective February 20th. Under the new order of things Harry Scott continues as short subject sales manager, with Les Weir Western division manager, Stanley Jacques, Middle West division manager and Dan Michaelove manager of the Southern division.

Quite a large number of changes have been made in the personnel among the branches, with a number of the sales chiefs being dropped and others shifted to new locations.

The new alignment sees the managers placed as follows:

Albany, C. J. Stombaugh; Boston, R. C. Cropper; New Haven, L. J. Hacking; New York, W. E. Raynor, with Robert Wolff as sales manager; Philadelphia, W. G. Humphries; Washington, R. C. Robin; Atlanta, W. W. Anderson; Charlotte, E. L. McShane; Dallas, E. C. Leeves; New Orleans, Guy C. Brown.

Buffalo, Oscar Hanson; Cincinnati, J. A. Harris; Cleveland, O. J. Ruby; Indianapolis, Oscar Bloom; Pittsburgh, Robert Mochrie; Chicago, H. S. Lorch, with Harry Graham as sales manager; Detroit, Henry Zapp; Milwaukee, J. H. McIntyre; Des Moines, A. Levy; Kansas City, E. S. Alsmith, Memphis, L. J. Duncan; Oklahoma City, Albert Danke; St. Louis, C. D. Hill; Denver, A. G. Edwards; Los Angeles, J. S. Stout; Portland, H. L. Percy; Salt Lake City, A. J. O'Keefe; San Francisco, M. E. Cory; Seattle, L. A. Samuelson.

Ten "Uncle Tom" Shows

Universal Will Road Show Big Production to Leading Cities by Mid-Spring

UNIVERSAL has completed plans to send out ten road companies of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" by mid-Spring. They will visit important cities and towns from coast to coast. Three companies already are in operation and others will be pushed out as fast as they can be formed and prepared for tour, according to Wayne Pierson, head of Universal's road show department.

Decision to launch these touring units as early as possible is said to be because of the success of the two companies now showing. The first company is in New York presenting the picture in the Central theatre, where it is now in the sixteenth week.

The second road company startd its tour last week, opening in the Academy theatre, Scranton, Pa., for a three-day stay, from where results were reported most satisfactory.

In addition to the New York and Pennsylvania showings the picture openel February 20th at the Regent theatre in Toronto, where the presentation is being handled by the theatre. Universal sent Leon Victor, special exploitation man and road show expert to Canada to aid in the advance work, however, and to form a road company to tour Canada following the Toronto run.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be released for general showing on September 1st, according to Lou B. Metzger, general sales manager for Universal. This will give the company ample time to try the picture out in all sections of the country by road show engagements, which, at advanced prices, will exploit the picture in each territory without cutting materially into the patronage of the theatres which later show it at regular prices.

Commission to Act Soon on Block Booking to plan and advertise ahead with certainty, and it greatly decreases the cost of selling films.

"'Blind booking,' buying pictures unseen and unmade, is nothing but selling ahead for future delivery, a practice universal with every leading business in the country. To abolish forward contract would hurt 'independent producers' more than the so-called affiliated interests.

"Such contracts are the basis of the bank loans with which the independents meet their payrolls. There are plenty of these independent producers, just as there are thousands of independent exhibitors.

"The most unfair part of the bill is its attempt to deny producers the right to choose their exhibitors. For example, to prefer the theatres they own. It is an effort to set back the clock of economic progress by refusing to this one group of manufacturers the right to sell directly to the public.

"The Brookhart Bill would introduce expense and confusion into film distribution by forbidding the long-term contracts on which business is done. It would make production more uncertain and costly. Fewer films would be produced, if none could be sold until completed—that is, if there could be no 'blind booking.'

"Finally, government disapproval of our film industry would give foreign governments a fine excuse to handicap American films by discriminatory legislation.

"The Brookhart Bill should not pass. It is an ill-considered proposal, based on ignorance of the motion picture business. It will harm instead of help the interests it pretends to protect. It is an un-American interference with a great American industry which has done nothing to deserve this stigma and this handicap at the hands of the government."

Indiana Theatre Company of Terre Haute Bankrupt

Voluntary bankruptcy petitions and schedules were filed in Terre Haute division of Federal Court, Feb. 8, by the Indiana Theatre Company of Terre Haute. Liabilities were listed at $526,548 and assets $326,344.

The case was turned over to Everett A. Davisson, referee in bankruptcy for the U. S. district. Management of the house not affected.

FBO Will Produce Two True Story Pictures

NEGOTIATIONS have just been ended by Joseph P. Kennedy, president of F. B. O., and McFadden True Story Pictures, Inc., whereby two motion pictures based on two True Story Magazine stories will be produced and distributed by F. B. O. William LeBaron, F. B. O. vice-president in charge of production, will select the first story, while the second story will be chosen by a committee of three judges from among the stories to be submitted in a contest conducted by True Story Magazine and to be announced in the April, 1928, issue of True Story Magazine; the winning story will be announced in the September, 1928, issue.

Following the selection of the stories an advertising campaign will be launched;

A Daily Guide for Every Theatre Manager

A Manual of Scientific Methods

MOTION PICTURE THEATRE MANAGEMENT

By Harold B. Franklin

President West Coast Theatres, Inc.

REVEALING the inside methods of motion picture theatre operation and management as practiced in the theatres of the biggest circuits, this monumental work written by one of the indusry's outstanding executives brings you information, knowledge, methods and rules for the solution of all problems which confront the manager of the modern theatre. Written in a straight-forward manner, amply illustrated with forms for reports, statements, Lost and Found blanks, and photographs of equipment devices, MOTION PICTURE THEATRE MANAGEMENT holds the answer to those knotty problems which crop up each day to set the manager puzzling over questions of Advertising, Publicity, Service, Presentations, Purchasing, Insurance, Accounting Control—in brief, every phase and department of the theatre.

36 Chapters Fully Describe Every Phase of Management

Management and the Public—Departments and Functions—Personnel and Inspections—Safety—House Management—The Service Staff—The Production Staff—Plant and Housekeeping—Auditing and Accounting Personnel—Employment—Budgets—Insurance — Advertising—Laws Pertaining to Theatres—Good Will and Ethics—Music—Stage Presentations—Color and Lighting.

Are some of the subjects covered in this manual written by an expert and made available for the advice and guidance of managers, advertising men, house managers, and all specialists in the world of the theatre.

The Author

Harold B. Franklin has been connected with the theatre since 1909, when, aged fifteen, he was employed as an office boy by the firm of Sullivan, Harris and Woods. He became a theatre manager at the age of nineteen. He was among the first to realize that the motion picture could be presented on a scale superior to the "nickelodeon" style and was responsible for many innovations and refinements in the theatre which are now general practice. As vice president of Publix Theatres he started the first Theatre Manager's Training School, and now heads one of the largest chains of motion picture houses in America.

Object of the Book

The book presents an analysis and exposition of the details of theatre management—functions and procedure—based on practical experience. Its purpose is to give guidance and advice drawn from reality to the experienced manager facing old problems appearing in a new application as a result of expanding responsibilities and activities, and present a vast array of miscellaneous fact in orderly, concise form for ready reference and practical information.

Broadcasting As Stage Feature at Rochester

Sorriero's Radio Stunt Scores as Monday Night Drawing Card for Theatregoers

THOMAS D. SORIERO, manager of the Rochester theatre, Rochester, N. Y., is making capital of a radio broadcasting feature to bring people into the theatre Monday nights, normally the below-par night of the theatrical week.

The Rochester's radio broadcasts are advertised as a special feature designed for the amusement of ''shut ins'' and as having particular interest for those whose more fortunate condition permits them to be broadcasting from the stage.

The attraction for the theatre goers is provided by the extra entertainment features which develop in the course of the broadcasting from the stage on these radio nights.

The Rochester is an independent vaudeville and motion picture theatre with a seating capacity of 4,000. The Monday night features have been developed into a sell-out attraction under the guidance of Soriero, who is well known in the picture industry through his associations as a manager and theatre executive.

The advertising campaign which has been used to build up the radio nights, consistently has hammered home the fact that the entertainment heard over the air is given by the theatre, through the co-operation of a local newspaper and the broadcasting station, as a willing and carefully executed program of amusement for the benefit of those who are unable to attend the theatre, but that actual presence in the playhouse is far more satisfactory. The broadcasting is done from the stage, in full view of the audience and the extra numbers interpolated by the ''master of ceremonies'' and the players in the vaudeville acts add greatly to the length and brilliance of the performance offered the theatregoers.

The air programs are carried out by having some volunteer from the audience act as the announcer. This gives an added local interest which has proved especially popular. If the local candidate for the honors proves inadequate to the job, Soriero or one of the actors on the bill takes over the burden of keeping the show on the move.

A detailed description of the acts is spoken into the microphone to bridge the spaces where action, such as pantomime or acrobatics, is being performed. Soriero, however, insists that these descriptions be presented in a comedy vein. The introductory talk enables the manager to announce forthcoming features at the Rochester, this advance notice being given to the radio audience as well as the patrons.

The Rochester's radio programs are broadcast each Monday night from 8:30 to 11:15. The program concludes with the orchestral music which accompanies the feature picture. The broadcasting is done through Station WHEC, a local station, and is sponsored by a local newspaper. The station, it is reported, has built up its prestige through these popular programs.

Shows at the Rochester open Sunday. In common with other theatres the Monday night performances previously were not well patronized, but since the radio broadcasts were introduced the Monday night shows have been one of the big nights of the week. The ''Radio Night'' bill is exploited as the ''Biggest Show of the Week.'' Complete details of the radio program are given in the Sunday edition of the local paper cooperating with the theatre.

Cooperative Page Feature of "Student Prince" Drive

A Page truck of co-operative advertisement on the sheet and record music from ''The Student Prince'' was one of the biggest factors on a lively exploitation campaign waged when that spectacle played at the National Theatre, Louisville, Ky.

COLUMBUS, OHIO.

Mr. Real Neth,
Grand Theater,
Columbus, Ohio.

January 7th, 1928.

My Dear Real,

I want to tell you how much I enjoyed Al. Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" at the Grand Theater last night.

. My wife and I just returned from a ten days' trip to New York, during which time we saw ten of the outstanding shows, among them "Rio Rita," for which we paid $11.00 a seat on New Year's Eve.

I can truthfully say that the show I saw at your theater last evening gave me more real enjoyment than any show I saw in New York. I consider "The Jazz Singer" in connection with Vitaphone the finest Motion Picture entertainment I have ever seen and I sincerely trust that the Columbus public will show by their patronage that they thoroughly appreciate your efforts in bringing it here

Although you were good enough to provide me with passes, I am enclosing my check for $5.00 to help you defray the tremendous expense you must have incurred to secure this attraction.

Wishing you the success you so richly deserve, I remain,

Yours truly,

Max Stearn

DISCOVERY Nights, which for two years have been one of the outstanding novelty features at the State Theatre, Cleveland, have been discontinued. Not because they have lost their popularity with the Thursday night audiences, but just to side stop the fault of getting into a rut. Bob Pank, Diccovery Night impressario, keeps out of trouble arranging programs for the other Loew neighborhood houses.

FINKELSTEIN & RUBEN tied up with Ford and got some timely publicity for into a rut. Bob Pank, Discovery Night im- auto show week in Minneapolis. A double spread in The Tribune's roto section advertised the new Ford and "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," one page featuring a picture of Ruth Taylor, and the other a picture of the Ford tudor model. A big line across both pages read: World's most famous blonde said, 'The New Ford Is a Wonder.'" At the State theatre for the week there was an official Ford review featuring Eddie Dundstedter, organist in "Eddie Goes A-Fording."

RADIO was used extensively in the "Love" campaign recently put on at the Regent Theatre, Grand Rapids, Michigan. Manager Frank Kleaver, who ran the campaign, arranged with the Regent Roof Garden to broadcast the song with proper announcements for two nights. The orchestra of the roof garden plugged the song nightly for ten days. A special "'Love' Waltz Night" was arranged for the roof. The song was also broadcast from the theatre and from the Pantland Hotel.

CLAYTON TURNSTILL, manager of the Sugg theatre, Chickasha, Okla., introduced an unique display device when he posted bills featuring "The Wagon Show" on old wagon wheels. The wheels were tied to telephone poles and set against buildings at street corners. Turnstill used mat board, circular and with a hole cut in the center to slip over the wheel hub, to carry his billing on the Ken Maynard picture.

A REGULAR musical feature at the Parkdale Theatre, a suburban house of Toronto, Ontario, under the management of Harold Hitchinson, is an "Electrola" phonograph, which is being used for short film subjects and also during the orchestra intermission.

IN response to suggestions from patrons, the service division of Kunsky Theatres in Detroit has arranged to mail photographs of virtually all popular screen actors and actresses upon request, saving those who desire photos the trouble and uncertainty of communicating with Hollywood studios.

MANAGER John N. Thomas, of the Riverside, inaugurated "Family Night" at his theatre this week. He intends to make this a regular feature of the week, every Thursday making a special bid for family patronage.

ELABORATE stage attractions from the supper clubs are being presented at the Olympia Theatre, Miami, as special features, and are proving drawing cards.

Studio Briefs

The Fox studio on the Coast has commenced working on "The Sport Girl," an original by Jack Stone in which Madge Bellamy is starring with Johnny Mack Brown in the principal male role. Arthur Rosson is directing them and Walter McGrail, Lionel Belmore and Thelma Hill are the support.

Again William K. Howard will have Rudolph Schildkraut as his featured player in "The Last Cab," his next De Mille film for Pathe.

Joyce Marie Coad, the little girl actress, will play the daughter role in "Three Sinners," new Paramount production and will appear also in "Ladies of the Mob."

Camera work began this week at the De Mille studio on "Tenth Avenue," for Pathe release.

"Marry the Girl," the fifth Sterling picture on the company's program for 1927-28, has been completed and prints are now being shipped east.

Evelyn Brent and Fred Kohler will support George Bancroft in his next Paramount vehicle that is to follow "The Showdown."

H. Beers Loos, stage and screen writer, has been signed by Columbia as assistant to Elmer Harris, scenario editor.

"Midnight Madness," in which Jacqueline Logan is featured, is now in the process of editing and cutting by Harold McLernon, of the De Mille studio forces.

Mickey McBan, the child actor who responded to direction so well in Herbert Brenon's "Sorrell and Son," will again be directed by Brenon, this time in "Laugh, Clown, Laugh." In this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film he will act with Patsey Ann Hizer, another kid thespian who also appeared in "Sorrell and Son."

Robert Klein has been added to the cast of Paramount's "Three Sinners."

Tiffany-Stahl's "Saturday Night,' tentative, has been completed by George Archainbaud.

Frank Tuttle's directorial assistant in the production of "Something Always Happens" will be Russell Mathews.

"Chinatown Charlie," Johnny Hines' new comedy vehicle for First National, is coming down the home stretch to the finish mark. It is said that this unit, headed by C. C. Burr, has been working closer to schedule than ever before. Paul Perez will title the film as soon as the cutting and editing stage has been reached.

Frank Currier is the latest player to join the "Easy Come, Easy Go" unit at the Paramount studio.

Albert Rogell, who is responsible for the Ken Maynard westerns, will direct "Tides of Empire," Peter B. Kyne's current novel which Waldemar Young is adapting for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Richard Arlen will be the juvenile lead in Paramount's "Quick Lunch," and will assume his role in that picture as soon as he has completed his part in "Feel My Pulse."

"The Bellamy Trial," the Frances Noyes Hart serial which appeared in The Saturday Evening Post, will be transferred to the screen for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by Director Monta Bell; it will be his first assignment since his return from Europe. A unique feature of this story is that the action takes place within the four walls of a courtroom.

Fred Esmelton, character actor, has been signed for an important role in Universal's "The Michigan Kid." His fellow supporting players will be Virginia Grey, Lloyd Whitlock, Maurice Murphy and Adolph Millar.

In the supporting cast of "Five and Ten Cent Annie," Warner Bros., are Gertrude Astor, William Demarest, Tom Ricketts and Douglas Gerrard.

Erle Kenton, after freelancing for a while, has returned to the Columbia studio to megaphone "The Sporting Age."

Arthur Rankin, Ida Lewis, Blanche Craig, William von Hardenberg, Anton Vaverka and Helen Ford have been added to the cast of "Three Sinners," Warner Baxter is to be the male lead.

Lucille Hutton will again be Monty Collins' leading lady, this time appearing opposite the comedian in "A Mysterious Night."

"He Learned About Women," an original by Dale Van Every, will be William Haines' next vehicle for M-G-M; Sam Wood will be the director. William V. Mong, Bert Roach and Matthew Betz will support.

George K. Arthur, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedian and the smaller member of the team of Arthur-Dane, has signed a new contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Margaret Burt, former Follies girl, and Mario Carillo will have character roles in "Super of the Gaiety," now in work.

Harry Beaumont, M-G-M director who has just finished "Forbidden Hours," will shortly begin directing "The Dancing Girl."

"Carry On, Sargeant," the first picture made by the Canadian International Films at their studio in Trenton, Ontario, is now in the last stages of shooting. Hugh Beckler, world war hero, is taking the name part.

Martha Sleeper will have the feminine lead in "The Little Yellow House," under Leo Meehan's direction. Orville Caldwell will be the principal masculine player while others in the cast will be Lucy Beaumont, Freeman Wood and Edward Peil, Jr.

"The Czarina's Secret" will be the title of the fourth historical two-reeler filmed by M-G-M in Technicolor. This new picture was made under the working title of "Catherine, the Great." Olga Baklanova plays the role of the great Russian empress; David Mir has the role of Peter the III. Sally Rand and Lucio Flammo also have parts. The direction is by R. William Neill.

Josef von Sternberg will again direct George Bancroft in a story of the underworld. Fred Kohler and Evelyn Brent will also be with Bancroft in the new picture.

Tiffany-Stahl has started filming on "The House of Scandal," presenting Dorothy Sebastian, Pat O'Malley, Harry Murray, Gino Corrado and Jack Singleton. They will work under the direction of King Baggott.

Columbia has acquired the services of Johnny Walker for the masculine lead in "The Matinee Idol," adapted from the story, "Come Back to Aaron;" it will also star Bessie Love. Frank Capra is handling the direction.

Johnnie Morris, screen comedian, will act in support of Bebe Daniels in the latter's next starring vehicle for Paramount, as yet untitled.

Arthur Gregor has been signed by Tiffany-Stahl to start work on a special entitled "Dolorosa." The cast is now being signed.

Ed Kennedy, for several years a featured player, has been graduated into the ranks of the directors. He has just finished directing "From Soup to Nuts," a new Roach comedy.

George Marion, Jr., will do the titles for Paramount's "Partners in Crime."

"Power," the Tiffany-Stahl production now being directed by Reginald Barker, is expected to be a special production, the company reports.

Filming of "Ladies of the Mob" will be delayed because of the illness of Clara Bow, who has been operated on for appendicitis.

Nick Grinde will again direct Tim McCoy in one of the latter's westerns for M-G-M.

Following the return to the studio of John F. Goodrich and Lloyd Corrigan from sick beds, the Paramount writing staff on the coast is again complete.

John McCarthy has signed a new contract with M-G-M; he will start work on a special M-G-M feature in the near future.

Key City Reports

New York City

ALL things considered Broadway's picture palaces encountered fair weather conditions at box offices last week. The Street had its low spots, true enough, but in the main business was better than merely satisfactory and in some instances gratifying. Among the houses which did especially well was the Cameo, which these many weeks has been conspicuous by its absence from a place among the flourishing ones. With a British-made film, "Battle of Falkland Islands" playing its second week as the attraction, the Cameo's gross went up to within sighting distance of its high mark for all time. Which goes to show that the European pictures can get somewhere in the States if only they have something that the American picturegoers are interested in seeing.

A new two-a-day film came to town with the opening on Lincoln's birthday of Fox's "Four Sons" at the Gaiety. The picture has a Movietone accompaniment and is assisted on the bill by a Movietone newsreel. So far "Four Sons" have been finding the town's welcome a cordial one and though breaking no records the house is drawing good patronage at all shows.

Among the other two-a-day attractions, "Wings" still holds the lead in length of service on Broadway, and it is doing its usual big business day in and day out. "The Jazz Singer" at Warner's theatre holds up to the very fine pace it has struck since it opened twenty weeks since. "Love" continues to sell out at the Embassy and is now in its fourteenth week. "Uncle Tom's Cabin," holding the fort at the Central until "The Man Who Laughs" comes along, showed better business last week than it has for some time. "The Enemy" is also carrying on at the Astor awaiting the day when it will be supplanted there by "The Trail of '98," and things are not so encouraging from the box office standpoint. The Liberty theatre in 42nd St., provides a side street home for "Drums of Love," a severe handicap for a picture, and the returns are nothing to boast about. At the Carroll the events taking place afternoons and evenings give positive evidence that "Simba" is nearing the end of its run, which will take place next week and give the Johnson hunt film a total of some six weeks.

The Roxy with "That's My Daddy" jumped up well above the hundred thousand mark, thus enjoying the kind of business it had in the "good old times" of a short while ago when it was establishing itself and Broadway records. Richard Dix in "Sporting Goods" drew them in large numbers to the Paramount and totaled a fine week's mark. A title that has meant much to Broadway since former seasons when the musical comedy "Rose Marie" was one of the leading attractions had a substantial lure and gave the Capitol a good week's return. "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" came out of the past and played to fair enough figures at the Colony to get a second week at that house. Emil Jannings in "The Last Command" held its remarkable stride at the Rialto and continues as one of the big money getters along Broadway. In its second week "Sadie Thompson" flourished at the Rivoli and with the added revenue of well patronized midnight performances ran up a total that matched its opening week. The Strand with "The Patent Leather Kid" did what was not better than fair for the week and closed its engagement after two weeks at the house.

Los Angeles

LOEW'S STATE THEATRE, screening "The Enemy," was very well attended last week. Eddie Peabody presented "In London" on the boards and in celebration of West Coast Edison Week Loew's State showed old time movies with one of Charlie Chaplin's comedies, "The Dumbbell."

It is said that new records were established for this time of the year at the Metropolitan last week, which presented the picture, "The Last Waltz." The four Marx Brothers, with a company of thirty people, in "Spanish Knights," drew the crowds. Another feature which shared honors with the Marx Brothers in favor was the motion picture, "Stars in Distress," with Fairbanks, Chaplin, Arbuckle, Pickford, Gish and Swanson, giving patrons a glimpse back into movie past in days of 1912.

At the Criterion, "The Jazz Singer," with Vitaphone, continued to do a hustling business. The picture is now entering its third month. "Wings," at the Biltmore, also drew well the past week.

"The Student Prince," at the Million Dollar played to very fair business throughout the week, with matinees good. As a feature of Edison week, the Million Dollar showed examples of early motion picture entertainment with Mary Pickford in "Love's Strategy."

"The Circus," with the prologue, "Bally-Hoo," continues to pull strongly at Grauman's Chinese. "Four Sons," at Carthay Circle, is attracting large audiences at both matinee and evening performances.

"Wild Geese" was a good drawing card at the Tower Theatre, as well as the two Vitaphone acts and the Fox Movietone News. At the United Artists, "Sorrell and Son" ran to fair business.

Boston

BOSTON'S first big snowstorm of the season—it might be termed its only snowstorm of the current year—rolled dollars into the box offices even before the storm had ceased. Coming at the last of the week, it sent large numbers who have been motoring week ends into the playhouses for their diversion.

Metropolitan held its annual "Take-a-Chance" week and crowds so large that they filled the lobby and stood in line from half an hour to an hour before gaining admission were the rule every night, with capacity audiences at forenoon and afternoon performances. "Sporting Goods" was the film and met a very cordial reception.

"The Gaucho" headed the bill at Loew's State for its Boston premiere at popular prices and grossed well up among the best pictures of the year. Ray Fagan and his band was the presentation.

"The Student Prince" at Loew's Orpheum was another film which enjoyed big business during the entire week.

"Coney Island," a film out of the usual, headed the Scollay Square Olympia bill and was well patronized.

Modern and Beacon, the twin houses, had for double features "The Leopard Lady" and "Soft Living," doing the best week's business in months. Next week a decided departure will be made in these two theatres when "The Jazz Singer" will begin a four weeks' run with Vitaphone accompaniment. This is the first time that any film has been presented for longer than a single week continuously at either theatre.

"Wings," Boston's only road show, now in its ninth week, played to capacity houses the entire week. There is apparently no sign of any falling off in receipts at the Tremont for this film as yet.

Five theatres will show "The Patent Leather Kid" simultaneously next week, the Scollay Square Olympia, Washington Street Olympia, Capitol, Fenway and Central Square.

"The Cohens and Kellys in Paris," at the Washington Street Olympia and the Fenway Theatres, played to good houses all week. "Wife Savers" at the Capitol, "Sorrell and Son" at the Bowdoin Square, "Arabian Knights" and "The Valley of the Giants" for the double bill at the University, and "The Gay Defender" at the Exeter were other films which rolled up good sized grosses during the week.

Chicago

THE second snowstorm of the winter kept movie patrons at home snuggling up to sizzling radiators during the latter part of the week and cut down theatre attendance to a minimum, business which had started out well on Sunday and Monday falling to a low ebb on Friday and Saturday.

Despite the handicaps the Chicago theatre had an average week with "Sporting Goods" as its screen feature, Rae Samuels in person and an elaborate musical and stage program. "Quality Street," backed by heavy advertising, and Paul Ash and his gang in "Mikado of Jazz," pulled well at the Oriental. McVickers continued the run of "Student Prince," which is proving a good box office attraction, and at the Monroe the return engagement of "Seventh Heaven" was very satisfactory. United Artists Theatre ended the run of "The Gaucho" to good business and opened up "The Circus" at a midnight show on Thursday night with a large crowd in attendance. The last week of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" at the Roosevelt was somewhat disappointing.

The Uptown, with Mae Murray in person, and "The Dove" on the screen, did well despite the weather, although other big neighborhood houses on both north and south side suffered from the impassable streets and wintry blasts which rode in with the new cold wave.

San Francisco

BOTH downtown and residential theatres experienced an exceptionally good business during the past week due to both good pictures, with one exception, and good weather.

Douglas Fairbanks, always popular here, drew big crowds to the St. Francis theatre in the "Gaucho." "The Last Command," shown for a second week at the California, was popular. The Granada theatre was also crowded. Here the "Open Range" was the feature on the screen, while Kolb and Dill appeared in person, together with twenty others on the stage. "Rose Marie" was the feature on the screen at Loew's Warfield theatre, although it drew crowds the two days, it did not seem to bring many others. Rube Wolf continued to draw many with his mirth and melody presentations.

"The Cheer Leader" drew well at the Golden Gate theatre, which together with the comedy, news and vaudeville acts, crowded that theatre each night. The Union Square theatre did very well with "Legionnaires in Paris" and "Showing Off."

Minneapolis

THE movie week in Minneapolis was made notable by the showing of "The Jazz Singer" at the State theatre. This picture broke all records for the State since it was opened six years ago. The former record was held for the week of Gilda Gray's personal appearance, but "The Jazz Singer" proved a better drawing card than Gilda. F. & R. kept their regular prices for this production—35 cents for matinee and 60 cents for evening—but arranged eight performances a day, with no other attraction on the program. The crowds kept coming from 11:30 a. m. to midnight, and on the final day it was necessary to add a special midnight performance. Al Jolson certainly had the town talking, and this was all the more remarkable because the Shriner's circus was playing all week at the auditorium to packed houses. Some 50,000 persons saw the circus, and this gives an idea of what "The Jazz Singer" was up against in the matter of competition.

"The Last Command," with Emil Jannings, proved a very nice attraction at the Strand, and was strong enough to hold over for a second week.

At the Garrick the film version of Martha Ostenso's "Wild Geese" did a lively business. Local interest in this picture was keen, as Miss Ostenso's parents live on the outskirts of Minneapolis, and she occasionally comes home for a visit. "Figures Don't Lie," with Esther Ralston and Richard Arlen, attracted good-sized crowds to the Lyric, while Clara Bow returned to the Grand in "Get Your Man." Tom Mix was at Pantages in "Daredevil's Reward," and of course Mix is always a big drawing card at that theatre. The Hennepin-Orpheum showed Marie Prevost in "On to Reno" and Buck Jones was at the Seventh Street in "Black Jack." The circus cut into the neighborhood theatre business some. Pictures shown at these houses included "The Magic Flame," at the Lagoon; "Simple Sis," at the Lyndale; "Now We're in the Air," at the American; "The Gorilla," at the Rialto, and "The Magic Flame" at the Loring.

Dallas

BUSINESS at the Dallas theatres the past week has been just like the weather, spotty.

"The Private Life of Helen of Troy" failed to get them at the Palace, and comment on the picture was not so good. Art Landry, appearing in his Farewell Week, boosted the program over for a fair week's gross.

Douglas Fairbanks in "The Gaucho," at the Melba, failed to hold the heavy business of the first four days of last week, and the gross of the ten day run was only fair, and far below expectations. This is the first time a Fairbanks film has been offered at the usual prices and this showed up heavy in the ten day gross.

The Majestic, with "Let 'er Go, Gallagher," registered another heavy week's business and created future box office value of Junior Coghlan in Dallas.

"The Cohens and Kellys in Paris," at the Capitol, was another winner and held up throughout the week.

"French Dressing," at the Old Mill, continued to hold the business above normal, and showed a good profit for the week.

"The Gay Defender," "Dress Parade" and an adventure film with Capt. E. A. Salisbury grossed heavy the past week at the Arcadia.

Dallas

(Previous Week)

AT the Melba, Douglas Fairbanks in "The Gaucho" opened and brought the largest opening the Melba has had as a Publix theatre. Business held up on the four days, and "Gaucho" continues next week in a ten day run.

"The College Hero" and Bert Lytell in person brought the Majestic a packed house every night.

"The Dove," with Norma Talmadge, did only a fair business at the Palace, although much publicity had been expended on the week's bill.

The Capitol, showing "The Forbidden Woman," with Jetta Goudal, lined them up at the box office and gave the Capitol another wonderful week's gross.

Constance Talmadge in "Breakfast at Sunrise" jerked the Old Mill out of the average business rut and brought a gross to be proud of.

Albany

"WEST POINT," at the Leland, and "The Jazz Singer," at the Mark Strand, ran a stiff neck to neck race in Albany last week, for patronage, the two pictures breaking just about even, and, incidentally, playing to the biggest crowds of the month. Capacity houses prevailed both afternoon and evening. At the Mark Ritz, in Albany, "Sporting Goods" ran to good business, although no doubt the theatre picked up some of the overflow that naturally drifted from the other two theatres. The Clinton Square theatre in Albany used "Once and Forever" and "His First Flame" to fair business, this theatre now featuring first run double features for the week. Business continued heavy at Proctor's Harmanus-Bleecker Hall in Albany, with a combination of double features and vaudeville.

Neighborhood houses reported business as being good with one or two exceptions. At Propector's Grand, "The Main Event" was used with the regular vaudeville program. Big road attractions now being heavily featured at the Capitol theatre in Albany, and including "The Vagabond King," "My Maryland" and similar attractions, while offering stiff opposition to the motion picture theatres, do not seem to cut in on the latter, which is meeting the Capitol's attractions by stellar pictures. At the Troy theatre, "The Love Mart," coupled with an exceptionally amusing "Our Gang" comedy, went over well, but "The Texas Steer," the last of the week, did not seem to carry any great appeal to residents of the collar city. At the Lincoln, "London After Midnight" went over good for four days, while "Very Confidential" played to just ordinary business for the last three days.

Pittsburgh

BUSINESS was very good in theatres last week, even though Lincoln's Birthday came on a Sunday and no holiday prices were charged on the Monday his birthday was celebrated on. The vaudeville houses took the lead on the de luxe picture houses for the first time in a year or so for various and sundry reasons.

The Davis, playing a weak picture, "French Dressing," pulled remarkable business with Nazimova and five other acts making a corking vaudeville show. The Aldine had musical comedy, "Merry Go Round" revue, instead of vaudeville and with "A Hero for a Night," broke records, as there was a fine publicity campaign on the attraction. Grand held over "Patent Leather Kid" and did as well as could be expected. Penn, with "Man, Woman and Sin," starring John Gilbert, did average business only, much less than is expected from a Gilbert production. "Tokio Blues" stage unit was well liked, though. "Jazz Singer" at the Olympic and Regent gave both these houses its best week in many a moon, picture holding over and may run four weeks. "Cohens and Kellys in Paris" at the Cameo in its second week did so well it will be seen there for a third week.

Next week the legit. houses will supply plenty of opposition with "Broadway," "Lulu Belle" and "Oh Kay" in town in one week.

Milwaukee

BUSINESS was slow in the Milwaukee's down town theatres last week. Some houses reported average receipts and others found results at the end of the week somewhat below average. Weather was for the most part favorable, although toward the end of the run Milwaukee was treated to a blizzard and some cold weather.

Patronage was not quite up to average at the Wisconsin, where "Sporting Goods" was featured. "Paid to Love" played to less than average houses at the Merrill. "Two Flaming Youths" at the Alhambra succeeded in keeping business here up to average and some better. Milwaukeeans are fond of hilarious comedy. "Women Wise" made a popular addition to the Orpheum bill. "Doomsday" was only moderately well attended at the Strand. "The Girl from Chicago" brought in good results at the Garden. "King of Kings" was reported to have played to full houses all week at the Davidson. The picture had only a brief preliminary advertising campaign for it was offered in place of a stage show which was quite suddenly cancelled. Nevertheless, the picture has proven very popular.

Neighborhood theatres reported business very satisfactory throughout the week. "My Best Girl" played to excellent houses at the National and at the Milwaukee. "Ben Hur" was offered at the Garfield, Uptown, Oriental, Tower and Modjeska, and at all business was very good. "The City Gone Wild" at the Venetian was well patronized.

Salt Lake City

SATISFACTORY box office results were enjoyed at the downtown theatres last week as a whole. "The Noose" went over exceptionally good at the Capitol. Fanchon and Marco's "Hi Hatters" stage presentation was also a drawing card at the Capitol in connection with this picture.

William Haines with Jean Crawford in "West Point" was well received by capacity houses at the Pantages, in conjunction with their vaudeville performances.

"The Devil Dancer," starring Gilda Grey, played to good houses at the Victory, while Billie Dove in "Affair of the Follies" brought in fair results at the Paramount Empress.

Laura La Plante in "Finders Keepers" went only moderately well at the American.

The Tom Mix and Tony fans made up the usual good attendance at the Gem. Clara Bow in "Get Your Man" filled the Rialto to capacity during the first few days of the week, this having been the second showing of this production which went over big at the Capitol several weeks ago.

Neighborhood houses here are continuing to do a fair share of encouraging business; the Mission this week having done well with their presentation of "The Sea Wolf."

SALE OF THEATRE EQUIPMENT

All equipment in Proctor's East 58th Street Theatre, corner Third Avenue, New York City, including seats, asbestos curtain, draperies, switchboard, lighting fixtures, scenery, stage rigging and marquees lettering signs, must be sold at once. Theatre coming down. Apply to Mr. Piland on premises before February 28th.

Ottawa

THEATRES of Ottawa, Ontario, had plenty of opposition but plenty of business during the week of February 13. There were numerous hockey games which drew crowds, while an important counter-attraction was the annual Kiwanis show at the Russell theatre, which enjoyed heavy patronage. But the exhibitors had features which stood up well all through the week.

The outstanding picture was "The Gaucho" at the Regent theatre, where it did so well that it was held over for a second week by Manager Ray Tubman. Matinee crowds were particularly strong. "The Noose" at the Centre theatre was a real thriller, sad in spots, yet well-liked by big crowds. Business was good.

"Body and Soul," starring Aileen Pringle, at B. F. Keith's theatre, was seen by throngs. It appealed particularly to adult patrons but there was some disappointment because the branding scene and other sequences had been eliminated by the censor. The best week in months was recorded at the Imperial theatre, where Beery and Hatton held forth in "Wife Savers."

There was a whole flock of good ones over in Hull, Quebec. At the Laurier theatre, Manager Donat Paquin had a big time with "The Garden of Allah," which more than made good with the French-Canadian patronage.

At the Eden theatre, a popular presentation was found in Laura Laplante in "Silk Stockings." This made good money. The Capitol theatre, Hull, also had a strong double bill with "The Coward" and "The Land of the Lawless." The Capitol has been showing box office improvement of late and these two pictures were of the type that provided further encouragement to the management.

"The Circus went into its third week at the Tivoli theatre, Toronto, Ontario, on February 18. It is being screened seven times daily by Manager Thomas Daley at popular prices.

The Pantages heatre, Toronto, largest in Canada, had a big double-header during the week of February 18 in first Canadian run of "Old Ironsides," along with Creator's Band of 60 pieces.

Baltimore

NORMA TALMADGE, usually a prime favorite with Baltimoreans, did not fare so well at Loew's Valencia in "The Dove," during its second week of its engagement at that playhouse. This is attributed to the fact that the part was not suitable to her talents.

Another surprise for the week was the poor business done at Loew's Century, where Pola Negri held forth in "The Secret Hour." There was a stage presenation also, with Sammy Kahn directing. The film, essentially a psychological study of the moronic type, seemed to be far beyond the ken of the average picture-goer, and although well done it did not appeal.

But exceptionally good business was done at the Stanley by "The Patent Leather Kid," starring Richard Barthelmess. Added interest here was taken in the picture, due to the appearance in three close-ups of Carl Depkin, a Baltimorean.

"The Jazz Singer" held up splendidly throughout its sixth week during its engagement at Warner's Metropolitan and this Al Jolson Vitaphone attraction proved so good it was held for a seventh week.

"A Hero for a Night," co-starring Patsy Ruth Miller and Glenn Tryon, proved a winner as a comedy attraction at the New Garden theatre, where eight acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville were given also, including Peaches Browning, who pulled in many through curiosity.

The Rivoli came back again during the week with "Chicago," starring Phyllis Haver, with good business in the afternoons and very good at night. This film was held for a second week.

The combination burlesque and moving picture program being given at the Palace theatre is proving very successful, it is said; and "South Sea Love," with Patsy Ruth Miller starred, proved a very good attraction there.

Dolores Del Rio pulled them into the New theatre through her personality in "The Gateway of the Moon." Business was very good throughout the week, but it was not the picture that did the business, but rather the pulling power of Miss Del Rio, in a new picture.

"The Racing Romeo," with Harold Red Grange and Jobyna Ralston, proved a good puller at Keith's Hippodrome with five acts of Keith Albee family time on the same bill.

The reissue of "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari," which was shown at the Little theatre, a Motion Picture Guild playhouse, did poor business during its second week there. This theatre only has 250 seats.

San Diego

AT the Plaza theatre one of the best attractions in a long time, according to Manager Dwight Hill, has been "Ham and Eggs at the Front," with Tom Wilson, Heinie Conklin and Myrna Loy. It proved so popular that Mr. Hill found it necessary to extend its showing from two weeks to three.

Manager Hill says he is finding that the two-reel Metro-Goldwyn "Great Event" series are meeting with a very popular response, the public giving very favorable comment to these pictures in color, which form a part of the Plaza's program.

At the West Coast California "The Valley of the Giants" went over good, the house presenting the same week the "Circus Idea," of the Fanchon & Marco series, a lobby display of live animals adding as a drawing card.

The West Coast California had a special tie-up with the Ford car people, showing the new models as a feature of the week when "A City Gone Wild" was the film attraction.

Manager H. L. Hartman, of the local West Coast houses, states that the Fanchon & Marco "Jungle Idea," which was presented the week of the showing of the Billy Dove film, "The Love Mart," was one of the best productions yet presented, making the week register one hundred per cent at the box office.

The Mary Pickford feature, "My Best Girl," went over big at the West Coast Cabrillo theatre during its week showing.

One of the most popular films ever shown at the Pantages, vaudeville house, was "Seventh Heaven," a recent feature of the weekly program.

Kansas City

MOST pictures at first run down town houses in Kansas City last week showed a slight increase in attendance over the previous week. At Loew's Midland, "Beau Sabreur," starring Noah Beery, Evelyn Brent, Gary Cooper and William Powell, played to a better attendance than has been experienced in the last two or three weeks, there being only a slight increase in newspaper advertising and no special exploitation.

At the Mainstreet, "The Patent Leather Kid" also played to a good week's attendance, as did "The Opening Night" at the Liberty theatre. "Silk Legs," at the Pantages drew especially good at matinees, while the night business held up fairly well. "The Latest from Paris," featuring Norma Shearer, showed an increase in attendance over the previous week. At the Globe theatre "Seventh Heaven" drew average crowds.

Harrisburg

FIRST-RUN houses as a class continued to do above-the-average business in Harrisburg last week, the normally bad effect of several stormy days being offset by pictures which, according to local public opinion, had more than usual merit. The Colonial theatre, where the main attraction was "East Side, West Side," made a particularly strong appeal to men because of the fight features of the play, but nevertheless did not lack a generous share of feminine patronage. The net result was that the management was more than satisfied with the "gate receipts."

A quite different type of play, "The Enemy," with Lillian Gish and Ralph Forbes, was the principal attraction at Loew's Regent, where the management also reported an exceptionally successful week, both artistically and financially speaking.

The Victoria ran very close to both the Colonial and Regent for the amount of business done. There the main play was "Sporting Goods," a very funny comedy that went over big. The poker party near the close of the film alone would have made a comedy the like of which is rare even on the screen. The Victoria is a large theatre, but, notwithstanding that there were capacity audiences almost nightly.

The State's film offering the last half of the week was "Woman Wise," with June Collier and William Russell, and it proved a valuable box office asset.

Des Moines

"THE DOVE," which had quite a remarkable tie-up in window displays and which should have done bigger business since Miss Talmadge, is very popular here, did not meet with entire approval. It was not a "Norma Talmadge" picture, critics said.

Jimmy Ellard, who returns as personality man at the Capitol, has been drawing tremendous business. Friday, Saturday and Sunday made the biggest record that the Capitol has ever had. It did not hold for the week, however. "Sporting Goods" was voted a very good picture and should be given some credit for the draw.

"Under the Tonto Rim" did a tremendous business on Friday and Saturday at the Strand, where Zane Grey always takes, and the week finished out splendidly with "Clancy's Kosher Wedding." Last week "Old Heidelberg" did much bigger business at the Des Moines than was expected and audiences liked it. The picture had been played up with billboards for three weeks ahead and this was thought responsible for the added success.

As newspaper rates have been advanced and there has been some war with theatre men over them, this proved an intersting experiment to the Des Moines manager. At the Capitol that week "The Noose" did well and though very heavy and dramatic took well. At the Strand "Grandma's Boy," on second run, did very, very good, and "Shanghaied" finished the week.

Portland, Ore.

THE Broadway registered an excellent week with "West Point," together with Fanchon and Marco's "Crinoline Idea." The house had good evening business, with the matinees just fair. The Rivoli was the town's real money-maker, with the Gilbert-Garbo hit, "Love."

"Jesse James," at Universal't Columbia, was just fair, while Tebbett's Oriental, showing "Chicago," brought great business to the house. Hamrick's Blue Mouse found the going satisfactory with "The Girl from Chicago," together with a Vitaphone program.

Philadelphia

WITH but few exceptions, business was only fair last week, though no particular cause could be assigned for the slump.

The Carman has been playing to splendid business ever since its opening and this week was no exception. Besides the feature photoplay, "The Gateway of the Moon," there was a varied surrounding program, including the Giersdorf Sisters, singers of popular songs, Billy Dunn and Violet West, dancers, and Georgie Lyons, the comedian with a harp.

At the close of its third week, "Love" at the Karlton was still playing to crowded houses and has proved extremely profitable.

"Sunrise" completed its fifth week at the Fox-Locust, where its popularity has been a surprise to those who conceded the artistic success of the picture but doubted that it would please the general public.

The Stanley had a fair week with Norma Talmadge in "The Dove" and an elaborae stage presentation featuring Edward Albano, baritone, and Catherine Littlefield, daneuse, assisted by the Stanley Ballet and the Stanley Chorus Ensemble.

No final closing date has been set for "Wings," which completed its eleventh week at the Aldine theatre, where it will probably establish a new local record.

Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer," with Vitaphone accompaniment, was shown for a second and final week at the Fox, where Allan Rogers, tenor, also appeared for a second week in a program of new songs. Business was mediocre.

The Arcadia, with "Love and Learn," the Victoria with Billie Dove in "The Thirteenth Hour," and the Palace with "The Love Mart" all report fair business.

"The Patent Leather Kid" will be withdrawn from the Erlanger theatre after a run of only three weeks.

Seattle

WITH one or two exceptions, business in the downtown district fell a bit below the usual level last week. Those exceptions were the Blue Mouse and Columbia Theatres.

At the Blue Mouse, "The Jazz Singer" finished its six-week engagement to capacity business, having broken every existing first run record in the history of motion pictures in Seattle. It is estimated that the film played to more than 100,000 paid admissions during its run, or well over one-quarter of the city's population. It played 252 performances in all, at 50c and 75c admission prices, and had a waiting line in front of the theatre every day of the entire six weeks. It will be brought back to the same house on a return engagement as a second run picture within 90 days, it has already been announced.

At the Columbia, Bob Bender kept his houses well filled all week with "The Cohens and the Kellys in Paris." The film was far from the comedy riot that its predecessor was, according to audience comment, but it had plenty of box office angles and did a very strong business for the first week, aided by a fair "Collegian" comedy and a fine musical presentation by Francesco Longo's Orchestra. Big business, followed by a second week.

The Fifth Avenue theatre had as its screen attraction "Man, Woman and Sin." The film played to average good houses, but was not a big money attraction. Fanchon-Marco's "Lace Idea" on the stage was very pleasing, and the whole bill combined to produce a very pleasing week's gross, but not a tremendous box office success, compared to other recent films.

At the United Artists theatre, "Sadie Thompson" went into a very noticeable slump for the second week. The picture opened up to very big houses during the first week and chalked up a large gross, but the second seven days hit the toboggan and the gross was not so good. It takes a film a little stronger than "Sadie Thompson" or "The Dove" to hit the high spots for two solid weeks at this house, where capacity is large and plenty of patrons can be accommodated during the 12 working hours.

The Orpheum, in conjunction with a fair vaudeville program, had as its screen attraction "On to Reno" and the film was severely panned by most audiences. It was considered very poor film fare, and the business at the box office was $2,000 or $3,000 below an average good week.

"The Wizard" was the screen fare at the Pantages theatre, and this picture was rather well liked by most patrons. On the stage was a good program of vaudeville, headlined by George Lipschultz, violinist, who is on a concert tour after having appeared in Seattle for many monhs as director of the orchestras at West Coast's Fifth Avenue and Liberty theatres. He was given a hearty welcome. Business was slightly above average.

In its second week as a road show at the Metropolitan theatre at $1.65 top, "King of Kings" still dragged along on the ragged edge at the box office, with poor houses at every performance, with the possible exception of week-end matinees. Criticism by pastors and ministers of various denominations did not help the business.

As a special added attraction for two days, the Fifth Avenue theatre featured personal appearances of Ruth Taylor on her nation-wide tour in behalf of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

Cleveland

IT was like Old Home Week here last week. Crowds thronged the streets and all along the main street box office lines were the order of the day instead of the exception. "The King of Kings" closed its three weeks' engagement at the Ohio theatre in a blaze of glory. The picture opened auspiciously, and business grew consistently all through the engagement until the last week played to completely sold out houses. Charlies Chaplin in "The Circus" did capacity business at the State, both matinees and evenings. "The Circus" gives the public the Chaplin of old and they stood by their original opinions of his work by thronging to see him. "The Jazz Singer" continued to pile up a record at the Stillman, where it completed its second week and will go on indefinitely. Produced with Vitaphone, the picture has built up daily until every day is Sunday at the Stillman. Although "The Divine Woman" was not considered up to Greta Garbo's previous pictures, it did well at the Allen, where the star has built up a big following. Business at Keith's Palace fell off last week. "The Leopard Lady," the feature attraction, was considered not up to the average standard of pictures shown at this theatre, and business suffered accordingly. "Ladies' Night in a Turkish Bath," good mirth-provoking farce comedy, of average appeal, did well for itself at the Cameo. Reade's Hippodrome produced satisfactory results with "Thanks for the Buggy Ride," diverting light comedy well presented by Laura La Plante and Glenn Tryon. Keith's East 105th St. had just a fair week with "The Wise Woman," popular entertainment with a three-corned love plot set in Persia, as the main feature attraction. "The Student Prince" made a splendid showing at the Park, where it had its first-run neighborhood release. "Damaged Goods" continued to do good business at the Oriental.

Legitimate competition was keen, musical entertainment was offered, and lectures were well attended, also. But it was a case of the more the merrier. All shows did well. Neighborhood houses included.

Atlanta

COMPETITION among Atlanta theatres last week proved keen.

Leading the box-office and with probably the best all round bill came the Capitol, showing George O'Brien and Lois Moran in "Sharp Shooters," plus unusually good vaudeville acts.

Next in line and close second ran Loew's Grand, with Norma Shearer and Ralph Forbes in "The Latest From Paris." As an added attraction "Frolics," sponsored by the theatre in co-operation with the Constitution newspaper, and whose members were trained by Victor Hyde, drew well.

The Howard, with Norma Talmadge in "The Dove" on the screen and local talent in "Making Movies" on the stage, enjoyed a very good week.

"What Price Glory," at the Rialto, boasts of extraordinary popular drawing power, bringing full audiences to the theatre all week.

Keith's Georgia offered Richard Arlen and Mary Brian in "Under the Tonto Rim," a western romance which played to fairly good houses.

At the Tudor the Dempsey-Tunney fight films, the third time to be shown on Atlanta screens, failed to be the drawing card anticipated. However, with "Meddling Stranger," the Tudor fared very well.

Tampa

FOR the third straight week at Victory has topped 'em all in attendance and receipts. This, the third week of Vitaphone programs, they used "The Jazz Singer and other features of a vaudeville nature. Sunday 5,388 cash customers crashed the gates. This means a lot of money at 50c and 75c and it hung up the attendance record. The week went over big.

The Tampa had "The Student Prince" as their feature attraction for the first four days, and it proved a good card. "The Shepherd of the Hills," used the last three, did nicely. Receipts for he week about average.

Business at the Strand was a little "off" on Sunday and Monday with "Doomsday" featured. The next three days was big, with "The Night Flyer" as the feature. "The Wizard," used the final two days, drew just average.

The Franklin used one of the "personally conducted" features, under the title of "Jesse James, Under the Black Flag," for a two days' showing to very good returns. Jesse James, Jr., who appeared in the film and worked in the lobby bally-hoo, had much to do with the draw. "Sadie Thompson," brought back for a second run, drew nicely for two days and "The Law of the Range" finished up the week with average business.

First National Using Straw Vote Nationally

IN conjunction with the showing throughout the country of "The Patent Leather Kid," First National plans to stage a straw vote among the movie patrons as was done for a period of one week at the Mark Strand theatre in New York, where the Barthelmess picture played recently. Besides being a novelty for the public this move will, it is thought, give an accurate estimate of the political leanings of the throngs who congregate in the picture houses.

The results of the week's balloting at the Strand showed a decided plurality for Governor Smith of New York as the choice of the fans who are Democrats and Secretary Hoover as the choice of those who are Republicans.

Opinions on Pictures

The Shepherd of the Hills

Good Enough to Score Most Anywhere

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THEY'VE taken this Harold Bell Wright story and done very well by it. True, it has nothing new to offer, it being nothing much but an animated slice of sentiment and romance. But it has a definite appeal in its theme, and is well acted and staged against appropriate backgrounds which are saturated with atmosphere.

The central figure is an itinerant preacher who gives up the pulpit to spread "sweetness and light" among the dwellers of the hills. It is his lofty purpose to settle their disputes and to bring good out of evil. He stands as the symbol of the plot, the real story being concerned with sheep-herders, a romance among them, and a certain amount of villainy.

The plot may be conventional and lacking in suspense, but the pictures and sequences hold one pretty well. Moreover, it is acted in good spirit by Alec Francis, who has the title role, Molly O'Day, John Boles, Carl Stockdale, Edythe Chapman and several others. It's the type of picture which always has an audience.

Drawing Power: The title should get them. Suitable for all types of houses. Exploitation Angles: Play up author and cast, particularly Alec Francis and Molly O'Day. Play up its simplicity and sentiment.

THEME: Romantic drama of itinerant preacher who brings good out of evil, coupled with the pretty ways of romance.

Produced and distributed by First National. Length, six reels. Released, February, 1928. The Cast: Alec B .Francis, Molly O'Day, John Boles, Matthew Betz, Romaine Fielding, Otis Harlan, Joseph Bennett, Edythe Chapman, Carl Stockdale, Marion Douglas, John Westwood, Maurice Murphy. Director, Al Rogell.

The Crowd

Excellent Entertainment All the Way

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THERE hasn't been much ballyhoo about this picture, even though King Vidor was behind it. But those who book it need have no fear of exploiting it as something very good. It is all of that. There is a real moving quality about this story of middle-class life with its struggle against poverty. And so realistically is it presented that it shapes up as very genuine if somewhat depressing in its reaction.

One might say that Vidor lifts the shades on a cross-section of an average home and permits you to see a bit of life. The protagonists are a young bookkeeper and his wife, and their problem is the economic strugle to exist and find happiness at the same time. This is a big theme, and is handled in a big way. But it will doubtless strike home as too vivid to please the average breadwinner and his little woman.

The young couple are played by Eleanor Boardman and James Murray. Both acquit themselves very capably. One sees them as very much in love with each other, but which is very difficult to continue when the wolf is barking at the door. The youth is almost on the very of suicide, but he is too weak to see it through. It is plainly planted that the boy is something of a weakling, made so by the economic struggle. The picture is admirably staged and carries real depth of drama and characterization. In all a fine achievement, but likely to prove too morbid for popularity among the masses.

Drawing Power: Vidor's name. O. K. for all types of houses. Exploitation Angles: Bill is a genuine slice of life. Play up Vidor and cast.

THEME: Drama of cross-section of young married life up against the economic struggle.

Produced and Distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Length, eight reels. Released, February, 1928. The Cast: Eleanor Boardman, James Murray, Bert Roach, Dell Henderson, Daniel Tomlinson, Lucy Beaumont, Freddie Frederick. Director, King Vidor.

Beyond London's Lights

Actionful and Interesting Drama

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

THE story of "Kitty Carstairs" is revealed on the screen under this more intriguing title, and it makes a fairly interesting picture that drags only a little in spots while working up to the various climaxes. In fact it is a spotty picture that is too slow in striking its stride. Much of the stuff is inconsequential in the building up to the more dramatic sequences, which however, are well done and worth the waiting for.

The picture is well mounted, with some exceptionally good photography and the various roles are competently handled. Adrienne Dore is Kitty Carstairs, a sympathetic role in which she does very well. Lee Shumway is John Risk, the artist, who befriends, then loves the little poor girl, and Gordon Elliott is Colin Drummond, the some what caddish son of a wealthy and doting mother who schemes to have him marry Lady Dorothy. Both Shumway and Elliott give very natural portrayals of roles that might easily be ruined in less competent hands.

While Director Tom Terriss may have been responsible for dragging out the more inconsequential episodes, on the whole he has done a good piece of work. It is a picture that should please above the average.

Drawing Power: It is a story with plenty of romance, some stirring drama and it is well acted and set. It should draw above the average in almost any house. Exploitation Angles: The popularity of the book can be used to advantage.

THEME: Drama in which a poor girl is

Jefferson O'Neill. Directed by Ralph Ince.
liam Irving. Extras galore. Story by Joseph
The Cast: Lois Wilson, Lucilla Mendez, neglected by her society lover, is befriended by a London artist who falls in love with her and wins her when the original lover decides he does not really love his titled fiancee.

Produced and distributed by F B O. Released March 18th, 1928. Length, 5,583 feet. The Cast: Lee Shumway, Gordon Elliott, Herbert Evans, Jacqueline Gadsden, Florence Wix, Templar Saxe, Blanche Craig, Adrienne Dore, Katherine Ward. Directed by Tom Terriss. Coney Island

Indicates Profitable Returns

(Reviewed by E. G. Johnston)

HERE'S a mixture of old fashioned melodrama, romance, thrills and two or three other elements thrown in for good measure which has every indication of being a better than average program picture. For those who never had an opportunity to visit a gay resort here's their chance. They can take their own ride on a giant roller coaster (the photography makes this very realistic), look over an attractive beach scene at Sea Gate, Island night clubs, take more than a glance behind the scenes at the latter and become initiated in the mysteries of concessionaire intrigue.

The cast is entirely satisfactory, with the honors going to Lois Wilson and Lucilla Mendez. The latter (who by the way is Mrs. Ralph Ince) gives one of the most natural portrayals of a role this writer has ever had the pleasure of witnessing.

An old clown and his daughter, a millionaire playboy, the owner of a big roller coaster and a cabaret dancer form the characters in the story. Other interests on "The Island" jealous of the money-making possibilities of the giant machine seek to wreck it. The millionaire comes into the tale when he and an ennuied Sea Gate gang take a ride on the coaster. He meets the old clown's daughter at the ticket booth and makes a bet with the cabaret dancer that he can add the cashier to the decorations in his bungalow. Romance develops between the millionaire and the cashier (the latter is really in love with the coaster-owner) and the "interests" use the jealous cabaret dancer to further their schemes. And now for "frame-ups," a raid on the coaster by gangsters, a riot call for the police and a strong finish with all turning out as it should.

Drawing Power: Particularly good as a feature for a vaudeville house and will prove a money maker for most any other theatre. Exploitation Angles: There are many excellent suggestions in the press book. Use Lois Wilson's name and also tell them of a new star—Lucilla Mendez. The title should be a good lure.

THEME: Melodrama of pleasure resort life. Others seek to drive out a fellow concessionaire but fail in their repeated attempts. Romance interwoven.

Produced and distributed by F B O. Released Jan. 13, 1928. Length, 6390 feet.

Love and Learn

But Miss Ralston is Pleasing

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

IF they would only give Esther Ralston a story of the type of "Ten Modern Commandments" it wouldn't be very long before she advanced into the charmed circle. The present subject is only so-so. There is really very little to it. The piece starts off on a good thread of comedy, but soon deteriorates into a silly bedroom farce. The star is about all there is to it, since the plot offers one of those compromising situations which hasn't enough substance to keep it going.

The story revolves around a girl determined to prevent her parents from separating. In order to accomplish this good purpose she allows herself to get into all sorts of jams. She jams into the police station with her car, and jams into the speaker's platform of a dignitary running for re-election. The upshot of it all is she lands in jail.

Had the story kept on this tack all would have been well. But it wavers by going bedroom. After escaping from jail she gets caught in a hotel room. The situation is cleared up eventually, and all ends well. Miss Ralston has the looks and the talent to deserve good things. She does very well here, but could do a great deal better with half a chance.

Drawing Power: Suitable for average houses. Star is appealing to attract them.

Exploitation Angles: Tease the title. Play up star's beauty. Exploit with teaser questions such as "How would you go about to keep your parents from separating?"

THEME: Comedy-romance of girl who employs drastic measures to keep her house together.

Produced and Distributed by Paramount. Length, six reels. Released, February, 1928. The Cast: Esther Ralson, Lane Chandler, Hedda Hopper, Claude King, Martha Franklin. Director, Frank Tuttle.

"The Lady of Victories"

(M-G-M-Technicolor—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

IT is too bad that this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer historical film in Technicolor must be so brief in telling a story. This latest of the series, telling of the divorce of Napoleon and his empress, Josephine—the "Lady of Victories" of the French soldiers, is of necessity sketchy in outline because it covers the expanse of a lifetime. It seems to us the story suffers because of its episodic contents crowded within the boundaries of only two reels.

This story of the Man of Destiny and his beautiful queen is the third of the series of historical films in color. Opening with a glimpse of Josephine, a young girl, being told that some day she would wear a crown, the story passes to scenes of her wooing and crowning as empress by Napoleon. Eventually the affairs of state demand that Napoleon have an heir and that it is imminent that he divorce Josephine. It appears that here plenty of drama should have been stored in the scenes; but this pulsating emotion is lacking.

Following Napoleon's divorce, the thought is cleverly projected that the armies of France were being defeated because they no longer had their "Lady of Victories" as their queen. The fade out shows Napoleon on St. Helena, his mind rankled with thoughts of his lost empire.

These historical dramas are educational, and this subject here could be shown in the schoolroom although it probes more into heart drama than history. An exhibitor can use it as a pleasing novelty. The three figures in the cast do good work and Agnes Ayres as the sorrowful empress looks perfectly charming in the color close ups. George Irving and Otto Mattieson have the roles of Talleyrand and Napoleon respectively. R. William Neill directed and Leon Abrams wrote the story.

"Battling Justice"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

FRED GILMAN is featured in this western featurette, which abounds in wild riding, with an exciting fist fight here and there. It is the usual stereotyped story, in which the ranger overcomes impossible odds to get his men, with the assistance of the girl's brother, who deserts the outlaw band just in time to go to his assistance.

Jack Dale is the ranger and Tom Temple is the girl's brother. The latter, weak and discouraged, has been persuaded by the outlaws to join their band. Jack is on their trail following a holdup and discovers Tom in the band when he come up with them. They overpower Jack and decided to hide their loot temporarily in the Temple cabin.

Later Tom is sent back for the loot as his pals wait nearby. Tom is discovered by Jack at the cabin but the former makes his getaway and, returning to the gang, explains the situation. Carver, the leader, knocks him unconscious and returns to the cabin himself for the loot. He finds the girl there and warns her not to give the alarm. Jack returns to the cabin and from there takes up the chase again. He overtakes the outlaw band at the crest of a cliff on which a desperate fight ensues. Tom recovers in time to join Jack and the pair subdue the outlaws, for which action Tom is completely vindicated for his earlier wrongdoing.

"Rainy Days"

(M-G-M-Roach—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

HERE'S an "Our Gang" comedy which will certainly set them laughing, for it is clocked with a generous assortment of laughs—big, hearty ones, too. The men behind the pleasing antics of the kids—Robert McGowan, supervisor; Anthony Mack, director; Richard Currier, editor; and Reed Heustis, title writer—are to be complimented for their good work.

The kids are confined to the house because of rain, and, of course, they soon become restless. "Wheezer" has chalked the walls and wallpaper, and his brother consequently dreads the whipping he will receive upon his mother's return home. So he and his friends decide to get rid of the chalk marks by re-papering the house. The comedy is introduced in the kids' antics and troubles in concocting a suitable paste, applying it to the paper and the paper to the wall. Several hilarious incidents occur. They make a perfect wreck of the house before they get through, and "Wheezer" and his brother each get a tanning when mother returns.

"The Old Swimmin' Hole"

(Universal—One Reel)

IN this Oswald cartoon the rabbit and his animal friends are sporting among themselves by the old swimming hole. They vie with one another with fancy diving feats and are having a good time generally when along comes the sheriff and orders them away. The animals hide until the sheriff is asleep, when they then steal his suspenders and use them as a swing. The sheriff awakes, endeavors to catch them, finds himself suspenderless and is bombarded with refuse by the animals using his suspenders as a bean shooter.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"No Blondes Allowed"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

MIKE and Ike figure in a story here that has been done before, or one very similar to it. With a couple of blondes hidden beneath the rumble seat of their roadster they accompany Mike's wife to the depot, from where she is to depart for Los Angeles. Unfortunately they place her on a train on a siding.

On the way to the depot they are pinched for speeding and Ike pleads that he is a doctor on the way to a case involving a little newcomer. The cop accompanys them to make sure they are not spoofing. Ike persuades one of the blondes she must act in this emergency, and she agrees reluctantly.

By a strange coincidence Mike inducts the other blonde on the same pretense, much to the consternation of the baffled speed cop. Just as they seem hopelessly entangled Mike's wife discovers she is on the wrong train and returns to the house. There is then the wildest confusion with blondes, wives, husbands and coppers dashing here and there until the blondes take a dive out the window and matters are eventually straightened out.

It is the wildest sort of farce and it will be pleasing to audiences in the smaller houses. There are a few humorous situations that should be good for laughs.

"Winged Hoofs"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

THIS is one of those tales of a rich gold strike and the rush to the Recorder's office to get the claim filed before the unscrupulous claim jumpers. It is a Western featurette, with Newton House in the leading role. There is nothing new in the story, but it has an abundance of suspense and action, which makes it interesting from start to finish. There is some exciting riding and an occasoinal thrilling episode to keep an audience aroused.

Old Man Weston, his son, Jimmy, and Keith Bonner finally strike it rich, and it looks at last as though Keith was going to be able to marry Weston's daughter. Jimmy and Keith start for the Recorder's office, but stop on the way to inform Madge Weston of the good news.

Luke Harper, at the head of a band of claim jumpers, holds up Jimmy and Keith, and then beats them to the Recorder's office. Jimmy steals away and also dashes for the recording office, but Harper and his band beat him to it. Jimmy manages to steel the record book while the others are busy and rides madly back to the claim. There a hot gun battle ensues between Harper's men and Jimmy's father and Keith. This is interrupted by the arrival of the recorder and sheriff, who see that justice is done to all.

"Felix the Cat in Draggin' the Dragon"

(Educational—One Reel)

HERE'S a cartoon fantasy, laid in an oriental setting and having to do with the theft of China's royal secret formula for chop suey. Felix had taken the recipe to make himself a feast, but an angry celestial had pursued him through the sky after the manner of the Arabian Nights; he had chased him through the clouds and forced him down to earth in China.

Felix is in a tight fix indeed. The news that the royal and secret formula for chop suey had been stolen and that Felix possessed the precious information makes the black cat the enemy of the Chinese. All China becomes alarmed and troubled that the secret will be given to the world. With vengeance in their eyes they chase the cat into their pagados and temples—all over China, it seems. In desperation, Felix climbs to the top of the flagpole bearing the royal ensign on which is the figure of a dragon. The cat also includes the dragon in his combat and after a struggle subdues it. You see him striding majestically along, dragging behind him a beaten and broken dragon.

In the use of tints and the scenes showing the cat being pursued by innumerable Chinese—all done in silhouette style—this cartoon excels. Good entertainment, by far.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"A Simple Sap"

(Educational—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

SLAPSTICK, slapstick and more slapstick—that seems to have been Larry Semon's idea when he conceived and directed this one. Whatever possibilities the piece may have had for developing into a fair comedy are disintegrated very early in the course of its unreeling. Semon has let his yen for slapstick run rampant with the result that you have here repetitious visions of all the articles of sale in a general store striking various people in the face, besmattering them with the contents of flour bags, mackerel tubs and the like. Nothing to rave over as humor and pretty poor as a rib tickler.

This so-called comedy starts off with an incident in which Semon's vehicle, an airplane contraption, is smashed. It then centers all its efforts around the store in which Semon and his girl, Bee Amann, work. The owner of the store, Jimmie Aubrey, is anxious to sell it in a hurry because of impending legal difficulties. Walter Heirs, Semon's rival in love, offers to bring his dad as a prospective buyer. But any hope that the store proprietor may have had to sell the store is smashed when Semon, as the half-witted clerk, gets both Heirs' father and granddad smeared and bespattered with soot, flour and liquids used for the preservation of smoked mackerel. Semon also brings in an escaped lunatic who poses as a prospective purchaser of the store.

The comedy culminates (or degenerates) into a free for all fight in which all the participants are battered with flour bags and the like and during which the store is rapidly wrecked and its stock depleted and used as amunition.

Children are about the only type of audience that will enjoy this slam-bang comedy. Perhaps there are a goodly number of elder folk in their second childhood who will also enjoy it. From out viewpoint it is generous to call it fair.

"Dumb Daddies"

(M-G-M-Roach—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

WE don't think the M-G-M salesmen have to do a lot of arguing in selling product like this to a reluctant exhibitor. This Roach comedy is so stocked with laugh incidents that it is funny all the way.

Max Davidson is starred as the Jewish father of Spec O'Donnel over whom he is worrying because he sees the boy going through strange actions and hears him uttering strange words. But the boy is just rehearsing his role in an impending amateur theatrical. Eavesdropping on a rehearsal in the rooms of Spec's girl friends, Max, to his horror and dismay, sees his son shoot one of the girls and spurn the child whose father she had claimed him to be. Panic stricken he sees his son thow the body of the woman over his shoulder and start for home. The policemen become suspicious about the bundle and enter the Davidson home, from which Max has just departed with the body determined to do away with it and save his son from the gallows. There ensues a chase which winds up in the police station where it is revealed that the "body" is but a dummy, and that Max had been wrong in his opinion of his boy.

It's a two-reeler that will brighten any program. They've gagged it unrelentingly.

"Dog Days—The Sun and the Rain"

(Educational—One Reel)

TWO little dogs frolic and frisk along a sandy shore in the first half of this Bruce Outdoor Sketch. They are a fox terrier and a Scotch terrier, two of the most lovable types of dogs, and are fine subjects for a picture of this sort. The dogs enjoy themselves running back and forth along the beach, chasing golf balls and sea birds and doing all sorts of things so that they have a grand time with their newly found freedom and are reluctant to return to their kennel.

The last half of the reel is occupied with one of Bruce's unique camera studies of the beauties of nature. He has photographed an early morning sky heavy with rain clouds and over an attractive valley behind which can be seen towering mountain peaks. The storm clouds gather, the sky becomes darker and darker, the sun is obscured and the rain, hail and snow beat down. But the storm clouds cannot hold sway for very long and the mighty sun rays behind them begin to penetrate the mist and darkness. The sombre and gloomy patches of sky are dispersed and once again the sun sends down its light and warmth.

These are two nicely contrasted subjects, the first offering a study of dogs—always an interesting subject—and the latter presenting nature in one of her grandest moods. They are of a high class.—RAYMOND GANLY.

News Reel Resume

In Paramount News, No. 59, some intimate shots are had of some of the country's leading airmen. Lindbergh was photographed in an aerial exhibition above St. Louis while Floyd Bennett and Berndt Balchen were shown in a test flight of Byrd's tri-motored plane. Other events include a record climb by Italian mountaineers through the snow of the Swiss Alps; new planes destined for the Saratoga; youngsters in the Greenwich House nursery; and Italy's celebration of the ninth anniversary of Fascism; additional stories took in shots of the retiring admiral, C. P. Plunkett; clearing a railroad pass in the rockies of snow drifts; King Gustav of Sweden vacationing in Berlin; and the liner Saturnia, the world's largest motor-driven ship.

In Paramount News, No. 60, were more shots of the British speed demon racing on the Florida beach; ice packs blockading ships in their harbors; Cuba commemorating the sinking of the Maine; painting of the Saratoga presented to the Navy Department; candidates for the Olympic diving team; New York Giants in their first workout; and blimps flying over city of Washington.

Captain Campbell and his newest speed effort is also one of the features of M-G-M News, No. 55. Other events that received due notice were: Lindbergh flying his old mail route; Dixie girls dancing; the plane-carrier the Saratoga; Norma Shearer in New York City; airmen honoring Washington's birthday; the Mardi Gras; and anti-aircraft guns in tests.

Mussolini, in some characteristic poses, figures in Pathe News, No. 17. Other important personages in the day's news were King George of England, Lindbergh, and Costes and LeBrix being welcomed in New York, the funeral at Westminster Abbey of the late Marshall Haig, are also recorded in this reel. Variety scenes on a number of subjects include a new style of traveling bag and purse, an aerial ski meet, and an Ohio boy scout receiving a medal for bravery.

Vol. 10, No. 14 of International Newsreel presented the home-coming of Lindbergh at St. Louis; a scientist and his rocket with which he hopes to reach the planet Venus; Japanese soldiers and citizens honoring their colors; Howard Chandler Christy; Chaliapin, champion British racing car and its driver; dirt track driving at Los Angeles; a doll's house worth $250,000; and the Saratoga passing through the locks of the Panama Canal.

No. 15 of International News had news of U. S. athletes training for the Olympics; Lindbergh making trip over his former mail route; blasting an island to make room for new bridge; a skating meet at Lake Placid; Frieda Hempel; explorer sailing for South American jungles; the Lexington and her brood of airplanes; defense test of new anti-aircraft guns, and Captain Campbell whirling over the sands of Daytona Beach.

Kinograms No. 5371 portray the reception at St. Louis; Britain's homage to the memory of Marshall Haig; and Byrd's plane which he will use in his South Pole attempt. A contest for toy planes staged in Los Angeles; a unique game of checkers in which girls act as the pieces; European champion bob sledders fighting for the title are more items. A humorous novelty from Donald C. Thompson in the Orient shows an ancient Chinese barber and his customers.

No. 5372 of Kinograms included the recent tests of "distant control" of anti-aircraft; span of bridge completely made over and modernized; New York Giants in training; the S. S. California passing through the Panama Canal on her maiden voyage; German runner who will race America's best; expert swimmers in aquatic tricks; and Campbell's latest speed achievement.

The recent airplane tragedy in Macon, Ga., is one of the highlights in Pathe News, No. 18. An army blimp circling the Washington monument; Captain Campbell's Bluebird car establishing a new speed record over Daytona Beach; Giant pitchers training; horse racing on the St. Lawrence; lawn bowling; demonstration of handling anti-aircraft guns by remote control; and the Mardi Gras in New Orleans.

Fox News, Vo. 9, No. 42 had the opening of the Parliament session by King George; theatrical people at Palm Beach; ski experts; the Saratoga navigating the Panama Canal; winners of the dog show in New York City; Rockefeller; Mussolini reviewing legions of Fascisti at anniversary celebration in Rome; and Byrd's South Pole plane. In this issue of Fox News also is the first of a series of camera interviews with prominent editors of country.

Four Fun Films Included Among New Pathe Shorts

Four short subjects of a humorous calibre are among the group of nine shorts that Pathe has set for release during the week of March 4. The fun quartette includes "Smith's Farm Days," "Fighting Relatives," "Topics of the Day No. 10," and "The County Fair," the latest of the Aesop cartoons. The other subjects scheduled for the same date are "The Crime Craft," eighth chapter of the serial, "The Man Without a Face"; "Season to Taste," a new Grantland Rice Sportlight; Pathe Review No. 10, and isues Nos. 22 and 23 of the Pathe News reel.

"Smith's Farm Days" is one of Mack Sennett's Smith Family comedies, presenting Raymond McKee, Mary Ann Jackson and Ruth Hiatt, directed, this time, by J. A. Waldron; Nellie Revell and Hunter Stintson did the titles. "Fighting Relatives," a one-reeler, is a reissue from the series of comedies Snub Pollard made for Hal Roach. In the new issue of the Pathe Review are: "The Golden Flower of Evening," "Leaves From Eve's Diary," and part two of "On African Game Trails with Prince William of Sweden."

Des Moines

COMEDIES sometimes are too funny, W. J. Shoemaker, a farmer living near Kansas City, believes. The other night he attended the Twelfth Street theatre. A comedy was on the screen. A stranger sitting next to Shoemaker began laughing loudly and slapping Shoemaker on the back. That started Shoemaker laughing. Finally the stranger arose. "It's too much for me," he said, as he hurried out. A few minutes later Shoemaker discovered his purse, containing $160, was gone. Funny picture, that!

Then, down the street a few blocks at the Mainstreet theatre, an audience at the theatre was thrown into confusion when a man, W. L. Marshall, died of heat disease while the picture was in progress.

New York & New Jersey

USING the doorman as the means of locating the manager's office and choosing a time when but few patrons were around the lobby three hold-up artists looted the safe of the Luxor theatre, 170th street and Grand Concourse, of over $2,000, after binding and gagging Manager Smith, his assistant and the doorman.

The ruse used by the bandits to gain access to the manager's office was that they were "Federal" men and some glittering badges were displayed to prove the assertion. After making their haul the thieves made a fast get-away to a nearby parked auto. It is reported that the Luxor management was fully covered by burglar insurance.

Some theatres change hands like one of Bill Tilden's tennis balls going back and forth across a net. This particular one, the Park Lane, a house at 89th street and 1st avenue, originally owned by Messrs. O'Reilly and Gould, has reverted to these gentlemen's ownership after being tried out by Universal, then the original owners again, and then to Loew Theatres, Inc. It is reported that O'Reilly and Gould will continue to operate the house.

It is rumored that I. Ravitz has disposed of his Allerton theatre, White Plains and Allerton avenues, New York City. Neither the report or the names of the new owners could be confirmed up to the present writing.

The Webster theatre, 167th street and Webster avenue, New York City, is reported to have closed for an indefinite period. The Webster has been operated by the Joelson-Suchman theatre circuit.

Joe Hornstein, well known district manager and executive of the National Theatre Supply Company, spent Washington's Birthday at Atlantic City with his family.

They say that the Keith-Albee Hippodrome has always had the reputation of having the longest throw of projection of any theatre in this zone but a recent report shows that one of Rachmil and Rinsler's houses, the Stone theatre in East New York, is a close competitor. National Supply recently sold this theatre one of the largest screens ever made. The Stone theatre occupies a large area with the projection booth located on one side of a block and the screen on the other side. The throw is 200 feet. We believe the Hipp. has a throw of abott 210. Another theatre, the Douglas at Lenox avenue and 142nd street, also has a throw of about the same distance.

F. R. Carter has resigned his position as manager of the City Line theatre, Brooklyn. On his return from the South, where he is making a ten-day trip with Mrs. Carter, he will make a new connection.

Pathe took a clean-cut lead in the Movie Basketball League by defeating Consolidated—while Paramount was downing Fox. As a result of Pathe's victory, a three-cornered tie for the championship is a possibility. If Paramount defeats Pathe in the final game and Fox trims Metro, Pathe, Paramount and Fox will go into a three-cornered tie for the lead. In the last double-header Pathe piled up the big total of 65-36 against Consolidated. Pathe took an early lead and never was in danger. Paramount and Fox fought up until the whistle sounded for the lead, the final score being 39-36. A crowd of more than five hundred persons witnessed the double-header. Games next Thursday evening bring the league to a close.

Editor Jack W. Goldstein issued his anniversary number of "The Film Salesman," a little journal devoted to the cause of the boys who bring home the bacon. It's just twice its regular size and carries the well wishes from a score of local celebrities in this field.

On the front cover Morris Joseph, general manager of the Big U exchange, takes an opportunity to say "hello" to all the film boys and finds no fault with the motto "Make Progress—Salesman." On the back cover. Joe Hornstein contributed exactly twenty pithy paragraphs and we're not quite sure whether Jack sold the back cover to Joe or not. Associate Editor Jack Ellis burst forth with another poem and some stuff a la Milt Gross bears the byline of Irving Wernick. Someone else wrote a one-act melodrama which has to do with the strange adventures a salesman sometimes encounters with his several executives.

Considering the time Editor Goldstein has to spend on Commonwealth contracts and looking after his stick representative "Ippish," his anniversary number is certainly a worthy achievement.

Milwaukee

THE new Capitol theatre on the west side in Racine, is rapidly nearing completion and will be opened about the middle of May.

P. M. Cain, manager of the Falls theatre at Sheboygan Falls, was in the city recently on business.

The Plaza theatre at Burlington, which was recently taken over from Dan Kelliher by the Community Theatre Circuit, will be opened on Wednesday night. Charles W. Nebel is managing the house.

Harvey Stock, formerly associated with First National in Milwaukee, is now on the Fox sales staff traveling through Southern Wisconsin. Mr. Stock replaces Elmer Dunas, who recently resigned.

W. A. Aschmann resigned his position as branch sales manager with Pathe on Saturday. His successor has not yet been appointed.

The Fire prevention committee of the Film Board of Trade surprised the Fox exchange last week by appearing at 9 in the morning and ringing the alarm without the exchange members being aware of it. The result was startling. The exchange was emptied in exactly 30 seconds and was given 100 report on points. F. G. Sliter, branch manager, claims it took him the balance of the day to recover from the scare.

Charles W. McKivett, 25, manager of the Orpheum theatre at Racine, was killed on Friday night when he was crushed under his automobile when it skidded off the road.

Charles Guelson, manager of the Badger theatre at Stoughton, was a recent visitor at exchanges.

Clyde Eckhardt, district manager for Fox, was in the city the latter part of the week going over details in connection with the new branch office. The building will be ready for occupancy on March 15th.

Mrs. O. V. Kelly of the Badger theatre at Reedsburg conducted some business in connection with bookings while she was in the city on Wednesday.

George E. ("Dad") McKean, special representative for Fox news reel out of New York, spent a few days of last week in the Milwaukee branch.

Philadelphia

ACCORDING to a statement issued by Fire Marshal James A. Mulhern, there was no loss of life in Philadelphia during 1927 due to motion picture fires. The marshal reports splendid co-operation between theatre managements and fire marshal's office, and it is stated that practically all motion picture theatres in the city have complied with the rules and regulations laid down by the fire department. Fire drills were held under the supervision of uniformed firemen, and this method of training theatre employees as to how to act in emergencies has helped materially in reducing hazards. The danger of booth fires has been practically eliminated by the use of the new safety control, without which no motion picture theatres will be licensed in Philadelphia during the current year.

Upon his return from a five-weeks' vacation in California, a testimonial dinner will be given to Bob Lynch, local Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer manager. The dinner will be held on February 23rd in the Rose Room of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. H. Bart McHugh is chairman of the entertainment committee.

Harry Knapp, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Board of Motion Picture Censors, accompanied by Mrs. Knapp, left on February 11th for a several weeks' vacation in California.

While crowded street cars and automobiles passed the scene of the holdup, Earl Western, manager, and J. T. White, assistant manager, of the Jefferson Theatre, 2217 N. 29th Street, Philadelphia, were robbed of $280, the day's receipt, by two bandits shortly before 11:15 P. M., last Friday night. The theatre had been locked up and the policeman on duty dismissed and the two victims were within a few feet of Mr. Western's car. As they were about to step on the running board, two men appeared, one of whom drew two guns and covered the manager and his assistant, while the second flourished a black jack. As Mr. Western did not comply with the command to "fork over," the bandit with the blackjack seized his wallet and ran for a parked car standing across the street. The holdup took place so quickly that the car containing the bandits was far down the street before an outcry could be raised. No trace has been found of the robbers.

The new Lindy Theatre, at 69th Street and Elmwood Ave., Philadelphia, with a seating capacity of 1,460, which is being built by Green & Altman, will be ready for opening about March 1st, next.

When the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church was recently destroyed by fire in Jenkintown, Pa., Herbert Effinger, owner of the Embassy Theatre, turned over the house to the rector of the church for the purpose of holding services until the new church has been completed.

The Bronson, Philadelphia's newest motion picture theatre, located at 47th Street and Baltimore Avenue, on the site of an old West Philadelphia landmark, was formally opened on the night of February 13th. Less than two years ago a farmhouse stood on the site of the large, modern playhouse with a seating capacity of 1,800, owned by A. Brown. More than 2,000 people crowded the house on the opening night and listened to speeches by Mayor Mackey and other notables, and saw the thrilling crook film "Lady Raffles," which was presented for the first time in this city. The Bronson has an elaborate lounge with a fountain, and is equipped with a bridge room for women patrons.

The Stanley Company is having plans prepared by the Hoffman-Henon Company for a new theatre.

Minneapolis

THE office of Columbia Pictures in Minneapolis has been moved to 502 Loeb Arcade, formerly occupied by the Universal exchange.

At least one Minnesota movie man is going in for politics. George H. Miner, who used to have a theatre at St. Cloud, will run for mayor of that city.

Recent visitors in Minneapolis included Cecil Maberry, special district manager for Pathe; Paul Berger, sales development manager for M-G-M, and the following exhibitors: C. A. Salt Lake City

THE twelfth anniversary of the founding of the Louis Marcus Enterprises throughout this territory, was celebrated last week. A big birthday party was given at his initial show house, The Paramount Empress here, with Carl Porter, manager of the theatre, acting as host and ushers passing birthday cake to all who attended the performance.

Marcus has in the past twelve years increased his theatrical holdings to six show houses of great worth, three being in Salt Lake, the Paramount Empress, Victory and Capitol. Others throughout this territory are the Paramount at Ogden, the Idaho at Twin Falls and the Paramount at Provo. It is now announced by Marcus that his organization, the L. Marcus Enterprises, has plans under way for a gigantic expansion which includes, it is understood, play houses in Boise, Pocatello, Idaho Falls and Blackfoot, with another house in Twin Falls. The growth of the Marcus Enterprises has been steady, the Twin Falls theatre having been taken over in 1920, the Victory in 1923, the Ogden Paramount in 1926 and the Provo Paramount and Capitol of Salt Lake in 1927. Geo. E. Carpenter is secretary and treasurer of this organization.

Cincinnati

THE Grand Opera House, Cincinnati, devoted to legitimate attractions, but occasionally playing a policy of feature pictures between regular road show dates, was recently threatened with destruction by fire. The blaze started in the ladies' rest room on the second balcony, and had evidently been smoldering for some time before discovery was made by Manager Unger, who immediately called the fire departments. The fire was extinguished with but slight damage.

The Cincinnati branch of Paramount is now comfortably housed in its own new building on Central Parkway and Grant Street. The building is a two-story structure, complete in every detail. G. A. Smith is manager of the Cincinnati branch.

Willis Bachman, otherwise familiarly known as "Bill," erstwhile manager of the Hippodrome Theatre, Cincinnati, but more recently manager of the Hippodrome, at Newport, Ky., just across the river from Cincy, has been made manager of the Forest Theatre, a suburban house previously presided over by Miss Dora Stricker. The Forest belongs to the "L" circuit of theatres in Cincinnati.

Keith's Theatre, Cincinnati, which closed as a two-a-day vaudeville and picture house on account of continued decline in business, has again opened, but this time as a full-fledged picture house, with a continuous policy. During the three weeks in which the house was closed, it was thoroughly renovated and redecorated, and new booths and projectors installed. The house will continue under jurisdiction of the Keith-Albee-Harris-Libson-Heidingsfeld interests, but, according to an apparently well-authenticated rumor, the structure will be razed in the early future to make way for a much more pretentious house to be devoted to pictures and presentations.

In connection with the record run of "The Jazz Singer," at the Grand Theatre, Columbus, J. Real Neth, head of the chain of which the Grand is a unit, figured that during the first five weeks of the run, 32 miles of tickets hod been sold. However, John James, manager of the Grand, not to be "outsmarted," resorted to some mathematical calculations of his own, and discovered that in seven weeks, 2,721,000 feet of "The Jazz Singer" film had been run through the projector, which he translated into 515¼ miles. Now both men claim to be eligible to the chair of mathematics at the State University, at Columbus.

According to Eastern officials who visited Columbus recently, Loew's Ohio Theatre, now under construction on State Street, will be formally opened on March 10. The line-up of house officials will be announced soon.

The Strand Theatre Building, Piqua, Ohio, occupying a prominent downtown location, has been purchased by William Love, Jr., of the Piqua Amusement Co., who announces that he expects to convert the building into a hotel.

The Fayette, Lakena and Ohio Theatres, Celina, Ohio, have been acquired by a recently-organized corporation headed by Reuben Maxon. The Ohio, which has been the subject of litigation, has been dark for the past several months.

Manager Griff Granger, of the Kaypee Theatre, Mt. Gilead, Ohio, recently played a benefit for the local post of the American Legion.

Julius Leopold, owner of the Midget Theatre, Dayton, Ohio, located at Third and William Streets, has sold the house to John Lahm, who, after making extensive alterations, will reopen the house as the Rex.

Portsmouth, Ohio, which city is in the "blue belt," may leave the question of Sunday movies to the vote of the people at the next election. Petitions have been circulated to obtain a line on the wish of the public. More than 600 signatures have been secured. However, the Portsmouth Ministerial Association contend that they will fight the plan regardless of the public sentiment.

Chicago

MANAGER WASHBURN, of F. B. O., sent his city salesmen out in the country last week, pairing up with the men who usually travel the different territories, Walter Brown accompanying Lyons, Ted Meyers with Red Johnson and Len Ullrich with Sam Gorelick. Their trips will mark the opening of the Manager's Spring Clean-up Drive.

Pathe's district office, which has been located for sometime past at 845 S. Wabash avenue, has been closed as the new policy of Pathe eliminates district and divisional managers from its staff. Publicity Director Roche continues with Pathe and will, hereafter, make his headquarters at the exchange at 1025 S. Wabash avenue.

Len Ullrich, of the F. B. O., covering Chicago's west side, claims he has made a new record.

The opening date for Redmon's Mejestic theatre in East St. Louis has been postponed until the 23rd of February.

Manager William Pracht of the Arcada in St. Charles is vacationing in Miami and expects to return the end of the month.

B. J. Vaught, new owner of the Grand at Lowell, Indiana, has reopened the house after making extensive improvements.

M. W. Madison has taken over the Palace theatre in Moline, formerly operated by Joseph Hopp, and will operate it as a straight motion picture house. The Palace has been closed for some weeks past, after having run as a vaudeville and stock house.

Dave Flam, former Great States publicity man at Waukegan, has been appointed local supervisor of Publix road shows in Chicago.

George A. Levy has been appointed district manager of the organ department of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Company and will make his headquarters at 329 S. Wabash avenue.

Fred N. Ross, who was made manager of the Pickford theatre at the beginning of the year, is supervising an extensive program of redecoration for the interior of the theatre. Fred was connected with the Saxe Amusement Enterprises in Milwaukee and managed several theatres in Wisconsin prior to his connection with the Coston Circuit.

Y. U. Young of Gary, Ind., has taken over Seipe's Auditorium and the Indiana theatre, both at Kokomo, Ind.

Manager Kennedy of the Star theatre, Watseka, was visiting on film row this week and reports that he expects to start a campaign in the spring for Sunday movies, as four other towns near Watseka now have Sunday shows.

San Diego

WILLIAM H. HILTS, formerly in the motion picture theatre business here and once owner of one of the first popular priced houses, died February 2nd, aged 58.

The National, the new motion picture house at National City, near San Diego, was opened the night of February 3rd. It is under the control of the Bush Theatres, Inc., which also operate houses in Chula Vista, Coronado, East San Diego, Escondido, as well as the Egyptian in this city. The National will give two shows nightly, with a matinee on Sunday. Music is furnished by a syncrophone.

Harry L. Hartman, manager of the San Diego West Coast houses, was a winner for the second time in the contests put on by the corporation operating this chain of motion picture theatres along the coast. A grand prize of $500 offered for the theatre making the highest percentage of improvement over a three months' period was divided between Mr. Hartman and N. O. Turner, the manager of the Stockton West Coast theatres. Mr. Hartman was also presented a watch by Harry C. Arthur, Jr., general manager of the southern division. This is Mr. Hartman's second prize watch, the other having been awarded him for the best publicity campaign during the West Coast Greater Movie Season.

Abram F. Ahrens, who has charge of the Broadway theatre, is now also operating the Hillcrest theatre, formerly run by E. C. Wills.

South East

VISITORS in Charlotte last week were D. Holt, Troy theatre, Troy; D. M. Eaves, of the Eaves Theatre Circuit, Union; G. G. Mitchell, Imperial theatre, Newton; A. F. Sams, Sr., and A. F. Florida

THE Centro Asturano theatre, in Ybor City, the Latin section of Tampa, inaugurated a season of Grand Opera last week.

George Frellson, part owner of the new Rex theatre in Lakeland, and manager of the Alcazar, in Venice, was a visitor in Tampa last week. He said the new house in Lakeland was going over big.

According to some experts, theatres can depend upon but 10 per cent of the population of a city to be regular show goers. In other words, if the show-shops of a town have more seats than one-tenth of the total population, that town is over-seated. The Victory, in Tampa, knocked this theory into a cocked-hat by playing to nearly 20 per cent of the total population on the week. This seems pretty good when you consider that Tampa has 18 other theatres. If all these people were placed end to end they would reach to—well, you figure that out.

As mentioned in this column last week, the writer was "commanded" to appear in U. S. Court at Miami for jury duty. He was there two days and covered some of the theatres. There are a number of nice, comfortable houses, one of which compares quite favorably with our "Tampa." It was noticeable, however, that none of the houses had the "front" of the Tampa theatres. A good percentage of the best houses there are controlled by Paramount Enterprises. Pictures featured were hot-off-the-bat releases.

Lee Newsom was promoted this week to the position of chief usher of the Florida theatre, Jacksonville, with which house he has been for some time and where he is popular and efficient.

Guy Kenimer, manager Florida theatre, has returned from a brief trip to Miami.

H. W. Schaefer, correspondent in Jacksonville for Weekly Film Review, spent Sunday and Monday in Tampa. He was accompanied by Mrs. Schaefer.

Des Moines

TAKING effect on February 18 several changes of managers were made in the organization of theatres in which A. H. Blank is interested. The change began with the move several weeks ago of Harry Watts, manager of the Capitol theatre in Des Moines to the Riviera theatre in Omaha, which has been under the management of A. G. Stolte, formerly of Des Moines, since the opening of the Riviera a year ago.

Mr. Stolte is leaving the theatre business for a time while he takes a short rest to recuperate from the strenuous labors in connection with the opening of the new theatre. He has several very attractive offers from organizations of the west coast and there is little doubt that he will eventually accept one of these most flattering propositions.

Succeeding Mr. Watts at the Capitol in Des Moines is Nate Frudenfeld, who has been doing publicity for the Riviera at Omaha. He has as his assistant Lionel Wesson, who has been managing the Strand theatre in Des Moines, while Harry Watts took Mr. Chatkin, his assistant in Des Moines, to Omaha with him. Jess Day, who has been managing the Des Moines theatre, Des Moines, takes charge again of the Strand theatre, while Elmer J. Levine, who has had the Columbia at Davenport, takes charge of the Des Moines theatre, and Mr. Slenker, who has had the Garden theatre at Davenport, takes charge of the Columbia there. Mr. Watson, who had the Spencer Square theatre, takes the management of the Garden and the Family, and Mr. Mac Pike, who had charge of the Family, takes the management of the A. H. Blank-Publix chain.

W. B. Frank, who had the lease of the theatre at Humboldt, Iowa, which burned to the ground with the Russell House, in which it was built, is planning soon to build a new picture house there. He has made no definite announcement of the location or the time set for beginning the new construction, but he is continuing business temporarily in a structure which has been hurriedly changed to make it adaptable for a theatre. Mr. Frank was in Des Moines last week booking pictures.

Two hundred fifty new chairs are to be installed by Mr. Nagel, who has the Princess theatre at Oskaloosa.

W. C. Denny, the new district manager for the National Theatres Supply Co., called at the Des Moines office. He succeeds O. H. Dutton, who has taken a position with the company on the west coast. Mr. Denny comes from the eastern district.

Julius Geertb, who has three houses at Davenport, was in Des Moines booking pictures. He has the Taniser Gardens, the Victor and the Venus.

M. R. Brown, who has theatres at Forest City and Riceville, has bought the theatre at Akley, Iowa. Mr. Trovas, who has had the theatre at Ackley for some time, gave over possession of the house to Mr. Brown on Feb. 1. Mr. Brown has done quite a bit to doll up the theatre at Ackley and is planning further changes in the house at a later date.

Weather in general has been a big handicap for the exhibitor again this month. Lots of snow and severe cold have made inroads at the box office. However, things are counted as better than at this time last year and more complete prosperity on the way.

The Gem theatre is Des Moines, the Beaver avenue house which has been an object of much interest since suburban houses have not been made to pay as a rule in Des Moines, has apparently proved again that the proposition is a hard one to work. Mr. Jones, who built the Gem theatre, sold it a month ago to Mr. Worrel of Marshalltown. After operating for a few weeks Mr. Worrel closed the house and the Gem will probably be returned to Mr. Jones. The house has been closed for several weeks.

The Gem is a very attractive little house and Mr. Jones has done much to educate patrons of this fashionable district to the suburban house with programs of the highest order.

R. A. Wagel is the new office manager for the Educational office. He was formerly with Pathe and goes to Educational to succeed W. O. Galloway, who is going out on the road as salesman.

E. J. Tilton, manager of the office of First National, was in Omaha to see Mr. Hostettler about booking pictures for the Hostettler chain. Mr. Hostetter has four theatres in Iowa with his longest chain in Nebraska. He has the theatres at Fort Madison, Muscatine, Marshalltown and Charles City.

Chris Nelson has sold the Alamo theatre at Pella, Iowa. The new owner is Mr. Huntzinger, who has remodelled the house, making changes to make the house more modern in construction and equipment.

G. S. Sheimo has bought the Opera Annex at Faribault, Minn. Mr. Sheimo, who has been located at Lake Mills, Iowa, bought the house from Hassing and Becker.

George Bromson has played Sunday shows at Tabor, Iowa, for four Sundays without strong opposition. There have been protests from the church organizations but the Sunday shows have proved so successful that Mr. Tabor plans to continue.

M. R. Quire, who has the theatre at Kanawha, Iowa, after showing pictures at his theatre on one Sunday, has decided not to press the issue further. He was requested by patrons to give the Sunday show but after showing the one time he reconsidered opposition to the Sunday shows there and that he does not wish to stir up any sentiment harmful to the town welfare.

Arthur Levy has been made the new branch manager for Pathe. He came to Des Moines from Kansas City, where he was acting as supervisor of salesmen. Les Phillips, who has been in charge of the office as well as taking charge of special pictures with Rube Wagel as office manager, will now be special representative for Pathe. Mr. Phillips came to Pathe with the consolidation of Producers Distributors, of which he was manager with Pathe.

The Exhibitors Service and Sales Company have opened offices in Des Moines at 1021 High street. They handle theatre equipment.

Milford McClain has accepted the management of the King theatre at Albia, Iowa, one of the Commonwealth Theatres chain. Mr. McClain was formerly at Newton, Iowa, where he was leader of the Strand theatre orchestra when it was owned by E. P. Smith, now located in Des Moines. Mrs. McClain is also a musician and recently came to Iowa as a bride from St. Louis, Mo.

O. H. Dutton, who has been district manager for National Theatre Supply Company for three years, will do special work with the company with headquarters at Seattle. He had supervision here of St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Des Moines, Minneapolis and Omaha. Mrs. Dutton, who underwent a serious operation recently, has now recovered and will be able to make the trip to Seattle with her husband.

San Francisco

LOU GOLDEN, well known motion picture man of Southern California, who has made an enviable name for himself in Los Angeles, has been appointed manager of the big Loew's Warfield theatre in this city, it has been announced by A. M. Bowles, divisional manager of West Coast Theatres. Lou has made a name for himself that all could be proud of when he managed the Kinowa, Criterion and Loew's State in the Southern city.

Golden was chosen to open the gorgeous Boulevard and Rich theatres, also West Coast theatres in other sections of the State and he has opened and successfully managed many other West Coast theatres.

Sam Pechner, formerly house manager and later assistant manager of the California theatre, also a West Coast theatre, has been made manager of the California. Pechner's rise in the theatrical business has been rapid and remarkable. He gave up his business a comparatively short time ago to enter the movie game at the bottom of the ladder. This was at the Imperial theatre, now a cheap house, and today he is manager of one of the city's most exclusive motion picture theatres.

Popular Manager Newman of the Cameo theatre, a Universal theatre, has been forced to leave the city on a business trip to look over some of the other Universal theatres. While it may be tough on San Francisco that Newman left, it is lucky for the other theatres. He recently took the place of Frank Lacey, the capable and popular boy who recently resigned to leave S. F.

Blumenthal Theatre Circuit has broken ground in San Rafael for a new theatre. It is to be fully equipped with all modern conveniences and when completed will represent $200,000.

F. B. O.'s Grand February Jubilee Week went over the top here. With W. E. Matthews at the helm in the local branch, F. B. O. did better than expected.

The Projection Room of the Royal theatre was completely outfitted by Preddey. This theatre belongs to the T. & D. Jr. Circuit and is located on Polk street of this city. Preddey Mirror Arc dissolvers with only one lamp will be used for projection of slides.

Last week the Royal theatre of Sebastopol and also the Princess theatre of Sausalito installed new reflector lamps.

The Orpheum of this city has installed new Spotlamps for rapid fire work.

What is unquestionably the most important pact ever entered into by local stage performers and the motion picture playhouses is that of the Four Marx Brothers signing a West Coast Theatres contract Feb. 10th. The deal, according to West Coast executives, calls for the appearance of the comedy quartet at the principal theatres of the circuit, extending from San Diego to Seattle. This will bring them to the Granda theatre this month.

Albany

OWING to the fact that country roads in New York state have been open throughout the entire winter with one or two exceptions exhibitors in smaller places report that business is running ahead of a year ago. Open roads have also contributed to exceptionally good business that has been enjoyed by many motion picture theatres in the larger upstate cities.

A motion picture theatre in Waterville, N. Y., owned and operated by F. M. Betts, had a close call one night last week, when fire destroyed three business blocks in the village.

Harry Goldstein, who has been manager of the Paramount exchange in Albany for the past year or so, was transferred last week to the Pittsburgh office, and has been succeeded by Kenneth Robinson, of Boston. Mr. Goldstein's departure from Albany will make necessary certain changes on the Film Board of Trade.

Lew Fischer, of Fort Edward, owner of a chain of houses, is again up and around after having been confined for several days to his bed from an attack of grippe.

A. J. Guteck, local manager for F B O, was in New York City last week, and while there met a couple of the screen stars that are featured in F B O product. Mr. Guteck, who is a Holy Cross man, attended a dinner on Monday night of this week, given by the alumni of the Capitol District.

Donald Mame has closed his theatre in Greenville for the winter. Jack Byrne, local Metro-Goldwyn salesman, is mourning the loss of his automobile stolen a few nights ago from in front of the Albany Y. M. C. A.

Jack Hutcheons, of Amsterdam, is looking after the booking and arranging of a benefit showing that will be given by one of the priests in Fonda, at St. Mary's Hall.

Excellent progress is being made these days in the construction of the new Strand theatre in Utica. The marquee is in place and workmen are now busy with the interior. The theatre will probably be in shape to open during the early part of the summer.

A. H. VanDusen, booker at the F B O exchange, who featured in an automobile mixup with a street car a year or so ago, had his car smashed to bits one morning last week through a runaway truck. Fortunately Mr. VanDusen was not in the car at the time of the accident.

Charles Marshall, who runs the Bridge theatre at Ausable Forks, is again buying second hand cars in New York City and is on the road so much that film salesmen are finding it a hard matter to locate him.

Father Blaise of Schroon Lake, who runs the motion picture theatre there, is also featuring basketball games this winter with much success. William Benton, of Saratoga Springs, who has a chain of houses in northern New York, was in New York City last week.

Allie Mallory, of Corinth, was hard hit last week, when the International Paper mills in that village laid off a large number of men for an indefinite period.

The Albany Film Board of Trade has definitely decided that it will hold no dinner dance this year. Harry Seed, local manager for Warner Brothers, spent a good part of last week on a swing through northern New York.

P. J. Herbert, who runs Herbert's theatre at Dover Plains, drove up to Albany last week bringing his wife and family with him. Mr. Herbert is running his house two nights a week.

Frank X. Shay, who owns the Happy Hour in Schenectady, has installed a contrivance, which permits his broadcasting from his office the coming week's attractions.

One of the best violinists in New York state is now being featured at the New Hartford theatre. The man is B. A. Henry, and he was a member at one time of the St. Louis Symphony orchestra.

Len Garvey, who looks like Will Rogers, and who has theatres in New Hartford and Clinton, was along Film Row last week.

A valentine in the shape of a newsy letter was received on Albany's Film Row last week from O. R. Rieffel a former local salesman, who is now in charge of the Paramount exchange in Milwaukee.

With two children ill with the scarlet fever, Ed. Hayes, local manager for Pathe, is having his troubles these days.

Charles Smakwitz, manager of the Albany theatre in Albany, is working hard these days in a beauty contest tie-up with local newspapers.

Nate Robbins is playing to big crowds at his new Uptown theatre in Utica. Barney Lumberg issued a denial last week that he and Mr. Robbins were planning to erect a new theatre in East Utica in the vicinity of the Family and Rialto theatres.

Vic Bendell, a former well known film salesman out of Albany, and who is now with the Kaufman Mat Service, arrived in town last week from El Paso, and proceeded on to Boston, where he will represent his concern.

Joe Raymond, who maintains a ten piece orchestra at the State theatre in Utica, announces a new policy consisting of double features and vaudeville.

Walter Roberts, manager of the Troy theatre, is now driving a Packard.

There is a stiff fight on at the present time between the Schines running the Avon in Utica, and Pop Linton, who has the Olympic. The Schines are using presentation acts in connection with their program of pictures.

Members of two bowling teams in Troy enjoyed a turkey supper last week at the expense of the losers. George Nugent was captain of the losing team, and Vincent Inacito, of the winning team.

The sympathy of the readers of this section is extended to Ed Trembly, of the Proctor house in the recent death of his sister, following a long illness.

Jack Campbell, manager of the Griswold in Troy, will conduct a dance contest throughout Lent, as a means of bracing up business.

Jake Rosenthal has now entered into a policy of charging fifteen cents admission each night throughout the week, and declares that he is not only receiving more money, but also that the crowds are bigger than before.

One of the most pretentious openings in central New York in many months took place in Syracuse on Saturday, February 18, when Loew's State theatre, which has been in course of construction for many months, threw open its doors to the public.

Tony Veiller, manager of the Mark Ritz in Albany, was the speaker at the February meeting of the Albany Lotos Club last week. Mr. Veiller's subject was "The Theatre of Today."

Edmund Melhado, of Albany, a former Pathe film salesman, but who is now handling bonds, was married last week to Miss Martha Hawley, of Park Avenue, New York city. Mr. Melhado is a native of the British West Indies.

A long drawn out squabble in Watertown, over the Liberty theatre in that city, was settled last week in Supreme Court. The principals were Charles Sesonske and Carl A. Phillips. The action involved a mortgage.

Cleveland

CHANGES have been made in the local Pathe exchange. The position of short subject manager has been eliminated and Oscar Ruby, feature manager, will handle both features and short subjects in the future. J. E. Beck was in charge of the short subjects. Pathe sales are being concentrated in a smaller sales force, dispensing with the services of Frank DeNoll, M. J. Glick and George Riddell. The non-theatrical department is alos being discontinued as a separate unit. Chester Loewe was division manager for the non-theatrical department in this territory.

Harry Dodge has resigned as local Paramount-Famous-Lasky exchange manager to become associated in the advertising business. Dodge, who was formerly manager of the Columbia exchange, came to Cleveland more than a year ago. Rumors of his successor have been heard, but are unconfirmed.

John F. Royal, manager of B. F. Keith's Palace theatre, has returned from a few weeks' trip to Florida. He got back just in time to participate in the latest zero spell.

We hear that the picture "Chicago" has been passed by the Pennsylvania censor board. Changes in titles were made to meet the requirements of the board, but the picture was not altered much. It is expected that the Ohio censor board will follow the action of the Pennsylvania board and, with similar changes, release it for exhibition.

Fred Schram of Cleveland and his brother, Victor Schram, of Cincinnati, have just taken over the Garden theatre at Portsmouth. They have taken a 10-year lease on the house. The Garden is a 500-seat downtown house, which has recently been redecorated. During the summer the capacity will be increased to 1,000 seats. Under the new ownership the house will show only the specials. R. S. Wood has been named house manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Charnas celebrated their 18th wedding anniversary on February 15th, for which occasion their friends rise in a body to offer congratulations. The occasion was celebrated by a dinner party at the Charnas home. Harry Charnas, as you all know, is president of the Standard Film Service Company, with exchanges in Celevland, Detroit, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati.

Robert Gordon has been appointed local representative for National Screen Service in this territory by Pat Garyn, general sales manager. Gordon rises to state that his company is now in a position to handle special individual orders, such as anniversaries, dedications and the like.

The Fischer brothers, Meyer and A. H., of the Fischer Film exchange, were conspicuous last week by their absence. Meyer Fischer spent the week in his Cincinnati branch exchange, and A. H. was making personal appearances at the leading theatres in the territory.

Pittsburgh

AMONG the exhibitors who visited film row the past few weeks were E. W. Albertson, soon to open a new theatre in Kane; Charles Richelieu, Bellfonte; C. O. Baird, Portage; Carl Becker, Butler; William Pritchard, Weston; James Reter, California; Peter Antonopolis, East Pittsburgh; Tom Bello, Belle Vernon; B. F. Cupler, Washington, and J. Kain, Pitcairn.

Cleve Adams, F B O division manager with headquarters locally, is back at his home office here for a stay, after a six week trip during which he visited much of the F B O territory which is under his jurisdiction. He reports that conditions all along the line were fairly good. Included in his stopovers were Memphis, Oklahoma City, Dallas, New Orleans, Tulsa, San Antonio, and Chicago.

Sterling Wilson, recent addition to the First National's selling force, is now making a two week trip throughout the West Virginia territory.

Samuel Soltz, former local film man now conducting the Howard theatre in Baltimore, is a Pittsburgh visitor this week renewing acquaintances with his many friends here.

Joseph Jacknic is a new shipping clerk at the Independent Display Company, succeeding Sidney Rosenfeld, who has resigned in order to devote all his time to the operation of his Rosedale Theatre on Wylie Avenue.

William D. Jaenak has opened his beautifully appointed display room at 1025 Forbes, the heart of Film Row, where he will sell and demonstrate organs and pianos.

Leslie L. Chamberlain, formerly of the Victoria Theatre at Moxham, Johnstown, is the proprietor of a new theatre now being erected at Dale, Johnstown. It will have a brick and steel structure with a 48 foot frontage. It is hoped to open the theatre on or about April 15th.

Charley Giegerich is back in town again, this time in advance for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

F. F. Smith, formerly manager for Publix and also with Loew in Memphis, is visiting the Penn Theatre prior to the opening of the new Loew theatre in Indianapolis, where he will be the manager.

Louis K. Sidney, Joe Hiller, and Nathaniel Finston were in town Sunday and Monday to help start the new band policy at the Penn, Don Albert and a 24 piece band on the stage for the first time this week.

Phil Spitalny is announced as the musical director for the new Stanley house which will open about Feb 27th.

Jack Simons, manager and Gerald Murphy, assistant manager at the Aldine, are both taken down with colds, that although not keeping them from work have made it uncomfortable for them.

W. A. Finney, division manager for Loew with headquarters in the Penn Theatre Building, just came back from Indianapolis and Columbus where Loew's, Inc., are completing two de luxe picture houses.

Ralph Toy is back in town as manager again for Harry's Ad Show. Recently he has been conducting business in the New York, New Jersey, and Michigan territories.

East Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce donated several truck loads of food and clothing to the destitute striking miners in many towns near Pittsburgh and among the members of the relief committee was the well known East Pittsburgh theatre owner, Peter Antonopolis.

Mrs. Josephine Beck, better known as "Joe," for years connected with the Independent Display Company, has the sympathy of her many friends in the loss of her father, John Grove, whose death occured in a local hospital Saturday following an operation for appendicitis.

Max Milder, division manager for Warner Bros. and at one time manager of the old General Film Co., Pittsburgh branch, is spending the week at the local exchange of his company.

Harry Grelle, well known distributor of many prominent independent pictures in the local territory, is in Cuba with a party of friends, mixing business with pleasure.

Henry W. Gauding, who lately sold his Lincoln Theatre in Mt Washington, accompanied by his wife, is sojourning in Florida. The trip has been made to benefit Mrs. Gauding's health, and the many Film Row friends of the family trust that the warm Florida climate will restore Mrs. Gauding to her former good health.

Phil Dunas, manager of the local Universal exchange, is spending a good portion of his time on the road these days keeping in personal touch with the theatre owners throughout the territory.

G. R. Ainsworth, associated with the film business here and in other cities for the past fifteen years, is now on the advertising staff of the Sun Tele. Hearst newspaper.

Harold Dunn, manager of the Warner exchange is convalescing at the Montefiore Hospital from an operation for appendicitis which he underwent last Saturday morning. Reports state that he is doing as well as can be expected and will be back to work in due time.

Following are members of the committees of the eighth annual convention of the M. P. T. O. of Western Pennsylvania to be held in Pittsburgh, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, April 15-16-17:

Portland, Ore.

MARTIN VAN PRAAG, Western Sales chief for Universal, was in the city a few days, conferring with George Jackson, local branch manager. Praag left for Los Angeles, where he will meet a new district manager, which is to be appointed.

Arthur Gangel, Sales Manager for the Advance Trailer Corporation, who has been in the city for some time, has left for Seattle, to attend to some business for his organization.

Jeff Lazarus, accompanied by his wife, came up from Los Angeles, to inspect the new Publix house, scheduled to open March 9. Lazarus is publicity director for West Coast Theatres, Inc., under whose management the Publix will be operated. Eddie Hitchcock, high-powered Pacific Coast press agent, is in charge of the opening campaign for the house, while a rumor has it that Eddie is to manage the 3,200-seater.

During the local visit of Ruth Taylor, screen star, who made a personal appearance at the West Coast Broadway, the little star called on Manager Neal East of the Paramount exchange, where she was introduced to everyone in the exchange from the poster clerk to the manager.

Announcement has been made public by Richard Spier, Oregon Division manager for West Coast Theatres, that W. C. is to operate and manage the new Publix houses in the Northwest, through an arrangement made with Sam Katz. Paramount pictures are to receive most of the theatre's dates, while the Publix unit shows from the East, are to be a stage feature at the new house. Fanchon and Marco presentations are to continue at the Broadway, which at the present time is the town's key house.

Ray Felkner, newly-appointed Northwest theatre chief for Universal, was in the city recently, holding a conference with Bert Levy, manager of Universal's Columbia, Ernie Ludwig, of the Corvallis house, and G. E. Brown, manager of the two U houses in Eugene. Felkner left for Seattle, where he will make his headquarters.

It is again said upon good authority that Will King and a musical show is to go into the West Coast Liberty, commencing March 2nd. King is a great favorite in Portland, having completed a successful nine-months' stay at Warner's Music Box Theatre.

Sam Maurice, connected with West Coast Theatres, in the exploitation department, left for Seattle, where he will be associated with Herschel Stuart, Washington Division manager for West Coast.

Are Resistances Required for Arc Operation?

ELI ROY, projectionist at the Strand Theatre, Rumford, Maine, wishes to know whether it is possible to connect the arc lamp of a motion picture projector direct to the generator without using either ballast rheostat or field rheostat.

His question seems, to us, to be so general in nature that some time will be required in answering it.

It is as follows:

"Dear Sir:

"There has been quite a bit of discussion lately among projectionists of this section over the question: Is it possible to connect the projector direct from the generator without rheostat or field rheostat?

"I am enclosing a self-addressed envelope wishing that you might answer this question direct as well as in your columns."

Very truly yours.
(Signed) Eli Roy.

Yes, It Is Possible

Answering your question in a very general manner, Eli, we would say "Yes, it is possible to connect a projector arc direct to a generator and not use either ballast or field rheostat in order to operate the arc."

If you wish to know, however, whether it is possible to operate an arc lamp from your particular generator, or, from any generator, taken as found, then that is altogether a different proposition since the answer would depend upon the type of generator used.

There are two distinct types of motor-generators used for motion picture projection, these being the Series Type and Multiple Type. With the first named, all arcs to be used are connected in series with one another so that the same current flows through each.

The voltage drop across each arc, or, the voltage required to operate each arc, in a normal fashion, is supplied by the generator so that if two arcs are used at the same time the generator would supply from 100 to 130 volts to both arcs, which would be divided evenly between the two. Each arc would then take, for example, 50 amperes at, approximately, 55 volts or the net output of the generator would be 50 amperes at 110 volts.

The characteristics of the series generator are such that it will automatically adjust itself to momentary disturbances in the arc while it is established and it will, therefore, deliver a constant current to as many arcs as may be burning up to the capacity of the machine.

Under such conditions, no ballast resistance is required to obtain steadiness of arc burning so that with the series type of generators the ballast resistance, at least, is dispensed with.

Is Field Rheostat Necessary?

Both Series and Multiple Types of Motor-generator sets are provided with Field rheostats for providing an operating range so that local conditions and temporary emergencies can be met.

With the Series machine, current in excess of the normal rating of the machine can be drawn from it for limited periods of time and, by the same token, currents lower than the rated current can also be drawn from the machine so that the projectionist can control the brightness of the screen picture to meet such conditions as varying density of the film passing through the projector.

If it were not for providing this decided advantage of limited control over the screen brightness, the field rheostat of the generator might well be dispensed with also, so that as far as concerns its absolute necessity in the operation of the arc, Friend Roy, it is not essential that it be used.

Because of the importance of being able to exercise some control over the current, however, the field rheostat forms a logical part of the motor-generator set.

The Use of Shunt Resistances

The series machine, when used for providing energy to devices which require the same amount of current (which ordinarily means two or more similar devices, such as three picture projector illuminators) is quite economical and, furthermore, makes it easy to obtain the same intensity of illumination from each projector.

Where a number of devices of different current requirements must be operated from the same generator, however, the series machine is handicapped because of its lack of flexibility in the matter of providing each machine with exactly the right current required for normal operation.

Where the capacity of the machine permits, it is possible to operate a number of devices of different current requirements (such as spotlamps, slide projectors, etc.) from a series type generator by using a shut resistance across each device to absorb the difference in current between what the device requires and what the generator supplies.

As an example, suppose it were required to operate two 125 ampere high intensity arcs and two 60 ampere spotlamps from a 125 ampere series generator. It could be done by connecting the two high intensity arcs (in series) direct to the generator and the two spotlamps, each shunted by a proper resistance, in series with the H. I. arcs.

The entire hook-up would be series in nature but the two 60 ampere spotlamps each would have a 65 ampere resistance bridged across the arc to carry the generator current not required by the spotlamps.

For such service, however, the multiple type of generator would offer better advantages, chief of which would be the matter of flexibility.

When Resistances Are Necessary

With the multiple type of generator a constant voltage is supplied to all connected devices and the current is supplied to each device according to the individual requirements. All devices are connected in parallel and in view of the above, it can be seen that the operation of each device is in no way influenced by other connected devices as long as the capacity of the machine is not exceeded. This makes for a very flexible operating arrangement, especially where a number of different machines are to be used.

No means are provided in the design of the generator, to absorb fluctuations in the current being taken by each separate device so that some outside steadying element must be used in order to achieve stable arcs in all projectors.

This outside stabilizing factor is a ballast resistance connected in series with each arc which absorbs the difference in voltage between that supplied by the generator (usually 70 volts) and that required by the arc (usually 55 volts).

Action of Ballast Resistance

The action of the ballast rheostat is as follows: When a constant voltage generator is used to supply arc lamps with current, resistance must be connected in series with each arc in order to make the arc stable (hold its right current). Suppose no ballast resistance, as this is called, is connected in the circuit, then, if the generator gave exactly the voltage of the arm, it would be unstable since a slight speeding up of the generator would cause more current to flow through the arc and this increase in current would make the gas stream hotter and would, in turn, necessitate a lower voltage to maintain the arc. This would result in still more current flowing through the arc with the same result all over again so that the current would keep on building up through the arc, until something burned out.

If, on the other hand, the generator slowed down a trifle, the voltage supplied

New Neighborhood Theatres for San Francisco

Two new neighborhood theatres for the outer Mission and North Beach districts were announced January 23d in a $600,000 building program inaugurated by the Golden Gate State Theatre Circuit.

The Crocker-Amazon Tract will be the site of the first house, for which the ground was broken at Mission and Rolph streets. It will be a $200,000 structure, seating 1,200 persons. Property on which the structure will rise was acquired several years ago by Golden State and its associates, E. H. Emmick, R. A. McNeil, W. G. Bailey and Amelia Baines. It will be named the Geneva.

Broadway between Grant avenue and Stockton is the site of the second theatre, to seat 1,800 persons and cost $400,000, with a group of stores adjoining. The new house, to be named New Liberty, will supplant the present Crescent, which will be torn down. Owners are Maurice Klein, Harry Sack, W. S. Godfrey, John S. Meyer, McNeill, Emmick, and Golden State. Reid Brothers are architects for both building projects.

Purchase of the Palace Theatre, Twenty-third avenue and East Fifteenth Street, Oakland, was announced by Golden State Theatres. The theatre was bought outright from Allen E. King for $250,000. They also acquired the former Sunset Theatre property, Ninth avenue and Irving street, San Francisco, for which no price was named.

Further Sales of Organs Prove Popularity

Further sales of organs continue to demonstrate the popularity of these instruments for use with the motion picture presentation. The Marr & Colton Company of Warsaw, N. Y., report the sale of a two manual organ to Walter Reade, operating the Crescent theatre, Perth Amboy, N. J. This instrument is finished in mahogany, matching this theatre's appointments.

Three other Marr & Coltons were recently installed in Massachusetts theatres:

One went to E. M. Loew, operating the Charleston theatre; another went to the Elizabeth theatre in Falmouth, Mass., operated by the Elizabeth Theatre Co. has also installed a new instrument in the Elms theatre, Chicopee, Mass.

Quebec Theatres Comply With All Safety Demands

The Civic Buildings Commission of Montreal, Quebec, has presented a report to the local administration giving in detail the "correction" of all moving picture theatres in the city during the past 12 months and announcing that "it is now possible to declare that the city theatres, not one of which was found to be free of defects of some nature a year ago, may be truthfully termed as reasonably safe."

The Commission has reported that nine local theatres were ordered closed permanently during the 12 months and two were practically rebuilt. As a result of the recommendations of the commission, an expenditure of $250,000 has been necessitated to obtain the required degree of safety.

Two items of major importance are still under the consideration of the Montreal Commission. These are improved ventilation methods and separate lighting systems for exits. It is pointed out that there were two theatre scares in Montreal in recent months because of the suction of smoke into the building through the ventilator fans.

would not be high enough to maintain the arc and it would go out.

Acts as Governor

Resistance in the arc circuit acts as a governor and if the current increased the IR drop across the resistance would also increase and absorb the resulting increase in voltage. If the current decreased the IR drop across the resistance would also decrease and permit more current to flow. Thus, the arc is held comparatively steady.

So, summing up what has been said, Friend Roy, it is possible to dispense with resistance entirely if a series generator is used, although the use of a field rheostat is desirable. With the multiple type of generator, however, ballast and field rheostats, both, are essential.

Newspaper Opinions on New Pictures

"The Love Mart"—First National, Stanton Theatre, Philadelphia

Evening Ledger: "With all the quaintness and color of New Orleans of a century ago well preserved in its exquisite romanticism, 'The Love Mart' has a pleasing and distinctive charm. Excellent and skilled direction, employed artistically and almost perfectly in getting a strong strain of realism. Billie Dove has a warm and spirited part that gives her a great chance to do some really clever work. It is Miss Dove's best picture."

Inquirer: "Has atmosphere, good acting and genuine interest. Billie Dove captivates in her latest screen success. Roland displays genuine ability and is destined to stir the admiration of many audiences. Very good histrionic work done by Beery."

Record: "A romantic tale of gallantry and leering villains and the rapier duello. Of course Billie Dove would be pretty and arch, but she must be desperately tragic too. She does this stretch of the picture without extravagance, movingly. Whirlwind fighting, salted with plenty of comedy. Always good drama.

"Sunrise"—Fox Films, Fox-Locust Theatre, Philadelphia

Morning Inquirer: "Comes as close to being pure cinematographic harmony as anything that has ever been filmed. . . . to Miss Gaynor and O'Brien go the honor of doing as fine a piece of acting as screen perhaps has ever known. . . . bears indelible imprint of the masterpiece."

Daily News: "Is intelligent. Artistic. Inspired. Mechanically as nearly perfect as any picture ever has been. . . . A triumph from every angle and glowing example that silent drama need not be reduced to nitwit fare to be interesting and entertaining."

Evening Ledger: "Camera is made to reach height that it has never touched before. In 'Sunrise' motion picture comes into its own as great form of story telling, art in which camera stands on its own, without help from printed subtitles, or mechanically presented situations of stage. In this art Murnau proves himself beyond a doubt one of our greatest directors."

Record: "Murnau is undoubtedly a master of his craft. O'Brien will be long remembered for excellence of his work. He has made of that husband a bewildered fool, not inherently bad, but creature of emotions and of fundamental passions. . . . Miss Gaynor as charming as in all her pictures."

Morning Ledger: "It is here that wizardry of Murnau is apparent. Story of 'Sunrise' is as old as first play—as old as time, but under skillful handling it has been lifted out of commonplace into realms of things of which dreams are made."

Evening Bulletin: "Probably most unusual picture that has ever been flashed. . . . Stands out preeminent as new type of movie and is certain to appeal to those who want pictures that inspire thought and consideration."

"The Valley of the Giants"—First National, Washington Street & Scollay Square Theatres, Boston

Traveler: "The type of drama that brought Sills his popularity. In his element as the he-man of the great outdoors. And the great outdoors has been translated to the screen with a majestic beauty that is breath-taking. Interesting entertainment. Sills in the best film he has had in months."

Herald: "Worth-while film. It is really the best that Kyne has ever written and on the screen none of the qualities of the original have been lost. All of the elements have been combined to hold your interest. Beautiful Doris Kenyon's sparkling personality adds much to the picture."

"Drums of Love"—United Artists, Liberty Theatre, New York City

American: "Story abounds in color. Pictorial beauty is worth price of admission. Story builds to thrilling and surprising climax. Holds one spellbound for two hours. Barrymore gives stunning and restrained performance. Alvarado excellent and Mary Philbin gives the best performance of her career. You will want to see 'Drums of Love' more than once. Packed with suspense, action, thrills, beauty and love interest. It will insure the exhibitors of shekels."

News: "Ought to be pulling them in at the Liberty when other Broadway pictures have faded into neighborhood houses. Has elements of money-making production. Lavish sets, beautiful clothes, battle thrills, red-hot love scenes and tiny bit of villainy. Startling lighting effects. Lionel of the Barrymore family, as usual, steals show."

Evening World: "Never, perhaps, has more beautiful version been made. Sheer beauty of story's settings breath taking. Barrymore gives one of best portrayals in career. An excellent opus, and one of most beautifully mounted things ever brought to screen."

Graphic: "Griffith touch remains same. A feast for eyes, entertainment for credulous. Melodrama, unreeled with gorgeous spectacle. Super sets wonderful. Photography superb."

World: "Event took place in movies. Seemed to me that I had not seen in all my days before cinema screen episodes photographed in so altogether exquisite fashion. Intense and devious love story. Barrymore has done nothing better. Done with the finish and beauty which come so readily to screen of any D. W. Griffith romance, and I don't know what more could be expected."

Times: "Element of sex dominates whole affair. Good deal of suspense. Barrymore gives a forceful portrayal. Alvarado's performance praiseworthy."

Herald-Tribune: "We approve of all of it. So beautiful were hero and heroine to look upon that spectators again and again broke into wild applause as they gazed. Photography beautiful. Titles much better than usual. Pleases us."

Journal: "Beautiful production. Striking settings and exquisite photography. Pictures colorful."

Post: "Touching it with those fine characteristics of direction: Splendid and plausible handling of masses of people, clear and almost three dimensional photography. Barrymore rises to one of his finest screen roles."

"Her Wild Oat"—First National, Loew's State Theatres, Los Angeles

Examiner: "A pleasing comedy drama, cheerfully tuned to meet the modern demand. It moves along briskly and with certain Neilan touches that remove it from the usual type of screen play. Colleen has never given a better performance. She is excellent . . ."

Times: "This is a Colleen Moore production, and the star herself does much to make the film blithely entertaining. Neilan has directed in something of a festive spirit."

Record: "Colleen Moore always makes good in fairy stories. She is always a perfect comedienne. 'Her Wild Oat' is a light, airy sort of thing which will undoubtedly amuse. Kent is awfully clever. A marvelous splash of fun and frolic at Loew's State."

Herald: "Breezy farce relates amusing things which happen to a little girl when she attempted to pass as a Duchess. Colleen Moore, winning in any role, finds much material in his story with which to entertain her audiences. She has an impish way with her."

"Sadie Thompson"—United Artists, San Francisco

"Lord, what a wealth of tropical atmosphere! More life and gaiety and spontaneous action than you could ever hope to get on stage. And glorious Gloria Swanson—what a performance! From light, care-free gaiety of girl of her type to terrified woman who fears impending disaster about to settle and crush her.

"Every move, every action all timed to nicety on part of this clever actress. Her 'Sadie Thompson' a masterpiece; and in her big scene with Barrymore, where religious fanatic breaks down and crushes her spirit of bravado, drama is so gripping that at times you resent music of organist. And what a compelling figure Barrymore is as cruel, petulant, thin-lipped, domineering fanatic.

A NOVEL Christmas effect, devised by Harry Rubin, supervisor of projection for Publix Theatres, was shown at the Paramount Theatre. Through the use of a fourth projector, mounted on a revolving pedestal, the figure of Santa Claus was made to appear, apparently out of space, on the right side of the theatre and then cross the screen to the left, where it disappeared. The stunt made a decided hit with holiday audiences

ROXY uses SENTRY

Mr. Rothafel's use of SENTRY SAFETY CONTROL is more than a tribute to the efficiency of the device; it is a remarkable characterization of "Roxy" himself.

For his theatre was considered to be the last word in Safety; yet, when shown the opportunity to wholly remove the hazard of film-fires, he did not hesitate for a moment.

We call "Roxy" a great showman, but back of his genius lies his limitless consideration for his patrons, the basis of which is their Safety.

SENTRY SAFETY CONTROL makes the risk from film-fires exactly zero.

Agreement

This Agreement entered into by and between the SENTRY SAFETY CONTROL CORPORATION, a corporation organized under the Laws of the State of Delaware, herein called the Lessor, and ROXY THEATRES CORPORATION, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New York, herein called the Lessee

Whereas the Lessor is the owner of a certain device or devices attachable to motion picture machines, which are intended to prevent fire and which machines are known and designated by the name of the "SENTRY" and

Whereas the Lessee owns, operates, controls and manages certain theatres equipped with motion picture machines, and

Whereas it is the desire of the Lessee to have all its motion picture machines equipped with the SENTRY

Now This Agreement Witnesseth:

1. Lessor agrees to lease to Lessee for the term of five years, and to install at its own expense, the number of SENTRY devices necessary to equip all the motion picture machines in the ~~theatres of Lessee as per schedule of theatres owned operated or controlled by Lessee~~

2. Lessee agrees to lease such number of SENTRY devices from Lessor for said term, and to permit the installment of the same.

3. Lessee agrees to pay for each such leased SENTRY device the rental of Two Dollars and Half ($2.50) per week, said rental to be payable semi-annually in advance

4. Either party may terminate this lease at the expiration of the term hereby created, by giving to the other party, 60 days in advance of such expiration, written notice of intention to do so, but, in default of such notice, this lease, with all conditions and covenants hereof, shall continue for an additional term, and so on from term to term.

5. Lessor agrees to maintain such leased SENTRY devices in good condition, to furnish an inspection service, and, upon due notice, to make all repairs necessary for their proper function in all of said theatres of Lessee free of charge for the term of this contract.

6. This lease shall not be assigned by either party without the written acceptance of the assignee and the written consent of Lessor; provided, however, that if Lessee sells or disposes of his interest in any theatre listed in the attached schedule, he may assign this lease (in so far as it pertains to such theatre) to the purchaser of such interest without the written consent of Lessor, and such assignment shall become effective upon the written acceptance thereof by the assignee; no assignment of this lease, however, shall relieve Lessee of liability hereunder, unless Lessor consents in writing to release Lessee from such liability.

7. This written instrument embodies the whole agreement of the parties hereto, and there are no representations except as contained herein.

8. This agreement shall be binding upon the heirs, executors and assigns of the parties hereto

In Witness Whereof said parties hereto have hereunto set their hands and seals this 9th day of January, 1928 This contract not valid unless approved by Home Office.

A Daily Guide for Every Theatre Manager

A Manual of Scientific Methods

MOTION PICTURE THEATRE MANAGEMENT

By Harold B. Franklin

President West Coast Theatres, Inc.

REVEALING the inside methods of motion picture theatre operation and management as practiced in the theatres of the biggest circuits, this monumental work written by one of the indusry's outstanding executives brings you information, knowledge, methods and rules for the solution of all problems which confront the manager of the modern theatre. Written in a straight-forward manner, amply illustrated with forms for reports, statements, Lost and Found blanks, and photographs of equipment devices, MOTION PICTURE THEATRE MANAGEMENT holds the answer to those knotty problems which crop up each day to set the manager puzzling over questions of Advertising, Publicity, Service, Presentations, Purchasing, Insurance, Accounting Control—in brief, every phase and department of the theatre.

36 Chapters Fully Describe Every Phase of Management

Management and the Public—Departments and Functions—Personnel and Inspections—Safety—House Management—The Service Staff—The Production Staff—Plant and Housekeeping—Auditing and Accounting Personnel—Employment—Budgets—Insurance — Advertising —Laws Pertaining to Theatres—Good Will and Ethics—Music—Stage Presentations—Color and Lighting.

Are some of the subjects covered in this manual written by an expert and made available for the advice and guidance of managers, advertising men, house managers, and all specialists in the world of the theatre.

The Author

Harold B. Franklin has been connected with the theatre since 1909, when, aged fifteen, he was employed as an office boy by the firm of Sullivan, Harris and Woods. He became a theatre manager at the age of nineteen. He was among the first to realize that the motion picture could be presented on a scale superior to the "nickelodeon" style and was responsible for many innovations and refinements in the theatre which are now general practice. As vice president of Publix Theatres he started the first Theatre Manager's Training School, and now heads one of the largest chains of motion picture houses in America.

Object of the Book

The book presents an analysis and exposition of the details of theatre management—functions and procedure —based on practical experience. Its purpose is to give guidance and advice drawn from reality to the experienced manager facing old problems appearing in a new application as a result of expanding responsibilities and activities, and present a vast array of miscellaneous fact in orderly, concise form for ready reference and practical information.

A Step Forward

The Principle of Self-Government Is Established

By William A. Johnston

THE new exhibition contract provides for a modification of block booking. Not a big modification, but nevertheless a concession to exhibitors.

This action was pretty much a foregone conclusion. The committee which drew the new contract was appointed at the Trade Practice Conference held last October under the auspices of the Government. The distributors at that time brought in a resolution, which was adopted by the whole conference, providing for a ten per cent cancellation of pictures out of a block by exhibitors.

It was also agreed that this would be covered by an appropriate provision in the new contract.

So it has been done, virtually under the mandate of the Government-conducted conference, and by agreement inside the industry.

This, to us, is the big point; it is now demonstrated, as we have urged in condemning the Brookhart Bill, that the place to solve the industry's problems is inside, among ourselves, and not through outside interference.

The principle—we say the principle—of self-government for which we have been contending is now upheld by actual incorporation in the contract upon which the business of this industry is done.

In the issue of February 4 we said: "Is there any reason in the world why the new contract cannot cover questions of booking, and include distributor concessions which would mean the end of compulsory block booking?

"We say this industry can regulate itself, if the will and the sincerity to do so exist. The fact that it has not been done does not prove that it cannot be done."

The event shows that the possibility exists. The principle is established. The new contract is not perfect. Nobody claims that it is. Nobody can justly claim, either, that it removes all the evil practices in the industry. There are dark spots upon which the light of reason and justice still remain to be turned.

But beginnings are very important things. And the beginning of self-government is contained in that provision, which concedes, in effect, that there must be a modification of coercion as applied to block-booking.

It is for the establishment of such a principle that we have argued as the all-important thing. That it had to be done under the shadow of the threat of Governmental intervention in some form does not change the value of the principle or the possibility of further progress toward a reign of justice created by the industry for the industry.

Principles, once established, have a way of gathering momentum and riding over the obstructionists who seek to destroy them.

Of that, you may be sure.

Now that the contract has been published, it is plainly up to the exhibitors to read it. We learn from responsible exhibitor sources that theatre owners, in general, don't bother to read this highly important document. Certainly they should.

In view of the fact that the contract is the constitution and by-laws of the business operations of this industry, there can be no excuse for not knowing what it contains.

"The Port of Missing Girls"

EVERY so often, apparently, an "exploitation picture" comes along. The latest to be placed in this very select category is undoubtedly "The Port of Missing Girls," which is now ready for state right distribution after some preliminary try-out runs in various parts of the country.

Taking as its theme the dangers that young girls of this present day run, in their defiance of yesteryear conventions, this picture makes a strong bid for business whenever it goes into a house where the management can see the production's possibilities.

The young folks may call it applesauce, but you can bet that their parents will be interested. No father can read of the girls who disappear each year, whether they be Smith college seniors or the daughters of immigrants, without a certain fear that he, too, may be the next to suffer similar sorrow and trouble.

The mothers can be depended on to come in droves, bringing with them their allegedly independently-disposed daughters, for the object lesson the picture discloses.

The theatre owner who plays this one and takes advantage of the opportunities the picture has, will certainly not regret it. Take this as a tip.

J. S. D.

Greene Re-Enters Field

Pioneer Motion Picture Executive to Release "Port of Missing Girls" As First Offering

WALTER E. GREENE, one of the pioneers of the motion picture industry, has re-entered the producing and distributing field, and has announced his intention of disposing of his product in the state right field. His first offering will be an eight-reeler titled, "The Port of Missing Girls."

Greene's advent into the motion picture field dates back more than twenty years, when he opened an independent film exchange in Boston. It is said that he declined affiliation with the General Film Company and the Motion Picture Patents Company to build up an enormous business of his own. His exchange was ultimately bought by the Universal Film Company, and Greene then launched the Famous Players Film Exchange of New England. At the same time he started to acquire theatres.

When the Greene circuit totaled twenty-one houses and his film exchange became the leader in the New England territory, he became president of Arteraft Pictures, which produced and released productions by Mary Pickford, D. W. Griffith, William S. Hart, Elsie Ferguson and Douglas Fairbanks. Shortly afterward the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation was formed and absorbed Artcraft. Greene was elected vice-president of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation in charge of distribution. His exchange was taken over by the combination and he disposed of his theatre circuit.

"The Port of Missing Girls," the first of the Greene releases, is reported to have been produced on a lavish scale. It was made from the story and screen play by Howard Estabrook and was directed by Irving Cummings. The cast includes such well known players as Barbara Bedford and Malcolm McGregor in the featured roles, supported by Hedda Hopper, Wyndham Standing, Natalie Kingston, George Irving, Bodil Rosing, Rosemary Theby, Charles Gerard, Amber Norman, Paul Nicholson, Edith Yorke and Lotus Thompson.

Detroit Had 181 Movie Houses Last January

AMONG the leading houses erected in Detroit during the past five years are the Michigan, Capitol, Oriental, United Artists, Fox (under construction), Senate, Hollywood, Grand Riviera, Annex, Keith's Uptown, Cinderella, West End, Lasky, Grosse Pointe Park, Embassy, Lancaster, Great Lakes, Amsterdam, Oriole, Astor, Dxter Piccadilly, Fenkell, Avalon, Woodward Grand, Tivoli, Calvin, Koppin Uptown, Ramona, Roosevelt, M. & S., Empire, Granada, Lyal, Hazel Park, Ford Grand, Ambassador, Crown, Flamingo, Franklin, Irving, Martha Washington and the Loop (just opened). Theatres erected in this period have a seating capacity totaling 75,000. Beginning January 1, 1928, Detroit had 181 motion picture theatres with accommodations for 184,500. When the new Fox is completed, it is said that more genuine first-run houses will be located here than in any city in the country, excepting New York.

Lewis Rejoins Warners' Advertising Department

Warren Lewis, who for the past few months has been conected with the road show department of Universal, has rejoined the department of advertising of Warner Bros. under the supervision of A. P. Waxman, director of advertising and publicity.

Anti - Censorship Bill Is Introduced in Albany

Assemblyman Philp N. Kleinfeld introduced a bill in the New York State Legislature at Albany, during the past week, calling for censorship repeal in New York state on July 1. The bill is identical with the one that was introduced several weeks ago, and which is still in committee. Efforts are to be made, however, this week to discharge the committee from further consideration of the first bill, which will mean that the proposition will go to a vote on the floor of the house if the move is successful.

The Legislature will positively adjourn on March 16, and there does not seem to be any great support, at least among the legislators, for the censorship repeal.

7 Theatre Firms Granted New York Charters

Motion picture companies incorporating with the Department of State, Albany, during the past week and receiving charters to engage in the business in New York state, included the Corpex Corporation, $10,000, Nathan Vidaver, Morris L. Greenberg, Harriet G. Levy, New York City; The Radfield Corporation, $50,000, Estella Goodman, Emma Paul, Estelle Hoffman, New York City; Heritage of the Children, Inc., $20,000, Walter O. Lindsey, Samuel Roseman, James E. Kenny, New York City; Alliance Theatre Corporation, capitalization not stated, J. Myer Schine, John A. May, Louis W. Schine, Gloversville; Dunbar Film Corporation, $10,000, Murray Sanders, Jacob Levy, Margaret Beyersdorfer, New York City; Price Play Productions, Inc., $30,000, George E. Price, Bertha Safier, Frank J. Friedman, New York; Baumart Amusement Corp., $2,500, Samuel Poses, Milton Kail, Fred L. Smith, New York City.

Lon Young Plans to Enter Production Field

Lon Young, Lumas and Gotham director of advertising and publicity for the past three years, has tendered his resignation, effective March 3, and announced his intention of entering the field of production. He leaves for Hollywood about March 5 to assume charge of a production unit. During the future he will divide his time between the Coast and New York.

Mr. Young has acquired an all-around experience in the film industry. His first connections were with Paul of London and Lumiere of Paris. After engaging in the exhibiting field for a time, he joined Fox as their first exploitation representative, afterwards going over to Selznick and Select, and leaving that connection to assume charge of exploitation, publicity and advertising for Warner Bros. He has had scenario experience, having written originals, adaptations and continuities. He is also vice-president of the A. M. P. A.

E. L. Lindeman Griffith's Special Representative

Edward L. Lindeman, formerly associated with United Artists for several years as special sales representative, was appointed this week by D. W. Griffith to act as his personal representative, and contact man with the United Artists Corporation. He will approve all sales contract in Mr. Griffith's behalf and will also visit exchange in contact work.

Mr. Lindeman has also acted as special representative for the Harold Lloyd Corporation.

Battle Over The Brookhart Bill At Washington Hearing

Senate Interstate Commerce Committee Listens to Heated Arguments Between Independent Exhibitors and Producer Representatives

By CLARENCE L. LINZ

Washington Correspondent, Motion Picture News

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Members of the Senate Commerce Committee on February 27, began an intensive course of education in the mechanics of the motion picture industry. A more detailed picture of the activities of the industry than has ever before been given the public was presented in the testimony.

Due to the absence of a number of members of the committee who are making a first-hand study of conditions in the Pennsylvania coal fields and the illness of others, only three—Senators Watson of Indiana, chairman; Metcalf of Rhode Island and Couzens of Michigan—were present at the opening of the hearings, at which the bill introduced by Senator Brookhart of Iowa, to ban block booking, blind buying and discrimination in selling was discussed.

The hearings were opened by Senator Brookhart, who explained the intent of his measure, which is to insure free and open competition in the distribution of films. This, he declared, can be brought about only by legislation, efforts of the Federal Trade Commission having so far proved unavailing. After six years of investigation, he told the committee, the commission last year issued an order requiring Paramount to discontinue block booking, but years of litigation will be required before that order is made effective and, at best, it applies to only one of the half-dozen or more producers who are following the practice.

While the block-booking rule is enforced so far as the unaffiliated exhibitors are concerned, he pointed out, it is not effective with respect to producer-distributor owned theatres, to which the choice films are sent.

His bill, the Senator asserted, does not interfere with the business, govern price fixing or provide for any control. It is not contemplated that the Federal Trade Commission, which would administer the provisions of the measure, should arbitrate every difference which might arise under contracts, but gives it power similar to that wielded by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which may regulate the safety appliances to be adopted by the railroads.

Brookhart Opens Hearing

The Senator injected a new thought into the matter at the conclusion of his presentation, when he took up the question of compulsory arbitration. This is nothing more than "kangaroo court" procedure as it is now used, he asserted, with the producers, having half of the arbitrators, dominating the proceedings of the boards, and there should be provisions inserted in the bill dealing with the question.

With the consent of Senator Brookhart, who controlled the presentation of the proponents' evidence, Charles C. Pettijohn, attorney for the Hays organization, made a brief statement in rebuttal, in which he traced the development of the motion picture industry, declaring that through First National the exhibitors had invaded the production field before the producers had gone into the exhibition end. The independent producer and distributor of motion pictures is not out of business, he said, meeting charges by Brookhart that the independent couldn't find a screen.

The arbitration system, Pettijohn declared, is not one-sided but is eminently fair, this being proven by the fact that of 10,000 complaints considered, arising from some 500,000 contracts, less than 80 have necessitated the selection of the seventh arbitrator provided for in cases of deadlock. In the year before arbitration was adopted, he said, there were 2,100 suits arising out of contracts, and in the first year of arbitration there were only four.

He referred to the reforms which have been brought about by the industry itself, specifically discussing the old advance deposit system by which, he told the committee, the companies had in their treasuries some $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 which they could use to finance the production of films. Today, he claimed, there is orpbably not $15,000 so held.

Pettijohn Answers Brookhart

"The question is whether we make better progress within the industry with no precedents to follow or whether we want price fixing by law," he told the committee. If a better distribution system can be evolved out of the present proceedings, the producers will welcome it, he said. They do not feel that the question of Government control enters into the matter at all, but do feel that the producer shall have the right to say how he will market his product.

The bill does not prohibit any exhibitor from buying blindly or from buying in blocks, if he wants to, Senator Brookhart replied, but the Hays organization dominates the arbitration boards and there are no court suits because the contract precludes them.

The first witness introduced by Senator Brookhart was Leo Brecher, operator of three independent houses in New York, formerly general manager for Universal Theatres. Mr. Brecher told the committee he did not believe there was any trust among the producers but that they were so inter-related as to bring about practically the same results.

First National was formed to combat block booking, Brecher told the committee, to prove the contention that the exhibitors have been fighting the practice for years.

He challenged Pettijohn's statement about Government control, quoting from a prepared statement given out by Pettijohn. Development of independent producers and distributors has been checked and the number has been reduced from 34 to 12 or 13, he declared, as a result of block booking, which leaves no dates open for their product.

Brecher Attacks Block Booking

Brecher was closely questioned by Senator Couzens as to the effect of the construction of theatres by producers, the Senator taking the position that there was no reason why an independent should continue to get films after the producer had built his own house. This was agreed to by Brecher who pointed out, however, that the complaint is not directed at that but at the methods followed by the producers in giving favored treatment to other producers who own theatres.

"Numerous efforts have been made to get the block-booking practice cured within the industry," said Brecher. "The situation is getting worse, so much so that each year sees a smaller number of independent producers and independent theatre owners, they being put out of business or in one way or another forced into combinations which are strangling the business and reducing normal competition." It is only a question of time, he added, when two or three men will be able to sit around a table and dictate the conditions which shall exist.

Details of a five-year attempt to have the Department of Justice declare compulsory arbitration illegal were given by Frank Rembusch of Shelbyville, Ind. The only result was that in 1926 the Attorney General declared the arbitration system legal. Lengthy investigations were made throughout the country, Rembusch said, and not all the reports which came to Washington upheld the actions of the film boards. An investigator who visited Indianapolis told him that the whole scheme had every appearance of being illegal, and shortly thereafter, he told the committee, the investigator was transferred to the Pacific Coast. The Attorney General had the adverse as well as the favorable reports before him when he rendered his opinion. As a result of his repeated complaints the whole question was reopened and another investigation is now being made, he added.

Rembusch Charges Conspiracy

The producers went into the theatre business against their own customers, Rembusch pointed out, with the result that today the large theatres in the large cities are not nearly as concerned about block booking as they are about getting pictures of any kind. The producers, he asserted, have reached the point where they want to cut out the independent competition altogether.

The producers' organization, Rembusch asserted, is a ''gigantic conspiracy,'' a ''supergovernment'' with powers not even enjoyed by the courts. An example of these powers, he said, could be given in his own experience, he having been fined something like $60,000 a few years ago. ''I laughed at them,'' he added, but some months ago they closed down on one of his theatres and he has not since been able to book any pictures from any producer for that house.

''They must have learned their domination from the Klan,'' commented Senator Couzens. Rembusch laughingly agreed with him, saying, ''I am a holy water boy, and there were four klansmen on that board.'' ''And two Democrats,'' supplemented Pettijohn.

While everybody declares there are three interests in the question, the producer, the distributor and the exhibitor, there is a fourth interest, the most important interest of all, ''the public, Mrs. Public, John Public and Betty Public'' and it is for their benefit that the situation should be considered, the committee was told by Sidney E. Samuelson, independent theatre owner of Newton, N. J. Service to them is imperative but the Hays organization, he charged, has given only ''lip service'' and no actual service.

Samuelson's Testimony

Samuelson was the first witness to go into detail regarding operations and experiences of a theatre operator. With graphic illustrations, he explained, one after the other, the various evils of which the independent exhibitors are complaining. Block booking means take all or get none—if an exhibitor's public does not care for Westerns he has no privilege of passing up that type of film. Blind buying means taking what the producer says he is going to turn out—''the producer reserves the right to change the name, the story, the cast and the director,'' he said, ''and to hold the picture out if it is better than they expected.'' Sometimes, he told the committee, the picture as delivered is very different from that ordered.

In blind buying the producer has a list giving the names of the pictures it is proposed to turn out and some explanation of the type of story. It is on the basis of this list that the exhibitor signs his contract. But the picture as delivered may be totally different. A classic example of this was in the case of ''White Flannels,'' a Warner Brothers picture originally offered as a tennis story, which, when delivered, turned out to be a coal mining picture.

The producer even dictates the price of admission which a theatre shall charge. ''A minimum of ten cents,'' interjected Pettijohn. ''No,'' said Samuelson, explaining that in the case of Ben Hur and The Big Parade his contract required that he charge double his regular price of admission ''for the prestige'' of the films.

''The theatre owners are buying from the biggest bully who carries the biggest stick and is most able to build a theatre,'' he told the committee. ''That is the one you buy your films from.''

Second Day of Hearing

The second day of the hearings saw the conclusion of the presentation of the proponents' side of the subject, with the depiction of conditions in several states by representatives of the independent exhibitors.

Mr. Samuelson concluded his testimony, declaring that block booking denies certain pictures to the public in certain localities because the houses cannot carry them all. Block booking, he emphasized, is not wholesale selling. At the same time, the average exhibitor has not a sufficient margin of profit to permit him to pay for a picture and lay it on the shelf in order to make room for another and better film.

In this connection, Pettijohn read into the record figures showing that 852 feature pictures were produced in 1926 and 871 in 1927, in addition to several thousand comedies, educationals, news reels, etc.

Answering a question by Chairman Watson as to how the booking situation should be handled, Leo Brecher declared that pictures should not be sold until they are ready to be seen. ''I would sell them to the theatre best able to exploit them properly,'' he explained. ''The house able to pay the best price for the picture, for that is the house best able to exploit it. I would have each picture sold on its own merit. I would not tie up a group of poor pictures and compel a man to accept them in order to get the one, two or three good pictures which are included in that group.''

Abolition of block and blind booking would place the responsibility for pictures squarely on the exhibitor, where it belongs, Samuelson declared.

It was brought out during his testimony that he has pending a suit for $300,000 against the producers and their organizations, but it later developed that the action was not concerned with any of the matters covered by the Brookhart bill.

Mrs. Kerns is Heard

Block booking is responsible for the continued showing of vulgar pictures, the committee was told by Mrs. Moray V. Kerns of Philadelphia, representing the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. That organization has been interested in block booking since 1925 when resolutions calling for its abandonment were adopted at the annual meeting in Texas. The congress is interested in furthering clean pictures for the young and has adopted the attitude of approving pictures and ignoring those to which approval cannot be given. Mrs. Kerns refused to answer questions by Pettijohn, declaring she only wanted to get the

Brookhart Hearing May Result in Probe of Industry by Congress

(Special Dispatch to Motion Picture News)

WASHINGTON, March 1.—It is believed that a Congressional inquiry into the motion picture industry may be demanded as the result of the Brookhart Bill hearings. Senator Brookhart indicated recently that he would demand such an investigation by a Senate Committee.

The hearings on the Brookhart Bill dealing with block and blind booking and allocation, according to some observers here, are intended to lay the basis for the investigation. It is believed that Senator Bookhart through the hearing seeks to bring forward testimony upon which he would base his demand for a probe.

The Senator's view is that there is a 'trust" in the industry which is forcing the independents to the wall. Congress, he is said to hold, should at once take steps to break up the alleged monopoly.

Before such an investigation could get under way, the Senate would have to vote for it. There is said to be considerable opposition in Congress to any more investigations of industries.

Representative Hudson, of Michigan, who introduced a companion bill to the Brookhart measure in the House, is against a congressional probe of the picture industry.

"I do not favor Congress setting itself up as a quasi-grand jury or a quasi-judicial body," he declared. "We've had enough such investigations and should now turn our efforts to constructive legislation."

sentiments of her organization before the committee.

Her testimony, however, led to a question by Senator Watson as to the response to such pictures as the "King of Kings," to which Pettijohn replied that tremendous patronage is being given such pictures, which five years ago would not have made expenses.

Pennsylvania exhibitors in certain parts of the State are suffering from worse conditions than any others, due to the coal strike, the committee was told by Fred J. Herrington of Pittsburgh, representing the Pennsylvania theatre owners' association. He told of an exhibitor operating three houses, two of which closed when the strike was declared, the third house operating one night a week, who is being compelled to play the pictures contracted for. The case was dismissed by Herrington and Pettijohn while the committee waited, and the latter indicated that the matter would be straightened out.

The privilege of the producers, under their contract, to withdraw from a block any picture they desired to withhold, even though the block had been sold on the strength of that film, was declared by Herrington to be one of the evils under which the independents were laboring. Such a picture would be put out as a road show for a year and then another attempt would be made to sell it to the exhibitors, he declared.

He also declared that there is a provision in the contract permitting the inclusion at any time of any additional clauses the producer might deem necessary, and asserted that often the approved contract going to an exhibitor for signature contained clauses not in the original application.

Although Maryland has censorship, it is still difficult to find films suitable for children, it was declared by Mrs. Rufus M. Gibbs of Baltimore, representing the Citizens League for Better Motion Pictures. She placed the blame for this situation on block booking, which deprived the exhibitor of any choice, and declared that if blocking was eliminated and the exhibitor could choose his pictures the blame for bad ones could be laid directly at his door. Nevertheless, she admitted, the Maryland censors are "doing the best they can."

Staab Attacks Arbitration

Block booking is not so successful in Wisconsin as in other places because the producers have no houses in the small towns, it was asserted by Henry A. Staab of Milwaukee, representing the Wisconsin owners. He declared, however, that it worked in the big cities. He told the committee that a big picture often is used by the producer to force a block, citing a case where an exhibitor signed up for a small group including one big picture which he extensively advertised, only to be told three days before play date that unless he took an additional group he would not get the film. Rather than break faith with his public, he took the block, Staab said.

Staab also attacked arbitration, declaring that the exhibitor does not ask for the seventh arbitrator because it would do little good.

Loew's Ohio theatres controls Cleveland with an iron hand, the committee was told by P. J. Wood of Columbus, representing the Ohio owners, not only first run but second as well, and the 120 independents in the city have vainly protested against the 56 day protection afforded Loew houses. There are independent productions, he told the Senators, but at present they are not sufficient to provide a full program for a house.

It was pointed out by Wood that the British film bill contains an anti blind booking provision, which he charged had not been reported in the motion picture trade press on this side, which had paid chief attention to the import restriction provisions.

Long-time protection was also discussed by Sidney Samuelson, who declared that Stanley-Fabian had tried to enforce a 10-weeks' protection against houses in northern New Jersey, but had been unsuccessful, although they had been able to get long-time protection in the Oranges. His statement brought Pettijohn to his feet with the intimation that it was not true, but the chairman told the producers' attorney that he could tell the committee about it when he got on the stand.

Sr. Louis independents are putting on double programs, with one film from an independent, in an effort to offset the bad effects of long-time protection in that city, it was declared by Fred Wehrenberg, representing the Missouri and northern Illinois independents.

The exhibitors closed their side of the case with a resume by Leo Brecher, who pointed out that arbitration is not successful because the members of the board, in deciding one case, may have in mind the fact that their decision will affect another case to come up in which they are concerned. They do their best and try to be fair, he admitted, but the human element is there. In many instances exhibitors refuse to put in an appearance before the boards because of this fact.

Editorials Read Into Record

Throughout the presentation of the exhibitors' side, copies of Motion Picture News were frequently in evidence, as by William A. Johnston, and letters and articles appearing in the paper. Johnston's editorial in the January 21 issue, on block booking, was read into the record almost in its entirety, and lengthy quotations were read from other editorials and letters which they had elicited.

Pettijohn Answers Allegations

The third day of the hearing brought to the opponents of the bill their opportunity to present argument and, armed with a 10,000 word statement which he later read into the record, dissecting the bill paragraph by paragraph, Charles C. Pettijohn took up and answered the allegations made by the independent exhibitors.

During the early part of his argument, Pettijohn was interrupted repeatedly by Senator Brookhart and members of the committee, until finally he requested that he be permitted to finish his statement and then answer questions.

Discussing first the organization of the Hays office, Pettijohn said 10 national distributors were members, eliciting immediate query from committee members as to whether they paid all the expenses, including Hays' salary. In response, Pettijohn read the names of all the members, some 26 in number, and gave the 1927 features production of the most important producers, showing that Paramount had 70, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer 50, Fox 52, Universal 52, Pathe 38, Warner Brothers 30, United Artists 10, First National 52, F B O 56, and Educational none.

This, he said, was a total of 410 out of a national production of more than 800 features, showing that there was no monopoly in production.

Pettijohn immediately launched into an attack on the Brookhart Bill as a medium whereby non-theatrical organizations could go into the market against exhibitors and, having no expenses, pay more for the films, show them at low or no admission prices, and drive the exhibitors, with their investments, out of business. "We do not think it is fair," he said, "and every exhibitor will agree with me, for people who are not in the theatre business to be placed in a position to buy for the same amount of money motion picture films in competition

Independent Exhibitors From 14 States Form National Committee

(Special Dispatch to Motion Picture News)

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Charles L. O'Reilly, of New York, is chairman, and Frank J. Rembusch, of Indiana, secretary of a national committee formed here by independent exhibitors from 14 states at the Brookhart hearing.

The exhibitors organized to take care of congressional legislative matters, particularly the bills now pending on block and blind booking and allocation of product.

When Mr. O'Reilly was questioned about a new national exhibitor organization, he refused to commit himself, saying "that takes in a lot of territory." A legislative steering committee of ten exhibitors is being named.

EVEN so serious a matter as the Brookhart Bill hearing has its lighter side. Frank Rembusch, testifying before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, and protesting against compulsory arbitration, said:

"I happen to be a holy water boy and on one of the arbitration boards four Klansmen were in there."

Amid laughter, Senator Watson, chairman of the committee, declared: "Frank, you should have got yourself a hood and a pillow."

FROM a Hollywood scout we hear: Maria Corda has left the film capital, en route for New York and Europe. It is reported she is to star for British International. . . . . Henry Henigson, general manager of Universal City, goes shortly to Europe and the report that Robert E. Welsh is to succeed him is revived. . . . Also under the head of revived reports is the talk that Cecil B. De Mille will eventually be found in the ranks of United Artists.

FROM Nat L. Royster, president of the Circle Amusement Co., Charlotte, N. C., and an official of the Theatre Owners Association of that state, we have received a letter, which we print in full:

"I have been asked by several exhibitors of North and South Carolina to write relative to some facts I have in my possession which might prove of interest to other exhibitors in this country, and might be the means of bringing out comment which would prove beneficial to all exhibitors.

"The subject, of course, will be what film rentals should a town pay for the program pictures, not counting the specials at all. I have had more grief, more kicks, and am seeing more hardships in the moving picture exhibiting business than ever before in my twenty two years experience. What causes it? Is it the fault of the exhibitor, the exchange, or general conditions?

"I have made a careful study of this question the past year as Secretary-Treasurer of the Theatre Owners Association of North Carolina, and, as an exhibitor, and I am going to cite a few facts and figures which are true, but which will hurt some and probably help others.

"I AM first going to take a town in our state of seven thousand population which has two small theatres," Mr. Royster continues. "Both are very well kept, managed by their owners, who have had several years' experience in the business. This town is an average, prosperous little city, with no unemployment. One theatre I find by looking at his books pays Universal an average of 51 per cent film rental. Warner Bros. 43 per cent, Pathe 42 per cent and Metro 49½ per cent on his gross receipts. The second theatre pays only 4 per cent less than the other theatre. Now, whose fault is this? Can the exhibitors last very long at these rentals? They are hustling men, advertise very well, keep their theatres in good shape and are well thought of in their town. The different film companies know they are getting exorbitant film rentals, but they, of course, won't cut their contracts.

"Another town I investigated is a city of 15,000 population with three theatres, all in good condition, capably managed and well advertised and exploited. I find that these three theatres are paying an average of 47 per cent film rentals on their gross receipts, with an average daily overhead of $50.00.

"Practically all of the managers of these two towns which I investigated have been in the motion picture exhibiting business for years, and should know how to buy films. It does seem that they should know enough not to pay such exorbitant film rentals, but they are doing it. Now, why? Is it because the salesmen, or exchange managers threaten them, wheedle them out of it, by luring promises of what their pictures will do, or is it because the production costs are so heavy they must have this rental." Certainly it is not the fault of financial conditions of the towns, because every factory is working, all people are employed, and the banks are loaded with money.

Then Mr. Royster says:

"NOT having worked around studios for many years, or since the days of Tom Moore and Alice Joyce with Kalem, I am not versed enough to go into detail regarding production costs, but it seems to me that judging from what writers say, and others who have made investigations at the studios say, production costs are too high, by far. When I say production costs, I mean just this, and not what they spend for advertising, for my general belief is that film companies have made a great mistake by cutting down trade paper advertising. A great many of the film producers have cut down in trade journal advertising pages, but have made up for it unfairly with a lot of 'bunk' about runs, and what the picture did in theatres.

* * *

"ONE company has been advertising a certain picture for weeks on one page, stating that it is positively the best thing the two stars have ever done, and a lot of other high priced adjectives, but the picture when a body of us viewed it, is just about the most putrid thing to be called a special, that I have ever seen. Then, when Von Stroheim, and some others, take to using up 200,000 feet of film making one picture, and spend thousands of dollars, taken from the pockets of exhibitors, to get a certain "shot," it of course makes the cost of films go sky high, and this cost is passed on to the exhibitor, who must pass it on to his public, and his public is getting pretty tired of "specials" which are no more than average program pictures. Some of the quotas which are set on certain towns in our state are all wrong, and if the film concerns who set these quotas get them, some exhibitor will lose money, and I can show you more today that are losing money, than are making it. Most all of the film concerns have an exalted idea that their pictures will set the public on their head and toes, will bring them out in flocks, and will pack theatres, when in reality, those films are average program pictures."

In conclusion, Mr. Royster asks:

"WHOSE fault is it? Certainly, it is not the salesmen, because they are told what they must get, and if they don't get it, they don't last long with their company. The exchange manager, of course, must get what his New York chief tells him to get, otherwise he is given the 'gate,' so whose fault is it? Some exhibitors, a great many, don't know how to buy films, and some, let the salesmen and managers bull them into buying, not having any control over their own will powers, but, after all, if there is waste in the making, it would seem to me that some one must get paid for that waste, and of course, the exhibitor must pay it.

"Whose fault is it? What causes it, and who pays the bills?"

Monopoly Charge Is Denied

with men engaged in the amusement business."

Reverting to arbitration, Pettijohn told the committee that of 12,566 claims brought in 1926, involving $2,712,495, the number of claims settled before trial was 5,018, awards actually made totaled 5,476, claims withdrawn number 812, claims dismissed for want of jurisdiction or other reason totaled 440, and the number pending was 1,007. Seventy-one claims were litigated after award and one before arbitration, and 25 claims required the services of a seventh arbitrator.

This discussion brought from Brookhart the statement that "we want to have the exhibitor select his own arbitration and the opposition select theirs, and those two select the third. We stay away from the courts now knowing we are going to be beaten, if we go into the courts."

"Personally, I favor the selection of arbitrators in this way in preference to the present method," Pettijohn returned, "but I cannot convince a lot of the exhibitors and distributors."

Salaries Enter Proceedings

The question of salaries was brought into the proceedings when Pettijohn attempted to show how the anti-block booking provision would greatly increase selling costs and, therefore, the cost to the exhibitor of films bought singly. Senator Couzens of Michigan expressed interest in Will Hays' salary, and asked how much it was. Pettijohn replied that he knew the amount but would not tell unless pressed, feeling that it was confidential, and that Hays' consent should be obtained, and promised to call Hays on the 'phone and, if permitted, to reply later.

However, he said, he had no hesitation in telling his salary, which "should be much more," a statement with which independent exhibitors in the room expressed vociferous concurrence. Pressed jokingly by the committee to let them in on it, he said he received $16,000 a year from the Hays organization and $18,000 from the film boards of trade, "but it ought to be more," some of exhibitors assuring him they would pass a resolution asking for an increase if that would help him any.

Considerable time was consumed in efforts of Senators to understand the selling methods of the industry, surprise being expressed that there were no fixed prices for films, Pettijohn explaining that the size of a theatre, the size of the town, admission prices and other factors entered into what was, in its essence, the striking of a bargain.

At the beginning of the afternoon session, Senator Brookhart again assailed Pettijohn with having maneuvered the Iowa exhibitors organization to switch its allegiance to his bill to opposition. He read into the record a letter from E. P. Smith, president of the organization, written prior to the meeting on February 13, in which he was strongly in favor of the bill, and urged everybody write their Congressmen and Senators to expedita its passage. Smith, Brookhart said, at the meeting introduced the resolution which was adopted, condemning the measure, and he charged Pettijohn with having been responsible.

Paramount Working on 15 Feature Films

AT the Paramount studio 15 feature productions have either been filmed, are being filmed or are about to be filmed.

Films now in the hands of the cutters are "The Wedding March," "The Street of Sin," "Abie's Irish Rose," "Red Hair," "Partners in Crime," "Something Always Happens" and "The Code of Honor."

Before the cameras are "The Patriot," "Three Sinners" "Easy Come, Easy Go," an untitled Bebe Daniels vehicle, an untitled Fields-Conklin picture, and "Super of the Gaiety," tentative. Going into production in the near future will be George Bancroft's vehicle, another Beery-Hatton comedy, a Florence Vidor vehicle, a Richard Dix film to be called "Knocking 'Em Over," a Zane Grey western, "White Hands" to star Esther Ralston, "Ladies of the Mob" to feature Clara Bow, a co-starring vehicle for Fay Wray and Gary Cooper, and "Beggars of Life."

Brookhart also read a letter from Tom Arthur, another Iowa exhibitor, the only one of the group, he said, still in favor of the bill, in which it was declared that Will Hays had sufficient power to defeat any attempt to enact the legislation. Pettijohn immediately challenged the statement as an attempt to inject politics into the subject. "Mr. Hays has never read the Brookhart Bill," he asserted. "I have never discussed it with him or with any member of this committee." The whole thing was "bunkum," he charged.

There was no agitation in the motion picture industry over block booking until the issuance of the Federal Trade Commission's order last year, Pettijohn continued. The British film bill, with its anti-block-booking provisions intended to cripple the sale of American films in the United Kingdom, first brought the matter to the front.

He took the time to refer to the testimony given by two women, representing large organizations, to the effect that the films needed cleaning up, declaring that "it is my honest belief that motion pictures today are the cleanest form of human expression that there is." The newspapers, books and magazines are full of improper matter, he said. The papers have given much publicity and shown countless pictures of such scandals as the Hall-Mills murder, the Gray-Snyder murder and the Peaches Browning cases, but not an inch of space has been given those matters in the news reels.

A heated controversy bid fair to get under way when Pettijohn said he did not believe Senator Brookhart wrote the bill, but said he was not sure who did write it. Senator Couzens evinced considerable interest in the proposition, and Brookhart intimated that he was the real author, when Chairman Watson ended the discussion by stating that it is the assumption that a Senator is the author of any bill he introduces unless he specifies otherwise.

Another passage took place when Brookhart began to read a list of theatres owned by various companies to show that there has been allocation of territory among producer-exhibitors. He cited a number of theatres in one of Southern States as belonging to Publix. Pettijohn challenging the statement with the assertion that they were Saenger houses.

Taking up his prepared statement, Pettijohn discussed the bill paragraph by paragraph. If the evils described in the bill are true, he declared, they should be brought to the attention of the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission for prosecution under the anti-trust laws, the provisions of which are ample to correct any such evils. The Department of Justice, he pointed out, is now making a comprehensive investigation of the industry.

Too Many Theatres

There can be no monopoly in the industry, he continued. Each year a different company achieves the reputation of putting out the best pictures. Any independent with a good film, he said, can get distribution in any one of a half-dozen companies without difficulty.

The trouble with the industry is that there are too many theatres and too many pictures, he told the committee. Monopoly denotes an absence of competition, he pointed out, but the motion picture industry today is suffering from an overabundance of intensive competition.

Block-book abolition, he asserted, would put an end to wholesale selling, a phase which has frequently been upheld by the courts. If the effect of the bill as written would be to do that, Brookhart interjected, he wanted the committee to amend it. It was not intended to abolish wholesaling.

Pettijohn also asserted that section 7, giving the Federal Trade Commission the right to fix the differential between pictures sold in a block, and the same pictures sold separately, was nothing more or less than price fixing by the Government.

Pettijohn's Argument

He pointed to the block-booking system of selling as merely the wholesaling of pictures and compared it to the wholesaling of shoes or any other purchasable product. He referred to the individual selling of pictures as provided in the Brookhart measure, as a practical impossibility that would react more to the disadvantage of the small exhibitor than to the larger ones, and one that would actually stifle competition instead of stimulating it. He urged that the industry was well able to take care of its own troubles and that those troubles would be multiplied many times if under the conditions of the bill motion pictures were to pass under the supervision of a Governmental commission.

After discussing briefly the intricate working of the selling and distribution of motion pictures Pettijohn plunged into his attack on the Brookhart measure. With regard to the intensive campaign being waged in certain quarter for the passage of the bill, Pettijohn said:

"The organization of messages from 'the folks back home' is as familiar to people in the motion picture business as it is to folks engaged in other lines of business and

The modern theatre occupies the finest buildings of the cities in which they cater to the public. A notable example of this feature in the new day of the motion picture and pictures and vaudeville theatre is the Keith Albee house in Columbus. The theatre occupies a large part of the Telephone Company building, shown in th photo above

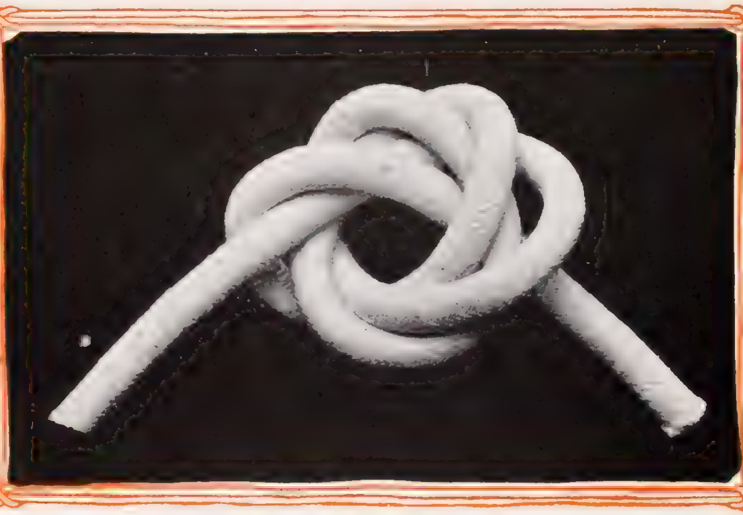
—the asbestos covered wire

Here it is—the extra flexible Rockbestos Motion Picture Cable

You will find it on all the leading projectors, arc lights, sun arcs, high intensity lamps—wherever heat is.



You can tie it in knots! And it will not crack, nor break and the surface remains intact—practically forever.

The leading projectionists of the country recommend and use Rockbestos Motion Picture Cable.

Rockbestos is safe. It cannot burn and it is good insurance.

When you buy M. P. Cable ask for Rockbestos —the extra flexible.

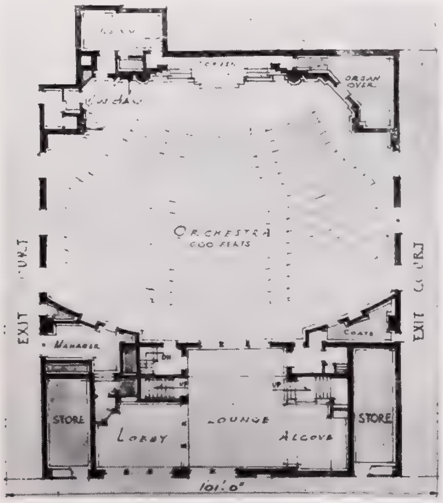
THEATRE DESIGN FOLLOWS THE ACTUAL CONSTRUCTION

Architectural Conception Developed in St. George Playhouse May Establish Precedent

THE recent opening of the St. George Playhouse in the hotel section of downtown Brooklyn, N. Y., introduces a theatre design so distinctive in its effects and practical from a standpoint of construction that it appears to hold the possibilities of forming precedent and influencing motion picture theatre building.

The St. George is operated as one of the Fifth Avenue Playhouse group of intimate theatres devoted to motion pictures exclusively. It was built by the St. George Holding Co., of Brooklyn. Schlanger and Ehrenrich, architects of New York, designed the building.



Orchestra floor plan

With a certain sureness and originality, the design of the St. George Playhouse has evolved itself around the economical and practical necessities—certainly a good basis to commence with and a logical source for inventiveness. The actual construction has been retained and expressed in forms that are well proportioned and composed, determining to a great extent the finished product.

The complete breaking away from the use of hanging domes, elliptical shaped proscenium and the familiar columns and cornices, is undoubtedly an important and much awaited step that has been achieved in the conception of this structure. Indications that there is a noticeable reaction from these old forms upon which the theatre has relied for so long are not wanting. Among the indications is the growing popularity of the recent efforts along the line of putting scenic outdoor effects in the theatre auditorium as highly developed in the so-called "atmospheric theatre."

The actual beams and slabs of the ceiling construction form the architectural treatment of the St. George. These are stepped down in different planes and meet the sidewalls at a very intimate height.

The theatre has a capacity of one thousand seats, six hundred in the

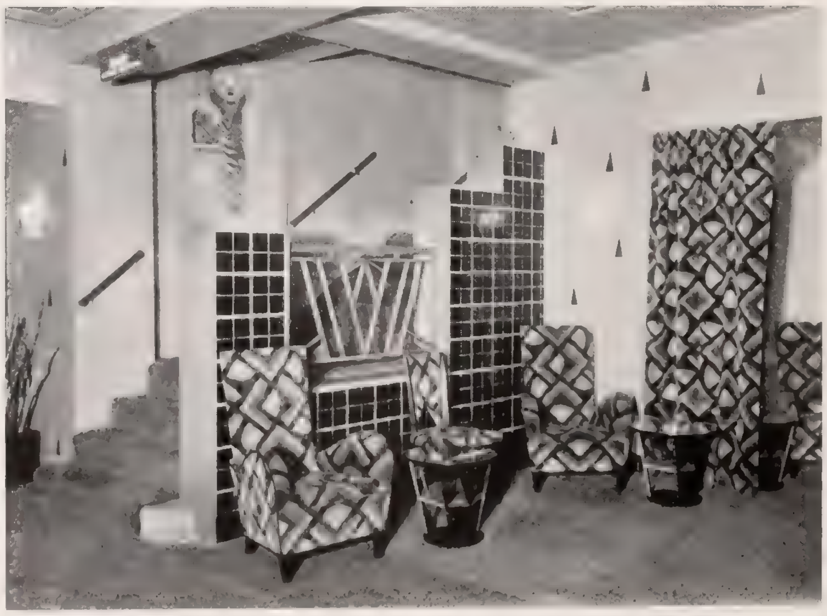
On the left, the ticket booth located in the main lobby. Its placement utilizes corner space under the stairway to the loges. The slope necessitated by the stairway is repeated on the other side of the opening, thus achieving an interesting design in harmony with the general scheme of the theatre.

Shown on the right is a portion of the lounge, opening off the lobby and with stairway leading to the loges. The walls are of rough plaster, painted in a dull orange with black spots. Black tile is used as a facing for the stair wall. Coffee is served in this lounge and there is ample space for the convenience of a large number of people.

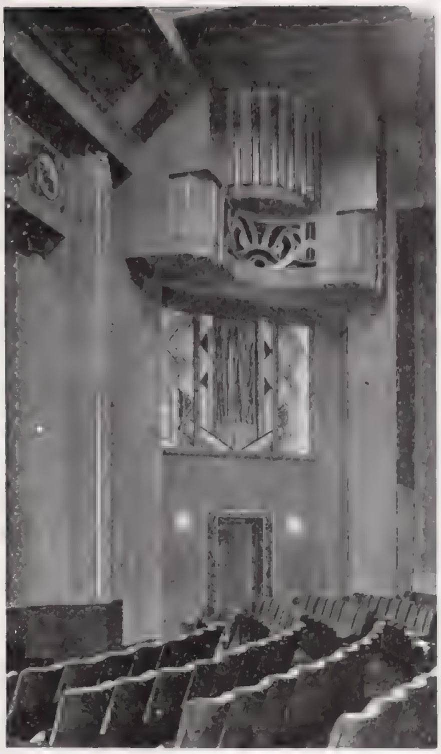


orchestra and four hundred in the loge. The loge is entered from the lounging room under, by a very short run of steps, which takes one to the rear of this group of seats, thereby not disturbing those already seated. The loge appears to be an intimate alcove, kept low and with a relation to the screen that affords perfect sight lines and restfulness.

The theatre, being built expressly for motion pictures has prompted designing the architectural frame immediately around the picture screen, a treatment which is more successful in directing interest to the screen than the tremendous proscenium opening with the screen appearing as small and frequently of merely secondary interest by contrast with its huge arched frame.

A small platform stage is provided to form a setting in front of the screen and also for any entertainment that might be required. The musicians are effectively placed off to one side, in a recessed niche of silver coated walls, making a point of special interest in lending an individual touch. Directly opposite is the organ loft, the tone opening for which is a geometrical design of pierced glass work.

The decorative scheme of the auditorium is of a rich, warm gray, relieved by carefully placed ornament in a large variety of soft colors blending into an harmonious unit. The complete color scheme is given additional interest by the placing of silver leaf in various grooves and other places on the ornament. This not only blends with the color, but results during the time of subdued lighting, in a scintillating and shimmering play of light and color. In the effort to concentrate chief interest on the stage, all heavy architectural projections on the sidewalls are obviated, leaving a simple treatment of well proportioned panels, upon which was painted a motivating design, being both decorative and serving the important purpose of leading the eye to the screen. The main curtain is consistent with the rest of the proscenium treatment and decoration, having vertical strips of silver applied to a rich mellow gold Repp fabric.

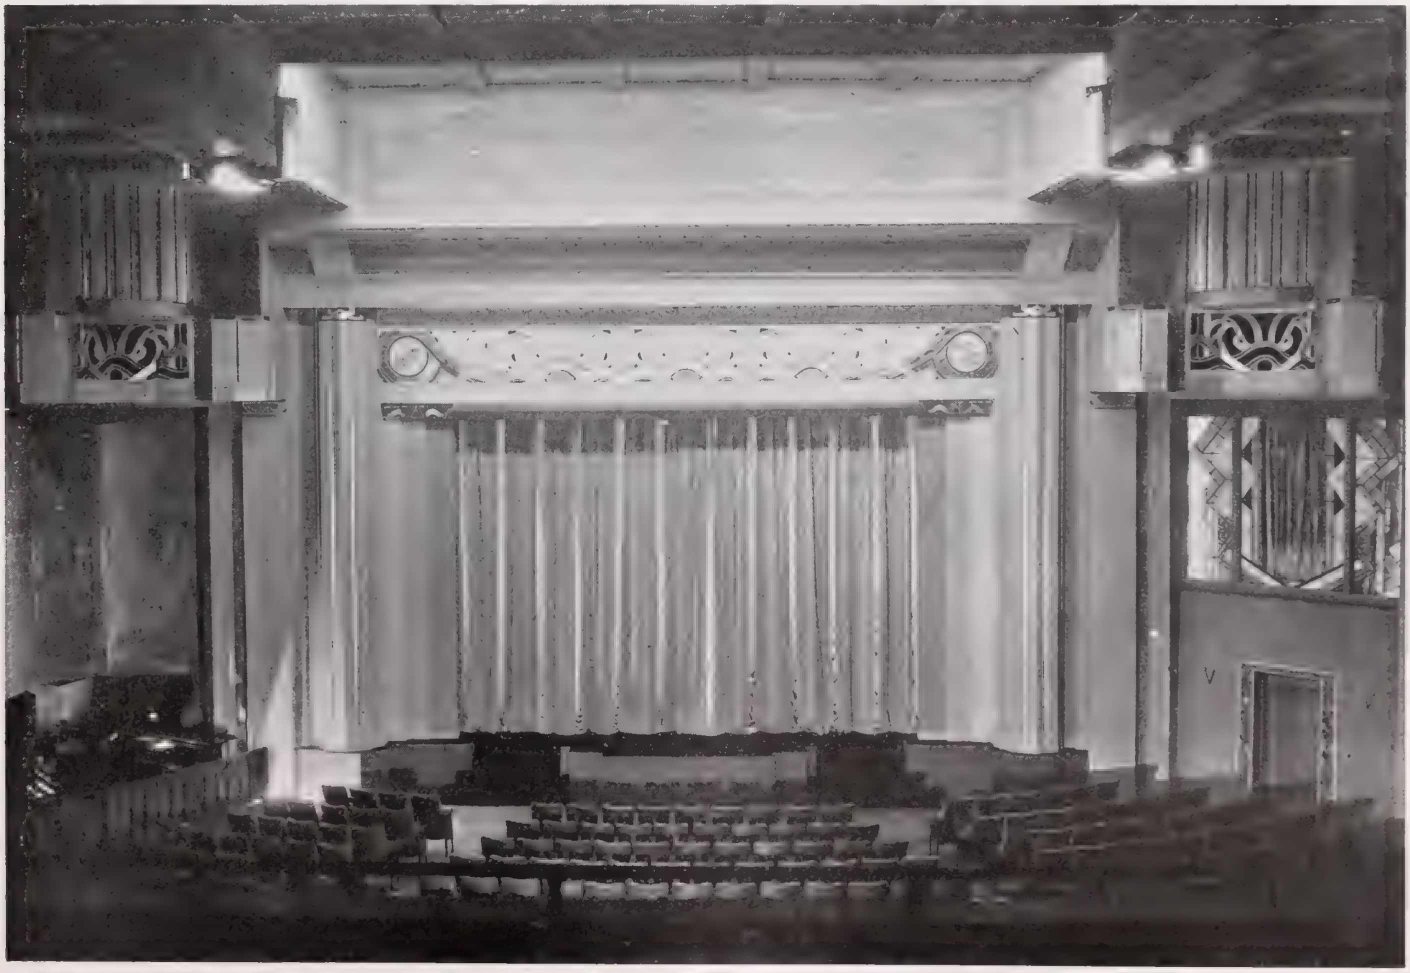


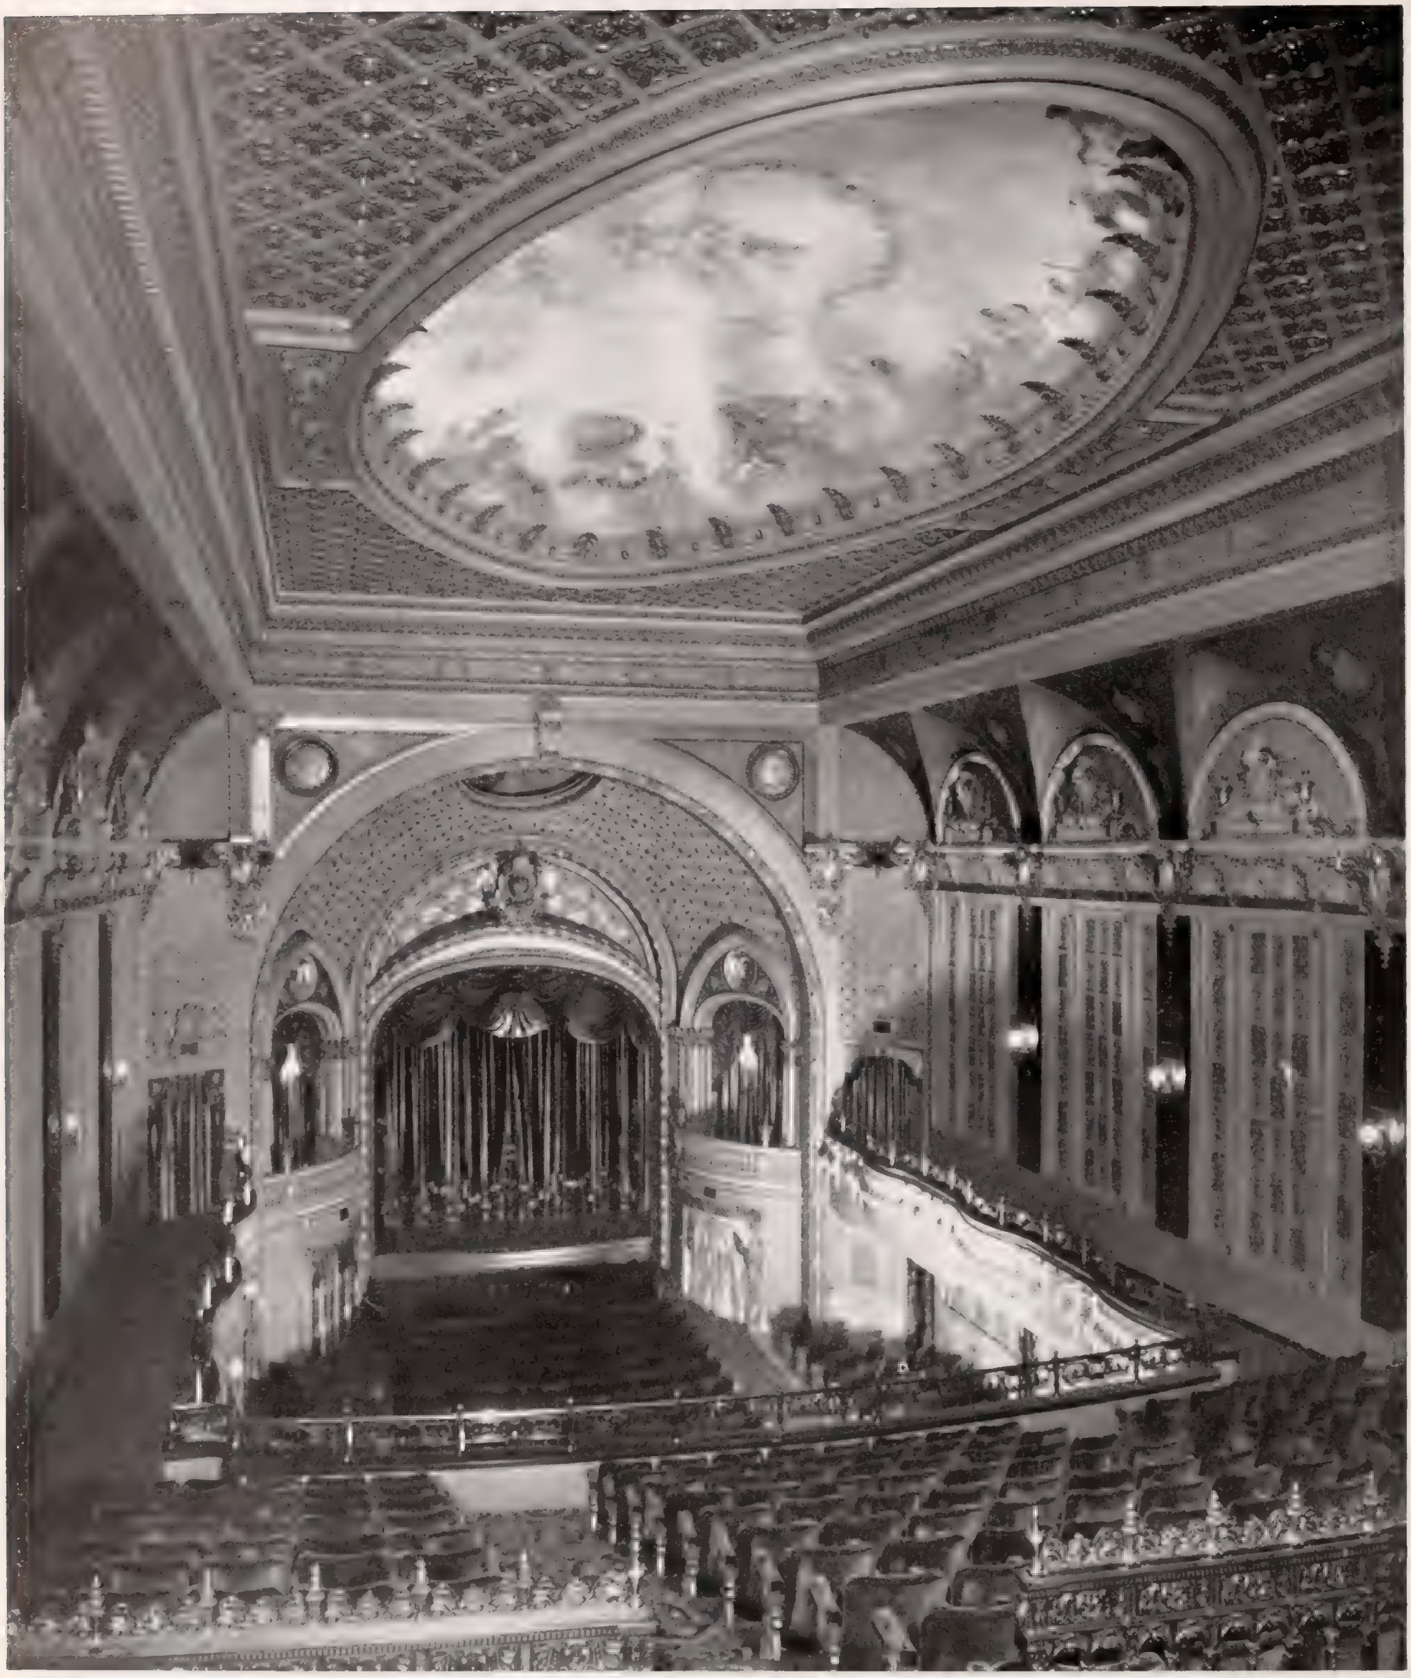
Above, view of the proscenium arch showing organ louvre, illuminated from behind, and the unusual treatment of design and lighting

Below, the screen "stage" and proscenium walls. Note particularly the handling of the ceiling treatment, which follows the actual construction of the building and eliminates the conventional hanging domes and upright columns.

The architecture and decorative scheme is dependent on the lighting effects, which govern the entire conception. There is a complete departure here from the usual use of cove lighting and hanging fixtures, which tend toward breaking up the architectural lines of an interior. The lighting fixtures are so placed on the ceiling that the illumination contributes its part to the architectural design and the development of visual interest.

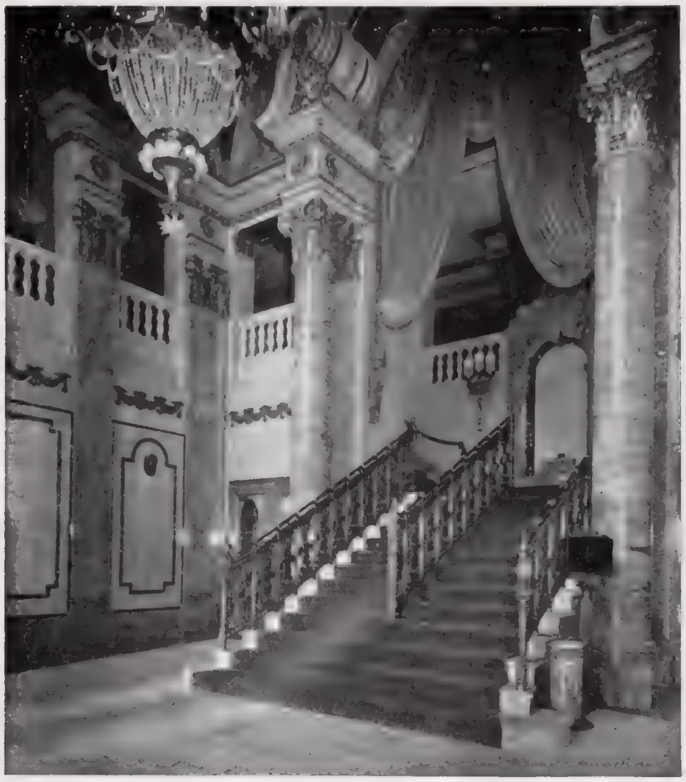
There is nothing in this architectural treatment which restricts its application to the intimate house. With equal success it might be employed in designs for the massive theatre.





SOLVING PROBLEM OF SPACE LIMITATION

Harnessed with seemingly an impossible situation, the architect of the Tower theatre, Los Angeles, has devised a most ingenious solution of the problem of erecting a de luxe type theatre with a seating capacity of 900 on a lot measuring fifty by one hundred and fifty feet. Above is a general view of the auditorium.



The main stairway located at the end of the grand hall, achieving on a small scale the impression of strength and dignity which is one of the outstanding effects of the massive de luxe picture theatres.

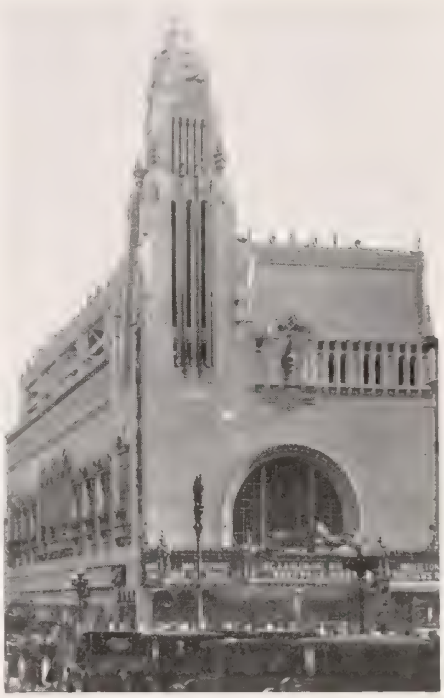
A THEATRE BUILT ON A LOT 50 X 150 FEET

Ingenious Design Overcomes Space Restrictions in Los Angeles Playhouse Seating Nine Hundred, S. Charles Lee, Architect

PROBABLY one of the most difficult things for this publication to locate for its readers is a building without precedent, and we are publishing in this issue what we believe to be a find. Harnessed with seemingly an impossible situation, the architect of the Tower theatre, Los Angeles, has devised a most ingenious solution to the problem.

To analyze his problem from the outset, the owner of the theatre, H. L. Gumbiner, well known operator of a chain of theatres, owned a lot on the southeast corner of Eighth and Broadway, Los Angeles, a major intersection of the main downtown thoroughfare. This lot was only 50 x 150 feet, with no possibility of acquiring more ground. The location formerly contained a theatre of 650 seats. The owner wanted a new house to seat 900, and in addition must have shops or stores on the two street fronts in order to keep a flow of people past his doors. The difficulties of the project can be seen at a glance, by the experienced; a small area with which to work; bringing the people into the house off center; an architectural treatment so as to obtain spaciousness on the inside; and an architectural motif for the exterior that would denote the prominence of the location and not be dwarfed by a ten-story building adjoining it.

It is conceded by those who have studied the situation that the architect, S. Charles Lee, of Los Angeles, has succeeded to an unusual degree in obtaining a perfect solution for this building. The exterior has been treated with a large clock tower that is visible for many blocks down the street. The type of architecture he has emphasized is a modified French Renaissance. The theatre canopy has been beautifully handled from an advertising and lighting standpoint as well as its architecture. The "Tower Theatre" sign has been built integral with the building, of Terra Cotta. Space has been provided on the roof of the building, with terra cotta sign frames, which will be used by commercial advertisers.



The exterior design features a large clock tower and offers an interesting adaptation of the French Renaissance style of architecture

The interior of the house is done in French Renaissance. The lobby is French Napoleon and Italian Bottecino marble with bronze hand rails and bronze column caps. The auditorium has a very high, domed ceiling with exquisite mural paintings, and the balcony has an exit condition never before achieved, and upon this revolves the entire ingenuity of building this house on a fifty foot lot. The basement contains a lounge room capable of comfortably holding half the capacity of the house. In addition to the ladies' and men's rest rooms and marble toilet rooms, there are two children's rooms: one in the basement with the usual toy and play room arrangement, and one in the upper part of the auditorium, behind sound-proof glass partitions where a mother may care for her young child and see the performance at the same time. Music is brought into all rest rooms, play rooms, etc., through microphone transmission.

The house is designed for motion pictures only, and is equipped with Vitaphone and Movietone. It is the most expensive house per seat of which we have a record; however, the wisdom of its arrangement and expenditure has been upheld by the receipts since the opening, and the owner has pronounced it a sound financial undertaking.

H. L. Gumbiner, owner of the theatre, has given Los Angeles a new amusement palace that is a tribute to the motion picture industry.

Charles Michelstetter, general manager of the Tower theatre, has been associated with Mr. Gumbiner in the theatrical business for more than 15 years. He has guided the destinies of some of the largest motion picture houses in the United States.

When work commenced on the building of this marvelous theatre, the contractors were given orders to use the best materials obtainable. Expensive imported marbles from Italy, France, Alaska, and Vermont quarries have been used in the building of the expensive structure. Genuine solid bronze which is beautfiully cast has been used in the interior and exterior fittings.

A unique feature of the Tower is the mammoth chandelier which hangs in the entrance lobby. The beautiful fixture is made of crystals, marble, and bronze and cost a small fortune.

Imported walnut was used in the finishing of the entire building. The furniture in the theatre is also made from this same material in order to bring about complete harmony.

The mammoth refrigeration machine in the basement of the theatre is the only one of its kind west of Chicago. This great machine will control the heating and cooling of the entire theatre.

The huge clock on top of the tower of the theatre is also unique. It is the only tower clock on any theatre in the West. Several weeks were spent in assembling and placing the clock in position. It has faces on all four sides of the tower.

The convenience and comfort of his patrons was the foremost thought in the mind of Mr. Gumbiner in the designing and building of this beautiful theatre.

A model nursery for children is one of the many results of his forethought. Since this theatre has opened this nursery has taken care of 250 children in one day. Two nurses are always in attendance. Mothers check their children, thereby enabling them to see the presentation of a picture without having to care for a young child.

The Tower is the first popular-priced theatre in Los Angeles to install Vitaphone and Movietone equipment.

Another feature of this theatre is its drinking system. Patrons of the theatre can drink cool, streilized water at any time. All water served in the theatre is sterilized and cooled, fountains being placed at a number of convenient points.

The Tower theatre recently had its gala opening which was attended by most of the greater stars and producers in the moving picture industry.

Theatre Building Business Map

Including Analysis of Key City Attendance Averages

		▭	Very light new construction
Above Average Business	▲ AA	▭	Light new construction
Average Business	A ▬	▨	Moderately heavy construction
Under Average Business	UA ▼	🟧	Heavy new construction

The map of the United States shown here is divided into seven territories, with colored shading indicating the division of new proposed theatre building as represented for the period from January 15th to February 15th. This new construction is represented in valuation of dollars and cents rather than number of projects.

The shading is in four densities; solid, which represents the greatest value of proposed theatres; heavy stipple, which is second in valuation of new construction; medium, which areas represent conservative building; and the very light areas, where the investment in new theatre projects is very light. The information used in compiling the statistics visualized by the map was obtained through several reliable sources, and the map is to be considered as very nearly accurate in representing comparative theatre building activities in various sections of the country.

The circles shown on the map are located in key cities and illustrate averages of theatre attendance during the three months' period from January 15th to February 15th. The diagrams indicate the relative attendance at the better theatres in these cities during the period covered. These are given by "averages," with symbols to indicate "Above Average" and "Under Average" box office returns. The term "average" as applied in this survey indicates satisfactory box office returns, based upon theatre expectancies, which, in turn, are governed by past earnings under similar or nearly similar conditions.

These attendance statistics were compiled from an analysis of the Key City Reports, published weekly in Motion Picture News, and other sources of information gathered by this publication.

NEW theatre projects announced for immediate construction during the thirty days—from January 15th to February 15th—were exceptionally heavy, both in number of theatres and cost.

An analysis of this building further shows the average theatre announced during this period called for a greater investment and number of seats than did the average theatre during 1927.

For the whole country, there were fifty-eight new theatre projects announced, calling for a total investment of $28,530,000, and accommodation for 98,458 seats.

Of these fifty-eight projects, nine were announced to cost over $1,000,000, while six were in the range of $500,000 and $1,000,000. The cost o fthe average theatre announced is $290,000, with seating capacity of 1,700.

As shown in the accompanying map, the two territories which report the heaviest schedule for new building are the North Atlantic and Middle States, with the North Atlantic slightly in the lead. During the past thirty days in this territory, plans have been drawn for 25 theatres to be built at a cost of $10,200,000, and incorporating 36,850 seats. Two of these new projects are to cost over a million, and five between a half and one million.

In the Middle States, eighteen new projects have been announced, with four costing over a million and one between a half and a million. The total investment required for this territory, for this thirty-day report, is $9,595,000, to cover the cost of constructing 35,200 seats.

South Western shows a big jump in its building program from our last report. The figures for this territory are $4,755,000 investment for 12,508 seats, to be incorporated in seven new projects, two of which cost over a million dollars.

This is the first time for several months that the South

Western territory has shown an active building program.

The announcement of these new building projects, however, is in line with the prediction which has been made previously by this department for this territory, inasmuch as our forecast indicated that several of the states included in this territory would require a considerable number of good theatres to be built this year.

In New England the active building program continues, through the announcement of $3,050,000 worth of new construction to cover the cost of 6,400 seats. However, this investment takes care of only four theatres, one of which costs over one million dollars. This exceedingly heavy investment for such a small territory as New England continues the heavy building program which started in that part of the country some months ago.

THE West Coast section of the country fails to indicate any great degree of activity as far as new projects for this thirty-day period is concerned, particularly in respect to cost.

Here we find that seven new theatres will have a seating capacity of 5,600 and call for a total investment of $715,000.

Two territories—South Eastern and Western—have an exceptionally light theatre building program announced for this period.

South Eastern calls for one project with 1,200 seats and $165,000 investment; and Western calls for one project with 700 seats and $50,000 investment.

The average cost, average seating capacity and average cost per seat for the seven territorial divisions of our new theatre project map are as follows:

New England—$762,500, average cost per theatre, with an average seating capacity of 1,600, and $480, average cost per seat.

North Atlantic—$510,000, average cost per theatre, with an average seating capacity of 1,850, and $280, average cost per seat.

South Eastern—$165,000, average cost per theatre, with an average seating capacity of 1,200, and $138, average cost per seat.

South Western—$679,300, average cost per theatre, with average seating capacity of 1,800, and $380, average cost per seat.

Middle—$533,055, average cost per theatre, with an average seating capacity of 1,950, and $275, average cost per seat.

Western—$50,000, average cost per theatre, with an average seating capacity of 700, and $72, average cost per seat.

West Coast—$102,145, average cost per theatre, with an average seating capacity of 800, and $128, average cost per seat.

The individual states which lead for this thirty-day period in the new projects announced are:

New York, eight projects costing $5,050,000, and having a seating capacity of 16,850.

Illinois, three projects costing $4,900,000, and having a seating capacity of 10,000.

Texas, four projects costing $4,555,000, and having a seating capacity of 10,100.

New Jersey, five projects costing $3,150,000, and having a seating capacity of 9,300.

Massachusetts, three projects costing $3,000,000, and having a seating capacity of 5,800.

Pennsylvania, seven projects costing $2,000,000, and having a seating capacity of 10,700.

Ohio, five projects costing $1,660,000, and having a seating capacity of 7,500.

IN regard to the sale of theatre equipment, business is reported as good for this period of the year. On the whole the total sales for this thirty-day report does not equal the average thirty-day sale for 1927, yet the figure is greater than for this same period during 1927.

It is of particular interest to note that the many new and improved types of equipment which tend to further modernize motion picture theatres are meeting with very encouraging sales throughout the country. This is another indication of the great interest which theatre owners are devoting to their equipment problems, and the readiness with which they are willing to invest in equipment which will help increase their business.

COMPARISON of attendance averages indicated on the current map with those of February must take into account the fact that the previous report covered a period which included the midyear holidays, and therefore figured to go above the normal stride of things.

The March report shows that average figures obtained in 23 cities, with 2 above average, and 2 rated at below average. This compares with 19 at average, 9 above average, and no under average ratings on the preceding map.

Analysis of the reports from box offices over the country indicate a fundamentally sound condition of business at the picture theatres. The attractions whose early performances at pre-view showings single them out as having strength of appeal to the public recur in the reports telling of especially good returns in scattered districts—which again goes to show that where the attraction is good, the box office receipts are as a rule entirely gratifying, and that condition obtains whether there is strong competition from other forms of amusement or adverse weather conditions.

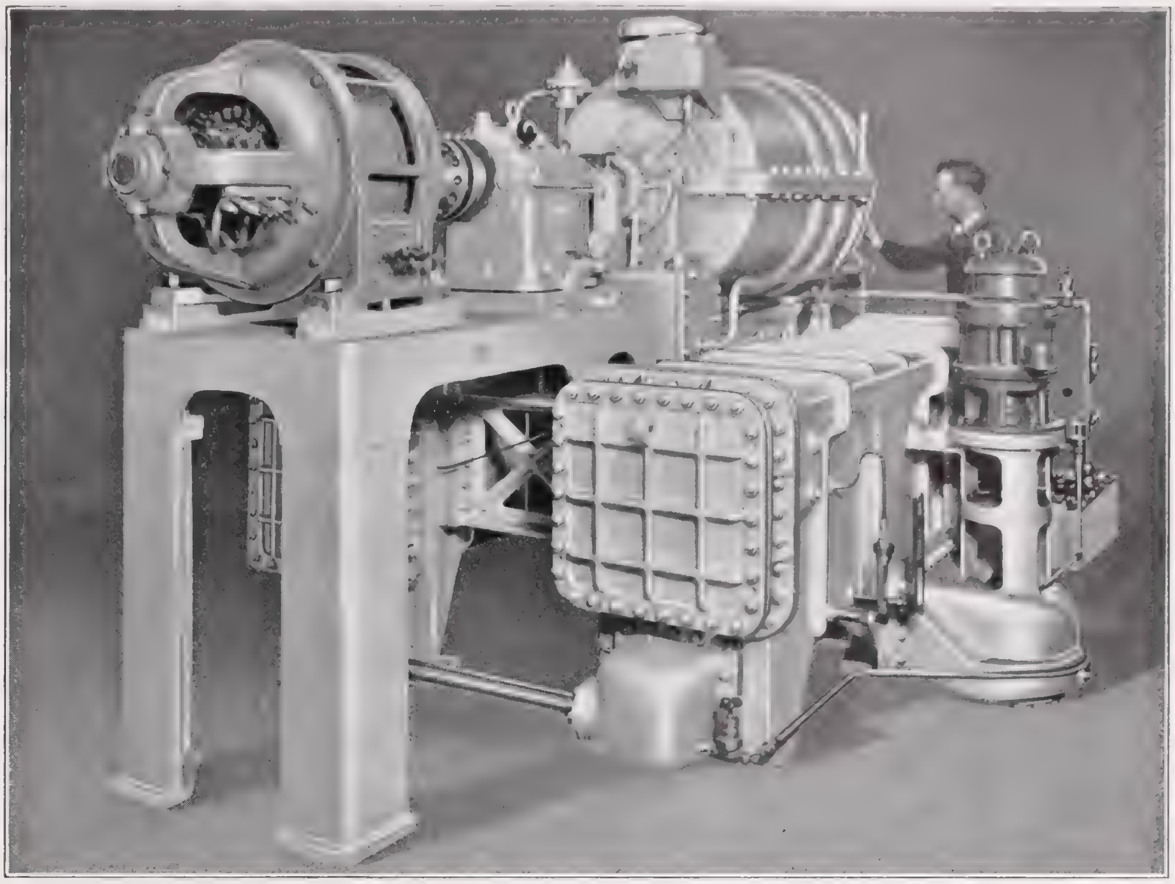
The weather, however, cannot be passed by as something that constitutes a mere alibi for poor business. The evidence of years of experience is too overwhelming that "they won't come out if it rains too hard (unless the rain obliges the theatre man by coming down on a Sunday) or if it is uncomfortably cold."

The theatres in several cities encountered stiff opposition from the enhanced comforts of home through the prevailing high winds, snows and blizzardy atmosphere out-of-doors. San Francisco theatre men felt the pinch from bad weather, having a stretch of it sufficient to cut seriously into the receipts for the period covered by this report for the month of January 15 to February 15. Cleveland was another, Albany another.

Minneapolis had a spell of sub-zero weather during the latter part of January, but severe cold there does not cause the havoc to theatregoing that it does in other cities, and the playhouses were fortunate in having exceptionally popular offerings during the week, so the final count-up left them with nothing to complain about. Another factor which aided in bringing up the Minneapolis receipts to a rating of "above average" was the auto show, which brought crowds to the town and gave the picture houses a larger than average public to shoot at.

AS has been pointed out in previous comments on the theatre averages shown in these monthly reports, conditions peculiar to localities and therefore not reflective of general business trends, importantly influence the totals shown in the map symbols for "average," "above average," and "under average." Indeed, a week of poor attractions, a week in which strong competition from some local activity, or a week of especially bad weather is sufficient to throw the total for the month off to a rating of "under average" even though conditions during the other weeks of the month were entirely normal. Such was the case in several current instances. However, the quick reaction, from slow business to good returns, that followed the offering of pictures with really substantial box office lure, invariably indicated a thoroughly sound state of business, with "general conditions" demonstrating that there is lively interest in the picture theatres and an ability on the part of the thearegoers to pay their way when the urge is sufficiently strong.

All of this proves that the theatres can turn profits when they have the pictures, and the grade of attractions coming along for the Spring appears to be of such quality that with proper exploitation the final leg of the winter season should be a satisfactory one for the exhibitors. The added attractions in the way of stage presentation hold on where they have merit, but the evidence is unmistakable that it is entertainment the public wants, and unless the stage act is entertaining, it fails to arouse enthusiasm. The pictures, however, show a quicker reaction at the box office than the presentations, except when names of the greatest popularity, and therefore commanding enormous salaries, are placed upon the bill. The big jumps from the valleys to the peak receipts at the box office in nine cases out of ten are directly traceable to the appeal of the motion picture.



A complete Carrier Centrifugal Refrigeration Unit, showing the cooler, the centrifugal compressor, and the condenser. A unit this size would be used to cool and dehumidify a 1500 seat theatre.

Carrier Centrifugal Refrigeration

One of the many important and exclusive features of the Carrier System for cooling and dehumidifying the air in theatres and public buildings is Carrier Centrifugal Refrigeration.

There are other machines which will produce cooling, but none so compact, so simple and dependable in operation, so entirely safe, and so efficient as the Carrier Centrifugal Unit. This machine has been invented, designed, and developed by Carrier Air Conditioning Engineers specifically to meet the problems of air cooling and dehumidification within buildings.

The machine occupies about 1-5 of the space required for other refrigeration equipments of like capacity. The centrifugal principle permits operation by a directly connected motor. The unit in appearance and operation is almost exactly like the ordinary motor driven centrifugal pump. The refrigerating medium is not a gas, but a harmless liquid—"Carrene." The control of operation and temperature is automatic.

Carrier Centrifugal Refrigeration is combined with the complete Carrier System which cleanses the air, automatically establishes and controls ideal conditions of Temperature and Humidity, and diffuses the conditioned air uniformly through the theatre.

The whole is backed by the long experience of a trained organization of Air Conditioning Specialists. A part of each Carrier Contract is the guarantee to produce specified results.

Theatre owners, architects and engineers are invited to investigate the results accomplished by this new complete unit in Carrier Cooled Theatres. Write for the book "Theatre Cooling," also a list of Carrier Cooled Theatres, and ask for a visit from one of our engineers.

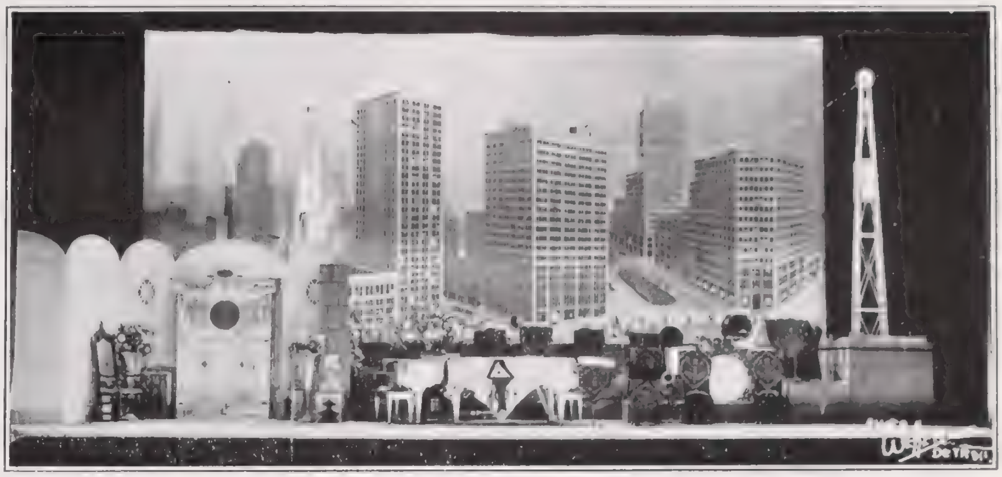
How Showmen are Using Radio Publicity to Increase Theatre Patronage



Stage setting used for Radio Presentation offered at the Hollywood theatre, Detroit

THOSE who can recall when radio was the Big Bogie man "threatening" the very life of the theatre can scarcely point to the accomplishment as a feat demonstrating the possession of a wonderful memory. For that was only about four years ago. It seems longer, largely for the reason that in less than a year from the time when radio was something that many of the more excitable "viewed with alarm" there was widespread use of broadcasting as a means of publicity and exploitation for motion picture theatres.

Today musical features presented on air programs have become so important to radio that many of them are in the class of "sustaining features" sent out by broadcasting stations at their own txpense to build up a patronage for the station. Just how important theatres are to radio was demonstrated only last week by the stir caused in Chicago when the head of the musicians' union ordered all picture theatres to cease broadcasting unless an extra "studio orchestra" of twelve musicians was maintained for that purpose. The public and the broadcasting stations suffered as severe a shock at the edict as the theatre men who were building up popularity for their houses and their musical features through these radio shows.

The praise agents for the stars, the producers and the distributors have all turned to radio upon occasion, but beyond the accomplishment here and there of something that tied-up directly with a picture's showing nothing much has come out of radio as picture exploitation in that connection.

The theatres, however, have made good use of radio as an advertising agent and a goodwill builder. Better showmanship, and a more direct tie-up between the entertainment offered on the air and the attraction thus publicized, have combined to develop radio as an arm of showmanship for the picture theatre.

Some of the theatre men are opposed to straight broadcasting on the ground that it does not bring people to the show, but rather tends to keep them away, to enjoy entertainment put on by the theatre while they remain at home. Such claims do not seem to hold, however, in cases where the broadcasting is done on so large a scale as at the Roxy, the Capitol and other metropolitan houses. Several theatres have popularized their musicians and created goodwill over wide areas by means of these weekly programs.

Last week's issue of Motion Picture News contained an account of the method which Thomas D. Soriero, managing director of the Rochester theatre, Rochester, N. Y., is using to bring people into the theatre with radio as a co-attraction with the show.

This is one of the ideas developed by theatre men to make radio a feature of the bill, designed to "bring people into the theatre instead of encouraging them to stay at home to listen to broadcasts." In the case of the Rochester theatre the Radio Nights have proved extremely effective as a drawing card. And similar success has been obtained by other theatres using the stage broadcasts, in full view of the audience, as a drawing card.

A RECENT example along this line is the radio presentation offered by the Hollywood theatre, in the western neighborhood district of Detroit. This feature was offered in conjunction with the Detroit News Radio Station WWJ. The announcer from the station acted as master of ceremonies during this act, and the experiment proved a remarkable success.

The Hollywood is operated by Ben and Lou Cohen. It is a new house and the attention attracted to it through the radio presentation produced results of demonstrated value to the box office and prestige of the theatre.

The theatre played to crowded houses every night of the week and the matinee business each day showed a phenomenal increase over the average. The picture accompanying shows to what extent the Messrs. Cohen went in putting the radio show over. At a cost of $600, an unique setting was built which showed the skyscrapers of downtown Detroit in the background. A multitude of windows, lighted from the rear, were included, while in the foreground a miniature announcing room was built in.

Here Forrest Wallace, announcer for Station WWJ, was seen through window making the announcement of each act, while his voice carried out to the audience by means of a loud speaker in the auditorium. Several acts well known to the radio fans were placed on the program to reinforce the regular house features, which include the Dimmick-Sunnybrook Orchestra, the Eight Hollywood Girls and several acts of vaudeville.

The Hollywood's radio show was such a success, bringing people from all parts of the city and suburbs of Detroit, that the management is contemplating a repeat on an even larger scale in the near future.

By carefully keeping its radio activities from interfering with regular times of performance, the theatre has made a great ally in broadcasting. It now draws its patronage from the entire city and its gross business is on the leap from week to week.

THE Hollywood was the first Detroit theatre to take up broadcasting. In fact, it was the Hollywood's entry into the field that caused the withdrawal of an anti-radio resolution from the files of the Detroit Theatre Managers' Association.

In another article published in this issue of THE SHOWMAN the details are given of a radio talk dealing with motion picture projection. The article reveals that some of the features that to the showman are most mechanical have elements of appeal to the public and give further evidence that the very heart of the motion picture presentation, projection, has romantic appeal and may be made the subject of an interesting talk or article addressed to the picture fan.

Other uses to which radio has been put are the tie-up with broadcasts by film distributors. In this connection there are such stunts as that employed by Manager D. W. Bonstein of the Third Street theatre in Easton, Pa. The radio broadcast of a description of "Love," running at the Embassy theatre in New York, occurred within the playing time of that picture at the Third Street theatre, and Bonstein made capital of the event in his exploita-

Serving the AMERICAN Theatre Industry

Regular Patrons Pay Regular Profits

Transient patrons are welcome, of course, but—the regular patrons pay your profit.

Regular patrons demand regular care, seats that allow easy comfort to tired backs, grateful relaxation to limbs and neck. No handsome foyer nor spacious lobby can soothe the patron who cramps in a poorly set chair.

A National Service expert will gladly inspect your seating arrangements—without obligation to you. He may discover some needed slight adjustment, a change of position or setting that will increase the comfort of your patrons many times.

As a matter of cold business logic, greater comfort to your patrons means greater profit to you.

National Service can also furnish every requirement of service, material, or equipment. From a paper date snipe to a pipe organ. Operating through thirty-one points of vantage, we serve and service the American theatre industry.

C-H Dimmers bring out all the architectural beauty

MONEY invested in architectural beauty is buried—when that beauty is half hidden by darkness. Unseen, it pulls no crowds—returns no dividends.

But C-H "Simplicity" Dimmers bring out all the beauties of a theater. They are the final and all important touch to theater decoration.

Whether your theater is in the plan stage or has been opened for years it can be given crowd-pulling beauty with C-H Dimmers. The investment will pay surprising dividends in steadier and larger receipts.

Ask your architect or electrical contractor how easily C-H Dimmers can be installed. And in the meantime write for the booklet, "Illumination Control for the Modern Theater". It is full of valuable pointers.

Dimming, smooth as night-fall, from full brilliancy to black out—freedom from burnouts and maintenance—adaptability to all theaters, regardless of size or decorative scheme—design which makes future remodeling easy—these are a few outstanding features of C-H "Simplicity" Dimmers which make them first choice with leading theater owners, architects and electricians.

Local News Reels Bring Closer Contact Between Theatre and Newspaper

Schine Theatre at Ogdenburg Launches Home-Made Films with Popular Campaign

JUST how far are the news reels to become localized and what effect will such localization have on box offices? These are questions that are being pondered in smaller cities and in some places they have already been put into effect with good results. The newsreel is one of the main assets of any motion picture house. There are those regular attendants who prefer the news pictorials to the feature picture or the short comedy.

The newsreel as a national and international institution is a necessity from the box-office standpoint of all motion picture theatres. It will always continue to be so, particularly now that it has combined with it actual sound as well as sight. It brings to every community the big happenings of the world in a manner that cannot be reproduced in the newspapers.

But the tendency is taking on more and more impetus from day to day toward localization of newsreels. It seems a foregone conclusion that within the next few years the national and international newsreel events will be well interspersed with local news happenings that can be depicted on the screen.

The larger newsreel services have for the past several years been localizing their stuff as far as possible. They have been providing releases for certain territories exclusively in connection with their regularly programmed material, but now the local theatres are looking for even more localization than that. They want the happenings of their home town thrown on their screens simultaneously with the news as it reaches them in their newspapers.

Just how this is to be accomplished is the problem that is nearer and nearer reaching a solution. It is being done by the cooperation of the local newspaper and the local movie house. For the newspaper it is a good advertising proposition. For the movie house it is a sure-fire box office stimulant. There are few so lacking in vanity as not to care to see themselves on the screen. There are few who would not go to the theatre to see their friends on the screen. Consequently a local personage on the screen has a considerable circulation. When a local town happening is depicted, particularly in the smaller cities and towns, and where a number of persons are shown in connection with a news event practically every person in the town will know some one in the picture and will be attracted to the house to see just how he or she looks in the pictorial reproduction. With the house and the newspaper dividing the expense connected with the making of the film, it seems about as healthy a stimulant as a box-office can have.

First On the Scene! A PICTORIAL NEWS REEL First On the Screen

Expert Schine camera men and expert Journal reporters combine forces to give people of Northern New York and Eastern Canada the News in both words and pictures.

Read It in The Republican-Journal - See It On the Strand Screen

CHILD WELFARE WEEK DECEMBER 11 to 17th 1927

Reproduction of a full page ad published by the Ogdenburg, N. Y., newspaper sponsoring a home-made film and a news reel shown at Schine's theatre.

The Schine chain of theatres operating in Northern New York state have inaugurated this policy of localized newsreels on a somewhat extensive scale and the results are reported as amazing. Not only has this chain localized its newsreel, but it is localizing almost its entire program.

Buddy Hooton, publicity director of the Schine chain, seems to be largely responsible for the idea. He has inaugurated an extensive campaign at the Strand theatre in Ogdensburg, New York, in connection with the Republican-Journal, newspaper of that city. Rene Le Maitre is the cameraman who has been assigned to the task of covering all news events worthy of reproduction on the Strand screen. His first assignment was to picturize the high school district championship football game between Franklin Academy of Malone and Saranac Lake High School. Having been properly exploited as a protective screen attraction at the Strand, that alone was sufficient to attract a capacity audience to the theatre.

AS a result of that incident Hooton further elaborated his plan with the complete cooperation of the Republican-Journal. If it was local stuff the patrons wanted they would give them all they desired. If the pictures of the high school football game would fill the theatre, why wouldn't a locally-made and locally acted picture be a greater attraction? It would decided Hooton and the Republican-Journal. And so they proceeded to exploit this as an attraction for the future.

The newspaper carried a full page advertisement calling upon those with screen aspirations to report for tests and the response clearly attested the popularity of the whole proposition. From six to sixty years of age they reported, these embryo Lloyds, Pickfords and Fairbanks. There was not the slightest difficulty in assembling a cast. In fact there was available material for a most extensive mob scene.

With local actors, home locations and Buddy Hooton as the local director about the only other phase that could be localized was the story, so that was provided for by the newspaper announcing through a display ad that it would buy for $50 the best scenario submitted. Responses were as numerous as they had been for actors and actresses.

THE script called for the shooting of a railroad accident, in which a man was run down by a train. As an added stimulant this episode was tied up with Child Welfare week which was about to be observed in Ogdensburg. And to show just how thoroughly Hooton and the Republican-Journal did their work they secured the cooperation of the New York Central Railroad for the shooting of the scene. When th eplan was outlined to the New York Central they readily agreed to furnish a train for the occasion. The fact that the scene was to be shot at a certain definite time was exploited and the school children of the town, as well as a thousand other inhabitants were on hand for the big event. It made a decided impression upon the children and was regarded the most impressive event of the entire week in which the children were instructed as to how to avoid accidents. The grown-ups observed for the first time just how a motion picture was shot and they were keenly enthusiastic over it and only waited the opportunity to see the reproduction on the screen.

Stills from this production as it was being made were constantly on display in the lobby of the Strand and naturally they attract considerable attention. The cost of the whole project was comparatively small and it has attracted the entire countryside.

The Schine interests are not the only ones devoting themselves to enterprises of this kind though their program seems a more extensive one than is being applied elsewhere. In Detroit, for instance, there is a newspaper-motion picture house tieup that brings local news events to the theatre screen.

Newspapers of smaller cities seem to be realizing more and more the potential value of producing newsreels and it is predicted in many quarters that eventually

Roxy is still enthusiastic!

A year ago this magnificent loge chair was an experiment. Today it is one of the outstanding successes of the theatre seating field.

The three styles of chairs installed in Roxy's 6,200 seat house have stood the test of capacity audiences for over a year. They have given maximum comfort to patrons and have been completely free from service trouble.

Is it any wonder then that Roxy is still enthusiastic over Heywood-Wakefield seating or that he still claims (and rightfully so) that the loge chair shown above is "the finest theatre chair ever built?"

Incorporating the "How It Works" Appeal In Radio Talks From the Theatre

Visit to the Projection Booth a Feature of Popular Broadcast from Loew's Palace in Washington

"INTEREST the public in projection! Aren't you being just a bit funny? What is there in projection, a purely mechanical operation done by modern machinery developed to an almost 'fool-proof' stage, to interest the picture fan?"

That is the reaction of a picture theatre manager whom the writer queried on the subject of publicity. And he not such a rare bird, either. You have heard of being so deeply absorbed in the job just in front of you that it was impossible to see the forest for the trees. Well, a good deal the same condition prevails when a picture theatre man takes stock of his wares and begins to wonder about how he can tell the public something that will interest them and sell them an idea that will lead to greater enthusiasm for the movie shows. That which to him is so commonplace that it is scarcely worth mentioning may be brand new news to the public.

Just how much does the public know about projection, anyway? Does the fan who can tell you the date and place of birth of a screen celebrity know what makes the pictures on the screen actually move? Does he or she know what a projection machine looks like? And if so, just where did the information come from?

The answer is that if the theatre man has not told them about projection, there is a great deal about the subject that remains a mystery to them.

All this leads to the point of our story—a story of how a theatre in Washington, D. C., developed one of the most successful radio talks of a series broadcast to picture fans by telling the public about projection.

It is interesting to know that a subject which to the theatre man is so prosaic, so seemingly devoid of appeal, can become absorbing enough when related to the public, that the response from listeners in at radio sets send in as many letters of comment and appreciation as result from discussions of such topics as the personal tastes of stars regarding dress, books, menus, etc., and so-forth.

Projection as a topic of radio conversation between the theatre and the public was recently tried out by Colby Harriman, presentation manager of Loew's Palace theatre, Washington, D. C. The talk was intended to give the public a better understanding of what lies back of the management's efforts to provide entertainment under the best possible conditions.

While, of course, ordinarily it would be difficult for the average theatre owner to arrange a radio talk along these lines, the following scenario of the talk of Mr. Harriman is offered as a suggestion which may be applied in either this connection or as a house talk through such mediums as the house program, screen trailers or newspaper publicity or advertising.

Mr. Harriman's radio talk, which was titled "A Trip to a Projection Room," follows in part:

Last week I spotted in your memories a can of film reposing outside the Palace theatre. It is the film which we secured in the Eastman plant, took through the studio and the laboratory, and, through the medium of the exchange, brought it to the Palace theatre. The film has just been deposited by one of the film delivery companies, and one of our porters carries it to the office where it is duly checked in, and the projection department is notified of its arrival. The film is then sent back to the preview or screening room of the theatre. This room, situated in a remote back-stage section of the theatre, is practically a little theatre in itself. We call it "the cuckoo's nest" but on the various house 'phones the tag "screen room" is noted.

Two projection machines are located in a built-in booth, and the film is projected on a screen at the other end of the room.

THE projection room is perhaps one of the most mysterious rooms and places of the theatre. People know that pictures are projected from this room; that spotlights blaze out through various openings and that they are perhaps conscious of a faint whirling, buzzing and humming of machinery. People often call this room a "booth" but in the correct parlance of the theatre, it is the projection room. Very few people succeed in entering it. It is not that there are skeletons in the closets or secretive bits of machinery and appliances in the room. It is just one of the rules of the theatre that the projection room shall have over its doors the words "They shall not pass." We may say that the projection room of a theatre is its heart—one of its vital organs—and if anything goes wrong in the projection room, practically the entire operation of the theatre ceases.

For the benefit of those who perhaps will never have the opportunity of visiting a projection room, I thought that it would be more or less of interest to you to enter this mysterious abode and get some first hand information. So now we are climbing the steps up to the rear of the balcony and we are standing in front of the steel ladder which extends upward like the proverbial beanstalk.

"Hello, Mr. Harriman."

HELLO, Frank. (That voice which just greeted us was Mr. Frank Storty, Supervisor of Projection of Loew's Washington theatres. In Mr. Storty's care is the work of supervising the projection of all film and its physical attention, together with the general movement of spots and effects for the stage shows. Before each show is put on, Mr. Storty confers with the production department and all the details ars outlined. He then arranges a plot or a list of the various movemtnts to be made and then instructs his men and associates in the projection room as to how the show is to be conducted. We also have a little radio effect of our own running from the stage to the projection room, a portable microphone is located near the stage switchboard and during the first shows if anything has to be changed in a hurry, the order is broadcast over the little set and is amplified in the projection room so that the men can receive orders from the stage and at the same time reman at their various posts and stations in the room.)

Well, Frank (pardon me for calling him Frank when I should say Mr. Storty, but inasmuch as my great radio family is also his family from tonight on, there is no reason in the world why you should not know him as well as I do) we have decided to walk in on you. I know that there will be plenty of room, and if we promise not to touch anything and if it is not too much trouble for you, I am going to ask you a few questions and have you describe some of these mechanical appliances which we see in this mysterious room.

"It would be rather hard for me to give all the details in one little trip, but I will try. Your friends must know that every projection room has more than one projection machine in order to give a continuous show, as film is usually wound on reels carrying not more than 2,000 feet. The projectors we have here are of the very latest type, and are equipped with every known device for safety, and projecting of a perfect picture.

"One of the projectors you see here, Mr. Harriman, is similar to a motion picture camera. Its function is to project the pictures which are taken by the camera to the screen at speeds varying from twenty to thirty pictures per second according to the type of story.

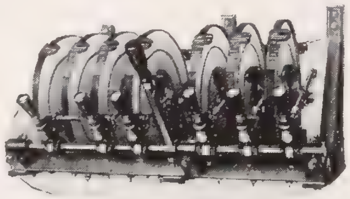
WARD LEONARD VITROHM DIMMERS...THE ACCEPTED STANDARD FOR LIGHTING CONTROL

CONTROLLED LIGHT—

Is Light Made Valuable

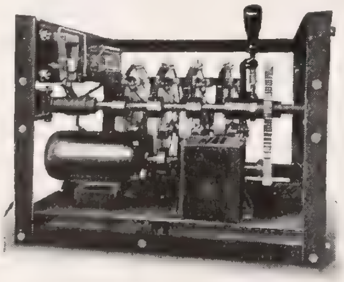
The Vitrohm Dimmer Plate incorporates more than 36 years of manufacturing experience. It possesses the qualities of maximum watt dissipation with light weight and unlimited life.

The type illustrated is the "SRD" Plate, a non-interlocking dimmer, described in Bulletins 67 and 72.



Banks of dimmer plates, shown above, for wall mounting are very flexible in application. This type of dimmer has interlocking controls; that is, each plate may be operated independently, or in conjunction with one or more of the other plates.

These dimmers are described in Bulletins 72 and 75.



Motor driven dimmers are used where manual control is not desirable and where dimmer control must be exercised from remote points. Descriptions are found in Bulletins 67, 72 and 75.

Investigate The Possibilities Of *VITROHM Controlled Lighting for Lodge, Church, Theatre and Store

THE acceptance of accurately controlled lighting as an aid to decorative and publicity plans is widespread.

In the theatre, this acceptance is universal; no modern performance could be given without controlled lighting. The influence of the theatre's success with this medium led to its trial, both as a purely decorative aid, and for sustaining background, as in the theatre, in practically all fields.

If you are interested in securing new and unusual effects in church and lodge halls, theatres, and stores, or in the floodlighting of signs and buildings, get in touch with the engineering department of WARD LEONARD. Our engineers are at your service, without obligation to you, in determining the extent to which controlled lighting is of value in your possible application.

Quiet Electric VENTILATOR

Draws Capacity Houses Even During the Hot Summer Months

Good Ventilation Makes Good Business—It Pays to Keep Your Patrons Cool and Comfortable

You can fill your empty seats—increase your box office receipts—and draw crowds of steady patrons by equipping your theatre with a Lakeside Quiet Electric Ventilator. Its low price—easy installation—simplicity and low cost of operation make it a profitable investment that pays big dividends in increased receipts.

The Lakeside is equipped with a specially designed Four-Way Air Deflector and sends a powerful current of draftless, deflected air to every corner of the theatre that forces out the stale, devitalized air and completely changes all the air in the theatre every few minutes. so that it is always flooded with fresh, pure, healthful, outdoor air. This cooling current of fresh outside air—powerful but absolutely draftless—will please your audiences and bring their steady patronage.

The Lakeside comes ready for installation. It requires no tearing down of walls or ripping up of floors. It is so compact that it fits into a very small space. It can be disassembled to move through small door openings, and installed satisfactorily in many places where it is impossible to install any other type of ventilating system. Lakeside Ventilators are easy to operate—and trouble free.

The Lakeside costs much less than many of the complicated cooling and ventilating systems on the market, yet is remarkably efficient and is guaranteed to give satisfactory results. It is very inexpensive to operate and must "make good" in actual service because it is backed by a reliable guarantee. Lakeside Ventilators are made in different sizes to meet every requirement.

Aztec Theatre Offers an "Atmospheric Interlude"

Above, at left, is the opening flash, showing New York skyline as seen from deck of he ship. Above is scene at sea. On the left is a view of the forestage, showing arrangement of tracks on which ships and moving background traveled

Stage Act After First Part of Photoplay

THE "atmospheric interlude" was introduced to motion picture presentation by Arthur S. Phillips, presentation manager for William Epstein, manager of the Aztec theatre, San Antonio, Texas, with an outstanding stage novelty offered in connection with the showing of "The Patent Leather Kid."

The presentation, illustrated in the photographic diagram reproduced on this page, was highly novel in its treatment, but of equal interest is the fact that a form of stage entertainment which in the past has been limited in its application to prologue position on the program demonstrated its possibilities for a more flexible use in connection with pictures.

In this instance, the picture established its own atmosphere and the atmosphere as well for the stage interlude. In a way it was a bold experiment for a stage producer to essay a spectacle spotted between the first and second halves of a motion picture. The greater resources of the camera give the film producer an advantage not easily overcome. However, Phillips by an ingenious arrangement of his effects, produced a stage picture of such realism that there was no effect of anticlimax through the comparison which unconsciously would take place in the mind of the spectator as the scene changed from photographic to stage effects while the mood remained the same.

The stage spectacle produced the effect of placing the audience on a ship, the spectators looking outward over the deck rail. The opening episode showed a group of soldiers down stage waving goodbye to New York, represented by a realistic skyline which formed the background.

The ship appeared to get under motion as the metropolitan skyline was moved backward, while the vessels in the upper bay moved forward. This was accomplished by a series of tracks on which the cutout ships were mounted.

As the city skyline disappeared and the Statue of Liberty was passed the lighted cyclorama gave the effect of the sky meeting the shore. Then a submarine appeared from beneath the water and fired a torpedo at the largest war vessel, sinking it.

Four semi-circular tracks were built on the forestage of the Aztec. On three of them were ships, giving the impression of distance. On the fourth track was the cutout New York skyline, which was moved in one direction on the tracks, while the ships on the tracks were moved in the opposite direction.

"The Patent Leather Kid" was presented in its full "road show" length, with an intermission between the first and second parts. This intermission was filled in by the stage interlude. The introduction of the number was done by a brief trailer which was tacked on to the end of the first part of the film, explaining that the presentation to follow would carry the troops from the training camps to the battlefields of France.

Marco of "Ideas" Fame Sees Continued Popularity for Presentation Acts

RATHER than being on its way to oblivion, as predicted by some of those who are hostile to the notion of blending elaborate stage numbers and motion pictures on the program of the cinema houses, "presentation" is still in its infancy and has a healthy and promising future before it, according to Marco, of Fanchon and Marco "Ideas" fame.

In presenting arguments for the present state of health of the infant branch of picture showmanship, Marco divulged that the Fanchon and Marco producing organization, which stages presentations for some 40 playhouses reaching from Vancouver to San Diego and from Salt Lake City to San Francisco for West Coast Theatres, Inc., has a payroll of some $125,000 weekly and employees numbering about 3,000. Speaking specifically of presentation as an attraction, Marco said:

"The motion picture presentation is not a mushroom idea that sprung into being, but a natural growth of development in answer to a demand on the part of the amusement seeking public.

"About five years ago, when I first was called in to take up the problem of augmenting the films with stage entertainment, the theatre managers were aware that the public was demanding more diversity of entertainment

"No matter how good a motion picture program was provided, it was evident that the public were wearying of sitting through three hours of solid concentration on a black and white screen, with no color or perspective to vary the monotony.

"Our first revues were only eight girls and one or two principles substantiated our idea that what the public wanted was a little life and color in the entertainment to vary the tension on the optic nerve and the mental visualization necessary to follow the motion picture plot. In other words, something with more than one proportion, affording a perspective.

"The success of the first efforts logi-

Can Good Projection Increase Patronage

Public Expects it and Avoids Theatre Failing to Supply it

FROM its very infancy the success of the motion picture art has rested largely upon the ability to show a creditable likeness of the original action simultaneously to a large group of people. And the more creditable this likeness became, the greater was the success which attended the producers' efforts.

The two highly specialized and distinctly different lines of endeavors which characterize the motion picture industry, i. e., the production and the exhibition of motion pictures, present contrasting groups of people each of which is entirely absorbed in solving the problems peculiar to the separate fields of work.

It is only natural for those people intimately engaged in the production of motion pictures to feel that upon their efforts depends the ultimate destiny of the cinema art and that they are largely, if not entirely, responsible for its present popularity.

This feeling may be perfectly sincere and justifiable but it is unfortunate in many respects, that the glamor which surrounds the making of pictures and attaches to every phase of its work is, to a large degree, lacking in the exhibition of those very same pictures to the general public.

The disproportionate importance, either real or fancied, of the producing end of the business is largely responsible for the lack of attention accorded the exhibiting of those same pictures upon which so much care and such huge sums of money were spent.

While progress in all lines connected with the making of pictures has been rapid, the projection end of the business has been left largely to its own devices, with the result that only in recent years has projection reached a stage which can be said to be generally satisfactory.

Satisfactory results do not necessarily imply the best because it is a peculiarity of this industry that, whereas money may be lavishly spent for producing pictures, the expenditure of every nickel is carefully scrutinized at the exhibiting end. Most highly illogical of all is the practice among exhibitors of curtailing expenditures for the very equipment used for placing the pictures before their patrons.

It is true that educational efforts from various directions—principally on the part of equipment manufacturers—have done much to increase the esteem in which projection matters now are held but not yet have exhibitors as a whole come into a full realization of the fact that a high order of projection quality is absolutely essential as the starting point in the successful operation of a motion picture theatre.

It is a regrettable fact that there are many exhibitors who appear to be only too willing to believe that a passable quality of projection is sufficient to meet their needs and who fail to understand how the expenditure of more money for repair parts, or for a systematic replacement of projection equipment, will be reflected in increased box-office receipts.

An essential of good projection is that it be unobtrusive and the average theatre patron pays no attention to it unless some fault develops whereupon the damage is done and it is then too late to effect a remedy.

If the same fault, or faults, occur regularly in any theatre, it is quite conceivable that an appreciable loss in patronage will result, no matter what the feature picture be, because nothing can make a picture be quite so intolerable as faulty projection.

People do not attend the theatre merely to see any picture excellently projected. Movies are far beyond the stage and people are no longer interested in viewing meaningless actions no matter how perfectly they might be reproduced.

FIRST Class projection results may not increase box-office receipts but poor projection will certainly decrease them.

Considering the matter of picture projection alone, the initial condition of the projectors and their maintenance are of vital importance to the screen results. In this connection we would like to make quotations from a talk given by a representative of the International Projector Corporation at a Sales Convention recently held in Chicago. While speaking of the ill effects of poor projection it was brought out that "the picture, to have the proper entertainment value, when presented to an audience must be (a) rock-steady, (b) perfectly sharp as to focus, with lines absolutely unblurred and its contrast values undamaged by travel ghost, (c) each succeeding film photograph must register with the most minute precision with the preceding one over the projector aperture, and (d) the screen must not only be evenly illuminated but also lighted with a brilliancy suited to the needs of each individual theatre."

The effects of not adhering closely to the above specifications which go into the making of an excellently projected picture were then brought out as follows: "First, let us consider intermittent sprockets and intermittent movement parts which are most invariably used for too long a period of time. It is impossible to put a rock-steady and otherwise satisfactory picture on the screen without very great accuracy in the manufacture of the parts of the intermittent movement. If this is not so why have projector manufacturers expended tens of thousands of dollars and devoted years of experimental effort to perfecting their methods of manufacturing parts, and why has the almost unbelievable accuracy in the manufacture of these parts reached the point where measurements of ten-thousandths of an inch are a regular part of shop practice?

It will be a happy day for the motion picture industry when all theatre owners and managers realize that if they want a rock-steady picture they must expect to have the intermittent parts replaced before they show appreciable wear.

As to the intermittent sprocket itself, an undercut sprocket tooth not only makes for unsteadiness of the picture but also is very hard on the very delicate sprocket holes themselves. This means that the film is unnecessarily damaged and replacement by new prints is required much sooner than should be necessary. This, of course, adds to the overhead of the industry, which in the end must be paid out of theatre box-office receipts.

But, undesirable as visible picture unsteadiness is, there is an invisible unsteadiness which is far worse, and that is the thing the average exhibitor does not realize exists. It is caused by the failure of the projector to register succeeding photographs with absolute accuracy over the projector aperture. This, in turn, is caused by worn intermittent parts, including the intermittent sprocket. The result will be a slight blurring due to this failure of the succeeding images to coincide—and of course no lens can prevent or correct this condition.

TRAVEL ghost may result from worn gears which cause lost motion, and this, within the limits of the lost motion, prevents any control of the rotating shutter which may fluctuate back and forth as much as an inch or more. Of course, the shutter may be held in retard under such conditions by a suitable shaft brake, but in practice this is never done, and if it is done, sets up further strain upon the gear train and causes them to wear much more rapidly. The result of shutter backlash is to compel either the use of a needlessly wide master blade, thus causing light wastage and at the same time causing added flicker.

Travel ghost is the pulling of the whites up or down over the blacks. It is entirely invisible in the body of the picture itself unless very bad indeed, but may be very readily seen in the white-letter-with-black-background titles. It is caused by a rotating shutter not properly tuned, or one with a master blade too narrow to keep the lens closed a sufficient length of time, it being uncovered while the film is still in motion over the aperture.

And so, briefly, are set forth a few of the more serious results of a too economical program of expenditures affecting the most important equipment in a motion picture theatre.

Training Theatre Managers for the Motion Picture Industry

BELIEF that the methodical arrangement of data available from several sources and its presentation in study form under the proper auspices can be substituted for a long apprenticeship in actual theatre work as a means of developing trained managers, resulted in the formation of the Moving Picture Theatre Managers' Institute, of New York, according to D. Baltimore, director of the Institute, which is now conducting its first course for student managers.

Another factor influencing the founders of the Institute to organize the school was the successful precedent established by the Publix Theatre Managers Training School.

Previous to the introduction of the training schools, it required years of practical experience in the theatre itself to give even the working principles of theatre operation.

The faculty of the Moving Picture Theatre Managers' Institute have been collecting data and test matter for the past two years to develop a course designed to overcome this lock of opportunity for organized training for men desirous of entering upon a career as theatre managers.

D. Baltimore, director of the Institute, has been in the theatre business since 1908 as manager and owner. Mark Weisberg, the assistant director, also has been in the theatre field for a number of years. Both of these men are graduates of the first class of Publix Managers Training School. In addition to the above instructors, the Institute has many prominent men connected with the industry, who have offered their services as part time instructors and for special lectures.

The curriculum of the Institute is divided in the following subjects: Production and Distribution, Management and Administration, Theatre Staff and Service, Advertising—Principles, Mechanics of Printing, Newspapers, Programs, Outdoor, Lobby Displays and Exploitation, Theatre Technics—State Presentations, Music, Projection for Managers and Physical Operation of Theatres. In dividing the course into these divisions, the subjects matter is so arranged as to be of practical and beneficial nature to the student in the theatre field. Many of the lectures are illustrated with slides, drawings, photographs and motion pictures.

Under Production and Distribution, the student takes up the first two of the elements of economic structure of the Motion Picture Industry. These subjects aid in forming a foundation of the studies that follow.

Under distribution principles, the exchanges and their organization, buying, booking, the contract between exchange and the theatre, and arbitration.

After the students haveacquired the fundamentals of production and distribution, they next study theatre administration, in which is given practical instruction in program building, schedules, reports and accounting. They also study theatre organization, law of the theatre, theatre finance and good will building.

The prospective manager next studies theatre advertising. He is first given instruction in the fundamentals; he analyzes selling forces, points and elements. Mechanics of printing follows, which provides the student with a knowledge of type, its measurement and type faces suitable for theatre advertising.

Stagecraft division of the course has been specially prepared for managers to design and prepare presentation and prologues.

Projection is studied from the manager's viewpoint, so that he will have a thorough knowledge of the screen picture, know the language of the projectionist and the value of projection maintenance. The student is instructed in physical operation of the theatre, which includes heating, ventilation, lighting and maintenance of theatres and theatre equipment.

To Owners of Fine, Small Theatres

In our last advertisement we spoke of modern stages—stages that are flexible; that are built in sections; that can be moved in any direction at will.

Every exhibitor knows that this type of stage is a necessity to the de luxe theatre. But few appreciate that fine, small theatres can well afford, with modifications, similar stages.

We have special stages that are really remarkable for fine, small theatres and at a cost that is in keeping with the theatre.

Here is the opportunity to add a feature to your theatre that will increase box-office receipts and will place you a step ahead of the times. Let us tell you now about these 1928 stages.

cally led to elaboration. The search to provide life and color naturally introduced the exotic in presentation, with the result that we now frequently stage 'Fanchon and Marco Ideas,' as we call them, presenting near to 100 artists and girls in the most ornate of scenic settings.

"We have no quarrel whatever with the motion picture producers, because we do not stage the so-called 'atmospheric' prologues presenting the characters or the atmosphere of the film they introduce.

"Each 'idea' is complete in itself and not related to the picture billed with it even in a remote way. We seek motifs for our presentations in something topical, modern and as popular as possible.

"Contrasts are sought, rather than relation to film theme. A frozen North 'Idea' may be presented with a South Seas picture that the audience may be afforded a variety of atmosphere as diversified entertainment.

"Wherever possible we employ the most famous of stage stars and build 'Ideas' about them introducing exotic and massive scenic settings and pretty girls in striking costumes. For example, a 'Merry Widow Idea' was created for the presentation of Mae Murray, of Follies fame. Al Jolson was introduced with a 'Down South Idea.' Many other famous stars, including Gilda Gray, and the Marx Brothers, have been given similar presentations.

"I believe that the stage presentations to accompany films are bound to attain even greater proportions than at present, in the light of their development. I also believe that the future aim of the producers will be esthetic beauty.

"The tendency is turning toward great animated pictures, with resplendent scenic backgrounds as the frames into which to bring life and warmth by the introduction of beautiful girls in elaborate dances. I am also of the opinion that this idea will eventually remove the vaudeville complexion from the presentation by doing away with the so-called headliners, reducing the costs and making even greater productions possible."

tion for the attraction. This was accomplished by the insertion of small ads in local newspapers. The ads urged readers to tune in on the broadcast and tied the theatre up with the stunt by announcing the play dates of "Love" at the Third Street.

Educational Film Exchanges, Inc., has a branch manager who not only conceives and carries out a radio program but who actually puts on the entire "Educational Hour" over the air, aided only by his wife.

He is Leo Blank, who manages the Omaha exchange for Educational.

So successful has this program been and so well received in the middle west that Mr. Blank has made arrangements to broadcast an "Educational Comedy Hour" each Saturday night starting at 10 o'clock. He is broadcasting over Station WOW, the Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Company station at Omaha, generally rated as one of the largest and strongest stations in the middle wtst. It is heard in every part of the country. The initial program was broadcast on February 4.

As a result of this first program, many exhibitors throughout Mr. Blank's territory have written to him and other Educational branches saying that they think it is a great publicity idea both for Educational and their theatres. Consequently, Blank is arranging to send nearly 200 special trailers to his various accounts to tie up the broadcasting program idea to the theatre boxoffice. These trailers, in addition to announcing the program and its purpose, will give the time for broadcasting.

Blank is an accomplished violin player, while his wife is a pianist. And so it was only natural when he conceived the idea of broadcasting an Educational Comedies program that he decided to put on most of the program himself, with his wife accompanying him. The first program consisted of about ten numbers, in addition to the announcements regarding Educational, its stars and product.

In addition to the trailer, Mr. Blank also publicizes the broadcasting hour by means of a neat post card which he sends to his exhibitor friends.

regular service will be provided at least as fillers to the large newsreel programs. The main features of these programs will, of course, be retained as essential to the success of the house, but if the newspapers find that in the production of local newsreels they have a field in which they can operate without financial loss, the movement is apt to be a popular one in the not too distant future. It may even assume the proportions of still service for rotagravure sections. Of course, only a small proportion of the local news happenings would warrant reproduction in other cities or towns, but an occasional "freak" picture could be well injected into any newsreel. And then there is always the chance of a national news event hitting any town. At any rate, the home town folks seem destined to see more of their neighbors on the screen in the future than they ever have in the past and showmen hope to benefit financially as a result.

Roving Console Installed at Palace, Dallas

A "roving organ console," similar to those described in the last issue of The Showman, has been installed at the Palace theatre in Dallas, Tex. The portable keyboard is an exact model of the permanent keyboard in the orchestra pit, and can be operated from any part of the theatre by means of a flexible cable which is attached to the organ pipes.

The instrument at the Palace was designed by Otto Gluth, organ engineer for the Publix Theatres. The cost of the console, including a new set of tibia pipes, was about $8,000.

National Screen Booklet On Uses for Trailers

AN interesting contribution to the library of showmanship ideas is made by the booklet issued recently by the National Screen Service, makers of advance trailers for feature pictures and special screen announcements.

Trailers are extensively used as advance announcements for pictures, but the growing tendency to make use of the screen as the medium for direct messages to the public is one which many exhibitors have failed to investigate as a potential business builder or good will agent for their particular houses.

Officials of Sentry Company Go Abroad to Close Deal

Joe E. Cohen, president, and Senator Max Aron, secretary of the Safety Sentry Control, sailed for England aboard the Olympic on February 24, to consummate a deal for the English and Continental rights to the distribution of the Sentry device.

Negotiations toward this distribution ararngement have been in progress for some time. They were brought to a head only recently by long distance telephone conversations. The deal is said to involve several million dollars.

The organization of the corporation is less than a year old. In that time contracts have already been secured for more than 10,000 unit installations in the United States. The equipment is already being used in more than 100 theatres.

Richardson Superintendent of Smalley Circuit

H. L. Richardson, for the past six years manager of Smalley's theatre, Fort Plain, N. Y., has been named superintendent of the Smalley theatre circuit of twelve theatres in Northern New York.

Announcement of the promotion was made by W. C. Smalley. Richardson will continue as general manager of the Fort Plain theatre with William Booth and Philip Schletter as assistants. The appointment comes as a reward for the several years of able and distinguished service rendered by Mr. Richardson.

West Coast Managers Start Second Drive

Managers on the West Coast Theatres circuit have started their second inter-organization drive—the Managers' Opportunity drive—which opened on Feb. 26th, Harold B. Franklin, president, announced. The drive will last 16 weeks and will be based on percentage of improvement over a given bogey of a certain previous period.

Method of conducting this second drive was changed from that used in the first West Coast Managers' Drive.

The "How it Works" Appeal Used in Radio Talk

"In the top magazine the film is placed and it travels down through the mechanism to the intermittent movement where the film stops every time the intermittent sprocket makes a quarter of a turn. It is interesting to note that the screen is dark practically one-half of the time, during the movement of each picture into place for projection upon the screen."

Mr. Harriman continued, saying to his radio audience: "Now the film is being projected on to the screen; the steady but faint whirr of the machine is heard as the story of the film is projected on to the screen. The first title appears" and from here on a complete synopsis of the picture "Beau Sabreur" was given to the radio audience by Mr. Harriman. The synopsis is splendidly presented by Mr. Harriman but as it is too long to give in full a few lines will be taken from it to show he continued to tell his audience about projection and wound up his talk.

"Now it happens according to the next scene that Mary Vanbrugh, played by Evelyn Brent, is on tour of that area as an American journalist. Of course, an American girl would have to walk into the picture and more or less complicate things, but at this point there is a buzz in the projection machine box beside me. I look at Frank—and I learn—

"Nothing to worry about. That is simply a signal to change projectors."

"I am glad it is only that because I know that something is about to happen in the story out there on the screen, and I don't want to have any serious mechanical monkey-business to come our way. The change-over is not even noticed, although the first machine has stopped its running, the film is taken out, and taken to the rewinding room where it is rewound and made ready for the next show."

EVENHEETERS

The Correct Method of Organ Chamber Heating.

More and more theatre owners are realizing that Evenheeters are a necessity in maintaining the most expensive piece of theatre equipment — the organ.

Evenheeters are made in portable sizes too. Made so that they can be used in the box office or elsewhere as desired. Approved by Underwriters Laboratories.

You will find that Evenheeters are the best organ protection you can obtain. They are reliable and serviceable too. And once they are in operation organ trouble caused by cold and dampness will decrease to a minimum.

A small investment in organ protection now will save you from a great deal of organ maintenance in the future.

Aberrations

The sharpest image is formed by that lens which, under otherwise equal conditions, is best corrected. There are six major aberrations with which the lens designer has to contend, as follows:

Chromatic aberration is responsible for color fringes at the boundary line between black and white areas and affects the whole extent of the screen image.

Spherical aberration causes fuzzy boundary lines and reduces contrast between black and white It should be looked for only in the center of the picture since a similar effect in the margin may be due to other causes.

A difference in the focus setting of the lens for sharpness at the center and in the margin of the picture indicates that the lens has curvature of field.

A difference between the focus setting of the lens required for best definition of vertical and horizontal lines in the margin is the result of astigmatism in the lens.

One-sided fuzziness of vertical lines at the side of the picture indicates coma.

Curvature in the margin of the picture of lines which should be straight (such as the cornice of a building) is due to distortion.

The next installment will say something about testing the lens for its quality.

Famous Loses $337,500 Case in Texas Court

Dallas Jury Makes Award in Favor of Independent Exhibitors or Alleged Conspiracy in Restraint of Trade

SIMON CHARNINSKY and Ray Stinnett, owners and operators of the Capitol Theatre in Dallas, Texas, were awarded damages last week in the amount of $337,500 against Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corporation and subsidiaries by a jury in the 95th District Court in Dallas, for alleged conspiracy in restraint of trade. They had sued for a total of $450,000 damages. The defendants have served notice of appeal to the civil court of appeals, and it is believed, if necessary, the case will be carried to the Federal court and to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The Plaintiffs charged that the Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corporation, Publix, the Dallas Building and Realty Corporation and others had combined and conspired to force them out of business by refusing to release "first run" pictures for exhibition in the Capitol Theatre.

Bitterly Fought Case

The case, which required four days in the hearing was one of the most bitterly fought ever conducted in the film business in the state of Texas, despite the fact that no defense was submitted by the defendants. The plaintiffs contended that because of the alleged combination and their inability to secure first run pictures, they were forced to sell the theatre, with the result of actual and exemplary damages totalling $450,000. Of this amount $150,000 was charged as actual damage and $300,000 exemplary damages. The verdict of the jury, after about an hour of deliberation, was $150,000 for actual damages and $187,500 for exemplary damages.

Charninsky testified that following an argument in New York with Harold B. Franklin, then head of the theatre department of the Paramount organization, Franklin threatened to force the plaintiffs out of business. He also testified that when he returned to Dallas he found that they were unable to secure any first run pictures for exhibition and were thus forced to sell the theatre.

The sale of the house was made to Universal, which operated it for several months and then granted it to the Saenger Amusement Company of New Orleans, which organization controlled it for almost a year. At the expiration of the Saenger Company's operating agreement last Summer, Charninsky and Stinnett again secured the theatre from Universal and have controlled it since that time.

L. B. Remy of the Fox Film Corporation testified that all films handled by his company were contracted for and could not be sold to anyone but contract holders. His testimony was practically limited to conditions prevailing in 1923-24 as it was during that period the plaintiffs were alleged to have suffered their damage.

Joseph E. Luckett, sales manager for United Artists Corporation testified as to the manner of sales and distribution of the pictures of his company. He was the first witness called to the stand by attorney John R. Moroney for the plaintiffs. He was followed by Karl Hoblitzelle of the Majestic Theatre and other witnesses for the plaintiffs, who testified concerning difficulties they had in obtaining first class pictures.

Attorney General Undecided

The books and correspondence of the larger distributors of Dallas were inspected several weeks ago by the Attorney General's office, but Attorney General Claud Pollard will not discuss the possibility of an investigation by his office. He declares only that he has not yet reached a decision.

During the course of the trial it was revealed that the Capitol has been receiving a split on First National product, but when Pantages vaudeville was booked, it was claimed that Franklin refused to give a split the next season on First National or other preferred product. This was alleged to have followed a request by Franklin that Stinnett and Sharninsky refrain from booking Pantages vaudeville, as he pointed out it would bring a destructive competitive situation, as Dallas was not large enough to support two vaudeville houses. He was also alleged to have stated his intention of withdrawing Loew vaudeville from the Melba. Charninsky alleged that on a visit to Franklin he was informed that he would be deprived of all choice film.

Karl Hoblitzelle offered correspondence and wires in which he showed that splits were offered and in which he alleged it was shown that the pictures concerned were open in the town but not available for the Capitol.

In offering no defense it was charged by Paramount and the other defendants that the suit was brought by a partnership, whereas, if there had been any injury it was to the corporation, and that the partners had been paid for their stock.

It is predicted that in addition to the plea by the independents for an investigation by the Attorney General, there will be many other suits filed throughout the state. For some time past in Texas there has been much agitation against alleged practices of chain operators.

K-A-O Buys FBO Interest

Deal Brings Four Large Organizations Together on Picture Company Directorate

THE recently merged Keith-Albee-Orpheum circuits continued their program of expansion last week when it was announced they had purchased a substantial interest in F B O, bringing together a combination in its entirely that is a tremendous power in the motion picture industry.

As a result of this latest merger F B O now has on its board of directors the joint interests of four great organizations. These are Joseph P. Kennedy and his associates in motion pictures and banking, the Keith-Albee-Orpheum group, and representatives of the Radio Corporation of America and the General Electric Company. This affords a hookup of motion picture productions with sound reproducing devices for their synchronization, such as now exist or that might be developed by the Radio and Electric companies, as well as assured bookings in practically 700 theatres which make up the Keith-Albee-Orpheum circuits and affiliated houses in America and Canada.

This new alliance with F B O it is stated, is in line with the Keith-Albee-Orpheum policy toward further expansion and development, and no doubt its officials had in mind Joseph P. Kennedy's ability and resourcefulness as being helpful in reorganizing certain branches of the industry with which they are affiliated. It also marks another important development in F B O under the guidance of Mr. Kennedy, its president. He became head of that company in 1926 and it has made gigantic strides since that time. As a result of his activities, Mr. Kennedy has become recognized in the motion picture industry as one of the most constructive and capable directors of its affairs. His is an influence that has brought only good to the industry.

Mr. Kennedy has been considered a power

Reduced Prices, Rumored Mergers Stir K. C. Attendance

THE campaign of suburban, as well as down town exhibitors in Kansas City to stimulate attendance, has developed into a battle of reduced admission, rumored mergers and much exploitation.

The Liberty theatre, first run downtown house, started off by reducing its admission price to 25 cents until 6 o'clock and 35 cents thereafter. Then came the rumor that the Shubert theatre would occupy the Orpheum, a first run picture and vaudeville house, the Orpheum to combine with the Mainstreet, also a first run picture and vaudeville house of the junior Orpheum circuit.

Next it was said the Newman theatre, until recently Kansas City's finest down town house, would be remodeled into a women's ready-to-wear store, while the Royal, now closed, would re-open as a 15-cent house. The Newman is an affiliated Loew house. The rumors, however, were denied, but rumors, which previously have been denied, later have proved to be facts. The suburban houses also continued their battle for attendance.

Federal statistics show business conditions in Kansas City to be about normal, but it looks like a battle of the survival of the fittest in the motion picture industry. The Newman has the choicest location of any theatre in Kansas City. A short time ago the "S. R. O." sign was necessary almost nightly. Since the $4,000,000 Loew's Midland has been open, offering stage presentations, and since stage presentations were discontinued at the Newman, the latter house hasn't been paying expenses at night performances. Did abandoning stage presentations cause it, or was the additional 4,000 seats at Loew's Midland the cause? Therein hangs a questions on which few exhibitors agree.

Frieberg Bill Is Dead

Issue Relating to Admission of Children to Motion Picture Houses Off for Another Year

THE Freiberg children's bill as it relates to the motion picture theatres of New York state, is a dead issue for at least another year. For reasons which were not made public, but which were admitted to be chiefly political, it was decided this week not to hold the public hearing on the Freiberg bill, which had been previously set for Tuesday afternoon before the cities committee of the Legislature at Albany. Although the hearing was scheduled for two o'clock, there was no one present when Senator Freiberg arose in his seat and announced that the hearing had been called off by all parties concerned, and that there would be no further attempt this year to push the bill for passage.

This announcement on the part of Senator Freiberg, introducer of the bill, came as a surprise for it was well known that many of the exhibitors of New York state, particularly in the larger cities, were favorably inclined toward the measure.

When pressed as to the reason for the decision not to advance the bill, Senator Freiberg said that it had been decided for reasons best known to themselves, to do nothing further with the measure this year. He admitted that it was chiefly political and added that as this was a presidential year it was not advisable to stir up any trouble.

Just where this trouble might come from could not be learned although he did say that the only opposition to the measure that had reached his ears came from New York City and that it was of no great strength. The bill, as introduced, provided that motion picture theatres might admit children between the ages of ten and sixteen years unaccompanied, from two to six p. m., provided the theatre maintained a matron at its own expense and that the children were segregated under the matron's care, close to an exit. Senator Freiberg admitted that the present law is being openly violated in many instances, by admitting unaccompanied children, and that if the bill were passed and became a law, it would remedy the situation as it exists in many respects.

Universal Now Controls Georgia Theatre Firm

UNIVERSAL has acquired full ownership of Naborhood Theatre Corporation, Atlanta, Ga., through the purchase from Oscar S. Oldknow of his 50 per cent interest therein.

Naborhood Theatres Corporation operates three suburban houses in the Atlanta district—the Ponce de Leon, the Madison and the Fairfax. Alpha Fowler, one of the best known exhibitors in the section, is general manager of Naborhood, which operates under the supervision of Willard C. Patterson, southern division manager of Universal theatres.

Emil Ludwig, Biographer, to Write for Paramount

Emil Ludwig, biographer whose latest books are "Napoleon," "Bismarck" and "Genius and Character," last Wednesday signed a contract with Paramount to write a biography which will be produced as a film. The subject of the biography was not announced.

Paramount officials are enthused over the signing of the German biographer, and express the opinion that the interest in biographies manifested by the reading public will extend to the screen.

New Stanley, Pittsburgh, Opens With Big Splash

The Stanley Theatre, Pittsburgh's de luxe motion picture palace seating 4,000, was opened with an elaborate fanfare last Monday evening, February 27, before an invited throng. Mayor Charles Kline officially presented the house to the Pittsburgh public at 3:30 when he presented a bronze tablet in the lobby of the Stanley. This ceremony was featured with bands, and was later part of the newsreel which the Stanley presented during the latter part of the day. Another feature of the event was a dinner held in the evening at the William Penn Hotel for Stanley executives.

Paramount's "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" was the feature picture of the premiere. Anatole Friedland and his revue was the stage presentation.

One enters the Stanley through the foyer, which is not separated by doors from the auditorium but so constructed as to allow standees to see the show. An elevating pit, organ, medicine and sick room, and a huge chandelier are other features of the house. James Ballmer is manager.

F B O Holds Two Regional Sales Meets in Midwest

A regional sales meeting of mid-western managers was held by F B O at the Sinton Hotel, Cincinnati, on Saturday, and another at the Stevens Hotel, Chicago, on Sunday. J. I. Schnitzer, senior vice-president of F B O, and Lee Marcus, general sales manager, presided at both gatherings.

Those in attendance at the Cincinnati meeting included: H. J. Michalson, A. H. Schnitzer, A. J. Mertz, A. M. Elliott, J. P. Shea, Claude Penrod, P. M. Baker, and Cleve Adams.

The Chicago meeting was attended by A. H. Washburn, Earl Harrington, Sam Benjamin, Paul Tessier, Roy Churchill, H. R. Frankle, Sherman Fitch, Roy Zimmerman, M. J. Frisch and S. H. Abrams.

Burbank Studios Starting Nine New Productions

Nine new productions have been started at the First National Coast studios. Several of them were begun last week, the others the current week. Four other pictures are nearing the finish line. Of these "Lilac Time" has about two more weeks of shooting before it will have been finished.

The new pictures now wending their way towards the cutting rooms are "Nightbirds" and "The Code of the Scarlet." Two scheduled to enter work immediately are the new Harry Langdon comedy and the Johnny Hines comedy to follow "Chinatown Charlie." Next week filming will be launched on "The Butter and Egg Man," "The Boss of Little Arcady," "Roulette," "The Divine Lady" and "The Whip."

Block Booking Concession In New Standard Contract

Full Text Also Contains Other Changes, Including Several Important Points Agreed Upon at Trade Practice Conference

THE text of the new Standard Exhibition Contract and Arbitration Rules, agreed upon at the Chicago conference was made public this week. The contract contains the ten per cent block booking concession as its outstanding feature.

The other distributor concessions to exhibitors are also those made at the Trade Practice Conference in October. The Rules for Arbitration were also made public. There is one change. It provides that distributors who fail to comply with an arbitration board award are fined an additional ten per cent of the award for every month which elapses following their failure to comply.

The new provisions of the contract are these:

Salesmen are subject to discharge for violating the code of ethics.

Any added clauses must not be inconsistent with those approved by the Contract Committee. Additional clauses appearing upon any rider that may be annexed to the contract are of no effect unless the exhibitor signs them.

Protection begins on the last day, not the first day of the run.

Exhibitors do not have to play pictures not "generally released" during the life of the contract, unless the exhibitor gives notice of his desire to play them. The pictures must then be supplied to him within two years or the contract cancelled.

Distributors must supply prints suitable for exhibition.

Protection is extended so as to include any new theatre built in the same zone.

Instead of the former figure of four cents a foot, film damaged or destroyed is to be paid for at actual replacement cost

The exhibitor shall not be required to play any picture, substitutions for which have been made in star, director, or specified story or play. Distributors have the right to change titles or make changes in the book or play specified.

The exhibitor may cancel ten per cent of any block on payment of 50 per cent of the rental of the cancelled pictures. In case the distributor rents the picture or pictures to another theatre in the same zone, the distributor is to credit one half of the second rental to the first exhibitor.

Arbitration Boards are given the power to relieve exhibitors from playing pictures that may be religiously or racially offensive.

No short subjects are to be sold in any block of features.

Exhibitors must not cut pictures, except newsreels, without distributor's permission, and must follow in advertising the form used in the distributor's advertising matter.

A statement issued this week by R. F. Woodhull, chairman of the unaffiliated exhibitor group at the Trade Practice Conference and R. H. Cochrane, chairman of the distributor group, said:

"It is the belief of the Committee that the new Contract and Rules are a great improvement over those which they will supersede, beginning May 1, 1928—and that the provisions and those which were omitted from the old Contract and Rules, will do much to eliminate many points of trade differences between exhibitors and distributors of motion pictures."

Following were the members of the Committee representing the Unaffiliated Exhibitors:

Ben Berinstein of Los Angeles, Cal.; Nathan Yamins of Fall River, Mass.; R. R. Biechele of Kansas City, Mo.; (H. M. Richey, of Detroit, Mich., Secy.)

Representing the Affiliated Exhibitors: Fred Desberg of Cleveland, Ohio, and Edward Schiller of New York.

Representing the Distributors: Felix F. Feist, Ned Depinet, Phil Reisman.

The complete text of the new contract follows (the Arbitration Rules will be printed in a later issue):

* DIRECTION TO SALESMEN: While you have every right to trade among prospective customers to obtain the best offer possible for your product, after you have selected a particular exhibitor whose offer you believe to be the best obtainable and take a written application from such exhibitor, you are hereby directed to forward the application to the office of your company and make no further effort to sell the same service to any other exhibitor directly competing with such exhibitor until th eapplication so forwarded has been duly rejected, accepted or withdrawn in accordance with its terms. A violation of this direction will subject you to discharge.

*(Note: This direction to Salesmen shall be printed upon but shall not be deemed a part of the Standard Exhibition Contract.)

STANDARD EXHIBITION CONTRACT

Agreement, made in one or more counterparts between .... a corporation (hereinafter referred to as "the Distributor"), party of the first part, and the Exhibitor hereinafter named and referred to as the "Exhibitor," operating the theatre or theatres hereinafter designated, party of the second part.

WITNESSETH:

The parties hereto agree as follows:

FIRST: The Distributor warrants that there is contained herein all of the numbered Articles of the "Standard Exhibition Contract" agreed upon by the Contract Committee appointed at the 1927 Motion Picture Trade Practice Conference (an authenticated copy of which has been filed with the American Arbitration Association). The Distributor also warrants that any clauses in addition thereto appearing upon the Schedule have been approved by such Contract Committee, and that any additional clauses appearing upon a Rider, if any hereto annexed, are not inconsistent with any of such numbered Articles. It is agreed that any clauses contained in such Rider shall be of no effect unless such Rider be signed by the Exhibitor. It is agreed that any agreement contained in the Schedule covering or describing what photoplays are licensed hereunder and in respect of any license fee, exhibition dates and any provision permitted by the provisions of the numbered Articles hereof shall not be deemed an additional clause for the purpose of this Article.

SECOND: (a) The Distributor hereby grants to the Exhibitor, and the latter accepts, a license under the respective copyrights of the several photoplays designated and described in the Schedule herein subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter stated to exhibit (during the period of one year commencing with the date fixed or determined as hereinafter provided for the exhibition in the theatre hereinafter designated of the first photoplay deliverable hereunder, unless otherwise in the Schedule provided) each of such photoplays at the said theatre only for the number of consecutive days in the said Schedule provided. If more than one theatre is hereinafter designated no photoplay is licensed hereunder for exhibition at more than one of such theatres unless otherwise specifically agreed upon in the Schedule.

In case any of such photoplays (except photoplays which shall be "roadshown") shall not be "generally released" by the Distributor for distribution in the United States during the period beginning   and ending   , such photoplays shall be excepted and excluded from this license unless the Exlater shall give written notice to the Distributor not later than thirty days after such last mentioned date that the Exhibitor elects to exhibit all of such photoplays hereunder. If such notice be given the Distributor shall deliver and the Exhibitor shall exhibit such photoplays as and when available for exhibition hereunder, except that any of such photoplays not so "generally released" within two years after such last mentioned date shall be also excepted and excluded. The Distributor may exhibit or license the exhibition of any photoplays excepted and excluded as aforesaid when and where desired by the Distributor, and all claims or causes of action in respect thereof are hereby expressly waived by the Exhibitor.

THIRD: The Exhibitor agrees to exhibit under said license said photoplays, but only at the theatre hereinafter specified, on the exhibition date or dates fixed in the Schedule or determined as hereinafter provided, and not to allow any positive print thereof to leave the Exhibitor's possession during the period specified for the exhibition thereof by the Exhibitor, nor to exhibit or to permit the exhibition of any such positive print at any other time or place. Such license shall be specifically for such exhibition of such photoplays, and for no other purpose.

FOURTH: The Exhibitor agrees to pay for such license as to each of such photoplays the fixed sums herein specified at least three (3) days in advance of the date of shipment from the Distributor's exchange or from the last previous exhibitor of the positive print thereof.

FIFTH: Payment, if any, made upon the execution hereof by the Exhibitor shall be deemed payment on account of the sums last payable hereunder.

SIXTH: During the life of this contract the Distributor agrees not to exhibit or license the exhibition of any such photoplay in conflict with the "run" or "protection period," if any, in the Schedule specified. Unless otherwise provided herein, such "protection period" shall be computed from the last date of exhibition of each photoplay as fixed herein. If "protection" is granted hereunder against a specified theatre or theatres which "protection" shall indicate that it was the intention of the Distributor to grant such "protection" against all of the theatres in the immediate neighborhood or vicinity of the Exhibitor's theatre, then, unless otherwise provided in the Schedule, such "protection" shall be deemed to apply to and include any theatre that may hereafter be opened in such neighborhood or vicinity.

SEVENTH: The Distributor agrees to deliver to the Exhibitor during the period specified in Article Second hereof or otherwise in the Schedule provided for a positive print suitable for exhibition of each of such photoplays for exhibition at the said theatre on the dates specified or on the dates determined as herein provided. Delivery of such positive prints by the Distributor to the Exhibitor at the Distributor's exchange or to a common carrier or to the United States postal authorities for mailing or to any agent of the Exhibitor shall be deemed delivery by the Distributor to the Exhibitor hereunder.

All deliveries other than at the Distributor's exchange shall be made in time to enable the carrier thereof in accordance with the carrier's time schedule to deliver to the Exhibitor or at the place where the Exhibitor's theatre is located prints at least one hour before the usual time for the opening of the Exhibitor's Theatre.

The Exhibitor agrees to return each positive print received by the Exhibitor hereunder, with the reels and containers furnished therewith, to the exchange of the Distributor from which the Exhibitor is served or as otherwise directed by the Distributor immediately after the last exhibition of such positive print, in the same condition as when received by the Exhibitor, reasonable wear and tear due to the proper use thereof excepted. The Exhibitor agrees to pay all costs of transportation of such positive prints, reels and containers from the Distributor's exchange or the last previous exhibitor having possession of any of such positive prints (as the case may be) and return to the Distributor's exchange; or if directed by the Distributor, to ship such positive prints elsewhere than to the Distributor's exchange transportation charges collect. It is agreed that the delivery of a positive print properly directed and packed in the container furnished by the Distributor therefor, to a carrier designated or used by the Distributor and proper receipt therefor, obtained by the Exhibitor, shall constitute the return of such positive print by the Exhibitor.

If the Exhibitor fails to or delays the return of any positive print to the Distributor or fails to forward or delays forwarding (as directed by the Distributor) any such print to any other exhibitor the Exhibitor agrees to pay the Distributor the damage, if any, so caused the Distributor and in addition the damage, if any, so caused such other exhibitor as shall be determined by Arbitration as provided for in Article Eighteenth hereof.

Eighth: The exhibition date or dates of each photoplay, unless definitely specified or otherwise provided for in the Schedule, or otherwise agreed upon, shall be determined as follows:

1. The Distributor shall mail to the Exhibitor at least fifteen days' notice in writing of the date upon which each photoplay will be available for exhibition by the Exhibitor, consistent with prior runs and or protecton heretofore or hereafter granted to other exhibitors (which date is hereinafter referred to as "the available date"). Such notice shall be of no effect unless prints of such photoplay are in the exchange of the Distributor from which the Exhibitor is served.

2. Within fourteen days after the mailing of such notice, the Exhibitor shall select an exhibition date or dates within a thirty day period commencing with such available date, by giving written notice to the Distributor of the date, or dates, so selected.

If the exhibition date or dates so selected by the Exhibitor are not open for the Exhibitor, then the exhibition date or dates shall be designated as provided in the following paragraphs "A" and "B":

(A) If other dates within said thirty day period are open the Exhibitor shall immediately select from such other open dates another date or other dates; failing to do so, then the Distributor shall designate the date or dates which shall be within a period not earlier than two weeks nor later than six weeks from the date first selected by the Exhibitor, by mailing fourteen days' notice thereof to the Exhibitor.

(B) If no other date or dates within said thirty day period are open (after the Exhibitor's written request therefor) then the Exhibitor shall designate the date or dates which shall be within a period not earlier than two, nor later than six weeks from the last date of the said thirty day period, by immediately giving written notice thereof to the Distributor. If the Exhibitor fails to immediately designate such date or dates, as provided in this paragraph "B," the Distributor shall designate the date or dates within the same period by mailing to the Exhibitor fourteen days' notice of such date or dates.

If the Exhibitor fails to make any selection within fourteen days after the mailing of the available dates of any photoplay, then the Distributor may at any time designate the exhibition date or dates thereof, which date or dates shall not be prior to the available date, by mailing notice thereof at least fourteen days before such exhibition date or dates; and if any such photoplay shall have been exhibited by any other exhibitor having a "run" prior in point of time and immediately preceding the "run" specified in the Schedule granted to the Exhibitor, then the Distribution shall designate the exhibition date or dates thereof, which shall be within a period of forty-five days commencing with the available date. In case the exhibition date or dates of any of the photoplays shall be designated by the Distributor pursuant to this paragraph, "the period of protection," if any, specified in the schedule, shall begin upon the fifteenth (15th) day of the thirty-day period specified in paragraph 2 of this Article.

3. The exhibition date or dates of any of the photoplays selected by the Exhibitor (if available), or designated as in this Article Eighth provided, or otherwise agreed upon between the Distributor and the Exhibitor, shall be for all purposes the exhibition date or dates of such photoplay as through definitely specified in the Schedule.

4. In case this contract embraces a series of feature photoplays, five reels or more in length and featuring a particular star or director, the Exhibitor shall not be required hereunder to exhibit more than one photoplay of any such series every five weeks.

Ninth: The Exhibitor shall pay to the Distributor a sum equal to the cost of replacement at the Distributor's exchange for each linear foot of any positive print lost, stolen or destroyed or injured in any way in the interval between the delivery thereof by the Distributor and the return thereof by the Exhibitor in full settlement of all claims for such loss, theft, destruction or injury. Such payment, however, shall not transfer title to or any interest in any such positive print to the Exhibitor or any other party, nor release the Exhibitor from liability arising out of any breach of this contract. The Distributor shall at the option of the Exhibitor repay or credit to the Exhibitor any sums paid by the latter for lost or stolen prints, excepting "news reels," upon their return to the Distributor within sixty (60) days after the date when the same should have been returned hereunder. The Exhibitor shall not be liable for the damage or destruction of any positive print, provided the Exhibitor establishes such damage or destruction occurred while in transit from the Exhibitor. The Exhibitor shall immediately notify the Distributor's exchange by telegram of the loss, theft or destruction of or damage or injury to any positive print. If any positive print shall be received from the Exhibitor by the Distributor or any subsequent exhibitor in a damaged or partially destroyed condition it shall be deemed to have been so damaged or destroyed by the Exhibitor unless the latter, prior to the second public exhibition thereof shall have telegraphed the Distributor's exchange that such print was received by the Exhibitor in a damaged or partially destroyed condition, and setting forth fully the nature of such damage and the amount of footage so damaged or destroyed.

Tenth: The Exhibitor shall not be required to accept for any photoplay described in the Schedule as the photoplay of a star, or of a director, or based upon a specified story, book or play, or by an identifying description, any other photoplay of a different star or different director, or based upon a different story, book or play, or not corresponding to such identifying description, as the case may be. Nothing herein contained shall limit the right of the Distributor to change the title of any of such photoplays, or, as respects any photoplay based upon any story, obok or play, prevent the making of any alterations, changes in or adaptations thereof.

The Distributor warrants that none of the photoplays licensed hereunder are reissues from old negatives or old negatives renamed, except those specifically set forth as such in the Schedule.

Eleventh: This contract shall not be assigned by either party without the written acceptance of the assignee and the written consent of the other party; provided, that of the Exhibitor sells or disposes of his interest in the theatre hereinafter specified, he may assign this contract to the purchaser of such interest without the writen consent of the Distributor and such assignment shall become effective upon the written acceptance thereof by the assignee, such assignment, however, shall not relieve the Exhibitor of liability hereunder, unless the Distributor consents in writing to release the Exhibitor from such liability.

Twelfth: The Exhibitor agrees to run photoplays (excepting "news reels") as delivered without alteration, excepting with the written or telegraphic approval of the Distributor, subject to requirements of duly authorized public authorities necessitating any change. The Exhibitor also agrees to advertise and announce each photoplay as a "   ." In all newspaper advertising and publicity issued by the Exhibitor relating to said photoplays the Exhibitor shall adhere to the form of announcement contained in the advertising matter issued by the Distributor.

All advertising accessories used by the Exhibitor in connection with the exhibition of said photoplays must be leased from or through the Distributor and must not be sold, leased or given away by the Exhibitor.

Unless this contract expressly provides for the "first run" in the City or Town wherein the theatre hereinafter specified is located, the Exhibitor agrees not to advertise any of the photoplays herein provided for by means of lithographs, slides, trailers, lobby displays, newspaper announcements, advertising or otherwise prior to, and until after the completion of, the exhibition of such photoplay by any other exhibitor having the right of the "first run" thereof in said City or Town.

The Distributor shall not in any wise be liable for any breach of the provisions of the immediately preceding paragraph contained in any other "Standard Exhibition Contract" with any other exhibitor.

Thirteenth: The Distributor warrants that the photoplays herein provided for will not contain any advertising matter for which compensation is received by the Distributor.

Fourteenth: The Exhibitor agrees to pay to the Distributor upon demand any tax, fee or other like charge now and/or hereafter imposed or based upon the delivery and/or the exhibition of positive prints of the photoplays and/or upon the sums payable under this contract by the Exhibitor to the Distributor. If under any statute or ordinance any such tax, fee or other like charge is or shall be payable or paid by the Distributor and the exact amount payable hereunder by the Exhibitor is not therein definitely fixed or cannot be exactly determined then the Exhibitor agrees to pay such part of any such tax, fee or other like charge, paid or payable by the Distributor as shall be fixed in the manner determined by the then President of the American Arbitration Association.

Fifteenth: The Exhibitor warrants and agrees that during the period each of the photoplays herein provided for shall be exhibited in said theatre the Exhibitor will charge for admission to said theatre an actual admission fee which shall not be less than ten cents, unless a greater minimum admission charge is herein elsewhere specified, for each exhibition and that such photoplays shall not be exhibited unless such admission fee is charged.

Sixteenth: In case the Exhibitor shall be delayed in or prevented from the performance of this contract with respect to any of the photoplays herein specified by reason of censor rulings, the elements, accidents, strikes, fire, insurrection, acts of God, the public enemy, public calamity or order of any Court of competent jurisdiction, then such delay or failure of performance with respect to such photoplay shall be excused and all claims or causes of action for damages therefor, or arising therefrom, are hereby expressly waived by the Distributor. In any such event, the time of the Exhibitor to perform this contract with respect to any such photoplay shall be extended for a period equal to the time of such delay, unless performance thereof because of the happening of any such cause or contingency is rendered impossible, in which case performance by the Exhibitor with respect to any such photoplay shall be waived. The resumption of performance by the Exhibitor shall begin promptly after the removal or abatement of the contingencies or causes of such disability or prevention of performance, provided, that if such delay and/or prevention of performance, caused as aforesaid, shall continue for a period of three (3) months either party hereto may cancel this contract, but only with respect to any such photoplay the exhibition hereunder of which has been so delayed or prevented, by sending after the expiration of such three (3) months' period to the other party notice in writing to such effect.

In case the Distributor shall be delayed in or prevented from the performance of this contract with respect to any of the photoplays herein specified by reason of the elements, accidents, strikes, fire, insurrection, acts of God, the public enemy, public calamity, Court orders, censor rulings, delays of any common carrier, or of the United States Postal authorities, delays in production or failure of the producers of any of such photoplays to make or deliver them to the Distributor or of any star or other performer to appear therein in time for delivery as herein provided, then such delay in or prevention of performance shall be excused and all claims or causes of action for damages therefor or arising therefrom are hereby expressly waived by the Exhibitor. In any such event, the time of the Distributor to perform this contract with respect to any such photoplay shall be extended for a period equal to the time of such delay, provided, however, that in case any such delay of prevention shall prevent the Distributor from "generally releasing" any such photoplay during the period specified in paragraph (b) of Article Second, the provisions of such paragraph shall govern, unless performance because of the happening of any such cause or contingency is rendered impossible, in which case performance by the Distributor with respect to any such photoplay shall be waived. The resumption of performance by the Distributor shall begin promptly after the removal or abatement of the contingencies or causes of such disability or prevention of performance and the Distributor shall deliver to the Exhibitor any such photoplay at the earliest available date thereafter, and such delivery in any such case shall be with the same force and effect as though delivery took place within the period herein above limited and the Exhibitor agrees to accept, pay for and exhibit any such photoplay at such later period pursuant to the terms hereof.

Seventeenth: The waiver by either party of any breach or default by the other party shall not be construed as a waiver of any other or subsequent breach or default by such other party.

Eighteenth: The parties hereto agree that before either of them shall resort to any court to determine, enforce or protect the legal rights of either hereunder, each shall submit to the Board of Arbitration (established or constituted pursuant to the Rules of Arbitration filed with the American Arbitration Association, 342 Madison Avenue, New York City, bearing date May 1, 1928 and identified by the signatures of the Contract Committee appointed at the 1927 Motion Picture Trade Practice Conference, a copy of which will be furnished to the Exhibitor upon request) in the city wherein is situated the exchange of the Distributor from which the Exhibitor is served or if there be no such Board of Arbitration in such city then to the Board of Arbitration in the city nearest thereto (unless the parties hereto agree in writing that such submission shall be made to a Board of Arbitration located in another specified city), all claims and controversies arising hereunder for determination pursuant to the said Rules of Arbitration and the rules of procedure and practice adopted by such Board of Arbitration.

The parties hereto further agree to abide by and forthwith comply with any decision and award of such Board of Arbitration in any such arbitration proceeding, and agree and consent that any such decision or award shall be enforceable in or by any court of competent jurisdiction pursuant to the laws of such jurisdiction now or hereafter in force; and each party hereto hereby waives the right of trial by jury upon any issue arising under this contract, and agrees to accept as conclusive the findings of fact made by any such Board of Arbitration, and consents to the introduction of such findings in evidence in any judicial proceeding.

In the event that the Exhibitor shall fail or refuse to consent to submit to arbitration any claim or controversy arising under this or any other Standard Exhibition Contract which the Exhibitor may have with the Distributor or any other distributor or to abide by and forthwith comply with any decision or award of such Board of Arbitration upon any such claim or controversy so submitted, the Distributor may, at its option, demand, for its protection and as security for the performance by the Exhibitor of this and all other existing contracts between the parties hereto, payment by the Exhibitor of an additional sum not exceeding $500 under each existing contract, such sum to be retained by the Distributor until the complete performance of all such contracts and then applied, at the option of the Distributor, against any sums finally due or against any damages determined by said Board of Arbitration to be due to the Distributor, the balance, if any to be returned to the Exhibitor; and in the event of the Exhibitor's failure to pay such additional sum within seven (7) days after demand, the Distributor may by written notice to the Exhibitor suspend service hereunder until said sum shall be paid and/or terminate this contract.

In the event that the Distributor shall fail or refuse to consent to the submission to arbitration of any claim or controversy arising under this or any other Standard Exhibition Contract providing for arbitration which the Distributor may have with the Exhibitor, or to abide by and forthwith comply with any decision or award of such Board of Arbitration upon any such claim or controversy so submitted, within the number of days specified in Article Twenty-Second opposite the name of the City in which such Board of Arbitration is located, the Exhibitor may at his option terminate this and any other existing contract between the Exhibitor and the Distributor by mailing notice by registered mail within two (2) weeks after such failure or refusal, and in addition the Distributor shall not be entitled to redress from such Board of Arbitration upon any claim or claims against any exhibitor until the Distributor shall have complied with such decision, and in the meanwhile the provisions of the first paragraph of this Article Eighteenth shall not apply to any such claim or claims.

Any such termination by either party, however, shall be without prejudice to any other right or remedy which the party so terminating may have by reason of any such breach of contract by the other party.

The provisions of this contract relating to arbitration shall be construed according to the law of the State of New York.

NINETEENTH: This Contract is complete and no promise or representations have been made by either party to the other except as set forth herein.

TWENTIETH: If the license herein granted shall apply to an entire group of photoplays offered by the Distributor to the Exhibitor at one time, and not otherwise, the Exhibitor shall have the right to exclude from this contract up to but not exceeding ten per cent of the total number of such photoplays, but only if the Exhibitor shall give the Distributor written notice to such effect at any time not later than fourteen (14) days before the date fixed for the exhibition of any such photoplay is available for exhibition hereunder, and if at the same time the Exhibitor shall pay to the Distributor one-half of the license fee payable in respect of any such photoplay. In computing such ten per cent, fractions of less than one-half shall be disregarded. If any such photoplay shall, because of such exclusion, be thereafter licensed by the Distributor for the same run as that specified in this contract, for exhibition at another theatre where such excluded photoplay would not have been exhibited if not so excluded; then one-half of the license fee (up to but not exceeding the amount paid by the Exhibitor to the Distributor as a condition of so excluding such photoplay) received by the Distributor for such re-license, shall be credited to the Exhibitor by the Distributor.

If the license fee for any such photoplay so excluded is to be computed either in whole or in part upon a percentage of gross receipts of the Exhibitor's theatre, then for the purpose of computing such one-half of such license fee payable hereunder in respect of such photoplay, such gross receipts for each day that any such photoplay is licensed hereunder for exhibition thereat shall be deemed to be the average daily gross receipts of such theatre during the period of thirty (30) operating days immediately prior to such date of availability of such photoplay.

TWENTY-FIRST: If the Exhibitor shall claim that the exhibition at the theatre hereinafter specified of any photoplay licensed hereunder will be offensive to the public in the place where such theatre is located, because of racial or religious subject matter, and if the Exhibitor shall give written notice to the Distributor of such claim within a reasonable time prior to the date fixed for the Exhibition thereof hereunder such claim shall be immediately submitted to the Board of Arbitration herein specified. If such Board of Arbitration shall specifically determine that the exhibition of such photoplay at such theatre will be offensive to said public because of raciol or religious subject matter, then such photoplay shall be excepted from this contract, and not otherwise. The Distributor may exhibit or license the exhibition of any photoplay so excepted when and where desired by the Distributor free from all claims of the Exhibitor.

If the Distributor shall be of the opinion that any photoplay licensed hereunder will be offensive because of racial or religious subject matter, to the public in the place where the Exhibitor's theatre is located, the Distributor shall have the right to except and exclude such photoplay from this contract, upon condition that such photoplay shall not thereafter be licensed for exhibition in such place unless such racial or religious subject matter is eliminated therefrom, in which case such photoplay shall again be deemed licensed hereunder.

TWENTY-SECOND: This instrument shall be deemed an application for a license under copyright only and shall not become binding until accepted in writing without alteration or change by an officer of or any person duly authorized by the Distributor and notice of acceptance sent to the Exhibitor as herein provided. The deposit by the Distributor of any check or other consideration given by the Exhibitor at the time of application as payment on account of any sums payable hereunder or the delivery of a print of any of the photoplays or the furnishing of any advertising accessories shall not be deemed an acceptance hereof by the Distributor.

Unless notice of acceptance of this application by the Distributor is sent to the Exhibitor by mail or telegraph within the number of days after the date thereof hereinafter specified (immediately following the name of the city wherein is situated the exchange of the Distributor from which the Exhibitor is served, or if such city is not hereinafter named then within the number of days specified immediately following the city hereinafter named nearest thereto) said application shall be deemed withdrawn and the Distributor shall forthwith return any sums paid on account thereof by the Exhibitor. Albany 10; Atlanta 20; Boston 10; Buffalo 10; Charleston 15; Charlotte 15; Cincinnati 20; Cleveland 15; Dallas 30; Denver 20; Des Moines 15; Detroit 15; Indianapolis 15; Jacksonville 15; Kansas City 15; Los Angeles 25; Little Rock 15; Louisville 15; Memphis 20; Milwaukee 15; Northern New Jersey 7; Minneapolis 20; Butte 30; New Haven 10; New Orleans 15; New York City 7; Oklahoma City 20; Omaha 20; Peoria 15; Philadelphia 10; Pittsburgh 14; Portland, Ore., 30; St. Louis 15; Salt Lake City 30; San Francisco 20; Seattle 30; Washington, D. C., 14.

This application and any application for other photoplays of the Distributor executed by the Exhibitor at the same time shall, for the purpose of this Article only, be deemed one application unless an agreement to the contrary contained in the Schedule is specifically signed by the Exhibitor.

New Blood and Capital in First Division

FIRST DIVISION DISTRIBUTORS, INC., have just completed negotiations whereby their organization is strengthened in that the producing firm of Robert S. Furst and Raymond Wells have joined Jesse J. Goldberg, president of First Division. Mr. Goldburg remains president of the newly consolidated corporation; Mr. Wells is vice-president, supervising production in Hollywood, and Mr. Furst is financial executive in charge of production on the West Coast. Mr. Goldburg will devote most of his time to distribution from the New York office.

The company has just moved to larger quarters and are now located on the sixth floor of 729 Seventh Avenue. The production plant and western office will be at the Metropolitan studios in Hollywood. Mr. Goldburg and Mr. Wells have left New York for Hollywood to confer with Mr. Furst concerning the new season's program. It is expected that this schedule will consist of 18 features, nine stars to do two pictures apiece.

A copy of this application, signed by the Exhibitor, shall be left with the Exhibitor at the time of signing, and in the event of acceptance thereof as above provided, a duplicate copy, signed by the Distributor, shall be forwarded to the Exhibitor.

APPROVED ADDITIONAL CLAUSES

1. If this contract designates certain photoplays by title, it shall be non-cancellable as to such photoplays. If it embraces a series of photoplays not designated by title it may be cancelled as to such series by either party after two photoplays of such series have been exhibited and paid for, by notice in writing to the other party after playing the second of said photoplays, such cancellation to take effect after ( ) additional photoplays shall have been exhibited and paid for.

2. *The Distributor's right to approve or reject this application or any other application signed by the Exhibitor at the same time, or any other time, is not dependent upon the approval or rejection by the Distributor of such other application or this application.

AGREED TO: ....
Exhibitor.

*(Note: This clause may be added to the schedule only in respect of photoplays produced by a producer not controlled by the Distributor, and only if the Distributor's contract with such producer provides that such pictures shall be sold separately and apart from other pictures distributed by the Distributor, and shall be of no effect unless specifically agreed to in writing by the Exhibitor.)

3. The Distributor shall have the right to exhibit and/or cause to be exhibited as a "roadshow," at any time prior to the exhibition thereof hereunder, such of the photoplays licensed hereunder as the Distributor may from time to time select and determine, provided, however, that such roadshow exhibitions shall be at theatres at which admission prices for evening performances, during such exhibitions thereof, of not less than one dollar shall be charged for the majority of the orchestra seats, and further provided that except in the cities of New York and Los Angeles not more than two of such photoplays shall be so roadshown.

If any such roadshow exhibition shall be in the city of New York, N. Y., and if the Exhibitor's theatre be situated in a territory then served by the Distributor's exchange or exchanges located in said City, the Distributor shall have the right to except and exclude from this license any such photoplay (not exceeding in the aggregate two of such photoplays) so roadshown in said City upon sending written notice to that effect to the Exhibitor not later than eight weeks after the commencement of such roadshow exhibition in such City, provided the Distributor shall by like notice except and exclude such photoplay from all other contracts containing this clause and licensing the exhibition of such photoplay in such territory. Such exception and exclusion shall not be affected in case the Distributor shall inadvertently omit to send such notice to any of such other exhibitors.

If any such roadshow exhibition shall be in the city of Los Angeles, Cal., and if the Exhibitor's theatre be situated in the territory then served by the Distributor's exchange or exchanges located in said City, the Distributor shall have the right to except and exclude from this license any such photoplay (not exceeding in the aggregate two of such photoplays) so roadshown in said City, upon the same terms and conditions above specified for the exception and exclusion of photoplays roadshown in the city of New York.

If [illegible] roadshow [illegible] Los Angeles shall be in the territory served by the Distributor's exchange or exchanges serving the Exhibitor's theatre, [illegible] such territory shall forthwith be excepted and excluded from this license. The Distributor shall send written notice to that effect, to the Exhibitor, within fifteen (15) days after such roadshow exhibition [illegible].

The Distributor may [illegible] except and exclude any such photoplay from time to time, in the respective territories, as above defined, in the United States. [illegible] in any place in the United States, and not excepted and excluded from this license as aforesaid, shall not be deemed available for exhibition hereunder until after the completion of such roadshowing of such photoplay in the United States, and such photoplay shall be exhibited hereunder as and when available.

For each photoplay that the Distributor shall except and exclude, as aforesaid, the Exhibitor is hereby granted the option to except and exclude from this license one of the other photoplays licensed hereunder, but only if the Exhibitor shall give to the Distributor written notice to that effect not later than fourteen days before the date fixed for the exhibition hereunder of such other photoplay. The Distributor may exhibit and/or license the exhibition of any and all photoplays excepted and excluded from this license by the Distributor and/or the Exhibitor, as aforesaid, when and where desired by it, free from all claims of the Exhibitor in respect thereof.

4. If this contract calls for payment or any part thereof computed upon the Exhibitor's gross receipts, such payment or any part thereof shall be made daily, together with a correct itemized statemnt of h gross receipts of said theatre for admission thereto upon the exhibition date or dates of each photoplay for which payment is so required to be made. Should the Distributor so require, such itemized statement shall be made upon forms furnished by the Distributor. Upon such date or dates an authorized representative of the Distributor is hereby given the right to verify the sale of all tickets of admission to said theatre, and the receipts therefrom; and for such purpose shall have access to the theatre, including the box office, and also the right to examine the Exhibitor's books and records insofar as they relate to such gross receipts. The Distributor, or its authorized representative, shall also have access for a period of sixty (60) days after the receipt by the Distributor of the final box office statement, to all of the Exhibitor's books and records for the purpose of verifying such box office statement. The Distributor agrees that any information obtained by it pursuant to the provisions of this Clause will be treated as confidential, except in any arbitration proceeding or litigation in respect of this contract. The Distributor agrees, unless such representative be a regular employee of the Distributor, not to employ as such representative any person a resident of or regularly employed in the place where the Exhibitor's theatre is located, excepting with the consent of the Exhibitor.

5. If the license fee of any photoplay licensed hereunder is to be computed either in whole or in part, upon a percentage of the gross admission receipts of said theatre, and if the Exhibitor fails or refuses to exhibit such photoplay as provided in this contract, the Exhibitor shall pay to the Distributor as liquidated damages for each day that the Exhibitor fails or refuses to exhibit such photoplay (in addition to any fixed sums payable hereunder in respect of such photoplay) a sum equal to such percentage of the average daily gross receipts of such theatre during the period of thirty (30) operating days immediately prior to the date or dates when such photoplay should have been so exhibited, provided, however, that if the Exhibitor shall exhibit such photoplay for less than the full number of days provided for in this contract. such sum equal to such percentage shall be computed, upon a sum equal to seventy-five per cent (75%) of the gross receipts of said theatre for the last day of the exhibition thereat of such photoplay.

On the same side of the contract upon which the Exhibitor is required to sign, there shall be printed the Schedule. In the Schedule there shall be specified the license fees of the photoplays; the number of days for which each is licensed; the run and protection period, if any, agreed upon; any provision in respect of the exhibition date or dates of the several photoplays; the description of the photoplays, which shall be identified by specific designation of a star or director, or as based upon specific literary material or described by an identifying description of the story, providing that in long term and/or franchise and/or service contracts providing for more than one year's "releases," the photoplays may be generally described as photoplays released by the Distributor or a like general description, and in such long term and/or franchise and/or service contracts the privisions of the Standard Exhibition Contract may be incorporated therein. Any "short subject" photoplay may be identified or described by brand or similar description.

All approved additional clauses, if any, added to the Standard Exhibition Contract and any provision permitted by the provisions of the numbered Articles shall be set forth in the Schedule.

No re-issues of photoplays or old negatives re-named shall be included in any group of new photoplays. No "short subjects" or "news reels" shall be included in any group of feature photoplays, and the licensing of "news reels" or "short subjects" groups shall not be made a condition of licensing the exhibition of feature photoplays or vice versa, provided that the Distributor may include in any long term, franchise and/or service contract, feature photoplays and/or "short subject" photoplays and/or "news reels."

Ottawa Theatre Building Planned by Famous

A 10-STORY structure and theatre is projected for Ottawa by Famous Players Canadian Corp. Extensive property on Sparks Street has already been acquired by Famous Players. This now consists of six retail stores, the leases of which expire in April with one exception, this being for the Woolworth premises, which does not run out until 1920. Negotiations are proceeding for the termination of this lease, after which construction of the new office building and theatre will proceed, it is announced.

Famous Players started the construction of a large theatre at the rear of these stores some years ago but operations were halted after the walls had reached a 10-foot height. They are still standing.

Lindbergh Film Dedicated at Mark Strand, Albany

The official War Department's film "Twenty-five Years in the Air," was dedicated to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, at the Mark Strand theatre in Albany, New York, last Wednesday night. Colonel Lindbergh, Governor Alfred E. Smith, F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War; Lieut. Lester J. Maitland, Pacific flight hero; and William McCracken, Assistant Secretary of War; and other officials were present. The Governor and Colonel Lindbergh occupied a box decorated with the American colors. The dedication speech preceded the showing of the picture.

The entire ground floor of the theatre was reserved for the invited guests, numbering approximately 1,000. The balcony of the theatre was thrown open to the public, an admission price being charged. The balcony receipts went to some local enterprises.

Bill Introduced in Ottawa Is Adverse to Films

Aurelien Belanger, of Ottawa, Liberal member in the Ontario Legislature for the County of Russell, has introduced legislation in the Provincial House which provides for a considerable number of reforms in the laws governing the theatres of Ontario, and in the film censorship.

The bill introduced by Mr. Belanger calls for the appointment of an additional censor whose duty it would be to revise all possible moving picture subjects for presentation to juvenile audiences in theatres of Ontario Films which would be passed by the special censor, who would be independent of the present Board of Moving Picture Censors, would be stamped to indicate that they are suitable for children under 16 years of age. Those not so approved could not be seen by children under any circumstances, even when brought to a theatre by parents or adult guardians.

There is also a provision in the Belanger Bill for additional official matrons at theatres attended by children.

Fox's Net Profit in 1927 Was $3,120,556

AFTER Federal taxes have been deducted, Fox Films Corporation and subsidiaries show a profit of $3,120,556 or the equivalent of $6.24 a share earned on the combined 500,000 shares of no-par class A and class B stock, according to a report of the Fox company.

The figures compare with $3,124,000, which was the fiscal year's net profit for 1926. This amount, however, included profit credited in the period in respect of excess amortization previously written off, as well as $232,603 profit arising through the sale of leasehold. This also was equal to $6.24 a share on the combined stock.

Frank Meyer Paramount Purchasing Director

For years assistant secretary of the Paramount corporation in charge of the Long Island laboratory, Frank Meyer has taken over the direction of the purchasing and supply departments of Paramount and the Publix theatres. He succeeds George M. Spidell, who has been in charge of that work for the past seven years.

Mr. Meyer has been with Adolph Zukor since the latter's early days as a theatre operator. In 1920 he designed and supervised the building of the new laboratory in Long Island, and since then has been in charge of all of the Paramount film printed in the East.

Declared Innocent of Charge of Arson

Arson charges against Joseph Cosco, Detroit motion picture theatre owner, and his nephew, Emilio Tork, in connection with the Tivoli bombing last November, have been dismissed. Because of a complaint filed by Charles H. Burnham, the state fire marshal's representative, Cosco and Tork were arraigned before Clyde L. Fulton, Highland Park justice. Examination was postponed twice to allow the prosecution time to gather evidence, several other delays occurring meanwhile. On the recommendation of Seward F. Nichols, assistant prosecuting attorney, Judge Fulton declared both parties were innocent today.

Rodemich Leads Orchestra at Paramount Theatre

Gene Rodemich this week took over the conductorship of the Paramount theatre stage orchestra. He was shifted to New York in accordance with the rotation plan which Publix instituted some time ago. Lou Koslou, for the past several weeks leader of the Paramount orchestra, is now at New Haven, and Al Mitchell succeeds Rodemich at the Boston Metropolitan.

Rodemich formerly directed the "Rodemich Orchestra" of St. Louis, the famous Brunswick Record Recording Orchestra.

Goetz Assigned Permanent Job at Paramount Studio

Harry Goetz, assistant treasurer of Paramount-Famous Players-Lasky, has been permanently assigned to the duties at the Paramount studio in Hollywood. His work will bring, it is said, into closer coordination the production units with the treasury department in the New York office.

U. S. Building Theatre for Exposition

A MOTION picture theatre is one of the buildings the United States will erect to house the government exhibits during the Ibero-American Exposition to be held in Seville, Spain, from October 12 through June, 1929. Commissioner General Thomas E. Campbell, former governor of Arizona, appointed by President Coolidge to take charge of his country's participation in the exposition, is now in Seville supervising the work of erecting the theatre and two other buildings.

The theatre will have an auditorium 60 feet by 120 feet. Regular program, illustrating phases of government activities, will be shown. It is hoped to have some selected features of leading American producers.

Strike Fund Is Object of Twin Cities Union

A strike fund is being developed by the musicians' unions of Minneapolis and St. Paul by taxing all members two per cent of their salaries. It is thought that a large enough fund will have been raised when the present contract expires in two years. The unions are thought to be planning to pay the musicians sufficient in case of another strike to eliminate dissension among the men, as was the case in the last trouble with the theatres.

Mrs. M. Thompson, Roach Executive, Dies Suddenly

Death, the result of cerebral hemorrhage, almost without warning took Mrs. Mollie Thompson, a pioneer with the Hal Roach organization and for many years casting director of the Roach studios. She was 49 years old; a married daughter survives her.

Mrs. Thompson appeared in support of Harold Lloyd when he was Lonesome Luke some 13 years ago.

LeRoy Signs New Contract With First National

A new long-term contract with First National has been signed by Mervyn LeRoy, who, to date, has directed "No Place to Go," "Flying Romeos" and "Harold Teen" for his company.

Metropolitan, Atlanta, Re-opened by National

FOLLOWING a week of darkness which began Saturday evening, February 11th the Metropolitan theatre in Atlanta, was reopened Monday, February 20th, under the management of the National Amusement Company, of which Robert B. Wilby is president. Under the new regime, Carter Barron, assistant manager of the Capitol since that house was opened in June of last year, becomes the new manager of the Metropolitan.

During the past week the Metropolitan has undergone a general overhauling, while a technical staff has been busy working over the Vitaphone equipment which will be used for the theatre's new feature.

6 Films, Including "Crowd," From M-G-M in March

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's schedule of releases for March includes King Vidor's new picture, "The Crowd," starring vehicles for Marion Davies, Ramon Novarro and Tim McCoy and two special features, "Bringing Up Father" and "Under the Black Eagle."

The Marion Davies vehicle, directed by Vidor, is "The Pasty," a screen version of Barry Conners' play which ran at the Booth Theatre in New York. The cast has Orville Caldwell, Lawrence Gray and Marie Dressler among others. Ramon Novarro's new picture is "Across From Singapore," previously titled "China Bound"; Joan Crawford and Ernest Torrence are in the cast which William Nigh directed. McCoy's new western is "Wyoming," directed by W. S. Van Dyke and having Dorothy Sebastian and William Fairbanks as members of the cast.

"Bringing Up Father" is based on the cartoon strip by George McManus. J. Farrell Macdonald and Polly Moran are Jiggs and Maggie; the juvenile leads are Gertrude Olmsted and Grant Withers; Jack Conway directed. "Under the Black Eagle," starring "Flash," a dog, and directed by Van Dyke also, has Ralph Forbes and Marceline Day in its story.

May 21 to Be "Lindbergh Day" for "U" Theatres

More than 300 theatres of the Universal chain will celebrate May 21, 1928, as "Lindbergh Day." On that date all orchestras of the theatres will feature songs honoring the aviation hero, the screen will reflect scenes of his famous take-off for Le Bourget, schools will be tied up on essay contests which will be based on "What Lindbergh Has Meant to the Youth of America," lobbies will be gayly decorated and many other things will be done to make this occasion one of festivities. Carl Laemmle is sponsoring a movement to make this a national holiday.

Bessie Love and Johnnie Walker to Do Stage Work

Bessie Love and Johnnie Walker, the co-featured players in the Columbia production, "The Matinee Idol," will soon enter upon stage work which will keep them out of the movies for some time to come, it is said. Miss Love has just signed to play the leading feminine role in "Burlesque," in the presentation of the play at a San Francisco playhouse next month. Mr. Walker will leave Hollywood for England where he will do a vaudeville tour. Their contracts will keep them from the screen for about six months at least, it is thought.

James Murray to Play in Marion Davies Film

James Murray, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new player, will play the leading role in Marion Davies' next Cosmopolitan film which King Vidor, who is sponsoring Murray, will direct. Soon to go into production, it has not as yet been titled.

Rumored Building Projects in South Follow William Fox Visit

THE visit of William Fox to Atlanta and other southern cities last week gave rise to numerous rumors of extensive theatre building plans in addition to those that have already been projected. The head of the Fox organization spent only a few hours in Atlanta, looking over the preliminary work on the new picture palace he is building there.

Mr. Fox went to Atlanta from Augusta and then caught the Crescent Limited for New Orleans. He was met in Atlanta by Paul C. Ryan, head of the Fox Exchange, with whom he conferred on matters pertaining to that office. His visits at all points were followed by whisperings of new picture palaces.

Preliminary work has already started for the erection of the building in Atlanta at Peachtree and Kimball Streets that will house the Fox theatre. Kimball Street is now being widened and will be repaved immediately. Meanwhile construction work on the Shriner's Mosque, which will house the theatre, will be pushed forward with all possible speed, it is understood.

Fox-Stanley Rumors Are Denied by Rossheim

New President, Irving Rossheim, Declares Merger Has Not Been Discussed; Conservative Policy Adopted

IRVING D. ROSSHEIM, recently elected president of the Stanley Company of America, has denied emphatically and as ridiculous all rumors to the effect that the Stanley Company interests would be merged with the William Fox Company. The report had gone forth that the deal was all but consummated, but the new head of the Stanley Company apparently means it when he says that all such rumors are entirely without foundation.

Here is what President Rossheim had to say regarding the rumors:

"They are absolutely untrue and absurd. There has been a concerted barrage of misinformation emanating from New York, Newark and to some extent from Chicago, all of which is absolutely without foundation. If I can make my statement more emphatic, nothing can be more remote than the possibility of such a merger. There have not even been conversations preliminary to such a step."

In denying the rumor, Rossheim also pointed out that the changes in the Stanley Company directorate made only during the past week, were further evidence that his corporation was not considering a merger with Fox.

At the February 24th meeting, at which a number of changes were made in the Stanley Company directorate, a conservative policy was outlined under which the company will operate in the future. It was decided to return to the company policy of accumulating a substantial surplus from each year's earnings, and for that reason it was resolved to make the next dividend payment on April 2nd, at the rate of 75 cents a share, to stock of record on March 24th. This is a reduction of 25 cents a share as compared with the latter part of last year.

With regard to the recent rumor that the Stanley Company had discontinued work on the new Mastbaum Theatre in Philadelphia because of the negotiations which were rumored under way with Fox, the Stanley statement says:

"A recent rumor was to the effect that the Stanley Company had discontinued certain building operations. This reference was made to the new Mastbaum Theatre at Twentieth and Market Streets. The house is to cost $5,000,000, and will seat 5,000 persons. Within a few days the building will have placed in it one of the largest girders ever made. As soon as the steel is placed the work will be expedited as rapidly as justifiable with such a magnificent structure."

At the meeting A. R. Boyd, vice-president, resigned and his place was taken by Simon H. Fabian. The board of directors furthermore, underwent a change. E. C. Jameson, president of the Globe and Rutgers Fire Insurance Company, was elected to the directorate, together with Lessing J. Rosenwald, vice-president of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Louis J. Kolb, a retired business man, and Mrs. Jules H. Mastbaum, widow of the first president of the Stanley Company. These new board members succeed Frank W. Buhler, who continues as general manager; Alfred W. Fleisher, Lewis H. Sablosky, who likewise remains in his executive position with the company, and Morris Wolf. It is understood all the balance of power will be conserved under the direction of one individual, probably Mr. Fabian.

Norma Shearer Signs New Contract With M-G-M

Before leaving the coast for New York enroute to Europe with her husband, Irving Thalberg, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer executive, Norma Shearer signed a new contract with M-G-M.

Ban May Result From M-G-M Sales to Non-Theatricals

IT is reported that a number of exhibitors in and near the iron range district in northern Minnesota are considering putting a ban on M-G-M productions because "The Big Parade" and "Ben Hur" were sold to the schools at Coleraine and Bovey when the company could not reach an agreement with Mrs. Jos. Barlow, who operates theatres in the two towns.

It is claimed that the salesman would not let Mrs. Barlow have the two specials unless she took the entire output and upon her refusal sold the specials to the schools. Also, it is claimed that the salesman suggested that the schools offer to transport people from nearby towns free in the school buses if they wished to go to Coleraine to see the pictures. This, of course, outraged the exhibitors of the other towns.

W. H. Workman, manager of the Minneapolis office of M-G-M, is out of the city but his assistant, O. H. Lambert, said that every effort was made to sell the two pictures to Mrs. Barlow as it is not the custom of the company to sell to non-theatricals but that Mrs. Barlow's terms could not be considered. He said that no M-G-M picture has played Bovey or Coleraine in five years and that the home office had given instructions to have "Ben Hur" and "The Big Parade" play every possible town even if it was necessary to contract with non-theatricals. Mr. Lambert said that the M-G-M salesman had nothing to do with the free passage of people from nearby towns to Bovey and Coleraine.

Roach Comedy on Pathe's March 11 List

A new Hal Roach two-reel comedy entitled "Galloping Ghosts" heads the group of seven short subjects scheduled for the week of March 11. Pathe News, Nos. 24 and 25, are also set for release on that date.

Besides the Roach comedy there are: "The Mysterious Visitor," chapter nine of the serial "The Man Without a Face"; "The Work of Running Water," a geologic subject produced in cooperation with Harvard University and available in two versions, one for entertainment purposes and the other for the schoolroom; "Trees," a Rarebits release; Topics of the Day No. 11; "On the Ice," a new Aesop cartoon; and issue No. 11 of Pathe Review.

Featured in "Galloping Ghosts" are Jimmy Finlayson, Ora Carew, John T. Murray, Oliver Hardy and Fred Malatesta. James Parrott directed under the supervision of F. Richard Jones.

Columbia Signs Support for New Pictures

Supporting players to assist Bessie Love and Johnnie Walker in "The Matinee Idol" and Betty Compson in "The Desert Bride" have been signed by Columbia Pictures. In the former effort roles will be portrayed by Lionel Belmore, Sidney D'Albrook, Ernest Hilliard and David Mir, while in the latter Allan Forrest and Otto Matiesen will be the two masculine leads.

Universal to Re-Issue "Hunchback" May 27

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame," Universal's picturization of the Victor Hugo classic which was released by Universal in December, 1923, originally, will be officially re-issued by the Laemmle company on May 27, 1927, "as the result of a consistent and growing demand," says Universal. The re-issue means a new assortment of posters, press sheets, advertising material and accessories.

Two of Hugo's other stories are being handled by Universal, also. They are "Les Miserables," which has been going out from the exchanges for some time now, and "The Man Who Laughs," one of Universal's specials not yet released.

Seitz Will Direct Bosworth in "After the Storm"

George B. Seitz and Hobart Bosworth who last worked together on the Columbia lot in "The Blood Ship," will be together once again during the making of "After the Storm," a new Columbia production, and Bosworth's next starring vehicle for that company.

Will M. Richtey has scenarized the story.

Dates Set for 6 Warner Bros. Productions

Release dates have been set for the remainder of the pictures to be delivered by Warner Bros. on the program for 1927-28. The new productions total six, and will round out the program of 26 films promised for this year.

The features and their release dates are as follows: "Powder My Back," March 10; "Domestic Troubles," March 24; "The Crimson City," April 7; "Five and Ten Cent Annie," April 21; "Rinty of the Desert," May 5; and "Pay as You Enter," "May 19.

Interest in F B O Bought by K-A-O Circuit

in organization and reorganization since in 1914, at the age of 25, he became president of the Columbus Trust Company. In 1917 he resigned that post to become assistant general manager of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation, employing 55,000 men. A year later he resigned to become manager of Hayden, Stone & Company, remaining there until two years ago, when he purchased F B O pictures and became owner and president of that corporation.

Among the constructive things Mr. Kennedy has done in the picture industry was the introduction last year of a motion picture course at Harvard. Under his supervision a series of lectures on motion picture production, distribution and exhibition was delivered by fourteen leaders of the film industry. In November of last year he published "The Story of the Films," a compilation of the Harvard lectures, which he edited.

In December Mr. Kennedy brought about an affiliation between F B O and the Radio Corporation of America, the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company and the General Electric Company, whereby all of these vast organizations became mutually interested in F B O and became actively represented on the board of directors.

Among the latest announcement from F B O is one that negotiations have been completed between that company and the trustee of the Hollywood-Argentine Cinema Company whereby F B O will distribute the forthcoming series of productions starring Tom Mix, which are to be made in the Argentine.

The entire Mix company, including the star, director, players and technical staff, will leave for the Argentine the beginning of June, following a ten weeks' tour of the Orpheum Circuit which Mix will make, commencing April 1st. Gene Ford, his director, his horse, Tony, Mrs. Mix and their daughter, Thomasina, will accompany the star. Headquarters for the making of the pictures will be established at Buenos Aires.

Great States Theatres Eliminates Stage Band Shows

AFTER a tryout of many months, Great States Theatres, Inc., Chicago, has decided that stage band shows wear out their welcome in the smaller cities and prove a drawback rather than an attraction, at houses in these cities.

Some months ago Great States cut stage band shows to half a week each in Bloomington, Galesburg, Quincy, La Salle, Streator and Peoria and have now eliminated them entirely. The only cities where they are now being used are in Waukegan and Joliet, where they appear for half a week, and in Rockford, where they appear on a full time basis.

Arrangements have been completed for the shows at the Norshore Theatre, Chicago, to be shown at the Genessee in Waukegan on Sunday, following their week at the Norshore.

Hearing on Brookhart Measure

it is my personal opinion that 99 per cent of the individuals, on both sides of this question, who have communicated with members of this committee and members of Congress, have never read the bill or given any considerable thought as to what it seeks to accomplish in the way of giving the public good motion pictures at the least possible prices. I realize when I make this statement that the opponents of this bill, the people who are on our side of the case, have probably sent in more communications against the bill than have been received for it.''

Defends Distribution Plan

Continuing, Pettijohn said:

''We have many doctors in the motion picture business who are good diagnosticians, but we have very few doctors who can prescribe a remedy. Reams have been written about 'what's wrong with the movies?' and before I have finished I want to take a few minutes to tell this committee 'what is right with the movies?' This bill proposed to put out of existence the present plan of selling, exploiting and distributing of motion pictures in the United States without offering anything to take its place, except a bureau or board or commission to conduct hearings, make investigations, fix prices, and sometimes make a decision.

''The present plan of distribution is based on years of experience and the best brains in the industry. Everything that has been said against it here has been said by men who have never had anything to do with distribution, or any experience in it. If there is a better plan we would welcome it.''

Denies Monopoly Possible

After discussing several sections of the bill and giving statistics with regard to the number of motion picture theatres and the number of people employed through the making, selling and distribution of pictures, Pettijohn went into the subject of the alleged monopoly which the Brookhart bill charges. He said in part:

''The fact is that there is no monopoly or threat of monopoly and there can be none. Every year there are approximately 800 feature pictures put on the market, each different from the other and no two exactly alike. From their very nature they cannot be standardized like, for example, Ford cars, because their function is to amuse and entertain—hence, newness, novelty and publicity are the very essence of their value. They vary according to the type and character of their subject matter and the manner in which it is treated. Pictures by different stars, directors and authors vary according to the individual talent and ability. There is also a wide variance in their appeal to the public; some are better suited for certain audiences than others and very few are adaptable to all audiences alike. To illustrate, a wild and woolly Western picture may be very popular with a certain class of people, but with another class it will be unpopular. The final test for every picture is its market value which is determined by the picture's popularity with the public. That public popularity is an extremely variable quantity will not, I think, be denied.

Columbia Starts 7th Birthday Campaign

A VICTORY drive, inaugurated by Columbia Pictures and celebrating the seventh anniversary of the birth of the company, was launched February 20 by the 33 Columbia branch offices in the United States and Canada. Another purpose of the campaign is to strengthen good feelings between the company and exhibitors. Each week of the drive reprsents a year of the firm's history.

A national advertising and publicity campaign on the entire Columbia program of 30 productions has also been launched and will continue during the time of the drive, it is said. Ballyhoo material has been prepared in the form of special circulars, accessories and banners.

''The raw material in this industry is not film or theatres or actors or directors, but originality of ideas and ability to express them. This raw material cannot be dominated or controlled by any one producer or group of producers, no matter how many theatres they own or how great their capital investment may be. This is the primary reason why in the past and why today so many independent producers have been successful. The possibility of a monopoly, either in brains or ideas, or in studio business, is an absolute impossibility at the present time or in the future. There can be no monopoly of talent, brains and ability and any one who is able to make a good picture will have no trouble in selling it. The one great demand in the business from its inception has been for better pictures.

''The 800 pictures being all different it must follow that some are better, that is, more popular than others and, therefore, there is a greater demand for them by the theatres as each exhibitor naturally desires the pictures best suited for and most popular with his patrons. The theatres being different it also follows that some of them are more desirable than others. Generally speaking each of these theatres uses from 52 to 365 pictures a year, which is to say, from one picture a week to one picture a day, dependent upon the policy of the theatre. Most of the largest houses change only once a week and pay the best prices for the pictures and they constitute a very small minority of the total 20,303 theatres. Each distributor wants to sell his pictures to the best theatres.

Intensive Competition Shown

''When every year these 20,303 theatres go into the market, each one trying to buy from 52 to 365 of the best of the 800 pictures and meet the distributors each one trying to sell his pictures to the best theatres, there is keen and intensive competition. Of course, it is impossible for each of the 20,303 theatres to always get the best pictures. This is not caused by monopoly, but on the contrary by such a highly competitive market. The real trouble with the industry and the underlying cause of most of the complaints, misunderstandings and grievances, both real and fanciful, which have resulted in the introduction of this bill, when analyzed will be found to be the result of overproduction. There are too many pictures and too many theatres. Monopoly denotes an absence of competition. The motion picture industry is suffering today from an overabundance of intensive competition and this charge of threatened monopoly, when viewed in the light of all the facts, is, to say the least, absurd.''

With regard to the price regulation on pictures, Pettijohn said:

''Pictures are not comparable to other products—like, for example, shoes, furniture, hardware, iron, steel and coal, and no commission can fix a fair and reasonable price for a picture which will apply to all exhibitors generally. A picture is worth more to one exhibitor than to another, and vice versa, according to the type and character of both the picture and the theatre. To illustrate, 'Wings' is having a successful run on Broadway, but who can say what demand there will for it in other sections of the country? Could any Commission fix a 'differential' for this picture? Other outstanding examples are to be found in the pictures formerly made featuring certain stars which at one time were in great demand and commanded large prices, but on account of unforeseen accidents in the short space of a few hours they became almost worthless in this country.

''There are from 400 to 500 thousand picture contracts made each year, any of which, under the provision of this bill, could be brought before the Commission for review and determination. Such a procedure would require months of time and litigation, as will be developed later herein. Such delays would be fatal to the business. Pictures must move quickly as their advertising exploitation begins long before their release and their publicity value does not last long.

''Let me say this in conclusion about the motion picture industry. Ever since its birth it has been heckled and hampered both from without and within. It has survived all attacks from without. It must now meet intelligent criticism from within and this it will do.

''This industry, and particularly those I represent, welcomes this hearing. It has become necessary to have such a hearing where the facts can be stated. We appreciate the time and patience that you gentlemen have extended to us. And let me make one thing clear in closing; if anybody can give to us a better, more business-like, or more economical distribution plan than we now have in the motion picture business, one that is fairer or more simple, that will permit us to keep down the prices of motion pictures to small theatres, thus permitting the theatres to keep their prices of admission to the public down to where they are now, there will be no resentment of such a plan. On the contrary we will welcome it with open arms and pay real money for it.

''Oh, Lord, our thanks; we have survived attacks that would enslave us. Our enemies we fear them not, but from our friends please save us.''

Newsreel Resume

In Fox News, Vol. 9, No. 43, scenes of the British auto establishing a new world's speed record vied with shots of ice skating on Lake Placid. Besides these items of sports were stories covering the Mardi Gras in New Orleans; bob-sledders at an Italian resort; London girls in training as fire rescurers; Yosemite Park from the air; steam lumbering in the Northwest, and bathing girls exercising on Florida beach.

No. 44 presents glimpses of the athletes at the opening of the Olympics in the Swiss Alps; Italy's crown prince on a visit to Egypt; sport activities in Manitoba; the carnival at Nice; Governor Smith lunching with New York newsies; Harry Chandler, owner of the Los Angeles Times (one of the series showing prominent editors); a speed boat regatta; and U. S. Navy guns in battle practice.

No. 16, Vol. 10, of International News shows the President visiting the home of Washington; youngsters swimming; the high seas at Havana; the world's biggest seaplane; New Orleans' Mardi Gras; the mechanical man—how he works; races at the Olympics, and U. S. warships thunder broadside salvos.

No. 17 has scenes of an electric machine clearing roads in the Alps; new spring styles; Columbia students training for their show; and Betty Compson; dog team race; the completion of the mighty Moffat tunnel in Colorado; mountain lions caught alive by hunter; and U. S. winning sled race at Olympic games.

M-G-M News, Vol. 1, No. 56, recounted the parade of athletes at the opening of the Olympics; wild horses being rounded up by Ute Indians; Mr. and Mrs. Irving Thalberg; a clever bulldog; the President conferring a medal; Dixie kids in swimming; Coolidge honoring Washington; the Mardi Gras in New Orleans; and the U. S. Dreadnoughts thunder their guns.

No. 57 shows the first train going through Moffat Tunnel; Dixie style show; golfing; Mrs. Lindbergh; convention of Hearst newspapermen with Bobby Jones and Ty Cobb; France's naval battle of the flowers at the Riviera; woodsman at his nervy job of trimming trees; and U. S. athletes winning dashing sled race at the Olympic games.

The Mardi Gras fete in New Orleans and the carnival in Nice, France, were also shown in Kinograms Newsreel, No. 5373. Additional shots took in the demonstration given by the U. S. fleet on the Pacific; the President assisting at ceremonies honoring Washington; Lindbergh as he takes off on his old mail route; and the Olympic games in the Alps.

No. 5374 views some of the winter sports at St. Moritz, where the Olympics are in progress; President Coolidge honoring hero of S-4 wreck; John D. Rockefeller, Sr.; Rogers Hornsby; veteran bike riders in training; ten Golden weddings celebrated simultaneously in French town; Lindbergh's mother in air flight; and students of the University of Vermont in their annual school show.

In Pathe News, No. 19, are more shots of the winter sports at St. Moritz; American racer whose car skidded into the Atlantic while racing on Florida sands; a modern Noah; the president honoring the dead of 1776; Viennese girls in swimming meet; Andrew W. Mellon; baseball candidates for Yale's team; the Riviera carnival in Nice; and the navy in battle practice.

No. 20 shows Mrs. Lindbergh; the Olympics; rabbits in New Hampshire hills; Berlin girls in unique dance steps; a dog derby; Mayor Walker at Stone Mountain; premier of Germany visiting France; racing iceboats; and the carnival in Nice.

Among the scenes in Paramount News, No. 61, are those of the winter Olympics; American's failure to break speed record at Daytona; sick children hardening their bodies by exposure to snow; the marine advance guard in Nicaragua; the annual carnival in Nice; Coolidge at celebration of Washington's birthday; Italian crown prince and Bedouin sheiks; and the U. S. battle fleet in action.

No. 62 presents views of the battle of the flowers at France's Riviera; engines clearing rails of snow; new designs in ladies' hats; famous British air flyers taking off for flight to map air routes; a dog race; Duluth's traveling bridge which has been banned; the opening of the Moffat Tunnel; and competition at the Olympic games between the nations.

Colleen Moore Will Begin Next Vehicle in March

Late March will see the initial sequence of the next Colleen Moore vehicle filmed, according to a tentative schedule drawn up. "Heart to Heart" is the tentative title of the forthcoming film; it will follow "Lilac Time," which has been in work at the Burbank plant and on location for nearly three months. Edmund Goulding, who the story and called in "Tomorrow," has been signed to direct it.

"U" Serial Will Feature Pre-Historic Monsters

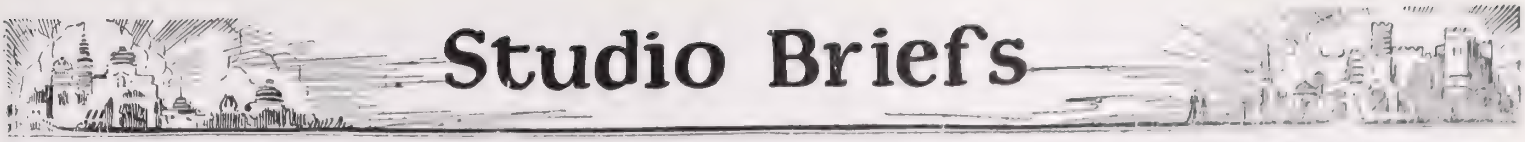
The dinosaurs and other antediluvian monsters will be the subject of a new serial to be made by Universal and to be called "Terrors of the Unknown." Scenarists are now working on the story in California, aided by geological authorities.

M-G-M Issuing Special Lindbergh Short

A NEW Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer short subject entitled "Forty Thousand Miles With Lindbergh" will be released all over the United States simultaneously the first week of March. The subject reviews the aviation career of the beloved young airman and is liberally featured with maps and statistics of his flights.

The pioneer flight of the Wright Bros.' heavier than air machine at Kitty Hawk, S. C., is one of the stories told in the initial sequences of the reel. Lindbergh's hop-off on his memorable flight to Paris, his reception in Paris and other views are shown.

The Astor theatre in New York will show the short subject starting Sunday.



Studio Briefs

Filming of "The Michigan Kid," Rex Beach's novel, has just been started at the Universal plant under the direction of Irvin Willat. This film of the Yukon will have Lloyd Whitlock, Adolph Millar, Maurice Murphy and Virginia Grey in supporting roles.

George Davis and Monte Collins are being co-featured in a new Mermaid comedy at the Educational studio, Stephen Roberts directing.

Production on "The Body Punch," a story of the prize ring, is now going full blast at the studio of Universal; Leigh Jason is directing. Jack Dougherty and Virginia Browne Faire are portraying the leads and Wilbur Mack, Arthur Millette, George Kotsonaros and Monte Millette, are in prominent supporting roles.

Jack Levine and Lorraine Rivero, child players who have been supporting "Big Boy" in recent comedies from Educational, are again appearing in the little star's new two-reel comedy now in work under the direction of Charles Lamont.

"Three Sinners" has been definitely chosen as the title for Pola Negri's new picture for Paramount.

Jean Douglas, a new actress at the Educational studio, has the leading feminine role opposite Charley Bowers in "Say A-Ah," his latest starring comedy for Educational.

"She Wouldn't Say Yes" is to be the title of Bebe Daniels' next picture, which Paramount will place in production after "Feel My Pulse."

Babe London will be seen in one of the principal roles in support of Dorothy Devore in her next starring comedy now being directed by Norman Taurog.

Paul Lukas, Hungarian character actor, has signed a long-term contract with Paramount. He made his screen debut in the Ufa production, "Samson and Delilah." His first Paramount role will be in "Three Sinners."

Otis Harlan has been re-signed by Universal on a long-term contract. He has but recently finished a role in "Be Yourself."

"Give and Take," Universal's filmization of the stage play by Aaron Hoffman, was placed into work this week at Sacramento, Cal., George Sidney and Jean Hersholt head the cast. The others include George Lewis, Sharon Lynn, William Orlamond, Billy Franey and Les Bates.

Charley Chase has started on his next starring comedy at the Hal Roach plant for the M-G-M program. The comedy, untitled, will also have the presence of Edna Marion, May Wallace, Otto Fries, Eugene Pallette, William Orlamond and Alfred Fisher.

Clara Beranger, De Mille scenario writer, has been assigned to write the adaptation and continuity for the screen version of "Craig's Wife," the George Kelly play that won the Pulitzer Prize. It is scheduled to go into production shortly at the De Mille studio.

Edward Sedgwick, M-G-M director, has been signed to a new long-term contract with that company. His new assignment, under the arrangement, will be the direction of Buster Keaton's new starring vehicle.

Production started January 30 on Fred Thompson's new picture for Paramount, "The Sunset Legion." Edna Murphy is to play opposite the Paramount western star. The story, by Frank M. Clifton, will be directed by Lloyd Ingraham and Alfred L. Werker. William Courtright and Harry Woods are to be two male members of the cast.

William K. Howard, director, will definitely remain at the De Mille studio, it is announced by Pathe, and is to start a new story, "The Last Cab," by Charles Puffy. Upon the completion of the scenario being achieved by Chandler Sprague, production will be started.

Anna May Wong, Chinese girl, who has been featured in several pictures during the past year, will take her place in the cast of "China Bound," new M-G-M production.

M-G-M has purchased the screening rights to the play, "Four Walls," which recently completed a long run at the Golden Theatre in New York. No announcement of production plans has come from M-G-M.

A former figure in the Swedish film making world, Benjamin Christianson, has been obtained by First National to handle the directorial end of "Nightbirds," Milton Sills' next picture, which is scheduled to be put in work in about two weeks.

Richard Arlen, one of Paramount's young leading men, will play opposite Esther Ralston in her next Paramount picture, "White Hands."

"Turn Back the Hours," Gotham's new picture co-starring Myrna Loy and Walter Pidgeon, was completed last week.

Among Pola Negri's support in her new Paramount vehicle, "Three Sinners," will be the following players just signed: Anders Randolph, Arthur Rankin and Robert Klein.

Tom Kennedy, who was at one time a prominent pugilist and held the title of national amateur heavyweight champion, is playing an outstanding role in the Pathe-De Mille film, "Hold 'Em, Yale."

Gotham has engaged Adele Buffington to do another screen adaptation—this time of Howard Rockey's story, "The Chorus Kid," which will be the next production to be started at the Gotham plant in Universal City.

Rosemary Cooper, formerly a popular leading lady who has for several years been living in retirement, returns to the films in FBO's "The Little Yellow House."

George Meeker, the newcomer among Fox Films' coterie of younger stars, will play his first leading man part in a new picture that has just gotten under way at the studio under the title of "The Thief in the Dark." Albert Ray is directing.

Jack Luden will play the juvenile role in the new W. C. Fields-Chester Conklin co-starring film to which Paramount has not as yet added a title.

John Boles, who at one time sang in opera, is making progress in the screen world. He has appeared opposite Gloria Swanson, is a starring player in Pathe's new picture of the Grand Canyon, and has but lately been cast for the male role in Leatrice Joy's "Man-Made Woman."

Taking advantage of unusually clear weather, Sam Sax has begun preparatory work on the Gerald Beaumont story, "U. S. Smith." Edward J. Meagher, scenarist, is now working on the adaptation.

Tiffany-Stahl's production based on an original story by E. Morton Hough, which has been given the title of "The House of Scandal," will have a cast containing Dorothy Sebastian, Pat O'Malley, Gino Corrado, Harry Murray, Ida Darling, S. W. Wilcox, Lee Shumway and Jack Singleton.

Albert Ray is directing his own story for Fox in "The Thief in the Dark," which he wrote in collaboration with Kennth Hawks. C. Graham Baker was responsible for the scenario work. In the cast will be Doris Hill, Gwen Lee, Marjorie Beebe and Michael Vavitch. Assistant director will be Horace Hough.

Ben Grauman Kohn, a nephew of Sid Grauman, has become a writer on the staff of Tiffany-Stahl in Hollywood. He is a former reporter of the New York American and also had some newspaper experience in Minneapolis.

Rose Dione, one of the screen's youngest character actresses, will have the role of the old lady in Paramount's "Super of the Gaiety." Leonardo De Vesa has also been cast for the role of a count.

Eve Southern, whom Tiffany-Stahl converted into a star after her performance in "Wild Geese," will be the leading player in "The Scarlet Dove," soon to be made under the direction of Edgar Lewis. Robert Frazer will be the male lead.

Barry Norton, another of Fox Films' younger players, has signed a new contract which will keep him with the Fox organization for a number of years. His latest is "Fleetwing."

William Powell, perhaps the busiest featured player Paramount has, will have an important part in George Bancroft's new starring picture, as yet titleless.

Key City Reports

New York City

WITH very few exceptions, Washington's Birthday happening along the middle of last week, greatly helped theatrical trade along Broadway. Some of the high lights were: The Roxy swinging back to a much better gross than the house has done in a long time; the demand for seats at the Gaiety where "Four Sons" is in for a run; the capacity week for "The Jazz Singer" at Warners, and the clever move made by M-G-M in moving "The Crowd" to the Astor from the Capitol after a very good week's business at the latter house.

M-G-M took considerable space in the local newspapers to advise the public that boosting a popular priced picture to a $2 top house was a most sensational and extraordinary move. Now, "The Crowd" may have deserved this promotion but it is also quite possible that "The Enemy," which capitulated, was getting a bit faint awaiting "The Trail of '98," and therefore welcomed the King Vidor picture with open arms.

The picture that boosted the receipts at the Roxy was Fox's "A Girl in Every Port," and it is gratifying to see the big 6,200 seater get into its old stride again. Fox's other picture in the Broadway district, "Four Sons," is cashing in on well planned advance publicity. They also brought Margaret Mann along to appear in person at the Gaiety.

Both "Wings" and "The Jazz Singer" not only held up to the past good business they've enjoyed but shot up to higher marks during the mid-week holiday trade. The former has been at the Criterion for over seven months, while the latter has done better than five months at Warner's theatre. The Paramount Theatre took a chance with a "Take A Chance Week," and showed the Esther Ralston picture "Love and Learn," an average production, to a very fair week's gross. This appears to be the first time the Paramount has played with a stunt of this sort, and while it may do for a novelty it hardly seems necessary for a house which has clicked its way into such excellent weekly patronage.

The Strand went back to average returns with First National's "The Shepherd of the Hills," after enjoying marked affluence with the runs of "The Circus" and "The Patent Leather Kid." The Shepherd could not keep up the fast pace set by the other two pictures. The Colony, pleased with the first week's return engagement of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," held it for a second, but business slumped.

The Rialto with Jannings' "The Last Command," and the Rivoli with Gloria Swanson's "Sadie Thompson," both had good returns for the week. They drew about evenly, considering the difference in seating capacity.

The Embassy continues to do a nice business with the Gilbert-Garbo picture "Love," and it will probably be good for two or three weeks longer. "Two Lovers" is scheduled to follow some time the latter part of March. Griffith's "Drums of Love" will end a six weeks' run at the Liberty next Sunday evening. According to an announcement, this picture was to have been shown for four weeks only. Business for the six weeks was nothing to shout about, but the fact that the Liberty is somewhat off the beaten track used by the customers in this town may to some extent account for the mediocre showing.

The Cameo has been doing nicely with the British war film, "The Battle of Coronel and Falkland Islands," and the Hippodrome turned in a usual good week's trade with "Streets of Shanghai" and the regular bill of vaudeville. The big 6th avenue house is turning a profit that some fail to realize. Over three hours of entertainment at 50 cents top is the reason.

Chicago

A BIG Washington birthday's business helped put the week's attendance at the Chicago loop theatres at a high mark, but the neighborhood houses as a whole failed to participate in this benefit and their business was average.

"West Point" was the screen feature at the Chicago and Lou Kosloff made his bow as director of the stage band, the box office report being very satisfactory. The Oriental had as its screen offering "Ladies' Night in a Turkish Bath,' and Paul Ash and his Gang in "Circus Days" was the stage attraction, the combination playing to big business.

"Les Miserables" opened its run at the Roosevelt, proving a strong attraction, while "The Student Prince" continued to do good business at McVickers. "The Circus" proved an outstanding box office attraction and United Artists theatre had capacity crowds during the entire week. "The Jazz Singer" brought its long run at the Garrick to a close, going strong during its entire road show engagement.

Mae Murray in person and "The Dove" as its screen feature went over big at the Tivoli. Both the Capitol and Avalon had good average weeks, the former showing "Two Girls Wanted," a big stage show, and Vitaphone, the latter, "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" and a stage show headed by Roy Detrich. "Beware of Married Men" was the feature at both the Marbo and Granada theatres, both of which had strong stage shows, the Marbo offering a bill headed by Bee Palmer and the Granada headlining James Barton. Attendance was excellent at these theatres. The Uptown was another theatre featuring a name act, Rae Samuels in person heading the stage bill with "Love" the screen feature, the combination pulling well.

Portland, Ore.

THE West Coast Broadway was the town's leader last week with "Rose Marie," and an excellent stage show. Tebbett's Oriental played to good business despite the similarity of names in "Lightning." "Lightnin," by Frank Bacon, played locally about a year ago, and confused many show-goers, as they were under the impression that it was a repeat booking.

Universal's Columbia was only fair with "Alias the Deacon," while the Rivoli continued to click with "Love" in its second week. Pantages, showing "Second Heaven" for a second week, was also a money leader. Huston Ray, famous pianist, was the stage headliner, and also was responsible for some extra business at the box office. Gene Dennis, the girl psychic, was responsible for more than the usual amount of trade done at the West Coast Liberty. Miss Dennis is a good draw locally, having been at the house before, and proved very successful.

St. Louis

(Week ending on February 24)

BY building up their stage shows and booking some of the bigger pictures the first runs like the Ambassador, Missouri and Loew's State have been able to do good business on occasion, but in the outlying sections, with the single possible exception of the Granada on Gravois avenue, the going has been tough—very, very tough for many weeks past. The Granada is a new house and has been putting on a show far too good for the admission charged. Business, on the whole, among the St. Louis first runs was fair to middling the week of February 18.

"The Night Flyer" was on the screen of the St. Louis theatre and, flanked by several good acts of Orpheum Circuit vaudeville, had an average week.

Bebe Daniels in "Feel My Pulse" was the film attraction of the Missouri theatre at Grand boulevard and Lucas avenue. Brooke Johns' stage show was entitled "As You Like It," and the patrons of the house seemed to. On the whole, it was a very good week.

Skouras Brothers Ambassador theatre, Seventh and Locust streets, got its share of the week's business with "The Shepherd of the Hills" on the screen and Ed Lowry and his organization in "Treasure Ship" on the stage.

Loew's State didn't do the business it did with Al Jolson in person. The attraction was "The Enemy' and apparently it won widespread approval. On the whole, it wasn't a bad week. Teddy Joyce had a new stage show entitled "George Washington, Jr.," in honor of the cherry tree chopper.

"The Jazz Singer," Vitaphone feature, continued through another very good week at the Grand Central theatre.

Harrisburg, Pa.

GOOD shows, well exploited, brought good business to all the downtown first-run theatres.

So cordial was Harrisburg's reception of the Al. Jolson picture, "The Jazz Singer," in this entertainer's screen debut in the city that the management of the Colonial theatre announced it would be held over for a second week, due to popular request. In advertising the film all the Rabbis of the city were invited to attend the show, and several of them made addresses to their congregations calling attention to the attraction.

At Loew's Regent the feature film was Greta Garbo in "The Divine Woman," and it had a strong appeal to Harrisburg movie patrons, particularly women.

At the Victoria the program was headed by "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," which scored a big box office record.

At least one Western a week is demanded by Harrisburg fans and the Buck Jones picture, "The Branded Sombrero," at the State, pleased the masculine and small-boy elements. "Drums of the Desert," on a return to Harrisburg, was featured at the Grand and Norma Shearer, in "After Midnight," scored well on the cash register at the National.

The Russell showed "When a Man Loves," with John Barrymore and Dolores Costello, and the Capitol's attraction the latter part of the week was Richard Dix, supported by Mary Brian in "Man Power."

Detroit

DURING the past week, box office conditions were better than usual with mild weather and good attractions remaining as the chief attendance factors.

Long runs, which include "Sunrise," at the Fox-Washington, and "The Circus," playing in the Adams, brought big money into the downtown section. "Business at the Madison, where "Les Miserables" held forth, was only average despite large displays in the dailies. United Artists, featuring "The Gaucho," failed to cause any great excitement, average attendance marking the showings during the latter part of the week. First-half money offset the decline enough to warrant a hold-over. "Les Miserables" likewise continues for a second week.

Greta Garbo in "The Divine Woman" proved an excellent attraction at the Michigan, augmented by a Publix unit. Heavy gatherings contributed large wicket returns in that house. The personal appearance of Gilda Gray and her latest "The Devil Dancer" also proved a strong attraction for the Capitol, another presentation and picture palace operated by Kunsky theatres.

Receipts among the vaudeville-picture enterprises were just about evenly distributed. Neither of the three largest variety shows, Keith's Temple, Loew's State, and the Oriental, were successful in an outstanding way. The State, with "Ladies' Night in a Turkish Bath," was above average. Keith's Temple did as well as usual in presenting "Publicity Madness," and the Oriental feature, "Streets of Shanghai," clicked about half and half.

Des Moines

THE Des Moines played "The Last Command" the past week and while this picture did not do so well the first part of the week it built steadily during the remainder. Much interest was expressed. "Chicago After Midnight" cannot be said to have largely influenced attendance at the Capitol, the stage show here always being the big draw. Profiting by Will Rogers' recent appearance in Des Moines, where he lectured, the Strand showed "A Texas Steer." The Strand had "Doomsday" for the balance of the week and all in all did very good business.

All Des Moines theatres cashed in on the mid-week holiday shows. Business over the state is reported as picking up.

Salt Lake City

A WEEK of early spring weather and some especially strong picture productions contributed to the very good business enjoyed by the downtown first run theatres here this past week.

The Capitol theatre had a "short run" due to the fact that the date has been changed for the opening of the new bills, but the program was very well received by capacity houses. The feature picture at the Capitol was "Doomsday," with Florence Vidor, and the Fanchon and Marco stage presentation of unusual entertainment value was billed as "The Backstage Idea."

The Paramount Empress theatre perhaps led in box office results during their extended run of Douglas Fairbanks in "The Gaucho," which did a tremendous business, it is reported. A special atmospheric prologue was also offered in connection with this picture production.

Lon Chaney in "London After Midnight" is reported to have gone over better than any previous Chaney picture shown at the Pantages, where his name has always been a drawing card.

Zane Grey's "Under the Tonto Rim," which was the Victory theatre offering, surpassed any of the Zane Grey's picture productions at this house, according to report.

Clara Bow in "The Primrose Path" proved to be a very satisfactory drawing card at the American theatre.

"The Night Flyer," with Wm. Boyd, drew exceptionally good patronage to the Gem. This picture was filmed in the Southern part of Utah and has been looked forward to with interest by many throughout this section.

"What Price Glory," as a second run, presented at the Rialto with an atmospheric prologue, filled the house to overflowing.

Lon Chaney in "Mockery" brought very satisfactory results to the Mission theatre, a neighborhood house here.

Ottawa

EXHIBITORS of Ottawa, Ontario, and Hull, Quebec, had little cause for complaint during the week of February 20 because they obtained their share of this world's profits with good features and normal effort, despite ski sport and hockey opposition.

The big crowds traveled to the B. F. Keith's and Centre theatres. The reason at Keith's was "Spring Fever," a neat picture that delighted the golfers and amused those who hadn't the slightest idea what golf is. William Haines sprang into wide favor through his work in this feature. Most everybody also went to the Centre theatre to see Colleen Moore in "Her Wild Oat" and they came away thinking that Colleen can always be counted upon for a good performance. It was one of the best weeks of the season at the Centre.

"Alias the Lone Wolf," starring Bert Lytell, brought handsome returns to the Imperial theatre. A couple of novelty short subjects, including the UFA "The Parasol Ant," also helped to please Imperial patrons.

Crowds tapered off at the Regent theatre for the second week of "The Gaucho." The Fairbanks production looked good for a holdover but it did not turn out as well at the cashier's wicket as expected. The Regent was jammed the first week.

"Ben Hur," at the Laurier theatre, Hull, couldn't help but go over big, even though it had recently played the Ottawa Regent. Laurier patronage was magnificent.

There was a pleasing double bill at the Eden theatre, Hull, with "The Red Mill," starring Marion Davies, and "Flying High," with William Fairbanks. Marion Davies was the drawing card, but then "Flying High" proved to be a good companion picture at that.

The Capitol theatre, Hull, pulled up a bit in receipts with a nice double bill, "The Confession" and "Forget and Forgive." These features stirred the French-Canadian temperament.

Atlanta

A CHANGEABLE weather with cold and rains had its effect on Atlanta box-offices this week.

The Howard played Phyllis Haver in "Chicago" to fair audiences all week, while next door "The Enemy," with Lillian Gish, brought good returns for Loew's Grand.

Up the street the Capitol showing "Love Me and the World Is Mine" enjoyed an appreciable week and Keith's Georgia on its left hand side held laughing patrons with the humorous comedy, "Wife Savers."

The Metropolitan, with "The Jazz Singer," steadily built up all week and indications predict a good second week run for this picture.

"Seventh Heaven" brought the Rialto increased houses and, for its second run in a major house, stood the test well.

Three westerns, "Range Courage," "The Phantom Buster," and "Rawhide Kid" entertained average audiences at the Tudor.

The New Alamo played only one first run, "Love Makes 'Em Wild," filling out the week with four second run pictures.

Cleveland

EVERYBODY had a good time at the theatres here last week, including the theatre owners, as business was better all down the line than it has been for a long time.

Those who enjoy laughing and most everybody does, flocked to the Stillman to see "The Jazz Singer," which just concluded its third week and had to be held over a fourth week to take care of the tremendous demand for seats. They've been turning 'em away at the Stillman all week. Keith's Palace had crowds standing for every performance of "Finders Keepers," an excellent comedy which made a great hit. "Grandma's Boy," a re-issue of the famous Harold Lloyd comedy, was heartily received and generously supported at Keith's East 105th Street theatre. The Allen did big business with "The Big City," as all Chaney pictures do. This one was approved as being excellent, exciting melodrama. "The Latest from Paris" caught on at the State right at the start and kept up a high attendance average all week. "The Circus," playing a second run downtown, packed the Cameo and is being held over at least another week. "Brass Knuckles," better than average underworld melodrama, because of its original touches, attracted large crowds to the Park theatre. Reade's Hippodrome did well with "Legionnaires in Paris." "Damaged Goods," a new edition of the educational sex hygiene picture, closed its continued engagement at the Oriental.

Business was very good here on Washington's Birthday. Neighborhood houses stated that they had a pretty good week, too.

Legitimate theatre cmpetition was just average.

San Francisco

A GOOD, but not an exceptionally good, week was witnessed by the several motion picture theatres of San Francisco, with the exception of the playing of "The Jazz Singer," which more than crowded the Embassy theatre every night. Some nights the front of the Embassy was so crowded that five policemen were required to help take care of the crowds.

A good week, but not an exceptional one, however, was reported for "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," at the Granada theatre. Loew's Warfield reported good business with the showing of "Sporting Goods" and with White and Manning Cheer Leaders on the stage. "The Student Prince" drew very well at the California theatre, but not as strong as expected, the cause, many claiming, being the "Jazz Singer" at the Embassy. "The Gaucho" was shown for a second week at the St. Francis theatre and continued to fill that theatre.

The weather helped bring business to the theatres. The resident theatres, generally, did not do as well as usual because of the special "Edison Week" and special attractions shown down town.

Louisville, Ky.

"THE JAZZ SINGER," starring Al Jolson, and with Vitaphone accompaniment, enters its third week at the Strand theatre, where it has attracted capacity audiences. When it concludes its engagement next Saturday, the picture will have established a record here. Heretofore, no film has been exhibited in Louisville longer than two weeks, except "What Price Glory," which ran for a longer time at the same theatre. "The Jazz Singer" continues to be the best film of the week, closely pressed by "The Love Mart," First National special, starring Bilie Dove, at Keith's National.

Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE theatres enjoyed very good business the beginning of last week, but things slumped toward the end, due no doubt to the beginning of the Lenten season.

One of the most popular pictures in the down town houses was "Sorrell and Son," which is being held over for a second week. A local newspaper has been running the story serially for some time and this gave the picture widespread interest. At the beginning of the week crowds were held out until late in the evening. "Helen of Troy" was another popular picture and kept the Strand well filled with enthusiastic patrons. "The Love Mart" drew average business to the Wisconsin. "The Cohens and Kellys in Paris" was fairly well attended at the Alhambra. "Let 'er Go, Gallegher" was a popular number on the Orpheum bill. "King of Kings" in its second week at the Davidson was not as well attended as it was in the previous week, and business dropped off noticeably at the end of the week. "Lovelorn" drew moderate business to the Merrill.

Neighborhood houses found business rather dull. "The Gorilla" played to fair houses at the Modjeska, Garfield, Uptown and Tower. "Surrender" was very well attended at the Venetian. "Get Your Man" was popular at the National and only fairly successful in drawing patronage at the Egyptian. "West Point" drew excellent patronage at the Oriental.

Baltimore

WASHINGTON'S birthday helped boost business receipts considerably at the first-run moving picture theatres in Baltimore during the week beginning Monday, February 20.

One of the outstanding hits of the week was "Sharp Shooters." The audiences ate this comedy up and loved the natural rough and tumble comedy situations.

Warner's Metropolitan had "The Jazz Singer," starring Al Jolson, with Vitaphone accompaniment, for its seventh week, and business was so good that it was held for an eighth week, which is wonderful for Baltimore; the only run having been longer was that of "Way Down East," which played the old Lyceum.

Business at the Palace theatre, where burlesque is given in conjunction with first-run moving pictures, still holds up very good, the attraction for that week being "The Legionnaires in Paris," with Kit Guard and Al Cooke. "The Four Flusher," co-featuring George Lewis and Marian Nixon, proved a very good drawing card at the Keith-Albee Garden, where eight acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville were given on the same bill.

Business during the second week of the engagement of "The Patent Leather Kid," at the Stanley, the 4,000 seater, was very good, but a stage presentation act was offered on the same bill for the second week.

The second week for the engagement of "Chicago" at the Rivoli, with Phyllis Haver in the leading part, proved very good for the nights, but was weak on the matinees. Also offered on the bill were piano selections by Grace Doro. "Peter the Great," with Emil Jannings in the starring role, proved an excellent business attraction at the Little theatre, operated by the Motion Picture Guild. On the bill also was Moana." This house, with 250 seats, was well filled every night. "The Siren," co-starring Dorothy Revier and Tom Moore, pulled them in strong at Keith's Hippodrome, where five acts of Keith Albee family time were given on the same bill.

"Man, Woman and Sin," with John Gilbert and Jeanne Eagles, only proved a fairly good attraction at Loew's Century, where a presentation act entitled "Joy Bells," with Ted Claire acting as master of ceremonies, was also on the bill.

At Loew's Valencia, "The Enemy," co-featuring Lillian Gish and Ralph Forbes, proved only a light patron puller. The reason for the light business was given that people are tired of war pictures, but the success of "The Patent Leather Kid" at the Stanley offset that.

Dallas

THE weather in Dallas the past week was of the anti-box office variety, including heavy rain and intense coldness for this section. Considering the elements the Dallas theatres checked up a very creditable week.

At the Melba, William Haines in "West Point" proved a drawing card and held up throughout the week.

"Freckles," at the Capitol, reeled off seven days of very satisfactory business and received much favorable comment.

Lon Chaney, in "The Big City," at the Palace, had a good week, but not the usual Lon Chaney business. This was attributed to the very disagreeable weather. Ken Whitmer, the new personality and stage band leader, was well received and should prove a real asset in future box receipts.

At the Majestic, "Wild Geese," Marie Ostenso's famous prize novel, maintained the unusually good business which the Majestic has enjoyed for a number of weeks and turned the patrons away well pleased. Another feature of the program was a Movietone specialty in which Jesse H. Jones was seen and heard explaining the reasons for Houston being selected as the place for the Democratic National Convention.

"The Love Mart," with Billie Dove, at the Old Mill theatre, proved to be good box office bait, and the week's gross was very gratifying.

The Arcadia theatre did a par business the past week with "American Beauty," "Moon of Israel," and "Get Your Man." A Vitaphone specialty was shown each night in addition to the feature picture.

Minneapolis

THERE were no new outstanding picture attractions in Minneapolis last week, and the box offices, as a result, were not overworked. Business, however, was about average, and no one had much to complain about.

"Old Ironsides" did just a good business at the Garrick, but wasn't strong enough to hold over for a second week. Washington's Birthday helped this picture, as the children were out of school, and this film has a special appeal to the school children.

Emil Jannings in "The Last Command" held up very well during its second week at the Strand. This picture was very well liked here, and had many favorable comments both from the crowds and from the critics.

Lon Chaney in "London After Midnight" drew just ordinary-sized crowds to the State. The opinion seemed to prevail that this wasn't quite up to the Chaney standard.

The Hannepin-Orpheum showed Syd Chaplin in "The Missing Link" and found it pleased the crowds. Pantages gave a good deal of advertising to Olive Borden and Antonio Moreno in "Come to My House" and this picture proved a good drawing card. "Coney Island," with Lois Wilson, rounded out the vaudeville in good style at the Seventh Street theatre.

Neighborhood houses reported business fair to very good for the week. Among the pictures shown were "Get Your Man" at the Lagoon, "College" at the American, "The Cat and the Canary" at the Lyndale, and "The Love Mart" at the Rialto.

Tampa

FOR the first time in the history of show business in Tampa a picture was "held over" for a second week. Pictures have been shown here for a week and then brought back later for a second run, but this is the first time that a picture has been given two consecutive weeks. The picture referred to is "The Jazz Singer," which broke all records for the Victory last week and has played to big business the following week also. Manager Peck says many of his patrons came back the second time, and he knows of one lady who made four trips.

The Tampa featured "Chicago" the first half and it went over fine, giving them a little better than average. "Rose Marie" did nicely the last half, keeping receipts around their average.

"The Leopard Lady" opened the week for the Strand and played to average business. "Under the Tonto Rim" was a good card and did a nice three days' business. "Come to My House" finished the week to average receipts.

The Franklin used "The Air Patrol," "Fang of the Wild" and "Grandma's Boy." The latter picture was a re-issue but it did well. The week went over about average.

Pittsburgh, Pa.

A NORMAL week in all theatres somewhat as the quiet before a storm, which, in other words, means that next week Stanley's new 4,000-seat house opens. Penn had a good week with Lillian Gish in "The Enemy" and a pleasing stage show. Extra money was spent on the newspapers with results accordingly better than usual. The Grand made its swan song as a presentation house playing "Beau Sabreur" and a Russian revue. The Stanley takes up the presentation policy next week in place of the Grand, which reverts to a straight picture house. Loew's Aldine had a normal week playing Jetta Goudal in "The Forbidden Woman."

"Ladies Must Dress" at the Davis, with a unit vaudeville show, fared nicely. Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" at the Olympic did well enough to stay for a third week and at the Cameo the third week of "Cohens and Kellys in Paris" did the best third week this house has turned in for months.

"Chicago After Midnight" at the Harris is just the type the clientelle of this house likes, but at the State "The Little Snob" was the opposite, with results accordingly.

Kansas City

SOME first run downtown houses of Kansas City played to better than the average attendance of the last few months this week, while others fell below that mark. Newspaper advertising again showed a slight increase over previous weeks, although none of the large theatres resorted to anything in the way of exploitation aside from the usual lobby displays.

"Man, Woman and Sin," featuring John Gilbert and Jeanne Eagles, played to a good weekly attendance, as did "Flying Romeos," with Charlie Murray and George Sidney at the Mainstreet. "Wings" had a fair week in a road showing at the Shubert at $1.50 top.

"The Devil Dancer," with Gilda Gray, did not attract a good night attendance, but the matinee patronage was good, as was the case with "In Old Kentucky" at the Globe theatre. "The Gateway of the Moon" at the Pantages played to crowds which were slightly below normal.

At the Liberty theatre, "Chicago After Midnight" did a normal week's business.

St. Louis

(Previous Week)

"BABY MINE" worked on the same program with Al Jolson, The Jazz Singer, in person at Loew's State theatre the week ending on February 17 had a very big run. But in justice to Jolson it must be admitted that the picture had very little to do with bringing the 70,000 or so cash customers to the box office during the seven-day period.

In the closing days of the engagements Jolson sandwiched in five shows per day in order to accommodate the crowds that visited the State.

"Sporting Goods," featuring Richard Dix, had a very good week at Skouras Brothers Ambassador theatre, everything considered, although no box office records were shattered.

Milton Sills in "The Valley of Giants" at the Missouri theatre, had a good week. Sills is a prime favorite with St. Louis motion picture fans and fanettes. The receipts were aided by the return to the stage of the Missouri of Brooke Johns, master of ceremonies of the stage shows, who had been away for a week.

The St. Louis theatre, Grand and Delmar boulevard, obtained its share of the patronage. The film attraction was "Sharp Shooters," with George O'Brien and Lois Moran in the feature roles.

"The Jazz Singer," Vitaphone featured, continued its merry clicking way at the Grand Central. In nine weeks the talking picture apparently was going stronger every day. It has surpassed all previous St. Louis runs for continuous performances.

Neighborhood and suburban houses did not do so well the past seven days. It has been a tough Winter for the proprietors of the smaller houses.

Albany

A REAL circus held throughout the week at the State Armory and, under the direction of the Albany Shriners, proved too strong competition for Charlie Chaplin's "The Circus," at the Mark Strand theatre, with the result that the picture did not hold up any too well during the week, although it opened strong on Monday. This fact, together with some criticism that the picture was not up to expectations, resulted in many a vacant seat at the second night showing from Tuesday on. The two Vitaphone presentations were hardly above par and the only redeeming feature of the bill was the fact that the newsreel, for once at this theatre, had not been cut and slashed in an effort to keep the whole program of entertainment within the scheduled two hours. Considerable criticism was also expressed by many persons that the house management was spending entirely too much time in advertising on the screen not only coming attractions at the Mark Strand, but also at the Mark Ritz theatre. Patrons expressed the viewpoint that in paying their money for entertainment they did not wish to lose at least ten minutes that could be devoted to a reel or two of entertainment, but which was taken up by the announcement of coming attractions.

The Leland theatre used Marion Davies in "Quality Street" to fair business through the week, in fact the business was better than had been expected. The best drawing card of the entire week in Albany at the motion picture theatres proved to be "The Devil Dancer," coupled with a fine scenic, a newsreel and a comedy. The theatre was packed each night throughout the week and standing room at the Mark Ritz was at a premium. "The Clinton Square is now running double features in an effort to brace up business. "The Girl from Rio" and "Race for Life" were used with fair success during the week. Harmanus Bleecker Hall is meeting with much success in double features, three changes to the week, and three acts of vaudeville changing twice to the week.

Neighborhood houses in Albany report business as being only fair. No doubt the big road attractions playing at the Capitol theatre these days are cutting into business at the motion picture theatres. There appeared to be no slump to speak of at any of the theatres on Wednesday, which marked the opening of the Lenten season. The Troy theatre reported just fair business with "The Circus," while the Lincoln found just about ordinary business with "The Better 'Ole."

Neighborhood houses in Troy complain that business is not up to expectations.

Denver

THE Aladdin theatre is having a great run on the "Jazz Singer," Al Jolson's latest picture. The production is now in its third week, the first time any picture outside of a road show production has enjoyed such a run in these parts for years. The picture has Vitaphone accompaniment.

Birmingham, Ala.

AVERAGE business in Birmingham theatres the past week was a little off, although several of the houses played to good attendance. At the Alabama the offering was Douglas Fairbanks in "The Gaucho," with Publix stage show—a fine all 'round bill but business was not what it should have been. At the Ritz, with Fox's dog star "Thunder" on the screen and regular Keith acts on the stage, business was good. At Loew's Temple, "Man, Woman and Sin" and Loew vaudeville, business also was good. At the Trianon, "Come to My House" did not do so well.

Boston

WITH the holiday coming in mid-week to help swell receipts, Boston theatres enjoyed another near-capacity week. The outlook is good for continued heavy business in spite of the Lenten season and will undoubtedly go far ahead of recent similar periods.

Loew's State theatre's adaptation of musical comedy for stage presentation number, coupled with the first New England showing of "Man, Woman and Sin," brought the box office up to high water mark for the entire week. The combination was eminently successful.

The Metropolitan's showing of "The Secret Hour" was welcomed by capacity audiences, eager for just that entertaining type of romance. The Rodemich stage band remains intact except that it has a guest leader each week. Geissler was this week's leader. Rodemich will be back in person next week.

"Wings," Boston's road show at the Tremont, in its tenth week, continues to show to capacity audiences. It was announced that only two more weeks' showing remains, a run of an even dozen weeks for one of the largest grosses ever made by a film in Boston.

Next week brings another road show to Boston for a five-day run at Symphony Hall, "Ivan the Terrible." This is one of the shortest runs ever scheduled for a road show and will be watched with interest.

Showing at seven theatres simultaneously, "The Patent Leather Kid" has proven so satisfactory that it will be held over for a second week at the Fenway.

"West Point" at Loew's Orpheum played to better than average business. "Silk Legs" at the Keith-Albee Boston with a new Hal Roach comedy following, "Should Second Husbands Come First?" drew one of the largest audiences to that playhouse in months.

"Man Crazy" at the Strand, "The Gorilla" and "A Hero for a Night" at the University, and "Buttons" and "The 13th Hour" at the Allstone all grossed well.

The first showing of "The Jazz Singer" at the Modern and Beacon theatres with Vitaphone accompaniment came within a very few dollars of breaking house records during the week and is to be held over for a second week at both the theatres. A reissue of Charlie Chaplin in "Sunnyside" did a good week's business at the Bowdoin Square.

The Arlington theatre has switched to pictures and is giving "Jewish Life" and "The Eternal Student" for a double feature bill, playing to a $1.50 top.

Seattle

IN a week of business that failed to rise greatly above the average for this season of the year, Manager Perutz of the United Artists theatre took honors for the best run with "The Student Prince." The film, in musical show form, has thousands of boosters in Seattle, and when the picture arrived for local showings it drew immediately. The picture was very well liked, and got much good word-of-mouth advertising. Business was very good—about $15,000—with a fine campaign and lobby by Mr. Perutz and an unusual musical score by Jan Sofer and the orchestra.

At the Fifth Avenue theatre, "Baby Mine" was the screen attraction. Fanchon-Marco's Road Show No. 1 was on the stage. The film had its funny moments, but was sadly disappointing to most Arthur-Dane fans. Charlotte Greenwood's name helped business, as she played the Orpheum theatre here two weeks ago. The stage show was rather disappointing, also, after so much advance ballyhooing. In its forced massiveness it lost sight of the usual theme and charm of most F-M units. Business for the week was just about average.

John Hamrick, after six weeks of "The Jazz Singer" at his Blue Mouse theatre, brought in "The Girl from Chicago" with a full list of new Vitaphone subjects and Movietone News, and continued to pack his house for all performances. The film was rather boisterous, and the Vitaphone numbers a little weak in "names," but the bill did the business with lines out for every night show. Business above average.

At the Columbia theatre, "The Cohens and Kellys in Paris" finished its second week to average business. The film had a strong run for the first seven days, but the second seven showed a tendency to slack off. The combination engagement was quite satisfactory, however.

At the Orpheum theatre, "The Night Flyer" and a fair vaudeville program attracted the usual good business, but would not be considered a big box office bet.

Pantages, the other vaudeville house, featured "Gateway to the Moon" and a pretty fair stage show, with business just about medium. The house has not been clicking at a very good rate.

"Mother Machree" Opens at Globe on March 5

"Mother Machree," the Fox Films feature made about a year ago by John Ford with Victor McLaglen, Belle Bennett, Neil Hamilton, Ethel Clayton and Constance Howard in leading roles, will be presented for an extended run at the Globe Theatre in New York City begining March 5. "The Street Angel," previously announced for this this date at the Globe, will open at another legitimate theatre.

Opinions on Pictures

Figures Don't Lie

Inconsequential Story Has Some Humor

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

ONE of those light, inconsequential affairs insofar as story is concerned is provided for Esther Ralston here. The story starts out fairly enough, and then simmers down into a bedroom farce, in which a raging wife with a gun is introduced for no other purpose than to act as a pivot for the comedy following scenes of a husband caught in his pajamas with his pretty stenographer. Pleasant, light entertainment not to be viewed with a serious mien. Ford Sterling carries on as the helpless husband, while Richard Arlen attempts an interpretation of one of those smart young men—the type portrayed by William Haines.

Esther is called upon to look charming, petite and very attractive. She is all of that. In the trim business suit, in the costume of a bathing beauty, in the bedroom scene where she has very little on—at all times she is a pleasing good looker. She is the spirited young girl, who resents the intrusion of a smart young sales manager into the office where previously she had held the reins of business. Most of the comedy deals with the little flares of temper between them.

Arlen is okay as the ambitious young man, who breezes along at a fast clip possible only in the movies. Ford Sterling is the likeable jokester, the bewildered business man who is constantly forgetting appointments, his wife's birthday and the like.

Drawing Power: Good (coupled with another feature, otherwise not so good). Exploitation Angles: Plenty of pictures of the star in bathing costume. Stage a bathing beauties revue. Press book suggests tie-up with drug stores featuring a display of reducing appliances.

THEME: Light comedy of a stenographer's romance.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Released, October, 1927. Length, 5,280 feet. The Cast: Esther Ralston, Richard Arlen, Ford Sterling, Doris Hill, Blanche Payson and Natalie Kingston. Story by B. F. Zeidman. Director, Eddie Sutherland.

The Cherokee Kid

Usual Western Fare

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

TOM TYLER, F B O's western star, gallops and fights his way through this ordinary western. It follows faithfully the old formula for a western. We need not mention just what occurs. Suffice to say that the hero and the heroine, in love with each other, are plotted against by the villain, who has laid a charge of murder against the hero. There are several scenes of physicial prowess and villainy. The big expose comes when the villain, playing too sure a hand, causes his housekeeper to become jealous with the result that she discloses his connection with the murder. The ancient idea of the villain kidnapping the girl and endeavoring to escape with her across the border is utilized for the thousandth time. The hero, in pursuit on a galloping steed, overtakes the villain and knocks the daylights out of him in a hand-to-hand conflict. The same old situations once again.

Tyler is a likeable hero, but he should get better material than this story has. Opposite him is the beauteous Sharon Lynn. Jerry Pembroke is the fiendish villain. Not much to it.

Drawing Power: Fair. Exploitation Angles: See the press book for ballyhoo angles.

THEME: A young westerner is falsely accused of murder by a villain, who covets the girl and her ranch. However, the young man foils the rascal, of whom it is revealed that he engineered the killing. The young man wins the girl.

Produced and distributed by F B O. Released, October, 1927. Length, 4,837 feet. The Cast: Tom Tyler, Sharon Lynn, Jerry Pembroke, Robert Burns, Robert Reeves, Ray Childs, Jas. Van Horn, Carol Halloway. Director, Robert De Lacy.

Blood Will Tell

Buck Jones Western is Average

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

BUCK JONES' new vehicle has plenty of the western hokum in it, has Buck's easy-going gait and personality. Still, when all is properly weighed, it does not impress as being as good as his other western, "Blackjack." The reason for this shortcoming is the story; it is one that has been used so often in the past that it is very much frayed and tattered. Buck does in this one what innumerable other cowboy heroes (on the screen) have done time and time again. We regard Buck as a personality well qualified to interpret these daredevil sons of the west. But even though he has nearly everything in the way of equipment he cannot pull up to top-notch an old humdrum story.

The proper way to start off a western, according to the pattern, is to have the hero rescue the girl in some way or other. After performing this conventional and heroic act, Buck discovers that the girl is bound for a ranch in which she has invested all her money. Buck, one of those strong, silent men, says nothing to the girl about the ranch being his, but secures a job as one of the hands.

Now the villains put their heads together and plot to oust Buck and leave the girl without a protector and helpless before the advances of the treacherous foreman. They get him in a compromising situation and the girl thinks him a guilty, deceitful wretch. But not for long. The scoundrel of a foreman takes the girl and her money and heads for the border with her. Buck, with the aid of his faithful horse, escapes his bonds and pursues the villain. He gets him, of course.

Mediocre, as you can see.

Drawing Power: Okay for the neighborhood trade and the double feature bills. Exploitation Angles: See the press book

THEME: Drama laid in the ranch country in which a young foreman wins the gal and licks the rustlers, the villainous foreman, and all the rest of the evil bunch.

Produced and distributed by Fox Films. Released, November, 1927. Length, 4,556 feet. The Cast: Buck Jones, Kathryn Perry, Lawford Davidson, Bob Kortman, Harry Gripp, Austin Jewell. Story by Adele Buffington. Scenarist, Paul Gangelin. Director, Ray Flynn.

Little Mickey Grogan

Calculated to Please

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

CONTAINING in abundance those qualities which characterize the hokum picture, "Little Mickey Grogan" can be set down as a piece of celluloid that can be counted on to please the majority of fans—not the sophisticated, who would probably look with disdain on its familiar story but the fans who greatly outnumber those others and who are not ashamed to own up that they like the simple stories and get a kick out of simple things. Leo Meehan has directed many stories of this type. Here he was given a story by Arthur Guy Empey, chock full of hokum, sentimental pathos—call it what you will.

Little Mickey Grogan is an Irish lad, without a home or parents, the object of pursuit of truant officers and policemen. They have dressed him in a sentimental garb, have the authors, so that there is no chance for you not sympathizing with the little chap. Mickey meets a kindly girl who takes an interest in his case and provides him with a home, temporarily. While in his wanderings around the city seeking some financial recompense the boy meets a young architect whose career has been blighted with failing eyesight. He naively interests the girl in the boy's plight and she gets the young man to draw some plans for a factory which her boss requires. The young architect does not think his plans worth the trouble to send in so great is his discouragement. But due to the perseverance of the kid, the boss becomes interested in the architect's work.

The story ends with the culmination of a romance between the girl and the architect, whose eyes have recovered their strength through an opration. The kid is adopted by them and the future seems rosy for all concerned at the fadeout.

Drawing Power: Okay for the average and neighborhood house. Exploitation Angles: You'll find what you want in the press book.

THEME: Drama of a waif in a big city and how he brings a girl and a failing boy together. They eventually marry and adopt the kid.

Produced and distributed by F B O. Released, December, 1927. Length, 6,515 feet. The Cast: Frankie Darro, Jobyna Ralston, Carroll Nye, Billy Scott, Vadim Graneff, Crawford Kent. Story by Arthur Guy Empey. Director, Leo Meehan.

The Pasteboard Lover

Slow and Poorly Produced

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

WITH Eugene O'Brien, Gladys Hulette and Raymond Hackett heading the cast, this reproduction of the novel by Baroness D'Arville provides little in the way of satisfactory picture material. Rather it might be said that the novel is not without picture material, but the story is poorly handled and poorly directed. The sets are cheap and the whole thing is unimpressive.

The big climax is a flood scene that completes the wetting of an already all-wet picture. Instead of the Pasteboard Lover it might better have been titled the Pasteboard Dam, for it is of that material, apparently, the set for this great climax is constructed.

But when that flood hits fairly into its stride it floods with a complete vengeance. It floods right up into the second story room of the heroine at a time when she is so overcome with grief, because of the actions of her pasteboard lover, that she hasn't even the faintest idea that the dam has broken. In fact she seems to be completely at sea regarding everything until the water reaches her bedtop and the gallant hero comes a-swimming through her chamber doorway, to be followed almost immediately by his trusted lieutenant manning a couple of oars, and a staunch rowboat. They exit down-stream in a happy fadeout through the heroine's bedroom window. The rest of the action is just as illogical and unconvincing.

Drawing Power: It is just possible that the leading players and the prospect of that daring rescue might attract some patronage at the very cheapest house. Exploitation Angles: The bursting of the dam, the flood, the rescue and the leading players.

THEME: Drama of a construction engineer who makes possible the marriage of the girl he loves to another, who in the crisis proves a weakling, and the hero comes into his own when the girl realizes her true love as the original ceremony is halted at the altar.

Produced and distributed by Krelbar Pictures Corp. Length, 5,600 feet. Released, March 1, 1928. The Cast: Eugene O'Brien, Gladys Hulette, Raymond Hackett, Jane Jennings, James S. Barrett, George de Carlton. Directed by Lawrence Windom. Adaptation and continuity by Jack Murray. Production Manager, Benny Berk. Supervised by Sherman S. Krelberg.

Marlie, the Killer

Introduces a New Dog Star

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

IF Fred J. McConnell produces more adventure films like this one, he is assured of pleasing audiences in many sections of the country. For in this story of a police dog, his young master and a lass against a gang of cutthroats may be found those essentials necessary to the success of action dramas, whether they tell of the heroism of cowboys, police hounds, detectives, etc. There are fist fights, villainy matched by the ready fists of the hero and the intelligence of the dog. The hound, by the way, is a newcomer in Hollywood's menagerie of police dogs. He creates a good impression in this, his first screen appearance. His name is Klondyke.

Francis X. Bushman, Jr., as the son of the man building the dam, leaves his father's home to come to the mountains where the huge engineering process is going on. His purpose is to get at the root of the villainy, which he knows emanates from the foreman. The latter and his thug cohorts waylay Bushman on his way to the dam, but their efforts to trounce him go for naught because of the vicious attack of Klondyke and the flailing fists of Bushman. While he is chasing them his car is forced off the road and it is assumed by the villains that he had died in the accident. He is taken to the construction camp, where he makes believe he has lost his memory in order to hoodwink the villains while he gathers enough evidence to jail them. Discovering he has knowledge of their evil intentions to delay the finishing of the dam and thus ruin his father, they decide to blow up the dam and kidnap the girl, a secretary in the construction camp. The finale occurs here.

Drawing Power: Though the dog is an unknown, the names of Bushman, Blanche Mehaffey, Sheldon Lewis help the picture's appeal. Play it up as an adventure film. Promise them plenty of action. Exploitation Angles: You must know them pretty well by this time.

THEME: Adventure drama in a construction camp in the mountains in which figure the hero, his dog, a girl and some villains.

Produced by Fred J. McConnell Productions. Distributed by Pathe. Released, March 4, 1928. Length, 4,600 feet. The Cast: Klondyke, Francis X. Bushman, Blanche Mehaffey, Joseph W. Girard, Sheldon Lewis, Richard Alexander. Director, Noel Mason Smith.

Streets of Shanghai

A "Meller" with Action

(Reviewed by E. G. Johnston)

MISSIONARIES, marines and members of what is termed "the oldest profession," are the contributing factors to this dyed-in-the-wool melodrama of the shady districts in Shanghai. And there's quite a lot going on there, it seems. . . . also, there's a lot of action in this picture—and quite a cast.

The battle scene in the latter part is exciting and well staged, and stands out as one of the highlights. Next in importance is the good work of Margaret Livingston as "Sadie," a business girl of the underworld, who gives up her career for a sharpshooting marine. Although Pauline Starke's is the featured role, Miss Livingston's appears to be a winner by several lengths. There are other important members in the cast.

Just because a pretty little Chinese maiden was stolen away from a missionary school to presumably decorate a room in one of Shanghai's fancy houses is responsible for all the trouble that follows. But then, one could not expect Fong Kiang, a powerful underworld chieftain, to meekly acquiesce when a girl missionary and a detachment of marines recover from the Street of Laughing Girls such a prize as little Su Quan. Along with the raid on Fong's establishment a triangular situation is formed between a marine, the girl missionary and "Sadie," the latter leaving her room at Fong's for one at the Consulate where she does her level best to break up a perfectly good love affair. Fong and his henchmen conduct a raid on a house where the girls have taken refuge with the beloved finally winning out.

Drawing Power: For second run downtown and neighborhood trade. Also as feature along with vaudeville. It's hardly a children's picture, although the kids will enjoy the battle scene. Exploitation Angles: Play up strong cast. Also, underworld stuff is going pretty good now a days.

THEME: Chinese maiden stolen from missionary involves marines and missionary. Underworld leader attempts retaliation when girl is recovered. Romance and regeneration of "Sadie."

Produced and distributed by Tiffany-Stahl. Released, December, 1927. Length, 5,276 feet. The Cast: Pauline Starke, Kenneth Harlan, Margaret Livingston, Eddie Gribbon, Jason Robards, Mathilde Comont, K. Sojin, Anna May Wong, Tetsu Komai, Toshyie Ichioka, Media Ichioka. Story by John Francis Natteford. Directed by Louis J. Gasnier.

The Bronc Buster

Another Coleman Western

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

DON COLEMAN, directed by Leo Maloney, performs in a pretty good western in this story. The story is ordinary, but it is packed full of detail and incident which Maloney has ably handled. He is not to be found overlooking anything that will bolster up his plot. Coleman, as the stalwart hero, is not forward and rugged enough to dominate the situations. As yet he is too reserved and aloof to be the imposing figure that the western plots demand.

The story concerns the series of difficulties in which a young outsider finds himself when he tries to enter a rodeo contest and thus starts a chain of events dealing with efforts on the part of two crooks to clean up both him and a rancher of their money. For a time the thieves have things to their own satisfaction

But by means of fast headwork and skilful riding, Coleman escapes from the sheriff bringing him to the lockup and dashes back to the scene of the rodeo, arriving there just as his name is being scratched from the list. He wins the bucking bronco event on which the two villains had staked their all to win.

To show what a model young man this westerner is, one of the rodeo scenes shows him rescuing one of the vilains who had been plotting against him for about five reels. The fellow has been thrown from his horse, his foot is caught in the stirrup, and he is being dragged along by the runaway horse. Coleman, like a majestic being, dashing along on his own steed, saves the villain from the runaway. He hauls him before the sheriff and his other henchman is also shown up before the collected throng as another villain of the deepest dye.

Drawing Power: Fair. The star is comparatively an unknown, as yet. Exploitation Angles: Use your tried-and-true methods for exploiting a western.

THEME: A western drama wherein the hero triumphs once again over the villainy around him.

Produced by Leo Maloney Productions. Distributed by Pathe. Released, February 26, 1928. Length, 5,408 feet. The Cast: Don Coleman, Ben Corbett, Tom London, Bud Osborne, Frank Clark, Frederick Dana, Whitehorse, Ray Walters, Robert Burns, Florence Lee, Eugenia Gilbert. Story by Ford I. Beebe. Scenarist, Ford I. Beebe. Director, Leo Maloney.

Aftermath

A Wild, Post-Bellum Melodrama

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

THE activities of bloodthirsty hordes of lawless men and the stir they made in the lives of a family of aristocrats in an imaginary country in Europe following the chaos and the toppling of power which the war brought about are sometimes realistically and just as often theatrically played up in this production from the other side, a sheer melodrama.

The freebooters sweep down upon the household. They take possession of the lady's best, make a stable of her house with their continual carouses and quarrels. The woman disguises her son as a servant in order to protect him from the leader of the crew of cutthroats, wily rascals intensely fond of wine, women, killing and the like.

The governor of the province visits the home of the lady, from whom he wears a memento in the form of a scar received years ago with a whip. The lady of the house figures that she can receive no help from the governor; he, indeed, is virtually a prisoner of the bandit chief, so she endeavors to stall off the latter's ferocious tendencies with craft and strategy.

The plot moves along with the danger threatening the lady growing more and more threatening. Then in a burst of melodrama following a wild party, the bandit chief meets his doom when he staggeringly makes his way towards the chamber of his hostess. In the darkness he is belted over the head with an axe. The menace removed, the lady, her son and her prospective daughter-in-law make their way to safety over the borders in company with the governor.

It's the type of action that takes. The acting is fairly good, the story has a punch and a decent amount of humor. But here the exhibitor is up against the bulwark of unknown players in the cast. You'll have to exploit it.

Drawing Power: Suitable for double feature bill, with some well-known figure in the other feature strong enough to offset the lack of appeal in this one. Exploitation Angle: Play it up as an exciting melodrama of post-war Europe. Tell them it's a novelty presentation from the other side.

THEME: A story of struggle and strife somewhere in Central Europe after the war.

Distributed by Collwyn Pictures. (S. R.) Released, December 1, 1927. Length, 6,800 feet. The Cast: Olga Tschechowa, Hans Adalbert von Schlettow, Jenny Hasselquist, Fritz Alberti, Hubert von Meyerink, Camilla Spira, Oscar Homolke, Hugo Werner-Kahle, Frieda Praut.

The City Gone Wild

Fairly Good

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

A ROLE he played once before in "Manslaughter" is again portrayed by Tommy Meighan in this story of a district attorney and his fight against the underworld, not another "Manslaughter." The picture unearths the activities of merciless gunmen. It has the figure of a man well thought of in the world of affairs, who uses a cloak of respectability to obscure his insidious maneuverings as the leader of the underworld, its silent "old man" whom the gunmen never see, but whose wish is a command.

This chap is the father of the girl for whose love Meighan and the district attorney strive. The girl refuses Meighan's suit because of his activities as a criminal lawyer. The leader of the underworld, discovering that his true position is known, orders the murder of the district attorney to silence him. His friend, a victim of a killer's bullet, Meighan obtains the post of district attorney, swearing he will clean out the underworld.

He enters one of the dives of the gangsters and finds the man he's looking for. But when the defense asks for bail he has to sadly assent, because he has been told that his girl's father will be revealed as a criminal if he carries on the prosecution. Finding that his hands are tied, the district attorney resigns, and warns the master mind of the underworld that he will expose him. The latter commits suicide.

The girl still regards Meighan with scorn; she cannot understand why he destroyed her father's letter to her, a confession, and she believes he resigned from the district attorneyship to shield the gangsters. But, as the circumstances generally evolve, they come to an understanding and everything ends happily.

There is some good acting in the cast, although Meighan is a trifle too unobtrusive and Marietta Millner does not fare so well.

Drawing Power: Between fair and good. Exploitation Angles: The press book has some corking ideas.

THEME: Drama of the underworld in which a district attorney clears his good name.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Released, November, 1927. Length, 5,408 feet. The Cast: Thomas Meighan, Marietta Milner, Louise Brooks, Fred Kohler, Duke Martin, Nancy Phillips, Wyndham Standing, Charles Hill Mailes, King Zany, "Gun Boat" Smith. Story by Charles and Jules Furthman. Director, James Cruze.

Black Jack

Good Western Attraction

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

THIS is one of the best westerns Buck Jones has had in some time. With a good story and direction he rides to a satisfactory height in an action story of the wild west. The story is built around the somewhat novel detail of three pieces of a silver dollar on which is indented the map of a hidden mine of rich ore, and the fact that these three stories are in the hands of as many people—a young girl, a shiftless cowboy and a leader of a gang of rustlers.

The hero gets the name of Black Jack because he is always playing that game of cards—that is, when he has not been driven out of town for some devilment or other. This smiling fellow, seemingly lazy, meets a pretty girl in distress. He does her a favor and she reciprocates when, captured by the sheriff's posse and brought before the judge, he is granted his freedom when she vamps the judge.

The girl is aware that a certain ranchman has a piece of the dollar and she goes to see him. While on her way she is captured by the rustlers, but freed by Buck, who arrives, providentially, after the manner of Western heroes. He takes her to the rancher's house, where they see the leader of the rustlers. Buck gets both the lady's third of the coin and the rustler's, and gives them to her. He is captured by the rustler's men and imprisoned, but escapes with the aid of his horse. Then he goes after the girl, who, in turn, is in the power of the rustler. Temporarily holding off the rustler and his gang, they make their escape to the location of the hidden ore mine. Just when their ammunition is running low and the rustlers are edging closer, the sheriff's posse appears and captures the gang.

Buck contributes some electrifying action.

Drawing Power: Good for any audiences liking westerns. Exploitation Angles: The press book is liberally sprinkled with ideas.

THEME: Western in which young cowboy secures two pieces of a silver dollar which match his own piece. With the complete coin he locates a rich ore mine.

Produced and distributed by Fox Films. Released, September, 1927. Length, 4,877 feet. The Cast: Buck Jones, Barbara Bennett, Theodore Lorch, Geo. Berrell, Harry Gording, Wm. Caress, Buck Moulton, Murdock MacQuarrie, Frank Laning, Mark Hamilton, Sam Allen. Story by Johnston McCulley. Scenarist, Harold Shumate. Director, Orville O. Dull.

The Valley of Hunted Men

This Western Satisfies

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

BUFFALO BILL, JR., is the confident young westerner who rounds up a gang of smugglers in this western whose scene is that of the Mexican-United States border. A member of the U. S. revenue force, Bill, makes a promise to capture the smugglers his comrades have been seeking. He states that he will be back on American soil within jig time, and that the men he is after will be with him. This is not too unassuming a statement for a screen westerner to make. You know how invincible is his tribe.

So the young American heads for Mexican territory and for the haunts of the bad men. He arrives at a little town, the rendezvous of the cutthroats. As the mysterious stranger he is the subject of discussion of the men around him. They try to knife him, but, of course, he does not meet that fate. He is such an attractive man that two women, a Mexican girl and an American girl, love him. The former is the tool of the unscrupulous inn owner, who, in turn, takes orders from the American girl's uncle, the suave leader of the bandits, whose occupation is not known to his niece.

The Mexican girl sees Bill making love to the other lady, so she aids the rascally bunch to frame him, hoping that he will be knifed in the conflict. Bill is too agile for the slow-moving Mexicans, so their plan miscarries, and the girl's uncle is slain in the battle. By keeping just a little bit ahead of them, by misleading them with the idea that they can overtake him Bill leads them over the border into the hands of the troopers, who had been summoned in answer to a smoke signal Bill had prepared before carrying out his little ruse.

Drawing Power: These westerns ought to fare fairly well at the neighborhood and second run houses, or at any place where the western type of picture goes over.

THEME: Western. U. S. revenue man captures gang of outlaws and smugglers, and wins girl at same time.

Produced by Action Pictures, Inc. Distributed by Pathe. Released, February 19, 1928. Length, 4,520 feet. The Cast: Buffalo Bill, Jr., Oscar Apfel, Kathleen Collins, Jack Ganzhorn, Alma Rayford, Frank Griffith, Frank Ellis, Beryl Roberts. Story by Harington Strong. Director, Richard Thorpe.

A Girl In Every Port

Carries a Kick And Is Entertaining

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

ALL things considered this picture should stir up an average amount of excitement. It isn't so much to rave about as to plot, but it contains some well-assorted gags, and a lively line of action. It's more of a man's picture than a woman's—chiefly because Victor McLaglen is in the foreground—and background, too, for that matter. And gentlemen when that baby is present there's always a masculine flavor to the film.

Big Vic plays a sailor—and so does Robert Armstrong. And where there are sailors you can always find girls. The two heroes are ever fighting one another, only to make up when fighting the common enemy. It is done to the tune of comedy, with not much romance. The appeal lies in the companionship of the sailors. The boys get into a mix-up concerning one of the heroines. She plays one against the other, but the trouble is eventually settled when the sailors vow to let no more girls come between them.

The roles are played with good spirit by the company, with McLaglen carrying most of the burden. There is a flock of heroines and the majority of them contribute good bits. The piece should be popular.

Drawing Power: Title has a lure about it. McLaglen's name is popular. Suitable for average houses, especially downtown trade. Exploitation Angles: Tease the title. Play up the comedy angle. Feature McLaglen and Louise Brooks.

THEME: Comedy-romance of staunch friendship of two sailors.

Produced and distributed by Fox Films. Length, six reels. Released, February, 1928. The Cast: Victor McLaglen, Robert Armstrong, Maria Casajuana, Natalie Joyce, Dorothy Matthews, Louise Brooks, Sally Rand, Francis McDonald, Gretel Yoltz, Natalie Kingston, Caryl Lincoln. Director, Howard Hawks.

Feel My Pulse

Slapstick Comedy With Bebe Putting It Over

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

THEY'VE made Bebe Daniels into a little roughhouse worker here and she comes through with colors flying. Which shows that her training in the old days, when Harold Lloyd made the two-reelers, has made her adaptable to go slapstick. It comprises a series of gags, most of which are well distributed in a yarn depending upon lively action and colorful characterization for success.

The star portrays a rich heiress who has been pampered through a will left by an indulgent father. Reared in seclusion by a hot-house plant of an uncle she escapes from his protective wing when she becomes of age. Thereupon she joins up with another uncle, one this time who has Western written all over him. But she balks about taking the sagebrush trail and finds refuge in a sanitarium. Here is where the film gets real rambunctious with gags and slapstick. Thrown amidst a gang of hi-jackers, bootleggers, et al., she takes matters in hand and routs them. Then it is that she discovers her heart is not so weak, after all.

The story is O. K. if one doesn't penetrate too deeply into the plot. It keeps going—which is one thing in its favor. And the captions of George Marion, Jr., are good. Richard Arlen supplies the romance very creditably.

Drawing Power: Has teasing possibilities in title. Star always popular. Should draw. Exploitation Angles: Tease the title and exploit star as having lively film. Feature Richard Arlen.

THEME: Romantic comedy of girl who kicks over traces and finds adventure and romance.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Length, six reels. Released, February, 1928. The Cast: Bebe Daniels, Melbourne McDowell, Richard Arlen, Heinie Conklin, George Irving, William Powell. Director, Gregory La Cava.

The Latest From Paris

Good Light Entertainment

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

WITHOUT the presence of Norma Shearer to give it tone and quality of characterization this picture wouldn't be so hot. But it shapes up as good light entertainment because of her very charming portrayal. The piece has to do with the star playing a traveling sales-woman in the cloak-and-suit business—a role which has become easy for her. That is, it offers little variation of the efficient secretary who has served Miss Shearer on occasions.

The action takes Norma on the road and into romance. But before the love interest is written on the tag end of the plot the idea must necessarily exploit some conflict. So the heroine runs into competition with the hero.

The comedy hasn't any large salvos of laughter. What it offers in the shape of amusement is contained in some mild chuckles here and there. As mentioned above the star is the whole works here. She gets good assistance from Ralph Forbes and George Sidney. The piece is appropriately mounted, and certainly should entertain the ladies.

DRAWING POWER: O. K. for neighborhood houses and other houses with large feminine clientele. Wherever star is popular picture should draw. Exploitation Angles: Play up Paris and tie-up with modiste shops. Feature star as ideal for the part portrayed here.

THEME: Romantic comedy of traveling saleswoman.

Produced and distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Length, six reels. Released, February, 1928. The Cast: Norma Shearer, Ralph Forbes, Tenen Holtz, George Sidney. Margaret Landis, Bert Roach. Director, Sam Wood.

Soft Living

Rather Fluffy But Fairly Amusing

(Reviewed by Laurence Reid)

A FLUFFY little tidbit of a film is exposed on the silversheet in "Soft Living," and it shapes up as a fairly amusing trifle. It's a slight conceit on a domestic angle—with the central figure a divorce lawyer's secretary. Having discovered how her employer's clients "dig" for alimony she is determined to find a rich boob and take him across. The idea was once exploited by none other than the Bard in "The Taming of the Shrew." Here Mr. Caveman takes his bride and proceeds to teach her a lesson in the proper deportment of a bride. He hies her off to his primitive cabins and makes her learn humility and obedience.

There are a few amusing scenes, but for the most part it slides along on pretty thin ice, the titles helping to tickle it with laughs. There is no padding, and the settings are tasty and easy on the eye. Madge Bellamy's performance is spirited enough and she flashes talent as a comedienne. Johnnie Mack Brown is colorless as the youth.

Drawing Power: Suitable for average houses or first runs if supported by strong programs. Exploitation Angles: Play up the method of a he-man in taming a bride. Exploit star who is flashing strong as a comedienne.

THEME: Domestic comedy based upon a young husband taming his spirited, gold-digging bride.

"Galloping Ghosts"

(Roach-Pathe—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

AS the title might imply, this is a graveyard tale which has as its featured players, Ora Carew, John T. Murray, Oliver Hardy, Jimmy Finlayson and Fred Malatesta. It is the story of a great diamond that is stolen and the trail leads to a graveyard at midnight.

With a superstitious colored cop assigned to the rendezvous and with the head of the police department and the rightful owner of the jewel promising to be there properly camouflaged, there is a setting for plenty of fun and action.

The fun starts when the mysterious girl in white puts in an appearance at the graveyard at midnight, closely followed by the colored cop, who in turn, is followed by the camouflaged parties in the disguise of trees. The diamond thief comes to keep his rendezvous with the girl in white and is engaged in a desperate battle with the owner of the jewel, to whom the mysterious girl gives her assistance and the thief is subdued. There are a number of good comedy situations, with some gag stuff

The cast is a good one and all of the members do their work cleverly. Miss Carew has not been seen in these comedies for some time past. She is as attractive as ever but she has comparatively little to do in this one.

"Pets and Pests"

(M-G-M—Ufa—One Reel)

HOUSEHOLD pets—cats, dogs, monkeys, parrots, goldfish, etc.—are the topics stressed in this novelty from the Ufa studios in Berlin. The way the animals and birds conduct themselves when they come in contact with one another supplies humor and interest. The reel does not go into educational fields, but leans rather towards presenting the subjects in a humorous light. Among the scenes is one of a monkey teasing a parrot and another of a chimpanzee solemnly surveying his countenance in a mirror and puzzled as to where the image comes from.—RAYMOND GANLY.

"Secrets of the Sea"

(M-G-M—Ufa—One Reel)

ANOTHER of those interesting shorts from Ufa. Under the microscope are seen the varied and multiform organisms in which the sea is so rich. The camera takes you right into the laboratory of a German scientist who is examining the contents of a pail of sea water. His powerful microscope reveals the miniature under-sea life in its various states of evolution. Very interesting and very educational—RAYMOND GANLY.

"Watch George"

(Universal Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

GEORGE, in his usual blundering way, manages to do a pretty good job of it in this comedy of the Let George Do It series. It has to do with mummies, and George is just about as dumb as the rest of them, as a result of which he succeeds in his mission.

George is Mary's bashful sweetheart and he bungles into the capture of a desperate criminal, for which he is rewarded with a place on the police force. Mary's father wants a valuable mummy guarded in his absence and sends for the bravest man on the force. George is detailed to the job.

Thieves arrive at the house and disguise themselves as mummies, much to the consternation of George, who has a desperate time distinguishing the real mummy from the intruders. The thieves change places with the mummy, and humorous situations pile up thick and fast, until George subdues the intruders with the return of Mary, her father and a purchaser for the mummy.

The mummy is not in its usual resting place, at which Mary's father and the prospective purchaser become wildly excited. Rushing into the adjoining room they find George with his victims and the mummy. There is some hilarious comedy throughout the two reels, and the action is fast and furious.

"Some Babies"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

CHARLES PUFFY has another of the Octavus Roy Cohen stories as a vehicle here, and it is enlivened by the appearance of a large number of cute looking babies as well as some that are not so cute. However, the babies are responsible for whatever there is attractive in the picture, and babies are usually sure-fire.

Puffy and his wife, a couple with means, have no baby of their own so decide to adopt one, and advertise that fact. The value of advertising is amply proven by the response. They are swamped with mothers dragging and carrying their offspring with them, but they have difficulty in determining upon a selection. Puffy wants a boy and his wife a girl. They battle bitterly over it and then decide to adopt both a boy and girl.

Their troubles start as they retire for the night, each with the care of the adopted children. After a hectic night they conclude they have made a mistake in the adoptions, and decide to return the children, but on the porch in the morning they find scores of babies, so they start an orphanage of their own. There is little to recommend in the picture, aside from some of the closeups of the babies.

"The Payroll Roundup"

(Universal—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

BOB CURWOOD, as Bob Jenkins, is framed by the villain, in this western featurette, to make it appear as though he had been guilty of robbing the stage, and because of that all the action develops. Bob is in love with Anne Baird, whose father is the sheriff and owner of the stage line at Red Rock.

Ed Kern, head of an outlaw band, dashes up to the sheriff's office with the information that the stage has been robbed by a bandit wearing a red bandana handkerchief. He slips said handkerchief into the rear pocket of Bob, and then accuses him of the holdup. Of course, in these westerns, this is sufficient evidence to warrant an arrest, and it is the painful duty of the sheriff to arrest Bob.

Bob cannot see it that way, so he makes a dash for his horse, after scaling various roofs and trees, and executes a successful getaway, with all hands in pursuit, including the girl, who, however, still believes in him. She manages to elude the posse in the woods and join up with Bob, who tells her of his suspicions of Kern. He decides to go to the latter's cabin, where Kern comes with his band. Bob, through a ruse, starts the band fighting, and when they have worn each other out he takes a hand and finishes the job. The loot is returned to the sheriff, and everything ends as it should.

The action is much the same as that in all these westerns. There is some good riding and some terrific fist fighting, with all hands being rendered horizontal at one time or another.

"The Swim Princess"

(Sennett-Pathe—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

MACK SENNETT offers another of his swimming girl comedies with Daphne Pollard, Andy Clyde and Carole Lombard as the featured players, and the Sennett bathing girls shown in a number of beautiful technicolor tableaux. The color views make an unusually attractive set of pictures, and are decidedly a factor in making this two-reeler as attractive as it is.

There is a good comedy sequence injected here and there, and the picture will undoubtedly be good for many laughs. In fact it is one of the best Daphne Pollard has done. She is real humorous in some antics, but as in most of these comedies there is too much effort to keep them hilarious with some slim material.

Carole Lombard, the swimming star of the girl's school team, is landed in jail for speeding on her way to the meet with the rival school. She is finally released through the clever ruse of Daphne, and they dash back in time to participate in the last relay of the decisive event of the meet. Miss Lombard is detained through a series of circumstances as they arrive at their destination with the sheriff only a jump or two behind Miss Pollard. The latter jumps into the last relay just as closely pursued by the sheriff and, by his incentive, she wins the relay for her school.

There are a number of pretty shots showing the girls in diving stunts and under-water swimming. All in all, it is a picture far above the average for these two-reelers.

"Smith's Farm Days"

(Sennett-Pathe—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

THE Mary Ann Jackson, Raymond McKee and Ruth Hiatt trio are featured in this Sennett comedy of the farm, which, in reality, depends upon a wide variety of animals and birds to get it over than it does upon the principals. It's more messy than it is humorous when the entire menagerie gets trapezing through the house after a violent rainstorm.

The Smiths are visiting at uncle's farm, and the maid tells Mary Ann the story of Noah's Ark. So Mary Ann proceeds to assemble all of the animals on the farm and to use the house as an ark. She shoos horses, mules, pigs, geese, chickens, and so forth, through the premises, and is having a glorious time until the family arrives.

What comedy there is in the two reels is of the rough and tumble variety, with McKee the main victim. Little Mary Ann has little opportunity to display her usual cleverness. It is a picture that is hardly up to the old Sennett standard.

"Count Me Out"

(Educational—One Reel)

BARNEY HELLUM, the diminutive comedian who appeared about two years ago in some of Pathe's comedies, makes his debut in Educational comedies in this comedy of a hired man, who knocks out a prominent prize fighter to win the hand of a crusty old farmer. The idea has been used before, but in this one they have taken it out of storage, propped it with a few gags and made it do service once again. It's but an average comedy.

Barney uses stilts, roller skates and other implements to win his fight. His husky opponent is finally knocked cold after Barney has swallowed some horse liniment by mistake, the liquid giving him a kick like a mule.

Pretty tame as a laugh getter.--RAYMOND GANLY.

"The Smile Wins"

(Roach-Pathe—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Chester J. Smith)

HAL ROACH and "Our Gang" go in a bit for the sentimental stuff in this latest of the gang comedies, and it is quite an improvement over the usual all-comedy two reelers. It is a combination of the sentimental and the slightly toned-down comedy, with the sentimental even dominating a trifle, and it is mighty good entertainment. It is evident that more attention was given the story than usual, and that the producers did not depend upon gag stuff and rough and tumble comedy.

Farina is the son of an invalid mother who keeps the family alive, despite her condition, by taking in the washing of the neighbors. She is threatened with ejection from her home by a flinty-hearted landlord unless she can produce $200 the following day. Farina, meantime is in the bad graces of the neighborhood gang, who take it that by his continuous smile he is laughing at them.

The gang waylays Farina as he is delivering the laundry and makes a mess of the clean clothes until Joe interrupts. Then the true condition's within Farina's home are learned, and the gang decides to drill for oil in the back yard. They strike a gusher as the grasping landlord appears and rushing to Farina's mother writes her a check for $50,000 for her interest in the property. Farina rushes to the bank, cashes the check, and returns in time to see an irate neighbor belaboring the grasping landlord for having punctured his pipe line. Farina fades out garbed in high hat, swallow-tailed coat and directing his chauffeur to drive him to the new mansion. It is a picture that will bring back renewed confidence in the Roach kids.

"Leave 'Em Laughing"

(M-G-M—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

STAN LAUREL and Oliver Hardy dole out a bountiful aggregation of laughs in this one, about one of the best they have made since "The Second Hundred Years" and "The Battle of the Century." In all of these comedies but a simple idea was employed for the building up of the laughs. In "The Second Hundred Years" a tremendously long flight of steps up which they traveled in their efforts to sell a washing machine was the idea which was so elaborately worked out; in "The Battle of the Century" most of the comedy was the result of a fierce pie fight. In "Leave 'Em Laughing" Hal Roach's clever gag men have made use of another simple idea—that of having Laurel and Hardy so affected by laughing gas that they get into all sorts of jams with a traffic officer. The comedy is always of a broad type, at which the supercilious may, at times, sniff haughtily but at which the great majority will indulge in uproarious laughter.

A good comedy—just one of a series of good ones that these two Roach comedians have made lately. They were directed by Clyde Bruckman, supervised by Leo McCarey. The film was edited by Richard Currier and titled by Reed Heustis.

"The Old Wallop"

(M-G-M-Roach—Two Reels)

(Reviewed by Raymond Ganly)

"WHEEZER," the little chap who is fast taking the place vacated by Farina in Hal Roach's "Our Gang," stars here. His little act consists in punching people on the nose and he carries a wallop too (his father is a prize fighter). During the first part of this comedy he punches everyone on the nose, including his brother, Farina, policemen, and passers-by who stop to admire him and murmer "Nize baby."

After they have played on this punching theme for a while, the kids are made to switch their activities to a skyscraper in the construction stage. Farina becomes caught in some of the material and is carried aloft. The gang set out to rescue him and finally do so after various bits of comedy from Fatty, Jackie and some of the other boys.

Newspaper Opinions

"Four Sons"—Fox Films, Carthay Circle Theatre, Los Angeles

Examiner: "One of finest pictures of its kind ever produced."

Evening Herald: "Human story acted with understanding and photographed with rare beauty."

Evening Express: "Stirred hearts of those who packed Carthay Circle last night."

"The Shepherd of the Hills"—First National, Circle Theatre, Indianapolis

Times: "Beautiful story. Truly a big picture that is worth seeing. One of best screen fights I have ever seen."

Star: "Pretentious production and excellent cast. Will appeal greatly to those who find pleasure in author. Work of Francis admirable."

News: "Director has made sincere effort to capture true atmosphere of Ozark Mountains and their people. Francis does well."

"The Noose"—First National, Capitol Theatre, Detroit

Free Press: "Again has Barthelmess struck bull's-eye. Gives restrained but poignant characterization. There is an impeccable cast. Direction is such that every drop of effective screen presentation has been extracted from melodrama. You will be deeply moved."

"Love Me and the World is Mine"—Universal, Roxy Theatre, New York City

Herald-Tribune: "With utmost enthusiasm we recommend 'Love Me and the World Is Mine.' . . . Beauty of photography, masterly direction by Dupont, devastating charm of Mary Philbin and manly presence and fine acting of Kerry . . . Miss Philbin one of most valuable young actresses on screen."

World: "Interesting and picturesque. Dupont has captured something of rueful charm of that tragic city of past enchantments (Vienna). Is assisted by excellent cast. . . Film stands as one of most vivid pictures of continental life."

"Sadie Thompson"—United Artists, St. Francis Theatre, San Francisco

Bulletin: "Gloria gives fine performance. No motion picture could be more satisfying than 'Sadie Thompson.' The film given truly marvellous direction by Walsh. Beyond any doubt her Sadie Thompson is the most artistic achievement she has ever accomplished in her screen career. Her emotional delineations are comparable only to our best emotional actresses."

Call and Post: "Gloria sets new mark. Has a pictured role of fitting caliber to show the depth and breadth of her ability as an emotional actress. Tremendous scenes. The emotional tension of the picture increases. Has been carefully and seriously made and should have a deserved popularity."

News: "Powerful drama. Delightfully amusing in the comedy. Gloria a wonderful Sadie Thompson. Makes of it a role which will compare more than favorably with the best she has ever done."

Examiner: "An absorbing story, absorbingly played by Barrymore and Gloria Swanson and directed by Walsh with as much power in its own particular tempo and spirit, as his 'What Price Glory.' Is strong meat. Miss Swanson volcanic in the intensity of her portrayal."

Chronicle: "Gloria Swanson is doing the best work of her career. Great appeal and is splendidly directed. In it Miss Swanson triumphs by giving a real characterization of the heartsick, but surface-gay Sadie. Picture is one that holds attention and fascinates the spectators. Miss Swanson is sincere in her impersonation of Sadie, sincere and earnest and artistic. And how pretty she is! It is a beautiful piece of work."

"My Best Girl"—Unted Artists, Stanton Theatre, Philadelphia

Public Ledger: "'America's Sweetheart' and supreme actress. Mary touches the depths of feeling, calling forth all her wealth of talent with a certain sureness that is inspiring to watch. It is Mary's picture from beginning to end. Exceptionally fine and entertaining."

Record: "Anybody who can sit through 'My Best Girl' without both laughing out loud and surreptitiously weeping is—if there are any such—unworthy of the picture. It has plenty of pure hokum. But it is, by and large, as interesting, as amusing and as appealing a picture as the Stanton is likely to have again in a long time. If 'My Best Girl' does not tickle the ribs and stir the tear ducts of some hundreds of thousands of persons before it is done, here is a woefully bad guess."

Inquirer: "Both the young and the old will laugh with a delicious thrill of appreciation for the heedless happiness that exudes from the lovers in this picture. The picture full of humor and a very human kind of pathos."

Bulletin: "All doubt as to who is Queen of the Screen was settled, so far as Philadelphia's movie fans are concerned, by the crowds that came and filled the Stanton theatre to capacity, time and again, to see Mary Pickford in her new film, 'My Best Girl.' Young and old they had to come to pay their tribute to the first lady of the screen, and, during the hour and a quarter of the film's unreeling, she held them in the hollow of her hand, sending them away, at the close, delighted beyond measure that she is still the same clever little mimic, with the same charm and grace as of old."

Regional News from Correspondents

New England

ONE of the biggest shake-ups in Boston's film district in recent years has taken place at the Pathe exchange. It has been the talk of the district during the week. The change is not entirely unexpected for the consolidation of Producers with Pathe months ago brought about much duplication of effort.
